WOMEN IN YOUR "40s"
Read This Important Message!

Do you dread those "trying years" (38 to 52)? Are you getting moody, cranky and NERVOUS? Do you fear hot flashes, weakening dizzy spells? Are you jealous of attentions other women get? THEN LISTEN—

These symptoms often result from female functional disorders. So start today and take famous Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. For over 60 years Pinkham's Compound has helped hundreds of thousands of grateful women to go "smiling thru" difficult days. Pinkham's has helped calm unstrung nerves and lessen annoying female functional "irregularities." One of the most effective "woman's" tonics. Try it!

That Nagging Backache

May Warn of Disordered Kidney Action

Modern life with its hurry and worry, irregular habits, improper eating and drinking—its risk of exposure and infection—throws heavy strain on the work of the kidneys. They are apt to become over-taxed and fail to filter excess acid and other impurities from the life-giving blood.

You may suffer nagging backache, headache, dizziness, getting up nights, leg pains, swelling—feel constantly tired, nervous, all worn out. Other signs of kidney or bladder disorder are sometimes burning, scanty or too frequent urination.

Try Doan's Pills. Doan's help the kidneys to pass off harmful excess body waste. They have had more than half a century of public approval. Are recommended by grateful users everywhere. Ask your neighbor!

Sham Battles Give Boys Strenuous Workout

Child Refugees Met by Marshall Field

Left: Marshall Field, chairman of the committee for the care of European children, gets acquainted with Gwendolyn Kell, 6, of London, and Geoffrey A. Newbold, 6, of Middlesex, as the children arrive on the Samaria. Homes are available for them, and according to all indications, they were happy because of the hospitality extended to them. Right: Bunks were at a premium, and at times during the voyage some of the 138 refugee children from Great Britain slept in lifeboats. Clyde and Trevor Davies (shown) are so doing. They were sent to a home in Boston.

President Roosevelt at Maneuvers

The situation in the nation's biggest peace-time army maneuvers is explained to President Franklin D. Roosevelt by General Hugh Drum at Norwood, New York. The President, who is seated in his car, and the general carefully go over a map of the terrain over which the maneuvers were held.

Fires 10,000 Shots a Minute, Silently

Put through a test by its two inventors, William Hale and Durand Beam, this rifle fired 10,000 shots per minute—with absolutely no noise. The rifle operates with compressed air. It reduced three-inch oak planks to kindling and turned airplane armor plate into steel mosquito netting. It resembles a sub-machine gun, and when it starts firing the barrel gets cooler instead of heating up.

To Arouse America

Aims of the committee are physical and moral preparedness with mightier force, and the preservation of peace in the Western Hemisphere.

BEHOLD this modern version of an old-time laundry bag. It is made of sturdy ticking in crisp red and white stripes. It hangs flat against the wall with ivory rings over brass hooks. It closes neatly with a zipper and may be opened with one hand. The zipper is applied in a curve to make an ample opening, and the bag is held in shape with a board in the bottom. Surely you will want one of these and will want to make one or more for gifts. Christmas is not so far away, and here is something for a man, woman or child.

Everything you need to know to make this bag is given in the sketch. These directions are not in any of the booklets, so be sure to clip them. There is also an interesting laundry and shoe door pocket in Book 4. An easy-to-make garment bag illustrated in Book 1, and twin pockets for a pantry door in Book 3, solve the problem of what to do with clean and soiled tea towels. All these closet accessories make grand gift and bazaar items.

Nazi Long Range Guns and Bombers Blast Southeast Coast of Great Britain; Mussolini Seeks Greek Naval Bases; Japan Pushes English Out of Shanghai

(EDITOR'S NOTE—When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of the news analyst and not necessarily of this newspaper.)

Pictured above is the United States representation on the joint Canadian-American Defense Board now meeting in Ottawa and working out preliminary steps in planning hemisphere defense measures. This photo was taken as the board met with President Roosevelt before proceeding to Canada. Members of the group (reading left to right) are: (Back row) Capt. Harry W. Hill, Lieut. Col. Joseph T. McNarney; Capt. Forrest P. Sherman, Lieut. Gen. Stanley D. Embick, John D. Hickerson. (Front): Mayor Fiorello H. La Guardia of New York City, chairman of the board, and President Roosevelt, seated.

THE WAR:
Long Range

Long-range German guns, posted in France along the channel shore, banged away at England, not so many miles away. These were the famous Big Berthas of song and story, but they failed at first to prove much. They shot at ship convoys, but their bore wore out quickly, and they were clumsy and expensive. In the last war, the famous German "Paris gun" was a waste of time, and these promised to be the same. Their objective, of course, was to cut across the channel, and close it tight as a drum. This maneuver failed to worry the increasingly cheerful British.

In their first air attack on Berlin, British bombers swooped out of a night sky directly over the heart of the city, were driven off by anti-air craft fire and dropped their explosives on the city's outskirts.

The German aerial losses had been terrific, well over 1,000 planes, and maybe many more of them. The land invasion threat appeared to be "out"—for dictators cannot risk the chance of a bloody setback or repulse, especially one of so spectacular a nature. It seemed that the so quick-acting Germans were just a bit puzzled about what to do next. They continued to tighten their blockade of the British Isles by land and sea and air.

The British banged back, by bombing the Heinkel, Messerschmitt, Junkers and Dornier airplane works, and the Zeppelin works on Lake Constance, where the famous Mercedes-Benz air motors are manufactured. Other big industrial plants, in the Germanies, "got" it too, and German nerves (like those of the Americans) are nowhere near as good as stolid Britannic neurology. It began to look like a much longer war, which did not help Willkie's chances for the presidency any.

Italics

The Italians continued to bully the Greeks, in quest of Greek naval bases to use against England in the Eastern Mediterranean. Greece was tied to Turkey, Russia, and England in one way or another, and all three of them expressed interest and sympathy. Would the war spread still further, the critics wondered? Would Greece turn into an Italic Finland? Meanwhile, the Italians took British Somaliland on the Red sea, in an effort to cut the ocean route between England and her treasure-house of India. The British garrison got away, by flight and skill, as it had done already at Narvik, Dunkirk, and elsewhere. They said it was another "moral victory" for the Bullmen. All England had had in Somaliland was some South Africans, the local camel corps (partly mechanized, partly camelled, partly horsed), and a section of the ubiquitous royal air force. The R. A. F., as usual, gave a good account of itself. Not so, the camellaries. The Italians-in-Africa didn't look so good either, although they were in there fighting and making the usual big noise (so the critics declared, en masse).

Chamberlain

Old Chamberlain was on the way out, in politics, and so were Duff Cooper, the stylish propaganda expert, Sir Kingsley Wood, the budget maker, and Cockney Herbert Morrison, the economic bigshot. (Lloyd George, who won the last war, was on his way in, they said.) Lord Halifax, a Chamberlain partner, the one-armed foreign minister, was fading away, and the Laborite Hugh Dalton was scheduled for his ticklish job.

CAMPAIGN:
Squabbles?

Willkie found that his ardent supporters consisted of two groups: the independent Willkie clubs, and the dissident Willkie Democrats. His less ardent supporters were a good deal more basic. They consisted of the Republican party regulars, in and out of congress. The regulars were grumbling like Napoleon's Old Guard before Moscow.

Willkie himself is an ex-Democrat and very independent of the regulars in his ways and habits. He is disinclined to lean on the Old Guard, although the Old Guard begs to be leaned against. Old Guardisti complained that the candidate was too casual about consulting—and obeying—them. Then again, many of the O. G. are isolation-minded, while the independents and Democratic refugees are inclined, like Willkie himself, to be interventionists. Despite all the Hoosier getup, Willkie definitely, they said, has an eastern outlook (and maybe he has).

Some of the regulars, too, thought that "their man" Willkie was too New Dealish. He did not denounce many of the Roosevelt reforms, but adopted them in principle. He merely promised to "improve" the administration of what the regulars thought was a racket. In fact, the New Dealers said that Willkie was, substantially, "their man," too. This made the regulars—the O. G.—huffier than ever.

F. D. Bonaparte

F. D. Roosevelt-Bonaparte found himself in the same position as Napoleon, in the decisive year 1815. Bonaparte proper had then served two terms, and he wanted a third one. His first term had lasted for 14 years. Then came Elba. His second term lasted 100 days. Then came Waterloo. But the point was this:

Bonaparte (like Roosevelt) depended on the proletariat, as against the economic royalists and Bourbons. The French proletariat hated the Napoleonic conscription like poison, and many American proletarians dislike the prospect of conscription, too. But regardless of their anti-conscript attitude, the French plebs rallied round Napoleon, because they feared the Bourbons would repeal all the Napoleonic social reforms. The American plebs, against conscription though they may be, have the same attitude. They fear that if the "Bourbons" recapture the White House, even though they would scrap conscription, they might also scrap the Roosevelt reformation. Hence, the man in the street is for Roosevelt-Bonaparte.

DEAD:

They died like flies, the bigshots did. Sir Oliver Lodge of England was one of them. He was the great scientist, mental telepathist, and spiritualist. He was 89, and much beloved by everybody in all countries. Then there was LeonTrotsky, or Comrade Braunstein. He was the organizer of the Red army, the brilliant author, the mortal foe of Stalin, Hitler, Churchill and others.

He was pickaxed by a "good friend," down Mexico way. Everybody blamed it on Stalin and his dread secret Gestapo, but this was really rather unlikely. Trotsky was no longer of enough importance to pester, and Stalin is no fool, or time-waster.

There was also the notable Max Steuer that died. He was New York city's best-known lawyer—though not its best-loved legalist. Senator Wagner of New York indicated that he was such a philanthropist and humanitarian, but many people shook their heads.

Doleful Duo

These seven-year-old twin refugees from Brussels, Belgium, Johannes and Franciscus De Baat Doleman, sit and survey the future after landing at Jersey City, N. J., from the child refugee ship the S. S. Exeter. Their trip from Europe was only the first leg of their journey as they expect to continue on to Java in the Dutch East Indies. Many refugee children from Europe are finding homes in the United States.

WHAT THEN?
If and How

People began to wonder whether Russia might eventually enter the war on the British imperial side. Critics thought it may be likely, if the war dragged on long enough—and it might. Stalin fears Hitler and Mussolini in the Balkans, and wants to keep his rich Ukrainian province, the No. 2 Russian federal state. But if the Soviets helped England, whither America? It became a moot question.

For strong American business groups hated the communism of Russia, while even stronger religious groups hated the Soviet atheism. Would these people co-operate with an England that boasted a red, red ally. That was the point. Or, if Russia became an English ally, would we start to pamper the American Communists, who would also be the allies of Mr. Churchill?

Spain, Too

Then again—it appeared extremely probable that General Franco's Spain might go in on the German side. What then? Franco is the idol of the ruling class in Spanish America because he saved the Spanish church and crushed the Spanish reds. If our state department started to razz Franco, the ally of Hitler, the South Americans would be infuriated. Then, what would happen to Secretary Hull's "good neighbor" policy? Franco is also a special favorite of the Vatican. If Franco joined the Germans, what effect would that have on the American faithful? Would they not become increasingly isolationist? They would still dislike Hitler, of course, but they could hardly help but admire the great Spanish crusader of 1936-39—the conqueror of Moscow-in-Barcelona. The whole subject was worth detailed American pondering: From Washington to Wala Wala and Yonkers.

POLAND: ### Tyranny

There was more German tyranny in conquered Poland. The iron military heel was crushing down old Polish customs and ways of life. There came a new decree, of an unheard of nature. It rocked the steppes, the towns, the metropoli. It was this:

Every taxicab driver in Warsaw and Cracow, Poland's No. 1 and No. 2 cities, must shave at least every other day. The edict declared that it was just as important for cab-drivers to curry themselves as for these cabbies to curry and groom the good old dobbins. Here was an example of the usual combination: German oppression and German cleanliness.

BIG:
Bomber

The biggest airplane ever built is nearly finished. It will be the property of the army air corps. The Douglas air factory, near Santa Monica, Calif., has been at work on it for four years. The whole project is astonishing.

This giant plane can fly from New York to Europe, back to New York again, and then out to California—all non-stop. It will have four 2,000 horsepower engines, a wing spread of 212 feet, and 112 feet long.

SHOES:
In la France

La France nationalized all the shoes in the republique. It was done this way: oui, oui. The republique standardized and streamlined its totalitarian footwear. It was to be a standard shoe, manufactured in eight sizes, and it will be the only one permitted on the market. This will cut industrial production costs, lower retail prices, and speed up production. It will cut out all the foot-fripperies a la Parisienne. of yester-year.

SPEAKING OF SPORTS

By ROBERT McSHANE

Released by Western Newspaper Union

TED WILLIAMS, the long, skinny 22-year-old youngster with the Boston Red Sox, probably is the unhappiest player in big league baseball.

All too often these days he reads in the sports pages that he is a swell-head, a popoff and a spoiled kid.

Ted seems to have gone out of the way to furnish ammunition to sports writers—and most of that ammunition has backfired. It wasn't so long ago that he told one writer he would much rather be a fireman than a big league ball player. And just a short time ago he followed up with a declaration that he was fed up with Boston. He wasn't making enough money, he said, and wanted to be traded.

Boston fans were more or less aghast over the latter interview. After all, how many 22-year-old kids were earning $12,500 a year—Williams' salary? The Back Bay journal carried the story just as Williams gave it to the reporter, and irate citizens still are writing letters for the public opinion columns of newspapers.

A Liking for Brooklyn

If Ted had his way it is likely he would be with the Brooklyn Dodgers. His preference for Brooklyn was expressed last spring after Judge Kenesaw Mountain Landis had chopped 93 players from Detroit's farm system. Asked where he would go if he was a free agent, Ted replied, "Brooklyn. They'd like me up there."

Brooklyn, being in the National league, couldn't get him for half the club with Ebbets field thrown in on the trade. It is understood that he would just as soon move to Detroit, or failing that, to the Yankees. Possibilities of such a maneuver being realized appear to be exceedingly slim.

Unquestionably there is more than one reason for Ted's present morose state. Some of them are personal and others are the result of a more or less misguided move effort on the part of the Boston club. That misguided effort was the decision of club officials to move the right field fence forward some 20 feet in order to facilitate Williams' home run production. He had been banging the balls out there regularly.

A Plan Goes Wrong

Similar artifices to help veterans with years of experience had failed in both major leagues. Eddie Collins of the Red Sox decided to experiment even though his subject was only a second-year player. Even Ted's temperament didn't deter him.

With that shortened distance in right field the fans expected far too much from him. Ted felt that he was depended on to drive a homer every time he went to bat. Things just didn't work out that way. Boston saw its hoped-for pennant and its promised return of a second Babe Ruth fail to materialize. Williams became a target for the disgruntled, and being only 22 years old, hasn't yet the balance with which to take it.

Worth Appeasing

With Red Sox Owner Tom Yawkey rests much of the responsibility for Williams' future. Young enough to be a trifle unstable emotionally, there is little wrong with Ted that sympathetic, tolerant handling won't cure. Yawkey is a young man himself, and is smart enough to know it would be an extremely difficult job to replace a player of Williams' caliber.

A rookie ast year, Ted led the American league in runs batted in, clubbing out a 327 mark, including 31 home runs, 44 doubles and 11 triples. In right field for 149 games, he knocked 145 runs across the plate, 19 more than Joe DiMaggio. The Yankee ace, however, played in 126 games. On a proportionate basis, DiMaggio batted in 1.05 runs per game and Williams 0.97 per game.

It is virtually certain that Ted will have to learn to like Boston. He's too good to let go.

And you can be sure that all of Tom Yawkey's appeasement powers will be called upon for double duty.

Donie Bush of Minneapolis knew just how to handle Williams. During the midseason of 1938, Ted was reported to have walked into Bush's office with the announcement that he was going back to San Diego. He wasn't playing up to par and he was homesick.

"All right, Ted, I'll see that you get your tickets by tonight," replied Bush casually, seemingly wholly unconcerned.

Williams stayed in Minneapolis.

Sport Shorts

THE University of Nebraska will start its fifty-first football season this year with a percentage of .758, having won 291, lost 93 and tied 32 games in the 416 played . . . Barney McCosky and Charley Gehringer of the Tigers have identical batting stances . . . The Red Cross is interested in sponsoring a Joe Louis-Max Baer fight in Los Angeles. Ancil Hoffman, Baer's manager, reports that he can get more money for Baer there than in Chicago . . . And that is pretty important.

WITH her big roll-brim hat and new patent leathers, she'll look charming as a spring morning, when she steps forth in a breezy little day frock made over pattern No. 1942-B. It's very simple, very smart, with pretty neckline and short sleeves outlined by two rows of braid, and with braid and buttons to trim the front and back panel. The waistline is fitted and small, as princess waistlines are, and a big fluttery sash bow calls attention to the fact!

This dress is particularly pretty in plaid gingham because the front and back panels are cut bias. But it's also sweet in percale printed with red cherries or pink flowers, or in white pick, with bright ric-rac braid. Certainly your daughter will want it in more than one material, when she sees how nice she looks in it! The simple diagram design is so easy that lots of girls can make it for themselves.

Six Cylinder Sentences

By DR. JOHN W. HOLLAND

He who boasts of his wisdom is usually other-wise.
They who practice their preaching do not need to preach so long.
Whenever humanity gets dead set for profits, they begin to kill the prophets.
One may pick a quarrel, but if a fight develops it is the fault of both.
The pride of achievement is of much greater value than the price paid for achieving.
When we think well of our good ancestors, let us recall that the glory belongs to them, not to us.

IN FAVOR OF

Making such changes necessary in the AAA Farm Program that the small farmer may receive the benefits which were intended for him. It is well to remember that it is the number of farmers in a community that make it prosperous and not the size of the farms.

Protecting the American farmer against heavy imports of foreign agricultural products and therefore he is opposed to the Reciprocal Trade agreement in its present form.

A sound and adequate National Old Age Assistance Plan.

Adequate preparedness for this Country for home defense.

During the past two years Mr. Herman has given the matter of legislation concerning farm problems his earnest attention, and in this connection has made two trips to Washington at his own expense to present a plan to Congress that would give the smaller farmers more benefit from the AAA program, this being evidence that he is energetic and sincere in his efforts to promote the welfare of the farming industry.

As a Farmer and Business Man Mr. Herman is well Qualified to Represent the Ninth District in Congress

Halvorson-Baker Wedding

Miss Myrtle Halvorson and Mr Roy Baker were quietly married at the parsonage in Holt on Wednesday morning at 10:00 A. M. with Rev. T. C. L. Hanson officiating. Their attendants were Miss Ruby Halvorson and Mr. George Baker, sister and brother of the bride and groom respectively. Mrs. Baker is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Olaf Halvorson. Mr. Baker is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Nick Baker, northeast of Thief River Falls.

Publication of a monthly bulletin by the Department of Conservation was scheduled to begin this week.

To be known as "The Conservation Volunteer," the Bulletin will contain educational information on Minnesota Conservation and the Department.

Five thousand copies will be available monthly for distribution to schools and sportsmen's club's club.

Rev. and Mrs. T. C. L. Hanson attended a wedding reception at Middle River on Wednesday evening in honor of Supt. and Mrs. K. L. Halvorson.

Beautified Our Little Town

Of note this summer have been the lovel spots made out of unsightly places on main street. Mr. and Mrs. R. M. Nyhus are to be complemented on their flowers blooming away on the lot where there had been an old building torn down. Mr. and Mrs Alton Carlson also made a beauty spot out of a lot on main street where nothing but weeds grew before. The whole village can enjoy the flowers there. One of the nicest yards in Holt is the home of Mr. and Mrs. Hj. Peterson where flowers bloom all over all summer from the earliest flowers of spring, and the perfect kept lawn give the tourists a good impression of Holt.

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Ness and Thomas visited at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Theo Ness at Red Lake Falls and at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Molinn at Crookston on Sunday.

Governor Stassen

Governor Harold E. Stassen carried the Village Election by getting a three to one vote over his opponents and, according to late returns, is assured of being reelected for another term.

Cars Smash-up Here Sunday

Two cars were smashed up in an accident here within the village late Sunday evening. Those involved were Lester Elseth, owner and driver of one car. Lester had his sister Laurel and brother Basil riding with. Misa Elseth received two cracked ribs in the smashup. One occupant of the other car in which there were four riding, got his right knee hurt.

Both cars came from south and the Curtis car was stalled on the road. The Elseth car hit it from the rear and rolled it over in the ditch. Both cars were badly damaged.

Thousands of Minnesota school children who went back to school last week are now on the way toward becoming safer pedestrians and, eventually, better drivers.

The State Highway department, in cooperation with the State Department of Education and Mr. A. J. Kittelson, state boys and girls club leader, has just completed sending out, thru the University of Minnesota, 30,000 copies of the printed Minnesota Traffic Laws manual to schools and 5,000 more copies to 4-H clubs of the state. They will be utilized in libraries, classrooms and civic studies.

There will be a meeting of the N. W. Good Roads Association held at Warren in the City Hall, Sept. 13 at 8 o'clock p. m. E. W. Moeller of St. Paul, Secretary of the Association, will be the principal speaker.

The primary object of the Association at the present time is to promote the repassage of the 4c gas tax law.

SAUER-KRAUT

Sauerkraut Steps Out!

BUILD a better mouse trap, or produce a better sauerkraut and the world will find a path to your cellar. Even in the days when kraut hid its light in a barrel in the cellar, epicures found it.

Today, when it can be bought, crisp and savory in nice clean cans, the fashionable world has found it on the grocery shelves. They have found, also, a variety of smart ways of serving this healthful and long-favored food. Your family will like them—so will your guests.

In Fashionable Frocks

Calf's Liver with Fried Sauerkraut: Cut one and one-half pounds of calf's liver in pieces for serving. Dip in boiling water for a few moments, drain and remove the skin along the edges and veins. Season well with salt and pepper, and dip in flour. Fry in hot fat in a skillet until done and a nice brown. Remove, and use the drippings for making a brown milk gravy. Meanwhile drain three cups of canned sauerkraut and fry in a skillet with three tablespoons of fat until slightly brown. Serve with the liver and gravy. This serves six persons.

Creamed Sauerkraut: Sauté three tablespoons of sliced onion and four tablespoons of shredded green pepper in three tablespoons of fat until the onions become pale yellow. Add three tablespoons of flour and stir until smooth. Add two cups of milk slowly, stirring until thick and creamy. Season to taste with salt and pepper. Add two cups of canned sauerkraut and heat thoroughly. This serves six persons.

Marshall County Spuds Needed

A heavier production in Marshall County, Minn., in prospect at this time, will be needed to help offset the lower production forecast in certain states where Minnesota potatoes are consumed, according to analysis of the latost crop forecast made by the Chicago Mercantile Exchange. The Exchange is the center of future trading in potatoes in the United States.

The forecast showed, on a basis of August 1 condition, that total U. S. production should reach 374,314,000 bushels, compared with 364,000,000 bushels produced in 1939, but the crop in certain states will be down sharply. The Minnesota crop was forecast at 21,165,000 bushels, compared with 20,3000 bushels last year. Production in Nebraska, Indiana, Illinois, Colorado and a few other states for 1940 is indicated rather sharply below 1939.

Despite the heavier production in prospect for Minnesota, growers say that more direct movement of crop, a trend which has been developing noticeably in recent years, should also assist in maintaining price values. Mass distribution methods of chain store organizations which have increased the volume bought direct from growers is a significant trend, according to market observers.

Marshall County produced 486,000 bushels in 1939 and is expected to produce 510,000 bushels in 1940. The forecast is of course subject to revision in the event that unfavorable weather develops before harvest. Chain store organizations report that potatoes from Marshall County are moved to consumption generally through the midwest, near south and southwest, with but few states excepted.

Light Vote Cast Tuesday

The primary election here was a quiet affair. Only 50 votes were cast and two of those spoiled as more than one party was voted for.

In the U. S. Senate race Henrik Shipstad carried the village by 21 votes. Governor Stassen was the highest vote getter, having 30 votes. Following is how the other candidates were voted for here:

Martin Nelson, 5; Ray Chase 3 for U. S. Senator on the Republican ticket.

C. Elmer Anderson, Lieutenand Governor, 12; Jullus Schmall State Treasurer, 23; N. J. Holmberg, Railroad and Warehouse Commissioner, 8.

Congress: Chas. O. Herman 6, Ole Sageng, 5; Colvin G. Butler 5 votes.

On the Farmer-Lagor ticket: Geo. H. Lohmen, for Senator, 10 Elmer Benson, 2.

Governor: Hjalmer Peterson, 11; Lieutenant Gov. Harold H. Barker, 4. State Treasurer: James I. Heller, 9; Mrs. Selma Seestrom, 1. Railroad and Warehouse Commissioner, Chas. Munn, 9.

Congress: R. T. Buckler, 6; Laura Naplin, 5.

There was no county candidates on the ballot for the primaries. According to unofficial returns, Governor Stassen is reelected and Shipstad may win the Senate seat.

The Democratic vote here was light, only four votes being cast.

We Can All Be
EXPERT BUYERS

- In bringing us buying information, as to prices that are being asked for what we intend to buy, and as to the quality we can expect, the advertising columns of this newspaper perform a worth while service which saves us many dollars a year.
- It is a good habit to form, the habit of consulting the advertisements every time we make a purchase, though we have already decided just what we want and where we are going to buy it. It gives us the most priceless feeling in the world: the feeling of being adequately prepared.
- When we go into a store, prepared beforehand with knowledge of what is offered and at what price, we go as an expert buyer, filled with self-confidence. It is a pleasant feeling to have, the feeling of adequacy. Most of the unhappiness in the world can be traced to a lack of this feeling. Thus advertising shows another of its manifold facets—shows itself as an aid toward making all our business relationships more secure and pleasant.

WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS By Roger Shaw

Great Britain Gets 50 U. S. Destroyers In Exchange for Naval and Air Bases; U. S. Senator Lundeen of Minnesota Among 25 Killed in Airliner Crash.

(EDITOR'S NOTE—When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of the news analyst and not necessarily of this newspaper.)

(Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

Here's a man that both Republicans and Democrats can congratulate. He's Senator Hiram W. Johnson of California (center) who won both the Republican and Democratic nomination for United States senator in the recent California primary election. This practically assures him of re-election for his fifth term. He is pictured here being congratulated by Democratic Senator Burton K. Wheeler of Montana (left) and G. O. P. Senator Warren R. Austin of Vermont (right).

U. S. DEFENSE:
Boats for Bases

President Roosevelt notified congress that the United States had reached an agreement with Great Britain whereby this country would obtain leases on naval and air bases in British possessions in this hemisphere in exchange for the transfer of 50 over-age U. S. destroyers to England.

Expcted to arouse a storm of debate, the act requires no ratification by congress, but was submitted to that body to advise the nation of the arrangements made. Attorney General Robert H. Jackson submitted an opinion to the White House which upheld the legality of the trade.

The destroyers were built by the United States during the World war and had been out of service for some time until they were recently recommissioned.

Ninety-nine year leases on territory in Newfoundland, on the island of Bermuda, the Bahamas, Jamaica, St. Lucia, Trinidad, and Antigua in the Atlantic and in British Guiana in South America are granted to the United States by the terms of the agreement. Naval and air stations are expected to be constructed at these points to aid in U. S. plans for a military defense of the Western hemisphere.

AVIATION:
Worst Tragedy

In the worst commercial aviation tragedy in the country's history, and the first in more than 18 months, 25 persons lost their lives when a Pennsylvania-Central airliner crashed near Lovettsville, Va., during a violent thunderstorm. The liner, en route from Washington, D. C., to Pittsburgh, Pa., plunged into the side of a Blue Ridge mountain foothill, apparently with the throttles of its two engines wide open.

All of the persons aboard the ship perished. Among the 21 passengers was Sen. Ernest Lundeen, Farmer-Laborite, of Minnesota. The plane seemed to have exploded when it struck the ground, scattering wreckage and bodies of the victims over a large area.

ARKANSAS:
Travelers

Aided by four trusty guards, two of them convicted murderers, 32 prisoners escaped from Cummins State prison farm near Pine Bluff, Ark., in a wild mass break. The guards were prisoners who had been appointed trusties because of their good records and were supplied with saddle horses and guns.

Of the six loyal trusties who refused to join in the break, and were prevented by ringleaders of the plot from interfering, one was killed when he tried to shoot it out with the escaping prisoners.

The convicts fled with four high-powered rifles and six sawed-off shotguns, some of which were weapons they had had in their possession prior to the break.

NAMES
. . . in the news

¶ Mike Hogg of Texas organized a no-third-term Democratic party in his native empire down Mexico way. The no-third-termites of Texas pledged themselves as full-breasted, red-blooded Willxisti of the first water. They said they wanted Willkie to "lead them out of chaos."

¶ Capt. George Price of the U. S. army air corps was awarded the Distinguished Flying Cross for a test flight at Buffalo, where he made a successful "crash" landing based on rare judgment and skill.

¶ Dr. B. A. Maw, the premier of British-owned Burma, between China and India, was jailed for a year. He was anti-British, and they called him "the dictator of the freedom bloc."

¶ Norman Thomas, the socialist candidate for Yankee President, 1940 edition, started a 15,000-mile campaign trip through 28 states.

II GERMAN WAR:
Aerial

The Germans reversed their aerial tactics, just as they reversed their infantry tactics in 1917. At the beginning of the first World war, the Germans would attack in regular, regimented mass formation. The losses were colossal, especially at Verdun. It was sheer mass murder. Late in 1917, General von Hutier changed the German methodology. He devised a hit-and-run, individual, scattering attack, which wiped out the whole British Fifth army at St. Quentin, on March 21, 1918. It was the worst day the British army ever had, until Dunkirk, in 1940.

The same cycle has come to German aviation. In the battle of England, the German planes were attacking in regimented, mass waves. The losses were tremendous—close to 1,000 planes. General Milch changed the method. He sent the German machines over in irregular, individualistic jabs, and by night, instead of by day. This proved much more economical, and much less ineffective. The amusing feature was this: Generals von Hutier and Milch learned their "novel" military maneuvers from no less a source than the American Indians of the Eighteenth century—the redskins that ambushed General Braddock, etc., out Pittsburgher way.

TRANSYLVANIA:
Here I Come

Ever since the last war, Hungary and Rumania have been quarreling about the disputed province of Transylvania. It was Hungarian for 1,000 years—till 1919—and has been Rumanic since. Over the past some weeks, the Rumanians and Hungars have been squabbling at a great rate. Germany and Italy want peace in the Balkans, so at last they settled the row in arbitrary style. They split up Transylvania, half and half, Hungary getting the top half, and Rumania keeping the bottom half. The name Transylvania, by the way, gave William Penn the idea for his Pennsylvania nomenclature, and not so bad at that. Transylvania is the special home of vampires, as anyone who had read "Dracula" will remember.

And Also

Rumania also lost territory to little Bulgaria, on the Black sea coast, and to the Russian Soviets: the big province of Bessarabia. Rumania was phoney from start to finish, and few tears were shed over King Carol's cruel fate. Italy and Germany have now given Carol an air-tight guarantee of what's left of his kingdom. How grateful that merry monarch feels, remains to be seen. The guarantee, however, may lead to trouble in the Balkans, between Germany and Russia. That's what Mr. Churchill sits up nights, and prays for.

DAMAGED:
In France

The French ministry of fine arts investigated what spots in France had been hardest hit by the war with Germany. It gave out the following list. Many of the places are well known to the Americans. Here it is: Rouen, Laon, Soissons, Compiegne, Beauvais, Amiens, Gien, Saumur, Auxerre, Orleans, Calais, Dunkirk, Sedan, Mezieres, Arras Vitry-le-Francois. Vitry, the last named, was wiped out. The Amiens cathedral had a miraculous escape.

Stowaway!

So desperate was Leonore Hirmukallio, 18 (above), to get to the United States that she stowed away on the ship American Legion, which brought 870 refugees from the European war zones. Leonore comes from Helsinki, Finland. Latest reports indicate that immigration authorities in the United States would be forced to exclude her from entrance into this country.

CAMPAIGN:
Not Hot Enough

The 1940 campaign still was not very hot. Both the candidates acted very genteel, although some of their supporters vocalized like cats on a back fence. The best Republican crack was this (for a lot of Republicans still didn't care for Willkie): If Mr. Willkie wasn't going to vote for Mr. Willkie, he would undoubtedly vote for Mr. Roosevelt. These Republicans (there were a lot of them) felt that the foreign policies of Willkie were no better than those of Roosevelt, and that—they growled—was a sad state of affairs. This growling was becoming a really serious matter, within the Republican ranks. Willkie, meanwhile, leaned more and more on the Willkie clubs and the independent Democrats, and less and less on the angry Republican regulars, who tend to be isolationist.

Revolution?

The Russell-Overton amendment to the conscription bill brought forth some Willkie-Roosevelt nastiness. The amendment in question, would permit the government to conscript any industry in peacetime, if the government considered that industry necessary for national defense. Some people felt it was aimed directly at Henry Ford, who wouldn't play ball with the New Dealers, and wouldn't help the British. Willkie didn't like the amendment, and tried to draw Roosevelt out on it. Roosevelt refused to be drawn out, but the dopesters believed he liked the amendment, and the radical New Dealers certainly liked it fine. It was the key, they said, to unlock the castle of entrenched Yankee capitalism. The Russell-Overton amendment, said the political scientists, was probably the most truly revolutionary detail in American history—more revolutionary than the Declaration of Independence, or the emancipation proclamation. This was hotly contradicted, and the debate grew bitter. Meanwhile, Secretary Ickes got called a Hitler-in-short-pants, and Willkie got smeared as a "barefoot Wall Street boy—the rich man's Roosevelt." Even so, the 1940 campaign was pokey, and Norman Thomas looked awfully good to a lot of perfectly respectable Republicans and Democrats.

DICTATOR:
Non-Dictatorial

Dictator Winston Churchill of England was in a big air raid on the coast of Kent. It was at a place called Ramsgate. The dictator entered an underground air-raid shelter, puffing on one of his favorite cigars—which he chews like Barney Oldfield. The mayor of Ramsgate said, sternly, "Put out that cigar, Mr. Churchill!" The dictator looked sheepish, and humbly did so. "There goes a good 'un," said he, crestfallen. Therein lies the essential difference between British and German dictators, in the year of grace, 1940. Churchill's daughter married a vaudeville actor, and his nephew is a Communist. He himself is a trade-unionized brick-layer, an artist, and an author. He is an ultra-blue-blood, he is half American, and he served with the Spanish against America (he has never cared for America) in the Spanish war of 1898. When a New York taxi-driver knocked him down a few years ago, he gave the penitent fellow a cigar.

He also told him an off-color joke. In short, the dictatorial Mr. Churchill tends to be a pretty good guy.

Namesake

In London, Umbrella Chamberlain—Churchill's great rival—has a namesake, called plain George Chamberlain. He is 23. He is a soldier. During a furious German air raid, he yawned so widely that he dislocated his jaw, and had to go to a hospital for serious treatment. Let that be a lesson to the hysteriacs of America!

STAGE SCREEN RADIO

By VIRGINIA VALE

(Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

IF YOU plan to be driving in Tucson, Ariz., early in October make sure in advance whether you'll be allowed to or not. For there'll be three days when it will be the only city in the United States without an automobile, truck, motorcycle or even a gasoline scooter on its streets.

And it's all because of the movies. "Arizona" will have what's known in the trade as its world premier in Tucson, and the city is planning quite a celebration—a governor's state ball, a three-day 1860 fiesta in the adobe city of Tucson, built for the picture, a rodeo with national roping and riding stars, and Indian pow-wows. Jean Arthur, William Holden, Warren William and all other members of the cast will be specially honored.

Some of the best stories about a movie are not heard until it is finished and the principals have gone on to other pictures. Here's one. Arriving at the set for "He Stayed for Breakfast," Columbia's new comedy starring Loretta Young and Melvyn Douglas, visitors found the set barred to outsiders. They were told that the players were working in an extremely small space where it would be impossible to watch.

MELVYN DOUGLAS

The real reason, disclosed later, was that Douglas was working in a woman's dressing gown. "I'll look silly enough on the screen," he explained, when asking that the set be closed.

*

When you see Hedy Lamarr and Clark Gable in "Comrade X" don't be puzzled if the story seems familiar. It's "Clear All Wires," which Spencer Tracy made seven years ago. The story of an American newspaper man's adventures in Russia, it's been rewritten to include incidents in the recent Soviet military ventures. Gable draws it as an assignment instead of "Osborne of Sing Sing," which he didn't like anyway.

*

June McCloy may win a bet with her husband if you like her well enough in "Glamour for Sale," in which she has the second feminine lead. Nine years ago she left Hollywood to make a name for herself as a night club singer, and succeeded. In 1936 she married and retired. Now she wants to return to the screen; she's bet her husband that she can make good within six months; if she can't, she'll go back to being just a wife. So she's working now in the picture starring Anita Louise and Roger Pryor. She has a chance at her specialty—she sings a torch song. But so does Anita Louise.

*

Denis Day became singing star of the Jack Benny show because an inflamed appendix kept him out of law school. An honor graduate of Manhattan college in New York, Eugene Denis McNulty won a scholarship that entitled him to try city government work for several months. He chose radio, and was doing production work at the city's broadcasting station, pending his entry to law school, when the appendix interfered just as his law classes were about to begin.

When he got out of the hospital it was to enter law school that year. He turned again to radio, got onto a sustaining program, and made a recording which Jack Benny's agent heard.

He was summoned to Hollywood; Benny was looking for a tenor to replace Kenny Baker, you'll remember, and they were auditioning literally by the hundreds. At the last minute young McNulty got the job, became Denis Day, and began carving out a nice career for himself.

*

ODDS AND ENDS

¶ Jon Hall recently celebrated three years of sitting in the same chair at the CBS Star Theater broadcasts. He began attending the broadcasts to hear his wife, Frances Langford, sing, and has never missed one since. If someone else sits in his particular chair in the clients' room, he says "I'm sorry. You're sitting in our good luck chair—I'll have to ask you to move."

¶ Norma Shearer and George Raft flew from New York to Hollywood on the same day, but not in the same plane—couldn't get accommodations.

Casual Dress That Flatters the Figure

NOTHING is more important during the summer—and every season for that matter—than this type of casual frock, softly tailored and classically simple. This version (Design No. 1962-B) is ideal for women's figures, because it has a high-busted, narrow-hipped line. And that perfection of line is achieved so simply—merely by means of long darts that narrow the waistline and break into soft fullness above and below. Gathers on the shoulders are the only other detailing. The rest is just long, straight seams. You can judge, therefore, how easy this dress is to make.

But you can't really tell what a distinctive, comfortable, charming fashion it is until you have it on. Then you'll repeat it many times, in silk print, rayon sheers, and street cottons like linen and batiste.

Barbara Bell Pattern No. 1962-B is designed for sizes 32, 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44 and 46. Size 34 requires, with long sleeves, 5⅛ yards of 39-inch material; with short, 4¾ yards. Send order to:

THE TRUTH SIMPLY TOLD

Today's popularity of Doan's Pills, after many years of world-wide use, surely must be accepted as evidence of satisfactory use. And favorable public opinion supports that of the able physicians who test the value of Doan's under exacting laboratory conditions.

These physicians, too, approve every word of advertising you read, the objective of which is only to recommend Doan's Pills as a good diuretic treatment for disorder of the kidney function and for relief of the pain and worry it causes.

If more people were aware of how the kidneys must constantly remove waste that cannot stay in the blood without injury to health, there would be better understanding of why the whole body suffers when kidneys lag, and diuretic medication would be more often employed.

Burning, scanty or too frequent urination sometimes warn of disturbed kidney function. You may suffer nagging backache, persistent headache, attacks of dizziness, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes—feel weak, nervous, all played out.

Use Doan's Pills. It is better to rely on a medicine that has won world-wide acclaim than on something less favorably known. Ask your neighbor!

ONE mischievous Scotty is certainly enough—but two, well, that's just twice as much fun. Delightful new tea towel motifs are formed, however, as these Scotties disastrously inquire into every phase of household work. Perky cross stitch bows and the cross stitched day names done in gay colors will add a cheerful note to these kitchen towels.

MODERN linen closets are tucked in spare corners all over the house, always as close as possible to the place that the linens will be needed. Towels may be found in the bathroom, napkins in the pantry or kitchen and bed linens near the bed rooms.

I have sketched the whole story here of how one homemaker keeps her linen shelves in order. She likes to keep things in sets identified with colored bands and thinks it is more efficient to roll many pieces than to fold them. The best napkins may be banded in blue and white, luncheon mats may be rolled on a red stick with a red band and green may be used for the bridge table cloth. Linen holders like these would make attractive gifts, too. And speaking of shelves and drawers; girls adore the stocking case in Book 3, and the drawer pads in Book 4; and they make dainty gifts for any one. The table cloth case in Book 2 is another good linen closet idea.

NOTE: These homemaking booklets are a service to our readers and No. 5 just published contains a description of the other numbers, as well as 32 pages of clever ideas fully illustrated. To get your copy send 10c coin to cover cost and mailing. Send order to:

A Great Character

A great character, founded on the living rock of principle, is, in fact, not a solitary phenomenon, to be at once perceived, limited and described. It is a dispensation of Providence, designed to have not merely an immediate, but a continuous, progressive and never-ending agency.

It survives the man who possessed it; survives his age—perhaps his country, his language.—Edward Everett.

HEALTH HINTS for LIVESTOCK
PREPARED BY AMERICAN FOUNDATION FOR ANIMAL HEALTH

CLEAN HOG LOTS WILL SAVE COSTLY DISEASE LOSSES

If farmers would practice hog lot rotation, like they do crop rotation, they would save millions of dollars worth of valuable hogs which now die each year from yard-borne diseases.

Two or three days spent in cleaning up livestock quarters and lots, at the start of the season, will repay any farmer handsomely in better livestock profits. Mudholes should be drained, manure piles fenced off, holes beneath buildings boarded up, old straw stacks burned, crushed rock spread around water tanks. All buildings should be thoroughly cleaned and disinfected, and feed boxes and roosts scrubbed with hot lye water.

As soon as pigs are farrowed, they should be moved out to clean, fresh pasture, away from any possible contamination of old lots and pens. About weaning time, the pigs should be vaccinated against cholera. They should be kept on clean pasture all summer. They will make 25 percent better growth and development under these conditions, and will be twice as safe from diseases and parasites.

Old mud holes like this breed disease germs and parasites which kill many thousands of hogs annually.

Hog lots which have been used year after year are literally alive with germs and parasites. Some of the diseases found in these unsanitary lots are hog cholera, enteritis, "bull nose", navel ill, verminous pneumonia, scours, and lockjaw.

Serdahl-Hanson Wedding

Miss Alzada M. Serdahl and Mr. Tosten O. Hanson were quietly married at the parsonage on Saturday afternoon at 2:30 by Rev. T. C. L. Hanson, brother of the groom. The single ring ceremony was used. Their attendants were Miss Mavis Serdahl a sister of the bride and Mr. Theodore Goulson, a cousin of the groom. Immediately following the ceremony, a wedding luncheon was served by Mrs. T. C. L. Hanson. They returned the same day to Milan where they will make their home.

Mr. and Mrs. Rangvald Olson of Middle River Mrs. Nils Ness and Orville visited at the Mrs. C. Hagglund home Sunday.

Monson-Inman Wedding

A pretty wedding was solomnized at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ludvig Monson at 4:30 o'clock Sunday afternoon when their youngest daughter Lida Corrine, became the bride of Alonzo J. Inman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Howard D. Inman.

Pre-nuptial music was played with Mrs. Clifford Flak as organist. "The Indian Love Song", was the first selection.

The bride and her attendant, Miss Olga T. Nelson, entered to the strains of Lohengrin's Wedding March. They were met at the alter by the groom and his brother, Denny D. Inman acting as best man. "I Love You Truly" was sung by the brides sisters, Mrs. Johnnie Nelson and Mrs. Bernard Garthus.

The single ring ceremony was read by Rev. T. C. L. Hanson, pastor of the Nazareth Lutheran Church, in the presence of 50 relatives and friends.

The bride wore a floor length gown of Aqua Marine Taffeta, in princes style, with short puffed sleeves and wore silver slippers. She carried a boquet of roses, sweet peas and fern. She wore a halo of white asters. Her only jewelry was a gold cross, a gift from the groom.

The bridesmaid wore a dress of brocaded silk in a pastel blue with white asters in her hair. She wore a shoulder corsage of asters, sweet peas and fern.

Silver and blue streamers, caught together by a silver bell decorated the room. Baskets of gladiolas and fern and vases of flowers were scattered throughout the house.

A two course luncheon was served, with a three tiered wedding cake as centerpiece.

The bride is a graduate of Lincoln High School of Thief River Falls.

The groom is engaged in farming east of Holt where the young couple will make their home.

Duayne Truman, infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Morris Johnson, was baptized at the L. Monson home on Sunday afternoon with Rev. Hanson officiating. He was born March 28, 1940 and his sponsors were Mr. and Mrs. J. O. Johnson, Angeline and Ralph Johnson.

Luther League at the church on Sunday evening. Hostesses are Mrs. Chas Olufson and Mrs. E. Aune.

Harvest Festival Here Sunday

The Annual Mission-Harvest Festival will be observed in the Nazareth Lutheran Church on Sunday, Sept. 22, with an all day meeting. The local pastor, Rev. T. C. L. Hanson, will conduct the worship hour beginning at 11:00 a. m. His theme will be "What Mean Ye By These Stones?" based on Joshua 4:6b.

A Mission offering will be taken at this service. Those who to give to the local work may use the envelopes but the currency and silver placed on the altar will go to the cause of Missions.

During the noon hour, a sumptious dinner will be served by the Ladies Aid.

In the afternoon, beginning at 2:00, Rev. H. O. Aasan, pastor of the 1st Lutheran Church at Baudette, will preach on the theme: "Home Missions". Rev. Aasen has had varied experiences in the Home Mission fields of our Norwegian Lutheran Church of America. For a number of years prior to his coming to Baudette, he served as a pastor in a large Home Mission field in Petersburg, Alaska, where his parishoners were largely connected with the fishing industry and became well acquainted with their mode of living. Since coming to Baudette, his Home Mission experiences has been different in that he has at times served that large Home Mission field in the north woods of the border country. Very few pastors can speak so well from experiences in the Home Mission field as Rev. Aasen.

The Luther League will meet in the evening and at this time Rev. Aasen will speak again. Efforts are being made to have him show his moving pictures of Alaska and we are quite assured that we will have a chance to see them at the Luther League meeting. We invite all who desire to attend these meetings.

Dinner at noon will be served at large tables and you may sit down and help yourself to as many helpings as you wish.

To Check Constipation Get at Its Cause!

If constipation has you down so you feel heavy, tired and dopey, it's time you did something about it. And something more than just taking a physic! You should get at the cause of the trouble.

If you eat the super-refined food most people eat, the chances are the difficulty is simple—you don't get enough "bulk." And "bulk" doesn't mean heavy food. It's a kind of food that isn't consumed in the body, but leaves a soft "bulky" mass in the intestines.

If this common form of constipation is your trouble, eat Kellogg's All-Bran regularly, and drink plenty of water. All-Bran isn't a medicine—it's a crunchy, toasted cereal. And it will help you not only to get regular but to keep regular. Made by Kellogg's in Battle Creek. If your condition is chronic, it is wise to consult a physician.

WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS By Roger Shaw

Nazis Send Air Armadas Over London On Biggest Bombing Raids in History; Michael Returns to Rumanian Throne; Critics Discuss Arms Sale to England

(EDITOR'S NOTE—When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of the news analyst and not necessarily of this newspaper.)

(Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

THE WAR:

Over London

England, and more particularly London, felt the full fury of total aerial warfare as Nazi bombers swarmed over the English channel in what seemed like one never-ending bombing mission.

Some U. S. war correspondents (writing under British censorship) declared that the Germans had given up any attempt to aim at military objectives before dropping their tons of high explosives, but merely found their way over the city and dropped the bombs without regard for what they might strike below. Germany denied these charges, saying that their airmen were aiming at points of military advantage to England and if civilians were killed or hurt it was "not on purpose." Just how many persons were killed in these terrific raids could not accurately be determined.

One thing was sure however. Germany had worked out a definite plan of bombing attack. First, planes carrying incendiary bombs circled over the city dropping their loads to start fires which served as flares to light the target of those to follow. Defending planes of the royal air force and anti-aircraft fire at first held the invaders away from the interior of the city. But the continuous attacks, coupled with such a large numerical advantage in German planes and pilots made it impossible for the British to keep the enemy from doing a great deal of real damage.

Magda

King Carol and his red-headed sweetheart, Magda Wolff-Lupescu, fled away from their ex-Rumania. Carol's 18-year-old son, Michael, inherited the Rumanian throne. Michael has been king before—from 1927 to 1930, when Carol was in exile. In 1930, Carol came back from his Paris hideaway, and ousted his little son by an army coup. Now, the army had kicked Carol out, and brought back the boy again. Michael had pretty well grown up, since his first infantile venture in the kingship.

GENERAL JOHN ANTONESCU
"A big red-baiter from way back."

Gen. John Antonescu, a really tough general, assumed an Iron Guard dictatorship: in other words, a Rumanian Nazi dictatorship. John is violently anti-Russian, and a big red-baiter from way back. He wanted to fight Russia, when Stalin grabbed Rumanian Bessarabia and the Bukovina. But Carol shut him up in a monastery, where he frightened the monks half to death by his man-eating ways. He is, roughly, the same type as the Italian general, so-tough Rudi Graziani, who took Italo Balbo's place as governor of Italo-North Africa.

Losing Ways

Rumania was losing territory all along the line. The Russians had taken Bessarabia and the Bukovina. The Hungarians had northern Transylvania, after some rough-housing. The little Bulgarians took southern Dobrudja, which they were eminently entitled to, as Churchill, Hitler and Stalin all admitted, for once in agreement. The red-baiters and Fascists in Rumania were willing to yield land to Hungary, but wanted to fight Russia. The pinks and leftists in Rumania were willing to yield land to Russia, but wanted to fight Hungary.

CHOICE:

Philosophy

When it came to a choice between Stalin and Hitler—and it looked as if many Americans might be faced with a choice before very long—some conservative Americans preferred Hitler, while many liberal Americans preferred Stalin. All commentators were coming to realize that the Russo-German pact of August, 1939, was basically unsound, politically, economically, and ideologically.

LINES:

U. S. A.

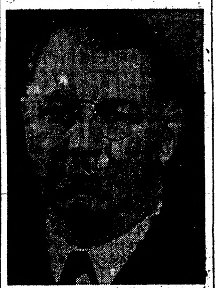
The late M. Maginot built himself a line. It was of steel and concrete. Now, we have a so-called Roosevelt line in the East, and will doubtless get a so-called Knox line in the West. Secretary Knox was said to be a special proponent of the western setup.

The Roosevelt line ran from Labrador to Brazil. It took in Newfoundland, Bermuda, the Bahamas, Cuba, Puerto Rico, Jamaica, some little islands, Trinidad, and British Guiana. It was to consist of naval and aerial bases par excellence. The Knox line, if any, was to start with the islands off Alaska, then Hawaii, then the Galapagos and Cocoa island, north and south of the Panama canal. One group belonged to Costa Rica, the other to Ecuador, two of the so-called Latin American republics. The Costa Ricans offered to play ball.



SECRETARY KNOX
Would he get a "line in the West"?

In the last war, the Germans had the Hindenburg line. Then came the ill-fated Maginot line. It was faced by the German Siegfried line. Italy has a Lictor line. Finland had a Mannerheim line. Rumania possessed a Carol line. England still holds the 20-mile Channel line. The Czechs once boasted a Sudeten line. Some of them worked, and some of them didn't. The Roosevelt-Knox lines looked almost airtight, and some military critics said that lessened the need for peace-time Yankee conscriptioneering. Others said: No.

MORE & MORE:

Without End

Oliver Twist asked for "more." So did extreme anglophiles, and sentimental Tories. We gave England the 50 destroyers, with part of the American people protesting vigorously. That was not enough. The anglophiles just mentioned, demanded "more" in stentorian tones. These people wanted to give Mr. Churchill:

1. At least 20 motor torpedo-boats, for channel work.
2. A large number (half) of our crack flying fortresses, to bomb East Prussia and Poland.
3. A large number of seaplanes, for submarine spotting, etc.
4. All our tanks, for use in the Mediterranean region.

Peculiar?

It was announced that we had already given the British 80,000 machine guns, 500,000 rifles, and 750 field guns, with "huge stocks of ammunition." One out of every four armed Britishers, said the same source, is carrying an American weapon of some sort. Some people felt those 50 over-age destroyers were merely meant for a legal or illegal precedent, to break the ice, and enmesh Uncle Sam still deeper in the European mess. As for the British islands, said these critics, America could have had them free, by holding up airplane shipments, and waving the banner of the still unpaid war debt, from World war No. 1.

NAMES

. . . in the news

John Cripps is the son of Sir Stafford Cripps, England's radical ambassador to Russia. Son John is a conscientious objector, who thinks the war is totally un-Christian. The British draft board sentenced young Cripps to work in the garden, two days per week.

The U. S. navy was considering the purchase of H. Edward Manville's private yacht, the Hi-Esmaro. It is a 267-foot affair, worth a million and a quarter, in anybody's good mazuma. It has an excellent steel hull, and could be used for a naval training ship. It was launched in 1929, the year of the depression. J. P. Morgan, of Morgan's, turned over his super-yacht to the British navy some time back, it seems.

Ex-King Carol of Rumania was shrinking with his ex-kingdom. Carol was pudgy and fattish. But he lost 33 pounds in hardly any time at all.

Heads Lawyers

PRO-CONSCRIPT:

Anti-Conscript

Some 1,500 anti-conscript youths planned to sit on the Capitol steps, at Washington, all night—for a "spell of devotion."

The Washingtonian police nabbed the bunch, with a hoot and a holler. The Rev. Owen Knox of Detroit, chairman of the civil rights federation, was taken off to the Capitol police housery. So was a rabbi. At least 10 of the peaceful demonstrators were likewise nabbed by the bluecoats, and hauled away from the Capitol grounds.

Previously, Senator Pepper of Florida had proved an excellent, good sport, when he was hanged and heckled by a mob of female draft objectors, who swooped down on the Washingtonian scene. Poor rustic Pepper is not everybody's pet, but he is to be congratulated for his American laughability, in the face of female petticoats, embattled. The Pepper hanging, please note, was only in effigy. The ladies were in the flesh.

JIMMIE:

Walker

Jimmie Walker was New York's best-dressed and most likeable citizen. He always looked as if he were sweet 16. He had a marvelous personality—much better than that of the slightly rancid Al Smith. Jimmie was mayor of the modern Babylon, and thoroughly enjoyed the post, as he enjoyed everything else. But he resigned, under fire, in 1932, and went to France for a while. He was just as popular after he resigned, under fire, as he was when he was elected. That was his personality, again.

Mayor LaGuardia is a very different type: brusque, anti-suave, not a sport, but a positive reformer. Just the same, LaGuardia has always had a weak spot for Jimmie Walker, like everybody else. Jimmie was startled and overjoyed when LaGuardia appointed him to a good, $20,000-per-year job. This was boss—impartial chairman—of the cloak and suit industry. LaGuardia said he had decided the matter, mentally, when he was 7,000 feet up in the air—aviating from Washington to New York. Did Mr. Roosevelt have a hand in it, as part of the 1940 campaign racket, wondered the rail-birds? Anyway, everybody was pleased.

COURTESY:

Refreshing

A young German pilot was shot down by a British Spitfire, over England. They put him in a prisoner's train, en route for the hoosegow. When the train stopped at a siding, an English lady was collecting volunteer funds for more Spitfires. As a joke, she pushed her collection box in to the young German flyer. With a courteous gesture, the Goering flying-circus man smiled, and contributed the German equivalent of $2.

The same day, another German aviator was shot down over England. The British victor, so the yarn goes, flew low, circled lower, and tossed him a package of cigarettes. The German waved his thanks. The age of chivalry is not dead. To make this statement letter-perfect, it might be remembered that in the true age of chivalry, the knights were very chivalrous to each other, but were pretty hard on women, children, and commoners.

The Spitfire collection fund, mentioned above, is called the "David and Goliath" fund. On account of this name, every Briton named David, Davies, or Davidson has been asked to contribute to it, in order to promote the "heroic onslaught against the Philistine of Naziism."

RUSSIA:

Its Entry

More and more people were counting on Russia entering the war against Hitler. They were leaning on it heavily in England, and would tell you so. The Chamberlain big-business faction was against this alliance, but the Churchill militarists-plus-British Labor (the present cabinet set-up) had no such scruples. Meanwhile, Russia called up more and more men, and Germany sent 1½ of her 3 million soldiers "east."

Patterns SEWING CIRCLE

8755

AS YOU see from the little diagram, this pinafore apron consists of merely three pieces, that practically put themselves together. What could be simpler and quicker to make? And 8755 is such a practical, satisfying household help, too. It protects the whole of your dress, top and skirt, and simply won't slip off the shoulders. If you're sick of sloppy-looking difficult-to-fasten aprons with cross-buttoning effects in the back, you'll welcome this slim trim, go-on-over-the-head design and make it up time and again.

Choose polka dot percale, flowered calico, checked gingham or plain chambray for this and trim with bright ricrac braid.

Local Treasure Hunters Suffer Rude Awakening

Three times Rawlinson had dreamt that concealed somewhere in his flat was a quantity of valuable silver. The dream could no longer go unheeded.

That night he and Mrs. Rawlinson sought a hollow place in the walls. At last they hit upon it, and after some manipulation with chisel and hammer, dislodged several bricks. There, hidden on the other side, lay—the valuable silver.

Just as they were gloating over their find, there came a furious ring, and their neighbor bounded in.

"What the deuce do you mean by breaking up my dining-room cupboard?" he gasped.

ORDER BRINGING IN MARY ASPOAS AS A PARTY DEFENDANT IN SAID ACTION

The Plaintiff, Metropolitan Life Insurance Company, having made it to appear to this Court on due hearing thereon held at Warren, Minnesota, May 6, 1940, W. A. McManigal, Jr., having appeared for said Metropolitan Life Insurance Company, and all Defendants who have appeared in said action having consented that Mary Aspoas be joined as a party defendant in said action, for the reason that she has succeeded to all of the rights of James Aspoas as judgement creditor of Albert Heddan, Defendant, in this action,

NOW, THEREFORE THIS COURT MAKES THE FOLLOWING ORDER

That the Complaint on file in said action be, and hereby is, amended by striking from said original complaint paragraph XVI tbereof and substituting the following paragraph XVI therefor:

"That James Aspoas was the owner and holder of a judgement in the sum of $425.61 against said Albert Heddan, dated and docketed August 31, 1932 in the District Court of said Marshall County.

That James Aspoas died on or about January 16, 1933 and by Final Decree of Distribution Pursuant to Sec. 8779-83 General Statutes of Minnesota for 1923, entered May 8, 1933, in the Probate Court of St. Louis County, Minnesota, said judgement was assigned to Mary Aspoas, his widow. That the lien of said judgement is inferior to the lien of said Plaintiff's Mortgage against said premises."

That said Mary Aspoas be substituted for said James Aspoas as a defendant in said Action, and in the Summons herein, and that said Mary Aspoas shall be allowed twenty days to appear and plead to the Complaint as so amended after service of this Order and the Summons herein upon said Mary Aspoas, exclusive of the day of such service, and in default thereof, the Plaintiff have judgement against her as requested in the Complaint in said Action.

IT IS FURTHER ORDERED,

That Summons in this action and and copy of this Order be fortwith served upon said Mary Aspoas at Washington, D. C., either by personal service, if she may be found, or by published service, if she cannot be found and that any proceedings against her in this action be stayed until she shall have been so served and shall have had such period of twenty days in which to answer.

4-H Achievement Day at Warren

The 4-H achievement day to be held at the Marshall County fairgrounds on Saturday, Sept. 28 brings to a close the 4-H activities for this year. The 4-H members will take part in the parade that is held in connection with the Hamburger Day program at 11:00 o'clock. The judging will be conducted promptly at 1:00 o'clock, and the exhibits will be open to the public in the afternoon.

According to the committee in charge of the plans, arrangments are to have the judging conducted by George Landsverk and Howard Grow, county agents from Norman and Pennington counties. Entries should be made before 11:00 o'clock and the 4-H records are supposed to be turned in at the time the exhibits are entered.

Paul Edman, Richard Fitzsimons and Lloyd Carlson will be in charge receiving and arranging exhibits.

The county agent's office has received information that the following trips are alloted to the county to the Junior Livestock Show at South S. Paul; two beef calves, three fat lambs, one barrow, and one pen of fat lambs. As yet no notice has been received as to the number of poultry trips allotted.

District Training Meeting

Marshall County farm people will have several representatives at a district training meeting, October 1 and 2, at Thief River Falls, sponsored by the Minnesota Agricultural Extension Service as a part of a state-wide program for the revival of rural home talent recreational activities. Four of the representatives will be delegates of the 4-H leader's council, and two or three others will be attending.

Under the state-wide plan instruction will be given in dramatics, community games and music. The group of counties holding the school at Thief River Falls have chosen game-type recreation as the study subject this year.

The training in leadership for community games will include those suitable for small and large groups, quiet or active. There will be emphasis on folk dancing, marching formations and musical games for persons of all ages. The leaders will bring home equipment for at least eight games requiring special supplies. Amy Wessel and Peter Olson will give the instructions.

The local participation in the school will be followed by a group of training meetings in this county.

Everyone will be invited to take advantage of the training which will be brought back here by the local representatives.

A special invitation will be extended to all rural organizations, 4-H and rural youth groups, farmers clubs and units, church and school groups to take part in tne county meetings.

Mrs. C. Hagglund left Monday for Roseau where she will spend a few weeks at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Hauartson.

60-Day Waterfowl Hunt Season

Washington—Secretary Ickes announced recently that the hunting season for ducks, geese, coots, and jacksnipe had been extended to 60 days this year from the 45-day limit of last season.

Announcing the annual regulations for shooting migratory waterfowl. the secretary said that the extension was made possible by an increase in the population of these birds.

The regulations also lengthened the hunting day. Shooting may start at sunrise and continue until 4 p. m. for waterfowl and coot. Last year the hours were 7 a. m. to 4 p. m. Jacksnipe may be hunted from sunrise to sunset.

The bag limit on ducks remains at 10 a day.

Shorter seasons were provided however, for woodcocks, and the bag limit on geese was reduced from 4 to 3 a day.

Shooting seasons on ducks, geese, coots and jacksnipe follow:

Northern zone from October 1 to November 29; the intermediate zone, October 16 to December 14; the southern zone from November 2 to December 31.

The northern zone, includes Michigan, Wisconsin, Minnesota, North Dakota, South Dakota, Wyoming and Montana.

As in previous years, the number of waterfowl that may be possessed at any time is limited to two days' bag but a new rule makes it possible to possess the legal limit for 20 days after the close of the season instead of 10 days.

The bag of Canvassbacks, Redheads, Buffleheads, and Ruddy ducks is limited to 3 a day, of any one of these species. The regulations also provide that not more than three of this entire group may be taken in one day. The possession limit on these birds also is double the daily bag limit.

The bag limit on coots is 25 a day and on jacksnipes 15 a day with possession limited to not exceed the daily bag limit.

Closed seasons throughout the United States and Alaska are continued on wood ducks, Ross's geese, and swans.

Hunters may use bows and arrows or shotguns not larger than 10 gauge. The 3-shell limit on repeating guns is continued. Use of bait or live decoys is forbidden.

All persons over 16 years old hunting migratory waterfowl are required to have federal migratory hunting stamps.

The new regulations reduce the bag limit on mourning or turtle doves and whitewing doves from 15 to 12, while not more than 12 of either or all may be taken in one day. Shooting hours are sunrise to sunset.

Open seasons on mourning doves in Minnesota are from September 16 to 30.

Mrs. Oscar Fosholm resigned her position at Carlson's store Monday. Mrs. Carlson will fill her place for the present time.

Mud Lake Is A Sportsmen's Paradise Says Sheaf Editor

A sportsmen's paradise!

Ducks by the tens of thousands! Mallards, teal, red heads, ruddy ducks, cormorants and what have you!

Sounds too good to be true, but it is. Any Northwestern Minnesota sportsman has the privilege of seeing these thousands upon thousands of migratory water fowl by driving less than 50 miles to the Mud Lake Wild Life refuge, just 11 miles east of Holt in Marshall county. But you can't shoot the ducks on the refuge, even during season.

The Mud Lake refuge, maintained by the U. S. Department of Interior, bureau of Biological Survey and comprises 61,000 acres of land and water. About 6,000 acres of additional territory may be added to the refuge soon. The refuge is recognized by conservationists as the outstanding refuge of its type in the entire United States.

Sunday afternoon the editor and his family accompanied by Clinton E. Lundgren and family were given the privilege of driving through the refuge, C. B. Vogen, superintendent of the refuge, serving as guide. A system of well kept roads built on dykes is being developed on the refuge with boys from the CCC camp at Thief Lake doing much of the work. It will take about two more years to complete the project, Mr. Vogen stated.

The refuge is entirely fenced as a precaution against poachers and vandalism. However, visitors are always welcome with permits being given at the headquarters office located just 11 miles east of Holt.

The biological survey has erected substantially modern buildings at the headquarters on the south side of the lake and also a second set on the north side of the lake. Modern conveniences including water under presure, electric lights, etc. have also been provided for government employees on the refuge.

Mr. Vogen is an ardent conservationist who believes that through effective control and through the provision of game sanctuaries that wild life, which was once so plentiful in the middle west, can be brought back to its former status. Through the return of wild life, much of our insect pestilence including grasshoppers, may also be lessened as bird thrive on insects, he intimated during the afternoon.

Of course—you can't hunt the ducks on any portion of the refuge—but ducks are migratory and may come off the refuge to feed and any place off the refuge you may hunt after October first when duck season opens in Minnesota.

Marshall county is fortunate to have the Mud Lake refuge and it is also fortunate that the biological survey selected a man of the type of Mr. Vogen as the headman of the project.—Taken from the Warren Sheaf.

A killing frost that put the finishing touches on pratically all green vegetation, especially garden vines and flowers, hit here Tuesday night. Early Wednesday morning the thermometer registered only 25 above here.

Rev. and Mrs. H. O. Aasen and daughters Elna and Carolide, of Baudette visited with Rev. and Mrs. Hanson on Sunday afternoon and evening.

Will Continue State Progress Stassen Pledges In Address

Continued progress for Minnesota in the reduction of real estate taxes and state debt was pledged by Governor Harold E. Stassen in his keynote address at the Republican state convention in Minneapolis.

Citing accomplishments in this state in the past two years in the matter of governmental economy, labor relations, restoration of employment and elimination of class intolerance, Stassen urged extension of this program to the national government through state-wide support for Wendell Willkie and Charles L. McNary, Republican candidates for president and vice president.

"The welfare and future of our people of Minnesota is closely intertwined with the welfare and the future of the people of the other 47 states," Stassen said. "Let us convey to our people in Minnesota, of all parties, our conviction that their future can best be served by holding fast to the tradition against a third term and by making a change at Washington."

More than 20,000 men and women who were unemployed two years ago have secured jobs in private employment in the past two years, the governor said, noting an increase in private payrolls of $40,000,000 annually.

Gov. Harold E. Stassen

Among accomplishments of the present state administration, he said, are: elimination of corruption and waste, balancing of the budget, establishment of civil service in place of the spoils and percentage salary collection system, advancement of social security measures and enactment of sound legislation governing taxation, small loans and public welfare.

Pledging continuance of progressive administrrtion in the next two years, Stassen said:

"We will cut taxes on real estate and further reduce the mortgage of indebtedness on the state, by continued carefull use of state money, and by working out a fair long range financial and tax program."

Within an hour after conclusion of Governor Stassen's address the convention adopted the party's platform, which outlines an aggressive, forward-looking policy covering agriculture, labor industry, governmental economy and taxation, education, and conservation.

"The outstanding achievementl of the last two years were attained by cooperation among all groups, classes and sections of the state, in a spirit of tolerance and mutual understanding," the platform stated. We appeal to the people of Minnesota to continue to work together in this spirit to make democracy succeed."

Many Attended Harvest Fest

The Harvest Festival given at the Nazareth church Snnday was a huge success. The weather was fine and a large crowd attended all day with a record crowd in the evening. Rev. H. O. Aasen of Baudette was the guest speaker and gave very interesting talks on the Home Mission work of the church. Out of town guests included: Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Kroke of Stephen Mr. and Mrs. Nick Nannestad of Lake Park, Mrs. Henny of McIntosh, Mrs. Bertha Kouch of Grand Forks, Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Heinze, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Heinze. Mr. and Mrs. Hardy Bjerk and daughter, Miss Erickson, Mr. and Mrs. S. Leiran and daughter of Thief River Falls; Mr. and Mrs. A. A. Trost of Warren and Rev. and Mrs. Aasen and daughters of Baudette.

Jesse Sorum and son Jerome of Grand Forks were Holt visitors Monday.

Chicken hunting season opened with a bang on Wednesday morning and the local hunters had a frosty morning for a starter with the chickens flying wild. Hunters report a good crop of birds but they were hard to get.

Kays Resigns As Deputy Sheriff

After serving 14 years as deputy sheriff of Marshall County Marshall K. Kays tendered his resignation last week to Sheriff O. C. Toftner to go into effect at once in order to accept a position as a special agent with the Soo Line railroad company with headquarters in Minneapolis. Mrs. Kays and family will move there as soon as they get a house.

The fall season officially started on Monday and the weather has been very fine so far. We had another rain early Monday morning that stopped threshing for the day but the farmers are hard at it again to finish their fall work.

WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS By Roger Shaw

16,500,000 Expected to Register for Draft On October 16, as President Signs Bill; U. S. Political Campaign Is Warming Up; Nazis Continue 'Hammering' of London

(EDITOR'S NOTE—When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of the news analyst and not necessarily of this newspaper.)

(Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

CONSCRIPTION:
Ready, Set—!

Congress passed and sent to the President the Burke-Wadsworth military conscription bill, which provides that all male citizens between the ages of 21 and 36 will be required to register for possible service with the armed forces. Two days later the President signed the bill into law.

Under present plans, such registration will take place on October 16, 1940, with 400,000 trainees scheduled to be dressed in khaki by the end of the year. Seventy-five thousand will probably enter service about the middle of November with subsequent quotas of 100,000 or 125,000 until the 400,000 marks is reached.

The much-debated Fish amendment to the measure, which provided for a 60-day volunteer plan before the draft would be invoked, was dropped before the law was finally passed. The Russell amendment which provides for the "drafting" of industry was modified somewhat in the final act but under its terms the nation will have power to "take over" (lease) manufacturing plants if the owners fail to co-operate properly in the scheme of national defense.

Draft boards will be set up in each community to handle the registration of the 16,500,000 men affected.

DEATH:
Two Party Leaders

On the same day death came to an outstanding leader in each of the nation's leading political parties.

Speaker of the House William B. Bankhead died of an internal hemorrhage after an illness of a week and Dr. Glenn Frank, former president of the University of Wisconsin and a candidate for the United States senate in that state's current primary election, was killed in an auto crash near Greenleaf, Wis.

Dr. Frank's son, Glenn Jr., 21, a newspaper reporter, was killed in the same accident.

Sixty-six years old, William Bankhead had served as speaker since 1936. He was the third to die in that office during the Roosevelt administration. He had been a house member since 1917.

Dr. Frank was 52 years old at the time of his death. He had been a Republican party adviser, educator and author. He was chairman of his party's policy committee and was seeking senatorial nomination on the Republican ticket.

NAMES
. . . in the news

The duke of Windsor, now governor of the Bahama islands, off Florida, cabled his congratulations to brother George, for his family's escape from German bombs. Premier Mackenzie King of Canada did the same thing.

Authorized German forces declared that Reichsmarshal Hermann Goering, chief of the Nazi air force, flew over London at the controls of Junkers plane, in one of the nightly raids on that city.

The French Vichy government put on trial ex-Generalissimo Gamelin, ex-Premiers Daladier and Reynaud, and ex-Minister Georges Mandel, for bungling or treachery, or any old charge. Really, it was a conservative purge of liberals—one that had been coming on, in France, since the celebrated Dreyfus case of the 1890s.

THE WAR:
Hammers

The war had taken this turn. It was the hammer of Thor, wielded by Hitler, beating down on the more or less solid English anvil. The whole struggle had boiled down into an anvil chorus. Its reverberations shook the world.

When a hammer hits an anvil, one of several things can happen. Either the anvil eventually cracks, or the hammer finally shivers in the hands of the blacksmith. Never does an irresistible force meet an immovable object.

This nonchalant London gent, who is taking in his milk from the doorstep, is typical of many Englishmen today. While the constant bombing raids naturally upset the daily routine, the English (according to British news sources) are attempting to adjust their lives accordingly and still hew as closely as possible to the "normal" way of doing things.

Hitler might hammer England, until his air force began to weaken. That was perfectly possible. But, if Hitler turned himself into an anvil, how could the English anvil turn itself into a hammer? The hammer may not be able to crack the anvil. But the anvil can seldom, if ever, hammer the hammer. That was what puzzled the critics. England might very possibly defend itself, but how could it strike back, to defeat Germany? If Germany could not cross 20 miles of water to invade a small island, how could little England counter-invade, to conquer a whole continent? What would Churchill's striking force be?

Anvils

The British blockade is one force. How much it can accomplish in revolt in Germany would be another. But there were no signs of revolt in Germany, and the iron grip of whippet tanks precluded revolt in the seven subject states and nations. Would Russia act as the English hammer? Otherwise it might drag on as a deadlock between two anvils, neither of which was equipped with a heavy-enough hammer. In the meantime London was being bombarded mercilessly and invasion threatened from day to day. Buckingham palace was no more immune from Nazi bombs than London's "east end."

PARADOX:
What a Shame

The British aviators, over Berlin, gutted the famous local Jewish Home for the Aged. Luckily, nobody was hurt. The same day, the royal air force just missed the luxurious home of Joseph Goebbels, German propaganda minister, one of Nazidom's most unsavory figures. The R. A. F. had hit Jewish property, and it missed that of the No. 1 Jew-baiter. What a paradox, and what a shame. Modern air warfare is, indeed, hit-and-run war in the dark.

YEAR 1940: ### Campaign

Wendell Willkie invaded the natal town of the powerful Kelly-Nash political machine, the home of the Democratic national convention last July, Chicago.

Willkie was greeted by half a million people, and at once attacked the New Deal in four snappy addresses. He spoke to the stockyards, to the Negroes, to the Western Electric, and in South Chicago. At one point, he became so preoccupied that he didn't recognize Mrs. Willkie, when she confronted him.

Said Willkie: "Let me say to you, if you elect me President of the United States, no American boys will ever be sent to the shambles of the European trenches." Then he said: "There are a lot of people in the country who had better do all they can to beat me, because the penitentiary jaws are going to open to some of them."

Just the same his enemies said that he straddled some issues. He had disappointed many mid-western Republicans by endorsing conscription and the 50-destroyer deal with Mr. Churchill, some claimed.

HORRORS:
In Jersey

Here are three of the injured victims of the Kenvil, New Jersey, munitions plant blast, pictured shortly after they were struck by flying glass.

Thirty buildings were left in ruins at Kenvil, N. J. The FBI was called in with a quick rush. Some $2,000,000 worth of U. S. government work was disrupted. Close to 50 were dead, and 200 were injured. It was all caused by a series of hideous explosions at the Hercules Power company, where 66,000 tons of smokeless powder "detonated" with a series of dull thuds.

Nazi sympathizers were blamed for it, and members of the Dies committee were sent to the scene of carnage. There was open talk of sabotage. The Nazi bund has a camp at Andover, about 12 miles from Kenvil. Later this camp was raided by authorities. Whatever the truth, it was a bad business all round, and more than equalled the contemporary air raids over London and Berlin. In fact, little Kenvil stole the headlines from the spires of Westminster, and the dome of St. Paul's.

III REICH:
World's Fair

The long arm of the III reich reached out to Long Island, where the World's fair aquabellies out over many acres. The German "protector" for Bohemia-Moravia—what used to be Czechoslovakia, in part—ordered the Czechoslovak pavilion at the fair to send "home" the products of some 35 Czech firms. The Czech commissioner-general is named George Janacek. Mr. Janacek refused to comply with Baron Von Neurath's command. Said Janacek: "To obey would actually be taking recognition of the German occupation of Czechoslovakia. I will sell as many of the exhibits as I can," added the Patriotic Mr. Janacek, whose joy it is (and no wonder) to defy Mr. Hitler.

He added that the 35 Czech firms in question were "under duress." The 300,000 German soldiers and 50,000 Gestapo men who are holding down the Czechs would tend to agree with Mr. Janacek.

YOUTH:
In Flying Boots

Here's a couple of good ones, out of Canada, where men are men, and some people are credulous. It seems, according to Ontario sources, that the German fliers over England are mostly 15 and 16 years old, and that the five-man German bombers are being maneuvered by not more than a couple of kids, still in their teens.

To cap the climax, a Toronto source declared as follows: A German plane was shot down somewhere in England. In the plane were found the bodies of the operating crew. The operating crew consisted of two little girls. These news gems are gleanings from what the boys abroad write home to the old folks. It is all of the same ilk as "Paolo" Revere (Revere's snorting steed was probably named "Il Duce").

REVERE:
Call Me Paolo

The Italian press came out with a brand-new one. They said that Paul Revere was a good, Anglo-hating Italian. They said that his first name was really Paolo. They said that this patriotic Paolo Revere was born in sunny Italia, in 1735. This came as a complete surprise to American historians, the poor dopes.

The dopey American historicals had believed that Paul (Paolo) had been born in Boston, Mass., in 1735. His father was Apollos de Revoire, who came to Boston from the British island of Guernsey (now occupied by the Germans) where they still speak Norman French. In short, Paul Revere was of French Huguenot stock. His silver-smith father anglicized the family name, "merely on account, that the bumpkins should pronounce it easier."

G B S:
Shaw Speaks

George Bernard Shaw, the modern English Shakespeare, advised his countrymen to woo the Russians as quick as they could. He pointed out that Winston Churchill had long been an outstanding anti-Russian and red-baiter. But, he added, Mr. Churchill had changed his views. He pointed out that Churchill had declared Lenin was a very great man.

STAGE SCREEN RADIO

By VIRGINIA VALE

(Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

ROSALIND RUSSELL, who considers Columbia her lucky lot, has been signed to play the feminine starring role in that studio's new comedy, "This Thing Called Love," a tale of a six months' trial marriage which goes on the rocks before it is well launched. Miss Russell will be seen as a brisk and competent insurance executive (and let's hope she won't over-act, as she sometimes does) and Melvyn Douglas, playing opposite her, will be a mining engineer.

A few years ago the beautiful Rosalind was borrowed by Columbia for the title role in "Craig's Wife," an unsympathetic part, as you'll probably recall, but in it she proved so conclusively that she could act that the picture gave her a place at the top. She scored another Columbia triumph as "Hildy Johnson" in "His Girl Friday."

The 52.6 second kiss record set by Ann Sheridan and George Brent in "Honeymoon for Three" brought reactions of all kinds from here, there and elsewhere.

A Los Angeles laundry asked for the handkerchief used by Brent to wipe off Miss Sheridan's lipstick, offering to launder it for nothing. An inventor in Indianapolis asked Brent to be the first to try his new lipstick remover. A clock manufacturer inquired what kind of watch was used to time the kiss. A New York promoter telegraphed a $500 offer to the pair if they would officially open a "kissathon" by repeating the performance.

And then a woman's club in Topeka, Kan., passed a resolution recommending that endurance kissing be banned on the ground that it is unhygienic. And countless males between the ages of 17 and 60 wrote in, volunteering to take over Brent's next assignment of that kind for nothing.

When young Betty Brewer was working with him in "Rangers of Fortune" Fred MacMurray taught her to croon. Since then she has been rehearsing her sister and brother and a little neighbor girl in a quartet which she calls "Betty Brewer and Her Playmates," and it's so good that an advertising agency may put them on the air this fall.

As old as radio is the annoying production problem of performers kicking the microphone stand or striking it with their hands if they make gestures while on the air. If a grating sound comes from your receiving set, that's probably the reason.

Cecil B. DeMille thought he'd solved the problem for his radio theater last year, by using a hanging microphone—but without a base stand to guide them, actors bumped their heads into the mike. (Gluttons for punishment, these actors!)

Undaunted, C. B. went to work again. And this year when the cast assembled for the theater's first production, "Manhattan Melodrama," with Myrna Loy, William Powell, and, of course, Don Ameche, they found that a circular guard rail had been built under the mike. That suited them perfectly—they could rest their scripts on it.

Your kidneys are constantly filtering waste matter from the blood stream. But kidneys sometimes lag in their work—do not act as Nature intended—fail to remove impurities that, if retained, may poison the system and upset the whole body machinery.
Symptoms may be nagging backache, persistent headache, attacks of dizziness, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes—a feeling of nervous anxiety and loss of pep and strength.

SCHOOL again, and this sketch shows a quiet study corner for one girl. It is all very gay in tones of golden yellow and green and was made almost entirely of things already on hand—even down to the hooked rug.

The hanging book shelf doesn't really hang at all. It is made of a box screwed to the wall, and if you never thought of slip-covering a book shelf, here is proof of how smart one will look, especially if it is matched with a chair covered in the same material. The legs of the chair are painted green and so is the old kitchen table which has now become a desk. The yellow tone is repeated in the blotter and an old brass lamp and other desk things carry out the green and yellow color scheme. A shelf like this one would be attractive in almost any room, even the bathroom or the kitchen. This box was so rough that the oil cloth lining was necessary. A box of smooth wood could be painted inside.

NOTE: One hundred sixty of these homemaking articles by Mrs. Spears have been printed in five booklets, each 32 pages. The stocking cat and doll on the shelf are in Book 3; directions for the hook rug are in No. 5; also descriptions of the other booklets. Booklets are 10c postpaid and should be requested direct from Mrs. Spears. Send order to:

ORDER BRINGING IN MARY ASPOAS AS A PARTY DEFENDANT IN SAID ACTION

The Plaintiff, Metropolitan Life Insurance Company, having made it to appear to this Court on due hearing thereon held at Warren, Minnesota, May 6, 1940, W. A. McManigal, Jr., having appeared for said Metropolitan Life Insurance Company, and all Defendants who have appeared in said action having consented that Mary Aspoas be joined as a party defendant in said action, for the reason that she has succeeded to all of the rights of James Aspoas as judgement creditor of Albert Heddan, Defendant, in this action,

NOW, THEREFORE THIS COURT MAKES THE FOLLOWING ORDER

That the Complaint on file in said action be, and hereby is, amended by striking from said original complaint paragraph XVI thereof and substituting the following paragraph XVI therefor:

"That James Aspoas was the owner and holder of a judgement in the sum of $425.61 against said Albert Heddan, dated and docketed August 31, 1932 in the District Court of said Marshall County.

That James Aspoas died on or about January 16, 1933 and by Final Decree of Distribution Pursuant to Sec. 8779-83 General Statutes of Minnesota for 1923, entered May 8, 1933, in the Probate Court of St. Louis County, Minnesota, said judgement was assigned to Mary Aspoas, his widow. That the lien of said judgement is inferior to the lien of said Plaintiff's Mortgage against said premises."

That said Mary Aspoas be substituted for said James Aspoas as a defendant in said Action, and in the Summons herein, and that said Mary Aspoas shall be allowed twenty days to appear and plead to the Complaint as so amended after service of this Order and the Summons herein upon said Mary Aspoas, exclusive of the day of such service, and in default thereof, the Plaintiff have judgement against her as requested in the Complaint in said Action.

IT IS FURTHER ORDERED,

That Summons in this action and and copy of this Order be fortwith served upon said Mary Aspoas at Washington, D. C., either by personal service, if she may be found, or by published service, if she cannot be found and that any proceedings against her in this action be stayed until she shall have been so served and shall have had such period of twenty days in which to answer.

Silver Wedding Anniversary

Neighbors and relatives of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Voth gathered at the Voth home Sunday and gave them a Silver Wedding Anniversary party. The honor guests were given a cash purse and many fine gifts. Out of town guests were Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Hadler, Mrs. H. P. Benitt, Lillian Benitt all of Goodhue, Minn. who spent last week here visiting other relatives also.

Card of Thanks

We hereby express our heartfelt thanks to our relatives friends and neighbors for the party given us on our 25th wedding anniversary and for the cash purse and gifts.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Voth.

Mr. and Mrs. Olaf Erickson and Mr. and Mrs. Paul Olson motored to Fargo Monday having been called there because of the serious illness of Dorothy Olson.

Wedding Reception Held

A crowd that filled the Lutheran church parlors to capacity gathered Tuesday evening to give Mr. and Mrs. Alonzo Inman, newly wedded couple, a wedding reception. A program was given consisting of a vocal solo by Mrs. A. W. Carlson, Reading by Miss Carlson and a talk by Rev. Hanson. Hazel Lunke read the program. A long table was heaping full of gifts for the honor guests to open, one being especially well wrapped with wire and nails causing much merriment. A delicious lunch was served.

Several local hunters came home the first day with ducks. No one reported good shooting as the weather is too warm and the ducks stay too quiet.

The weather the past week has been nice and warm. On Wednesday night we had a light rain.

Silver Wedding Anniversary

The relatives of Mr. and Mrs. Ludvig Sagstuen gathered at the Hilmer Moberg home September 26 to help them celebrate their Silver Wedding anniversary. The only table decoration was a cake baked by Mrs. Moberg. It was a four layered cake covered with tiny colored candies and small pink flowers. On the top stood a miniature bride and groom.

The honor guests received a set of silverware, a set of dishes and a cash purse.

Those present were: Honor guests, Mr. and Mrs. Ludvig Sagstuen Raymond and Dorothy Sagstuen, Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Sagstuen, Mr. and Mrs. Hartley Peterson and Donovan, Mr. and Mrs. Hilmer Moberg and family, Mr. and Mrs. George Moberg, Bertha and Gerald Moberg, Mr. and Mr. Oscar Lunke, Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Johnson and Gloria, Mr. and Mrs. Lars Ring, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Erickson and girls, Mr. and Mr. Carsten Sagstuen and family, Anton Sagstuen. Out of town guests were: Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Leiran and Eleanor, Mrs. Iver Engebretson, Mrs. Mike Leiran and Cardiff, Melvin Leiran and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Arnold Sannes all of Thief River Falls and John Moberg of Gatzke.

Mrs. O. Backlund visited at the G. Sanoden home last Tuesday afternoon.

Made Member of W. A. A.

Miss Inez Anderson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Guy Anderson, was recently made a member of the Women's Athletic Association at Concordia College. She is also serving on the executive of the LDR.

Last week she was elected as the poster designer for Alpha Zeta Phi, her literary society. At an earlier date she was appointed to a special Homecoming committee which will have charge of the designing, drawing and making of the huge society window in the gymnasium.

While out duck hunting east of Gatzke on Tuesday, Theo. Ness and Paul Anderson of Red Lake Falls and O. T Ness from here came upon a large dead bull moose. They estimated the animal had been dead for a week and that gun shot wounds were the cause.

Political Advertisement—Paid for at regular rates by the Butler Publicity Committee, Martin Widsten, chairman, Bemidji, Minn.

Colvin G. Butler is a man whom I have known since childhood. He is well fitted for the job of Congressman for the Ninth District. He is the son of the late Steve Butler and Amanda Butler, who was the daughter of Senator McCrea, the first state senator in the district which was almost identical with the present 9th Confressional District of Minnesota. Colvin was born in Perham, the third in a family of seven children. His earlier years were spent on the farm. He had just reached the age of fourteen at the time he drove the binder and cut the grain. That fall he did all the plowing with a sulky plow. He is a farm owner and perfectly understands the needs of the farmer.

The Butler family moved to Fergus Falls from Perham, when the late Steve Butler was elected County Treasurer. Colvin graduated from Fergus Falls High School in 1902, received first prize at this time for writing the best Senior essay on the Value of Debating He played on the championship football team which never lost a game, and was captain of the high-school baseball team. He was also on the championship debating team. After school hours, on Saturdays, and during summer vacations, he clerked and kept books in a grocery store. During two summer vacations he was employed doing clerical work in the offices of the County Auditor and County Treasurer. He attended Hamline University, receiving his B. A. degree in 1907. At Hamline he was on the debating team for two years. He also took a course in Commercial Law and Business at Park Region Luther College.

Colvin married Elizabeth Bertelson, daughter of Gunder Bertelson, who served nine years as Sheriff of Ottertail County. Steve Butler was Deputy Sheriff under Mr. Bertelson, and was always very active in politics and public affairs, so his son Colvin comes honestly by his political desires.

Having traveled extensively throughout the United States and Mexico, he has acquired a wonderful knowledge and background for the making of a good and successful congressman, not only for the 9th Congressional District or Minnesota but for the entire United States.

I bespeak for him, his election, and consider it a real privilege and pleasure to vote for one so eminently fitted for this position.

September 23, 1940.

Very sincerely yours,
AMOS MARCKEL

Davidson-Swenson Wedding

At a single ring ceremony at the Newfolden parsonage Thursday Sept. 26th at 7:15 p. m. Miss Lorraine Davidson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ed Davidson of Middle River became the bride of Mr. Lewis Swenson, son of Mr. and Mrs. G. Swenson of Holt. Rev Myhrer read the ceremony. The attendants were Miss Ann Swenson sister of the groom and Mr. Alvin Saxberg.

The bride was attired in a floorlength gown of Royal blue satin with short puff sleves and a square neckline trimmed with berry velvet ribbon bows with navy accessories. She carried a bouquet of white daisies and wore a flower in her hair.

The bridesmaid was attired in a floorlength gown of berry satin with a square neckline and a matching jacdet with blue velvet bows and wine accessories. She wore a corsage of white phalax and a flower in her hair. Each wore a string of pearls, a gift from the groom.

We Have Paved Main Street

Some time ago we read an item in the papers that the streets of International Falls are paved with gold. They haven't got so much on our fair town which now has a main street paved with broken glass and topped off with scraps of paper.

Lynn Miller, local agent for the Standard Oil Co. was the first hunter here to bring in ducks this season. Mr. Miller bagged his ducks while out with a load of tractor fuel the first morning of the season.

★ ". . WE CONCLUDE THAT 3.2 BEER IS NON-INTOXICATING"
Report of Dr. A. J. Carlson, University of Chicago, and four associate scientists

- We're all entitled to have opinions—but the wisest among us consult the experts before adopting opinions on any subject.
- Doctors know through long study and scientific research that beer is wholesome and nutritious . . . that 3.2 beer is non-intoxicating when taken in the amounts the average person consumes it! And, because beer satisfies every need for a healthful stimulating beverage, these noted doctors recommend its wider use as the most practical means to promote true temperance.
- This is something for Minnesotans to think about . . . especially because the beer industry employs approximately 35,000 Minnesotans . . . buys annually about $3,500,000 worth of Minnesota grain . . . and pays approximately $2,000,000 to the State Treasurer of Minnesota in beer taxes alone!

83 English Refugee Children Perish As Ship Is Torpedoed in Mid-Atlantic; Kidnaper of 3-Year-Old Lad Captured And Boy Returned, Unharmed, to Home

(EDITOR'S NOTE—When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of the news analyst and not necessarily of this newspaper.)

CRIME:
California Kidnaping

Three days after Marc de Tristan Jr.'s abductor seized him from the street near his home in Hillsborough, Calif., he was returned to his nobleman father, Count de Tristan, in San Francisco.

The child was rescued unharmed from the kidnaper, identified as Wilhelm Jakob Muhlenbroich, a 40-year-old German alien, by two woodsmen at Pine River, in the Sierra foothills 200 miles from Hillsborough.

For this elaborately plotted and boldly executed crime, the kidnaper, a German alien, received no $100,000 as demanded in a beautifully phrased ransom note of 600 words, but he got a black eye, a gashed head, a bruised body, and he faces almost certain imprisonment for life. The lumbermen, Cecil Wetzel and Ellis Woods, violently manhandled him when they found him and the child in an automobile on a dead-end road.

THE WAR:
Aerialistics

The British said it would take Hitler 40 years to wipe out London, at the present rate of progress. But at the same rate of progress, the German air force might be wiped out in 40 weeks.

For the first time, just the same, a funny thing happened. The British and Germans both admitted that the other side had outshot them. The British said they had lost at a ratio of 7 to 4. The Germans said they had lost at a ratio of 3 to 1. This was completely unprecedented, not only in the checkered annals of Anglo-German warfare in the clouds, but also in Sino-Japanese, Jap-Russian, and Spanish civil conflicts. Nobody could quite figure it out. It seemed peculiar.

The big question, which vexed the critics, was whether the Germans would actually try a land invasion of England this fall. There were all sorts of stories. The royal air force bombed alleged German troop concentrations along the channel coast, and in Norway. They damaged flat-boats and similar equipment. Whether this equipment was merely a blind, or not, remained to be seen.

There was a yarn that 200,000 Nazis were massed in Norway, for a drive across. Some critics declared that the light German tank had proved utterly vulnerable to the two-pounder British anti-tank gun. This, they added, had caused Hitler to delay his invasion, and might postpone it indefinitely. That, again, remained to be seen.

NAMES
. . . in the news

Elliott Roosevelt, son of the President, applied for a commission in the U. S. army air corps. He is 30 years old, and it was reported he might be assigned to the "specialist reserve."

Mayor LaGuardia of New York city told a United States conference of burgomasters that the U. S. has an 80 per cent chance of escaping war, with the acquisition of the new Atlantic naval and air bases. The conference was held in N. Y.

Martin ("Buggsy") Goldstein and Harry ("Pittsburgh Phil") Strauss were convicted of murder in the first degree for the Brooklyn, N. Y., murder-syndicate killing of Irving ("Puggy") Feinstein, a fellow malefactor.

Westminster cathedral got into the news. A Nazi dive-bomber just missed the dome, 284 feet high. It dropped a 250-pound bomb in the asphalt playground, adjoining. Westminster cathedral is the Roman Catholic headquarters in England, a sort of rival to the Anglican (Episcopal) Westminster Abbey.

Just Kids

A very large number of the Nazi fliers up over England were young kids in their teens. They had been raised under the totalitarian system, and had the reckless fanaticism of utter youth. Their only enthusiasm was Hitler. They almost courted death. The Nazi regime seemed to be deliberately exploiting these amateur wild-men. Their bombs might almost be termed: gifts to the school-children of London, from the high school boys of Berlin (or Breslau, or Augsburg, or whatever). No regime in history, said one historian, had ever sacrificed youth in this completely cold-blooded manner—that is, its own youth. The Goering flying circus might well be renamed the Goering suicide squad.

More Kids

The London press screamed "murder" at the announcement by the British government of the sinking of an English refugee ship with a toll of 293 persons, 83 of whom were children en route to Canada.

The ship, her name not disclosed, was torpedoed 600 miles west of England and sank in a stormy sea within 20 minutes after she was attacked.

Of 406 men, women, and children aboard, only 113 were brought back alive by a warship which reached the scene at dawn—almost eight hours after the torpedo struck. Stories of heroism and horror told by survivors of the disaster indicated that many lives were lost in the terrific explosion which ripped the vessel. Many others were swept from lifeboats or died of injuries and exposure.

The children were from 5 to 15 years old, and were the first lost in the child evacuation movements which have been under way ever since the war began.

The attacking submarine was not identified, but the tragedy was described by government officials as "another example of the barbarous methods associated with Nazi Germany."

CAMPAIGN:
Spirit of 1776-'40

The drums beat. The bugles blared, the fifes tooted, the crowds cheered, the urchins ducked in and out, while women fainted, and candidates kissed babies, and wrapped themselves in the old red, white and blue bunting. The electoral campaign of 1940 still was in progress.

The latest Gallup poll galloped all over Mr. Willkie's chances. It told the following sad tale—that is—for the Grande Olde Partisans. According to Gallup, Roosevelt would get 37 states and 453 electoral votes. According to the same Mr. Gallup, Willkie would get 10 states and 78 electoral votes. This did not look any too encouraging for the Willkisti. Said an old cynic: "This is one golf game where the caddies are going to beat the country-club members."

CANDIDATE McNARY
Republican Vice Presidential Nominee McNary is pictured as he spoke at Aurora, Ill., opening his midwest campaign. He engaged in a bitter attack on the Hull reciprocal trade agreements. Henry Wallace, Democratic candidate for the same post, has already toured this section of the country and is busy elsewhere upholding his party's cause.

The Republicans, of course, failed to agree with this estimate. Sam Pryor, director of the eastern division of the Republican national committee, couldn't endorse the Gallup estimate. Pryor thought that Willkie would get 300 or more electoral votes, leaving Roosevelt with 231 or less. Pryor added that about two-thirds of the country editors were for Willkie, and that these editors conceded Willkie more than half of the popular votes in their editorial districts.

Etc., Etc.

Each side accused the other side of dictatorial ambitions. The Democrats said the Willkisti were planning a "fascist" big-business dictatorship, while the Republicans said the Rooseveltens were scheming a personal sort of "war" dictatorship. Earl Browder wanted the dictatorship of the proletariat, and that left only Norman Thomas, whom one prominent literary critic described as a 1940 streamlined Jefferson. But nobody expected many votes for Mr. Thomas, and perhaps he didn't either.

Mrs. Chips

MRS. ELLA DONAT, wife of Robert Donat, famous English actor, who has just arrived in the United States from their home in Aylesbury, Buckinghamshire, England, with their three children, stated on her arrival that she believed England would emerge from the war victorious and that she would ultimately return to her green-hilled home to rejoin her actor-husband, best known in the U. S. for his starring role in the motion picture, "Goodbye, Mr. Chips."

RUMANIA:
Transylvania

Rumania was settling down, under the anti-Carol dictatorship of Gen. John Antonescu, who had been locked up in a monastery until recently. Antonescu helped to chase Carol out of the country, with his hated, red-headed girl-pal Lupescu. Then it turned out that Carol and Lupescu were married, and had been since perhaps 1929. This news cheered the Mrs. Grundy's of the entire world.

Antonescu's new Rumania was pro-Nazi and anti-Jewish. It had lost about two-thirds of its territory: Bessarabia and Bukovina to Russia, Transylvania to Hungary, and the southern part of the Dubruja province to little Bulgaria. Antonescu didn't care for all this. The Rumanians accused the Hungarians of committing all sorts of atrocities in Transylvania province as they marched in. The Hungarian-Rumanian tension seemed scheduled to go on forever.

The Germans and Italians had forced Rumania to cede territory to Hungary and the Bulgarians. Now, the Rumanians began to talk about Germany and Italy forcing the Hungarians, etc., etc., to cede territory back to them. Meanwhile, Rumanian oil exports to Germany were soaring. The best high-test airplane gas comes from the Rumanian wells and today one can consider Rumania as General Goering's "kept" filling station.

CHALLENGE:
Duello

General Goering, flying chief of the Third Reich, was up over London in his own Junkers 88 bomber. Goering was the former commander of the Richthofen flying circus in the first world war, and an ace of great renown. Like many an old war horse, in the second world war he couldn't keep his hands off the controls. It was the first time, in a very long time, that a general led his own troops into battle.

Goering may be the black eagle of Germany. But Harlem—New York city's Negro section—has a black eagle, too. His august name is Col. Hubert Fauntleroy Julian. Julian had just finished reading Hitler's book, "Mein Kampf." Julian's blood boiled over, at Hitler's remarks on the colored race. This is what happened:

Colonel Julian issued a challenge to General Goering, to meet him in a single, solitary combat. The place was to be up over the English channel. The weapons were to be Messerschmitt planes. Colonel Julian inferred that General Goering was a "lousy 0 divided by 0." Goering was to have 30 days in which to accept the Julian challenge. The challenge itself read as follows:

"I therefore challenge and defy you, Herman Goering, as head of the Nazi air force, to meet me at 10,000 feet, to fight an aerial duel to avenge the cowardly insult to my race. Neutral correspondents must be the referees." Colonel Julian added that he would buy a Messerschmitt from the British government, which had two captured ones up for sale. Colonel Julian overlooked one detail. General Goering is probably too fat to get into a Messerschmitt.

Julian was Haile Selassie's only flier in the Ethiopian war.

BRITISH TROUBLE:
Egypt

The Italians came out of Tripoli-Libya, and started to invade Egypt, up the long coastline. Already, they had conquered British Somaliland down in East Africa. The British in Egypt were slowly retreating along the coast before Mussolini's Marshal Graziani.

The object of the Italian high command was to cut the Suez canal. This would sever the imperial lifeline of England to India.

Loquacious Conductor Aimed to Make Self Clear

"Fare, please! Fare!"
The passenger paid no attention.
"Fare, please!"
Still no response.

"By the ejaculatory term, 'Fare,'" said the conductor, "I imply no reference to the state of the weather, the complexion of the admirable blonde you observe in the contiguous seat, nor even to the quality of the service vouchsafed by this philanthropic corporation. I merely alluded in a manner perhaps lacking in delicacy, but not in conciseness, to the monetary obligation set up by your presence in this car and suggest that you liquidate."

Then the passenger paid his fare.

SEWING CIRCLE

SCHOOL girls will love to wear this pretty frock—and it's so very becoming to all of them! Flared at the skirt, wide at the shoulders, design No. 8763 fills them out, at the age when they shoot up like beanpoles. And the high-cut princess skirt scoops in gratifyingly at the waistline.

This pretty frock makes up charmingly in a combination of plaid and plain fabrics, as pictured, but it's very smart in one color, too. The two versions look so different that you'll really get two fashions out of this one pattern. Gingham, linen, percale and chambray are pretty for this. Make it up, later on, in wool crepe or challis.

Pattern No. 8763 is designed for sizes 6, 8, 10, 12 and 14 years. Size 8 requires ⅞ yard of 35-inch material for short sleeved waist portion, 1¾ yards for skirt. Send order to:

Passing the Time in Air Raid Shelter

Here's a peek into a Ramsgate air raid shelter. The city of Ramsgate, in England, has been subjected to constant air raid alarms, and the people have, during these many weeks past, grown quite accustomed to spending long hours in air raid shelters. Girls are knitting as they pass the time. Housewives discuss the high cost of living and other home problems. Little boys suck on ice cream cones and wait, like the others, for the raid to pass over. London's loss of time every day because of air raids is a very serious matter, and the Nazis seem to know it.

"One member has an interesting collection of pitchers and would like to make a corner whatnot for them," the letter continued.

Well, here it is ladies! With the collection of pitchers all in place. The sketch gives all dimensions and instructions. The triangle shelves are cut from one board as shown at the left. The second shelf from the bottom needs six holes. All the others have three holes each. The design may be varied by using larger spools at the bottom for the first spool above and below each shelf. Use extension curtain rods to fit the holes in the spools. A little glue between spools makes the whatnot rigid. When finished, it may be stained or painted.

Pioneer School Notes

School opened Sept. 16th, after a summer vacation. The enrollment this year is 22 pupils so far.

The first graders include Alf Movick Jr., Donna Hanson, Vernon Larson and Iver Mikkelson. They have been busy learning their colors and numbers. In language they have been memorizing, "Moon's the North Wind's Cookie". They have read many pages from their little Terry books, too.

In Current Events we have a "Weekly News Chart" upon which we paste clippings of the latest world news.

Ludvig Tweten visited school on Wednesday. Ludvig was a former student at Pioneer.

We are reading from the Bible "The Book of Romans" this year.

Mrs. Edwin Hanson visited school on Friday afternoon.

In Art Class the pupils have made leaves to decorate the room. They also have made vegetables booklets and a paper showing the steps in making a toy bear.

Miss Plymire is reading "Billy Whiskers at the Fair" for opening exercises. We are enjoying it very much.

These with perfect marks in spelling are: Wilma Movick, Gordon McCullough, Josephine McNamara, Dorothy MCNamara, Harold Ness.

SERVICE

We carry a full line of Funeral Supplies at Holt and can give you service at any time when needed. Auto Hearse.

ORDER BRINGING IN MARY ASPOAS AS A PARTY DEFENDANT IN SAID ACTION

The Plaintiff, Metropolitan Life Insurance Company, having made it to appear to this Court on due hearing thereon held at Warren, Minnesota, May 6, 1940, W. A. McManigal, Jr., having appeared for said Metropolitan Life Insurance Company, and all Defendants who have appeared in said action having consented that Mary Aspoas be joined as a party defendant in said action, for the reason that she has succeeded to all of the rights of James Aspoas as judgement creditor of Albert Heddan, Defendant, in this action,

NOW, THEREFORE THIS COURT MAKES THE FOLLOWING ORDER

That the Complaint on file in said action be, and hereby is, amended by striking from said original complaint paragraph XVI thereof and substituting the following paragraph XVI therefor:

"That James Aspoas was the owner and holder of a judgement in the sum of $425.61 against said Albert Heddan, dated and docketed August 31, 1932 in the District Court of said Marshall County.

That James Aspoas died on or about January 16, 1933 and by Final Decree of Distribution Pursuant to Sec. 8779-83 General Statutes of Minnesota for 1923, entered May 8, 1933, in the Probate Court of St. Louis County, Minnesota, said judgement was assigned to Mary Aspoas, his widow. That the lien of said judgement is inferior to the lien of said Plaintiff's Mortgage against said premises."

That said Mary Aspoas be substituted for said James Aspoas as a defendant in said Action, and in the Summons herein, and that said Mary Aspoas shall be allowed twenty days to appear and plead to the Complaint as so amended after service of this Order and the Summons herein upon said Mary Aspoas, exclusive of the day of such service, and in default thereof, the Plaintiff have judgement against her as requested in the Complaint in said Action.

IT IS FURTHER ORDERED,

That Summons in this action and and copy of this Order be forthwith served upon said Mary Aspoas at Washington, D. C., either by personal service, if she may be found, or by published service, if she cannot be found and that any proceedings against her in this action be stayed until she shall have been so served and shall have had such period of twenty days in which to answer.

History Of Mission Church

The Free Evangelical Mission Church of Holt is located on lots 20-21 of block 5, original townsite. The exact date of the organization of the congregation has not been found, but the county records show that lots were purchased and a deed from the Northern Townsite Company bearing the date of April 11, 1914, was duly recorded in the office of Register of Deeds. The records also show that on May 9, 1914, at a meeting called for the purpose, articles of incorporation were adopted and the following officers elected: Martin T. Strom, chairman, T. B. Folden, secretary; Roman L. Olson, Christian O. Saastad and Erick O. Johnson, trustees. Nels Engebretson was the first treasurer.

Also in 1914 a neat frame building about 28 by 42 feet with an outside vestibule about 10 by 14 and a full concrete basement was erected.

As the name implies, this congregation is not affiliated with any of the larger church bodies. At the time of organization there were 12, and at the present time, there are 16 voting members.

Since organization, only two pastors have served the congregation, Rev. Peter B. Kilen served from 1914 to 1918 and Rev. Thv. Myhrer since 1918. The same pastor serves the Free Evangelical Mission Church at Newfolden and formerly also served the Scandinavian Evangelical Free Church of Numedal township in Pennington county.

The church has a Ladies Aid Society comprising about fifteen members which has been an important factor in financing the various activities of the church No records have been found of earlier date than 1934. The present officers of the society are Mrs. Carl Johnson president; Mrs. Ralph Ness, secretary; Mrs. August Holmstrom, treasurer.

A Sunday School was organized, but no records found and it is not functioning at the present time.

The present officers of the church are Christian O. Saastad, chairman; T. B. Folden, secretary; K. T. Solum, treasurer; C. O. Saastad, K. T. Solum and Theodor Sorum, trustees.

Strandquist - Skoglund Wedding

A quiet wedding which united Miss Alice Strandquist, daughter of Mrs. N. O. Strandquist, and Algot Skoglund of Holt took place on Thursday, Aug. 15th at the Lutheran parsonage at Detroit Lakes. News of the wedding had been kept a secret until this week when it was officially announced.

Officiating at the single ring ceremony was Rev. Irvin O. Jacobson. Attendants were Mr. and Mrs. Vernold L. Jacobson of Kansas.

A short honeymoon trip was made by the newlyweds which included a tour through Itasca State Park. Following this the couple returned to their homes here and the wedding was kept a secret until this week.

The newlyweds, who will make their home on the farm close to Strandquist, are extended congratulations and best wishes for a long and happy wedded life.

—Strandquist Press, Sept. 27.

Annual Dorcas Auction

The annual Dorcas Auction Sale of fancy work will be held Wednesday evening, Oct. 23 at the Nazareth Lutheran Church. The work of the Dorcas girls has the past record of being exceptionally nice handwork and usually are sold at a small price.

T. R. F. Slated For Airport

The civil aeronautics administration at Washington has recently announced that $587,500 in allotments had been "earmarked" for construction or improvements of airports and landing fields in northern Minnesota in connection with the nationwide airport development program of the defense act.

Largest of the proposed projects in this section is an airport at Thief River Falls to cost $181,000. Similar projects also are slated for Crookston and Bemidji each estimated to cost $168,000. Improvements or new construction on smaller scale are planned for Red Lake Falls, Warren, Ada, Greenbush, Roseau, Baudette and other northwestern Minnesota towns.

Fall Festival & Smoker Oct. 26

All the local businessmen met Monday evening and made the final arrangement for the Fall Festival and Smoker to be held here Saturday, Oct. 26. A program and drawing will be held in the afternoon when $50.00 in cash prizes will be given away in connection with the merchandise tickets given out now by local business places. Get your tickets now. Watch for posters on this next week.

Sunnyside School Notes

Our Little Citizen's League elected the following officers for the first month of school.

Kenton Anderson, President; Betty Swan, Secretary, Joann Benitt, Treasurer; and Lois Larson, Vice President.

Fifteen pupils enrolled at Sunnyside School this year. Our first graders are Jay Garthus and Gloria Anderson.

The lower grades have been busy working on their Indian unit. We have made a large teepee for our Indians and are now busy making Indian clothes. Several people have some beautiful Indian headdress. We are reading the story of Hiawathia and making Indian booklets also.

We have a Safe-Way Club in school now. We mean to do all we can to prevent accidents from happening. Betty Swan is president of the Safe-Way Club.

We are making book journeys around the world. We all have little airplanes to show how far we have traveled. Kenton Anderson and Milton Conklin are in the lead now.

We have had two little visitors in school. They are Mary Erickson and Carol Ness. Mrs. Norman Peterson has also visited school.

Arvid Carlson Closing Store

Arvid Carlson, veteran merchant of Holt and Middle River is this week closing out his store at Middle River. Mr. Carlson started his first store of Rosewood in 1907 and in 1909 he opened the Carlson Mercantile Company here at Holt. It is 34 years since he started his merchandising business and during that time has operated stores at Holt, Middle River, Greenbush Argyle, Stephen, Warren, Newfolden, St. Hilaire and Gatzke.

Mr. Carlson is president of the Marshall County State bank here and his son A. W. Carlson took over the local store three years ago.

Don't forget the Hat Social at Manor School, Dictrict No. 20, 2½ miles South and 2½ miles East of Holt, on Friday evening, October 18th. Ladies, please bring a hat and lunch for two.

There will be fun for you and your friends. We'll be seeing you.

Beatrice Larson, teacher,

Deer Season Nov. 15-25

A special five-day deer hunting season for bow and arrow fans will precede the regular 11-day season this fall.

The archers' season, however, will be limited to Itasca county. By terms of an act passed by the 1939 legislature it will extend from Nov. 1 to 5, inclusive.

Technicians for the Department of Conservation, piecing together reports on deer populations made by game wardens, are expected to announce regulations for the 11-day seaon soon. Statute decrees that this shooting period be from November 15 to 25, inclusive.

The Cincinnati Reds won the World Series baseball honors in a hard struggle in the 7th game of the series on Tuesday when they beat the Detroit Tigers 2 to 1 in the final game.

Here's a Smart Prelude to Fall

PICTURE yourself in this suave, lovely afternoon frock with fluid, sculptured lines which make every step a poem! Your figure will look slim at the waist and hips and prettily rounded above the nice flat diaphragm! You can brighten the high neckline with a blazing gold necklace, or snowy pearls, or pin one of the extravagant new chatelaines at the point of the shoulder yoke!

This need not be just a pleasant imagining, because if you write at once for pattern No. 1209-B, you can have the dress easily finished before a week is up. In rayon jersey, flat crepe or thin wool, it will give a definite feeling of fall chic.

THE TRUTH SIMPLY TOLD

Today's popularity of Doan's Pills, after many years of world-wide use, surely must be accepted as evidence of satisfactory use. And favorable public opinion supports that of the able physicians who test the value of Doan's under exacting laboratory conditions.

These physicians, too, approve every word of advertising you read, the objective of which is only to recommend Doan's Pills as a good diuretic treatment for disorder of the kidney function and for relief of the pain and worry it causes.

If more people were aware of how the kidneys must constantly remove waste that cannot stay in the blood without injury to health, there would be better understanding of why the whole body suffers when kidneys lag, and diuretic medication would be more often employed.

Burning, scanty or too frequent urination sometimes warn of disturbed kidney function. You may suffer nagging backache, persistent headache, attacks of dizziness, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes—feel weak, nervous, all played out.

Use Doan's Pills. It is better to rely on a medicine that has won world-wide acclaim than on something less favorably known. Ask your neighbor!

WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS By Roger Shaw

Japan, Italy and Germany Sign Pact Establishing 'A New Order' for World; U. S. Places an Embargo on Scrap Iron; Senate Ratifies Pan-American Treaty

(EDITOR'S NOTE—When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of the news analyst and not necessarily of this newspaper.)

(Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

THE WAR:

Axis Pact

Germany, Italy and Japan agreed to a pact. It amounted to this: If Russia or the United States interfered in the Anglo-German war, or the Chino-Japanese war, by force of arms, all three of the axis partners would go to work as one. The Kremlin at Moscow did not like the pact. Neither did the state department at Washington.

One school of thought in America said they had known it was coming for a long time, and had been prepared for it. Another school of thought said: No. This school said that our meddling in European and East Asiatic affairs at the same time had forced Germany and Japan into one another's arms. These two schools of U. S. thought did not exactly like each other, and Secretary Hull came in for some pretty severe criticism.

Divided?

The basic military principle, at all times, in all places, is this: Don't divide your forces, and don't fight on two fronts. The Germans lost the last war because of this basic principle, and in this war they have been careful to respect its potentialities. We do not yet have a two-ocean navy, and won't have for several years. What would become of England, if we were off chasing Japan? Some of the military critics said there had been rather inept diplomacy.

AMBASSADOR SABURO KURUSU, Japan's envoy to Germany, who signed the tri-partite consultative pact, linking Germany, Italy and Japan for his government.

There was great talk of wooing Russia. Wooing Russia was poison to the conservative ruling class in Latin America and to some elements in the U. S. And yet, it seemed necessary to woo Russia, as the English had thought for a long time.

Meanwhile, the French had beaten the British navy in an action off Dakar, in West Africa. It raised a storm in England, and did not add to Churchill's prestige. There was talk of another British government purge, and the French Vichy regime gained prestige. Swarms of French aviators peppered British Gibraltar from the air, and the Japs moved increasingly into French Indo-China. Hull wisely embargoed scrapiron destined for Japan, and the general muddle grew apace.

SCRAPIRON:

Great Stuff (!)

What you can do with a ton of scrapiron, fresh from your favorite automobile graveyard, is truly astonishing. The Japanese knew that, and had a word for it. They will sadly miss their American scrapiron, which the U. S. now has embargoed. Some critics said this measure should have been taken back in the redhot summer of 1937 when the Japanese attacked North China and began the endless Chino-Japanese war.

U. S. ordnance officers declared you could make the following with an average ton of scrapiron:

One "75" field gun of the standard French or American type.

One carriage of a "75" gun.

No less than 12 death-squirting machine guns.

Nine 500-pound "demolition" bombs, a la London.

One 2,000 pound, 16-inch, battleship-piercing shell.

In short, what a devilish trade, as the missionaries could have told us over three years ago!

NAMES
. . . in the news

Willkie said that Roosevelt had used his high office to destroy democracy, but Roosevelt said No; that no dictator allowed free elections. Neutrals raised a third point: That no dictator in history ever allowed himself to be called, publicly, a dictator. In short if you can call Roosevelt a dictator and get away with it, then he isn't one.

SOLID?

Maybe

The United States senate did a sensible thing. It finally proceeded to ratify the recent agreement made at Havana de Cuba, whereby America and the other 20 American republics made an out-and-out agreement on diplomatic fundamentals. It is pretty hard to get the 21 to agree about anything, but this time they did, the Argentine (as usual) dragging along a bit behind. Secretary Hull is not liked in the Argentine.

The agreement that our senators ratified specified this: That no non-American country can transfer territory in this hemisphere to any other non-American country. Hence, and thereby, the Germans cannot get ahold of the Dutch or French West Indian colonies. That bit of news seemed to cheer everyone of the 21, including even the Mexicans, Argentines, and other Latins who do not cherish their kindly old Uncle Sam as perhaps they should.

CAMPAIGN:

Tidbits

There was a good deal of comment around New York, coming from (perhaps) catty Republican circles. It amounted to this. It hinted that the state department's fussing with Japan was intended to panic the American voters around election time. These same Republicans, and others, had been predicting an international crisis (of some sort or other) before the election, just in time to tilt the balance. They had said as much, months back. They reminded the American public that both the British and the Nazis had experienced such artful dodges, in the celebrated cases of the forged Zinoviev Letter (British) and the fake Reichstag fire (German).

Democrats did not seem particularily worried about this type of political bickering. Candidate Roosevelt's campaign moved along according to schedule, still out in front.

Willkie

Some of the Republican campaigners and party men were very outspoken along these lines. But Willkie's attack on Roosevelt, as a variety of Munich appeaser, seemed to go too far for many of the critics to stomach. That particular attack seemed to do Willkie more harm than good, and Wendell had to be soft-peddled by his own following. The British empire (aside from Ireland and India) were cheering for Roosevelt to a man. Reports from London showed F. D. R. to be better liked than the king, the queen, or Mr. Winston Churchill. Woodrow Wilson, it will be remembered, had some such brief experience of international popularity back around 1918 when British, French and Italian crowds loved and halo-ed him as a St. George who had slain the Teuton-dragon. Historical minded people remembered that it didn't last, once the 1919 peace conference had actually gotten to work.

Lieut. Col. Lewis B. Hershey (above) has had powers of the director of selective service conferred upon him by an executive order of President Roosevelt. His appointment is effective immediately and will continue pending the appointment of a regular director. 47 years old, Colonel Hershey is a veteran of the last war and has been preparing and studying conscription plans as his assignment in the regular army for the past several years.

WAR NIFTY:

What Price Glory?

One of the British Spitfire fighter planes had a defective motor, so it lagged behind its little mates in the fighting around the pestered London district. This is what the "lame-duck" Spitfire was able to do:

1. It shot down a big German bomber over London.
2. It set on fire another big German bomber.
3. It injured a small German fighter, and probably put it "out."
4. It made a safe landing.

Heads Auxiliary

Here is Mrs. Louis J. Lemstra, Clinton, Indiana, who has just been named president of the American Legion Auxiliary. She has served as national vice president of the auxiliary and as a member of the national executive committee. At present she is serving her second year as chairman of the national rehabilitation committee.

LONDON:

England

London, it was noted, is the veritable nerve-center of England. This is not true of Washington or Berlin or Moscow or Rome. It's true, however, that Paris is the nerve-center of France.

London City contains nearly 25 per cent of the total population of Great Britain. It contains more than 20 per cent of the British industrial workers. It contains about a quarter of all British industry, as well as the British financial, banking, and commercial structure.

London also contains most of the big British oil storage tanks. It contains the Wellington and Spitfire airplane factories, the houses of parliament, and Buckingham palace, as well as the bank of England. It contains a third of the British dockage, and about a third of all British imports come in through London.

In the east end of London, among the squalid slums, is a vast alien population. These people are Italian, Jewish, Lascar, Malay, Indian, shanty Irish, and none too patriotic. They are no fifth column—they are plentifully anti-Nazi. But they are not desirable people to have around in a time of siege. They are much more nervous than the real English, and much less stolid.

In Berlin

Berlin, too, has a vast foreign population. But it is less volatile than that of London. Most of Berlin's aliens are Slavic, and phlegmatic. The real British are calmer than the real Germans, and steadier, but the Berlin aliens can "take it" better than the east-end London aliens, according to war correspondents, neurologists, and social-minded critics.

It has been proven, by this time, that the British are not the world's best under aerial bombardment, though they are very good at it. The Spanish, Chinese, and Russians all exceed the Cockneys in fatalism and adaptability.

MEXICO CITY:

No Mean Town

Mexico City, which is located in a federal district like Washington, D. C., is a wonderful place, with a wonderful climate. It is high up in altitude, and you need blankets at night, and many of us wish we were there.

The population of Mexico City has sprouted like wildfire. Just announced—it's now up to 1,750,000 plus. That's a lot of people for a nation of only about 15,000,000. Rio de Janeiro, the capital of vast Brazil (bigger than the United States), is just a wee bit behind Mexico City. Buenos Aires, capital of the white man's Argentine republic, totals the whopping brand-new figure of 2,300,000 souls.

This means something. It means that Buenos Aires is now the biggest Latin city in the whole world. It means that Mexico City is second, Rio de Janeiro is third, and that Paris—that so-gay Paree—is way down in fourth place. After Paris, tag along Italy's Milan and Rome, Spain's Madrid and Barcelona and Canada's Montreal.

The three big German towns are Berlin, Vienna and Hamburg. The three big Anglo-Saxon towns are New York, London, and Sydney, in far Australia, plus Chicago, Glasgow and Philadelphia. Japanese Tokyo is now the world's third city.

STAGE SCREEN RADIO

By VIRGINIA VALE
(Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

SAYING that the first feature-length film made by the March of Time is important is like saying that the history of our country is important. "The Ramparts We Watch" is living history; the nonprofessionals who appear in the story that is played out against the background of the stirring events of 1914-18 are just people like all of us, thinking and talking as we do now.

Since the film was released in a limited number of cities a new ending has been given it, one so dramatic that the picture is made doubly effective. Despite protests of the German embassy, sections of the Nazi propaganda film, "Feuerentaufe," ("Baptism of Fire") have been incorporated at the end of the picture.

The Nazi film, designed to "soften" countries such as Norway, Holland, Belgium and France which Germany was about to conquer, was seen by the March of Time as a warning of what free countries were up against today. But UFA, German state film trust, imposed impossible demands for censorship. Then it was learned that the British government had confiscated English language copies of the film at Bermuda. Full title to the film was transferred by the British government to the March of Time.

In this German film, a Stuka bomber dives on a railroad station—and you seem to be in it. Warsaw is razed, the German war machine moves relentlessly. Your daily newspaper's headlines come alive for you.

Jeanette Nolan was the victim of one of the worst things that can happen to a radio actress, the other day. Of course, the worst thing is missing a broadcast. The next worst is an attack of hiccoughs.

Jeanette Nolan

It happened to Jeanette just before she was to broadcast on the Court of Missing Heirs. She drank water. She held her breath. People beat her on the back. And still she hiccoughed.

Finally Director John Loveton had an inspiration. "Just heard that John didn't show up for rehearsals at 'Meet Mr. Meek,'" he remarked casually. By John he meant John McIntyre, Jeanette's husband. She was so frightened that she forgot her hiccoughs.

The American Federation of Labor had decided tentatively to produce a motion picture based on the life of the great labor leader, Samuel Gompers, who for many years headed the A. F. of L. Paul Muni is slated for the leading role. It is said that Mr. Muni will be paid $25,000 for his work. The picture will in all probability be made in New York city.

Most of the big stars of Hollywood are married or past 35, but among those who will qualify for the draft are John Howard, Orson Welles, Broderick Crawford, James Stewart, Lew Ayres, John Carroll, William Holden, Bob Preston, Eddie Albert, Jeffrey Lynn and Dennis O'Keefe. Wayne Morris still doesn't know whether he's married or divorced.

Thursday night will soon become more important than ever so far as radio is concerned. You can hear Fred Waring, "Good News," the Aldrich Family, Bing Crosby, Rudy Vallee, and after October 10 Westinghouse's Musical Americana will join the ranks.

How would you like to stand by and see somebody fireproofing the clothes that you were going to wear a little later? That's what happened to Ray Milland, William Holden and Phil Brown, of Paramount's "I Wanted Wings," recently. The picture is being filmed at the government flying field at San Antonio. Brown, a flying cadet, crashes in a basic training plane, and the other two rush in and pull him from the flaming wreckage.

ODDS AND ENDS

¶ The Record Players, a company of actors headed by Wendell Holmes (of radio's "Big Sister" and "Myrt and Marge,") is being formed to record the great plays of the ages and distribute them to schools and cultural groups throughout the nation. At first a limited number of recorded plays in album form will be distributed free. Holmes' idea is to make the world's famous plays available to every home or group having a phonograph, and to open a new field for actors and actresses.

HOW TO SEW
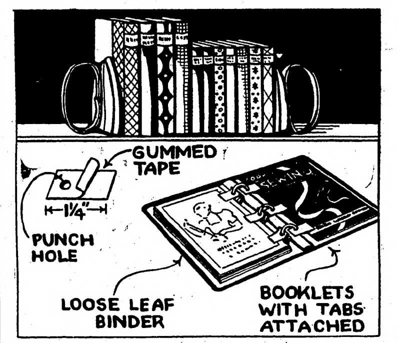
by Ruth Wyeth Spears



WHENEVER I make a trip to New England I like to bring back something to remind me that there have been about 15 generations of homemakers in America since John Alden and Priscilla set up housekeeping in Plymouth colony. This time my treasure was the pair of ancient flat irons you see here in use as book ends for my work-room library of loose leaf binders. Setting them up reminded me that I have been wanting to show you my method of fastening booklets in ring binders.

I use ¾-inch wide gummed tape. Pieces 2½-inches long are folded in half. The fold end is stuck together and punched. These tabs are placed on the rings of the binder and booklet stuck between the open ends. We are inveterate booklet collectors on all sort of subjects. Frequently we cover binders with fabrics or interesting papers so they look attractive on the shelves in any room.

Proposed Amendment to the Constitution of Minnesota

To be submitted at 1940 General Election

STATE OF MINNESOTA
LEGAL DEPARTMENT

J. A. A. BURNQUIST
Attorney General

St. Paul, Minnesota,
February 5, 1940

Honorable Mike Holm,
Secretary of State,

Dear Sir:

In compliance with the provisions of Mason's Minnesota Statutes of 1927, Section 46, I make this statement of the purpose and effect of the amendment proposed to the constitution of Minnesota to be voted on at the November 5, 1940 general election in accordance with Laws 1939, Chapter 447.

PROPOSED AMENDMENT

By the enactment of Laws 1939, Chapter 447, the legislature has proposed an amendment to Section 36 of Article 4 of the constitution. This section now reads as follows:

"Section 36. Any city or village in this state may frame a charter for its own government as a city consistent with and subject to the laws of this state, as follows: The legislature shall provide, under such restrictions as it deems proper, for a board of fifteen freeholders, who shall be and for the past five years shall have been qualified voters thereof, to be appointed by the district judges of the judicial district in which the city or village is situated, as the legislature may determine, for a term in no event to exceed six years, which board shall, within six months after its appointment, return to the chief magistrate of said city or village a draft of said charter, signed by the members of said board, or a majority thereof. Such charter shall be submitted to the qualified voters of such city or village at the next election thereafter, and if four-sevenths of the qualified voters voting at such election shall ratify the same it shall, at the end of thirty days thereafter, become the charter of such city or village as a city, and supersede any existing charter and amendments thereof; Provided, that in cities having patrol limits now established, such charter shall require a three-fourths majority vote of the qualified voters voting at such election to change the patrol limits now established. Before any city shall incorporate under this act the legislature shall prescribe by law the general limits within which such charter shall be framed. Duplicate certificates shall be made setting forth the charter proposed and its ratification, which shall be signed by the chief magistrate of said city or village and authenticated by its corporate seal. One of said certificates shall be deposited in the office of the secretary of state, and the other, after being recorded in the office of the register of deeds for the county in which such city or village lies, shall be deposited among the archives of such city or village, and all courts shall take judicial notice thereof. Such charter so deposited may be amended by proposal therefor made by a board of fifteen commissioners aforesaid, published for at least thirty days in three newspapers of general circulation in such city or village, and accepted by three-fifths of the qualified voters of such city or village voting at the next election and not otherwise; but such charter shall always be in harmony with and subject to the constitution and laws of the state of Minnesota. The legislature may prescribe the duties of the commission relative to submitting amendments of charter to the vote of the people, and shall provide that upon application of five per cent of the legal voters of any such city or village, by written petition, such commission shall submit to the vote of the people proposed amendments to such charter set forth in said petition. The board of freeholders above provided for shall be permanent, and all the vacancies by death, disability to perform duties, resignation or removal from the corporate limits, or expiration of term of office, shall be filled by appointment in the same manner as the original board was created, and said board shall always contain its full complement of members. It shall be a feature of all such charters that there shall be provided, among other things, for a mayor or chief magistrate, and a legislative body of either one or two houses; if of two houses, at least one of them shall be elected by general vote of the electors. In submitting any such charter or amendment thereto to the qualified voters of such city or village any alternate section or article may be presented for the choice of the voters, and may be voted on separately without prejudice to other articles or sections of the charter or any amendments thereto. The legislature may provide general laws relating to affairs of cities, the application of which may be limited to cities of over fifty thousand inhabitants, or to cities of fifty and not less than twenty thousand inhabitants, or to cities of twenty and not less than ten thousand inhabitants, or to cities of ten thousand inhabitants or less, which shall apply equally to all such cities of either class, and which shall be paramount while in force to the provisions relating to the same matter included in the local charter herein provided for. But no local charter, provision or ordinance passed thereunder shall supersede any general law of the state defining or punishing crimes or misdemeanors."

If amended as proposed by the legislature, this section will read as follows:

"Section 36. Any city or village in this state may frame a charter for its own government as a city consistent with and subject to the laws of this state, as follows: The legislature shall provide, under such restrictions as it deems proper, for a board of fifteen freeholders, who shall be and for the past five years shall have been qualified voters thereof, to be appointed by the district judges of the judicial district in which the city or village is situated, as the legislature may determine, for a term in no event to exceed six years, which board shall, within six months after its appointment, return to the chief magistrate of said city or village a draft of said charter, signed by the members of said board, or a majority thereof. Such charter shall be submitted to the qualified voters of such city or village at the next election thereafter, and if four-sevenths of the qualified voters voting at such election shall ratify the same it shall, at the end of thirty days thereafter, become the charter of such city or village as a city, and supersede any existing charter and amendments thereof: Provided, that in cities having patrol limits now established, such charter shall require a three-fourths majority vote of the qualified voters at such election to change the patrol limits now established. Before any city shall incorporate under this act the legislature shall prescribe by law the general limits within which such charter shall be framed. Duplicate certificates shall be made setting forth the charter proposed and its ratification, which shall be signed by the chief magistrate of said city or village and authenticated by its corporate seal. One of said certificates shall be deposited in the office of the secretary of state, and the other, after being recorded in the office of the register of deeds for the county in which such city or village lies, shall be deposited among the archives of such city or village, and all courts shall take judicial notice thereof. Such charter so deposited may be amended by proposal therefor made by a board of fifteen commissioners aforesaid, published for at least once each week for four successive weeks in a legal newspaper of general circulation in such city or village and accepted by three-fifths of the qualified voters of such city or village voting at the next election and not otherwise; but such charter shall always be in harmony with and subject to the constitution and laws of the state of Minnesota. The legislature may prescribe the duties of the commission relative to submitting amendments of charter to the vote of the people, and shall provide that upon application of five per cent of the legal voters of any such city or village, by written petition, such commission shall submit to the vote of the people proposed amendments to such charter set forth in said petition. The board of freeholders above provided for shall be permanent, and all the vacancies by death, disability to perform duties, resignation or removal from the corporate limits, or expiration of term of office, shall be filled by appointment in the same manner as the original board was created, and said board shall always contain its full complement of members. It shall be a feature of all such charters that there shall be provided, among other things, for a mayor or chief magistrate, and a legislative body of either one or two houses; if of two houses, at least one of them shall be elected by general vote of the electors. In submitting any such charter or amendment thereto to the qualified voters of such city or village any alternate section or article may be presented for the choice of the voters, and may be voted on separately without prejudice to other articles or sections of the charter or any amendments thereto. The legislature may provide general laws relating to affairs of cities, the application of which may be limited to cities of over fifty thousand inhabitants, or to cities of fifty and not less than twenty thousand inhabitants, or to cities of twenty and not less than ten thousand inhabitants or less, which shall apply equally to all such cities of either class, and which shall be paramount while in force to the provisions relating to the same matter included in the local charter herein provided for. But no local charter, provision or ordinance passed thereunder shall supersede any general law of the state defining or punishing crimes or misdemeanors."

Purpose and Effect

The purpose and effect of the proposed amendment is to require publication of amendments to home rule charters once each week for four (4) successive weeks in a legal newspaper of general circulation in such city or village instead of publication in three (3) newspapers of general circulation in such city or village for at least thirty (30) days as now required.

There are many cities and villages which do not have three local newspapers. In such cases, under the present provision, publication must be made in newspapers printed elsewhere and circulating locally. If the proposed amendment is adopted, publication will be required in only one qualified newspaper, thereby reducing the difficulty and expense of amending home rule charters.

Very truly yours,
J. A. A. BURNQUIST,
Attorney General.

Bernard B. Brett 1869-1940

We hereby take the liberty of reprinting a fine editorial which the Warren Sheaf carried in the Oct. 9 issue about Bernard Brett Judge of Probate who passed away two weeks ago.

In the passing of Judge B. B. Brett, Marshall county has not only lost a most efficient county officer, but also one of its most outstanding civic as well as political leaders. Judge Brett is the true founder of the Marshall County Historical Society, an organization which, as its name implies, is dedicated to the collection and preservation of historical lore and fact since the beginning of the county. The organization has had an admirable beginning and it should be perpetuated until time immemorial. Then too, the judge has been serving as the head of the Marshall County Public Health association, which group has done much towards promoting better health standards in the eradication of tuberculosis.

As a part of the duties of the office he has so admirably filled for approximately 12 years, Judge Brett has served as judge of the Juvenile court. He served this position in a firm, but sympathetic manner and there are dozens of young men in our county who will always remember what Judge Brett did to aid them in becoming respectable citizens of the community.

Marshall county is a better place to live in through Judge Brett's deeds and influence. He will be missed!

Annual Dorcas Auction

Prize Day & Smoker Oct. 26

On Saturday, October 26th Holt's Prize Day and Smoker, sponsored by the local business men, will provide a big day of events and attractions for the large crowd expected to turn out for the day, now that most of the fall work is completed and the busy season has slackened.

Interest in the day is already wide-spread and special posters were printed this week announcing specialities and attractions for the afternoon and evening. Nothing sensational in the line of a program has been planned, but there will be several contests in which community people will be invited to participate.

As a part of the program for the evening at the Smoker it is planned to have an amateur contest. This always creates a lot of fun for all and we hope that local talent will come in and help out on this.

The speakers for the day will be Colvin G. Butler, Fergus Falls, Minn., who will speak in the afternoon at 2 p. m. and Oscar R. Knutson, Warren, who will speak in the evening.

At 4 o'clock the biggest event of the day will be held when those who have been getting merchandise tickets from local business places will have a chance to take part in the big cash drawing in which $50.00 in cash will be given away to the lucky ticket holders.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Nohre entertained Circle 4 of the Nazareth Ladies Aid at their home last Friday afternoon. A very large crowd attended. Out of town guests were; Mrs. Carl Sorenson, Mrs. Stanley Sorenson and children, Mrs. Moen and Mrs. Olaf Tollefsrud from Newfolden, and Esther and Harriet Lufkin from Thief River Falls.

Appointed Deputy Sheriff

Arthur B. Johnson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Johnson of McCrea township, was named deputy sheriff of Marshall county last Wednesday, the appointment being made by Sheriff O. C. Toftner. He succeeds Marshall Kays who resigned recently to accept a position as a special agent with the Soo Line in Minneapolis. Mr. Johnson commenced his official work Thursday.

The new deputy is a young man 26 years of age. After attending schools in Warren, he entered Gustavus Adolphus college at St. Peter from which institution he was graduated several years ago. Since completing his college training, he has been associated with his father in farming operations.

—Warren Sheaf

The following members of Nazareth Ladies Aid attended the W. M. F. at Ross on Wednesday: Mrs. O. Backlund, Mrs. Johnny Nelson, Mrs. L. Monson, Mrs. H. Moberg, Mrs. John Ness Martha Holst and Rev. and Mrs. Hanson. They reported a very fine meeting was held.

Mrs. A. W. Carlson spent the week end at Concordia College, Moorhead, where she attended Homecoming activities there. Mr. Carlson drove down there Saturday to attend the football game.

WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS By Roger Shaw

German Troops March Into Rumania To Protect Oil Supply From British; U. S. Army Tanks Delivered to Canada; Chamberlain Leaves Britain's Cabinet

(EDITOR'S NOTE—When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of the news analyst and not necessarily of this newspaper.)

(Released by Western Newspaper Union.

THE WAR:
Whither, Hitler?

It really looked as if the German invasion of England was called off for the season. The fogs were getting worse, and the channel was getting stormier. The German flatboats along the Franco-Flemish coastline had taken an awful hammering from the royal air force, and that seemed to be that.

The low-down was simply this: The Germans had gone through France, like a knife through a hunk of over-ripe cheese. It surprised everybody, including the Germans themselves. They had expected victory—but only after a much harder fight than they got. Hence, when they landed on the French and Flemish coasts, they were far, far ahead of schedule, and totally unprepared for any proper invasion of the British isles. The net result has been the aerial duel that has raged all over western Europe. The hammer of Thor is battering the British anvil, but to what ultimate purpose, none can tell.

SIR JOHN ANDERSON

A former Home Secretary and Minister of Home Security, Sir John succeeded Neville Chamberlain as Lord President of the Council.

But if invasion of England was not under way, Hitler's troops were by no means idle. For from Bucharest came word that German troops had entered Rumania. Berlin sources confirmed this news and readily explained the purpose of the infiltration. They said that oil and gasoline supplies are essential to the Nazi war machine and that they had heard rumors of an English plot to sabotage these supplies.

Rumania's government, now under control of the dictator Ion Antonescu, had earlier charged that British oil men with interests in Rumania had plotted to blow up oil fields. There was some indication, too, that the Nazi soldiers would be used in training Rumanian troops and would also assist in building a large naval and air base on the Black sea.

Italo

Meanwhile, the Italians had bogged down in Egypt. They had invaded the land of the Pharos from their own Lybian colony, next door, and were proceeding along the coast. Their ultimate objective was the Suez canal, England's trap-door at the eastern end of the Mediterranean. But, it appears, the Italians did not do so well. The Germans began to take over the direction of the Egyptian campaign. It was rumored that the Nazis would "winter in Egypt," while the Goering flying circus continued to make Hitler-hash out of London. It was believed that if the Germans really went to work in Egypt, they would perhaps clean up the place, and the Suez canal, too. Egypt itself, supposedly an English ally, like Turkey, another English ally, continued to be a neutral.

NEVILLE:
Chamberlain

Neville Chamberlain finally left the British cabinet. Winston Churchill had taken away his premiership last May, but Chamberlain's pale ghost had lingered on in the cabinet. Then Chamberlain had a serious operation, for an intestinal obstruction, and his health visibly slowed up after that. His retirement had been expected for some time. Chamberlain was also the official leader of the powerful Conservative party, which has a heavy majority in parliament. This had been an added tower of strength to the so-called "great appeaser."

Chamberlain and Churchill had always been unfriendly. The former was a typical Nineteenth-century Victorian (rather of the tory type) while the other tends to be a dashing, reckless cross between the Eighteenth and the Twentieth centuries (more the aristo-democratic liberal type). Churchill used to call Chamberlain (so the story goes) —"the undertaker from Birmingham."

Labor

Ernest Bevins, a radical Labor man, was admitted to the inner British war cabinet. Bevins had been the engineering brain behind the terrific British general strike, back in 1926, which very nearly succeeded. His executive, driving genius has been an important factor in the present war, and people spoke of him as Churchill's future successor. If Bevins did actually succeed Churchill, it would mean some sort of social revolution in England, and the Tories realize this. But Labor is getting more and more of its members into the British government, Hugh Dalton and Herbert Morrison being two of the other "pink" up-and-comers.

ASIA:
Trouble Ahead?

Events in the Orient worried U. S. State Department officials to the point of informing consulates in China, Manchukuo, French-Indo-China and Japan, that American citizens within those territories should return to this country as soon as possible. Especial emphasis was placed on the early departure of all women and children and men in non-essential posts.

Approximately 9,000 white Americans live within the affected zone, plus some 2,000 Chinese-Americans and Japanese-Americans.

DEFENSE:
Tanking

There was a new angle to national defense, which evoked violent differences of opinion. The Canadian army received no less than 24 old American tanks, which were shipped over on flat-cars, to Camp Borden, Ontario. The Canadians have gotten hold of no less than 200 Yankee "combat cars," as tanks are called officially. These tanks are six-tonners, lightly armed, and built in the period of 1918-21.

MAJ.-GEN. EDMUND DALEY

In charge of Uncle Sam's important Caribbean "Gibraltar" is Edmund L. Daley, recently elevated to the rank of major general in charge of the department of Puerto Rico. War in Europe and developments about the Caribbean nations has put this vital gateway to the Panama canal on a virtual war footing. Daley formerly commanded the coast artillery in New England.

Most of the German tanks are Suhls, made in central Thuringia. It was an old Jewish concern. The French tanks were chiefly Renaults, the Italian tanks were Fiats, and the British machines (mostly lost at Dunkirk) were products of the Birmingham Small Arms company, commonly known as B. S. A. A large part of the new American tankage will be Chrysler-builts. Russian tanks are B. S. A.'s, or else come from the Red Putilov works in Leningrad.

RUSSIA:
What Now?

Russia was of great interest for several reasons. One reason was this: It looked as if the Washingtonian state department would be forced to woo the Soviets, due to the squabblings with Japan in the Far East, and the Jap-German axis agreement. This was an all-round headache for a large and influential section of the American people, both religious and business-minded.

CAMPAIGN:
Roughage

One metal wastepaper basket
Three eggs
Melons and/or tomatoes
One stone, via a dining-car window.

These were the tributes of certain enthusiastic New Dealers to Willkie, who was barn-storming around in Michigan. Detroit, especially, proved itself Rooseveltian, tough, and exuberant in its proletarian fervor, and in its roughhouse tactics.

Mr. Roosevelt and Boss Flynn, the Democratic campaign manager, were quick to repudiate such behavior, and they were courteous and correct in their sporting attitude. But it showed a significant thing, alas and alack. The wave of unthinking brutality which is sweeping the world, has its echoes even in the United States. The Detroit incidents seemed un-American, but they did not seem un-totalitarian, somehow. Willkie took the matter in a spirit of good humor.

Sidelight

This sidelight might well be labelled "ouch." It hurt. Three of the Michigan egg-throwers contra Willkie, were young lads of 15 or 16. They came from Pontiac, and they evidently took after big chief Pontiac, who panicked plenty of Yankees in his time. The juvenile court judge sentenced the three laddies to "a good old-fashioned whipping." Juvenile authorities offered to do the triple-job, but the stoical parents volunteered to do it themselves. Then the guilty were to write apologies, to be read in person before the student body of the Pontiac high school. Just how hard the parents beat the offspring, nobody seemed to know. Two other boys, implicated in the great eggy putsch, escaped the corporal punishment of the luckless trio afore mentioned.

NAZI:
Nags

German soldiers and German farmers are reported as having a very tough time in teaching the dulcet Teuton tongue to draft horses, requisitioned from France, Poland, Belgium and the Netherlands. There are a great many of these, ranging from the elephantine percherons of Belgium and northern France, to the wiry little ponies of the flat Polish steppes. The huge percherons, by the way, are the direct descendants of the old-time steeds of medieval knights. They can't gallop; they can only trot.

German grammar, always intricate, according to foreign correspondents, is giving the kidnaped horses special trouble. Dutch and French grammar is much simpler.

MISCELLANY:

H. G. Wells came over for a visit. We had already had Bertrand, Earl of Russell, Sir Norman Angell, and Sir George Paish, not to mention Capt. Alfred Duff Cooper and Lady Diana Manners.

None of these gentlemen agreed about anything. H. G., for instance, hoped the United States would stay out of the war. He also denounced the religious Lord Halifax (a semi-mystic with one arm) as "the quintessence of all that England should be afraid of." Lord Halifax is the British foreign minister, and a super-aristocrat, while Wells is inclined to the plebeian side, genius or no genius.

Wells said London was betting 10 to 1 against a German invasion in 1940. Like a good many others, he disapproved of the evacuation of children to the New world. He was pleased by the Chamberlain ouster. He added that Hitler was at the end of his "tether." He described some of the German pilots shot down over England, as merely boy-gangsters, and hardly trained aviators at all. The Wellsian freedom of speech was a happy augur of British democracy, even under the Churchill dictatorship.

NAMES
. . . in the news

¶ Admiral Sir Edward Ratcliffe Garth Russell Evans, a Welshman, and a great naval hero of the first World war, became housing and shelter dictator of London, where German air raids have made housing and shelter vital things. Evans has also been president of Aberdeen university, and top-commander of the Australian navy.

'Miss America'

PATTERN DEPARTMENT
SEWING CIRCLE

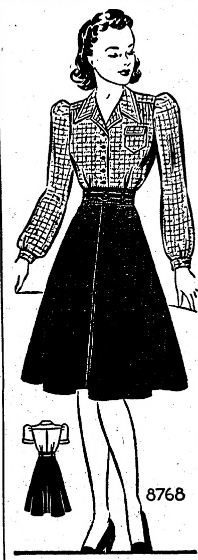
THIS type of two-piecer will be much in evidence on every campus this coming semester. The tailored blouse has the new, larger collar with long points that fits correctly over your suit revers. It's made with action back, and has link cuffs like the boy friend's. The skirt of design No. 8768 is smartly flaring and tailored, and you should wear a narrow leather belt with it.

For the blouse, flat crepe, washable flannel, spun rayon and linen are smart; for the skirt, tweed, flannel, serge or corduroy. You'll be amazed to see how easily both halves of this two-piecer tailor, even if you're no expert. Your pattern includes a step-by-step sew chart.



* * *

Pattern No. 8768 is designed for sizes 12, 14, 16, 18 and 20. Size 14 requires 2 yards of 39-inch material without nap for short-sleeved blouse; 2¼ yards for long-sleeved; 1⅞ yards of 54-inch material without nap for straight skirt; 2 yards for bias. Send order to:

Strange Facts
Roving Banks
Prison Board Bill
Odd Sugar Sources

¶ About a century ago when some states allowed banks to move from town to town at will, many went into hiding so their notes could not be presented for redemption in gold. One of them, the Bank of Morocco, was found by detectives, after a year's search, in a cabin in a dense Indiana forest.

¶ Although Michigan enacted a law in 1935 requiring prisoners who are financially able to pay for their maintenance (about a dollar a day) the state has only been able to collect this payment from two of the approximate 20,000 persons who have passed in and out of its prisons during this time.

¶ One of the strangest cases of human albinism occurred in Africa some years ago. A Negro couple had three white and three black children, born in the following order—two consecutive black boys, two consecutive white girls, one black girl and one white boy.

¶ Of the hundreds of different kinds of sugars, some of which are bitter and poisonous, many are made from such odd substances as, seaweed, cottonmeal, chicory, dahlias, artichokes and ivory nuts. —Collier's.

Secret of Greatness

It is easy in the world to live after the world's opinion; it is easy in solitude to live after our own; but the great man is he who in the midst of the crowd keeps with perfect sweetness the independence of solitude.—Ralph Waldo Emerson.

buys famous BAYER ASPIRIN's Fast relief from muscular pains

Take 2 Bayer Aspirin Tablets with a glass of water.

The quick modern way to ease headache, and neuritic and rheumatic pain.

We feature the fact that Bayer Aspirin costs only 1c a tablet, to drive home the point that there's no reason even for the most budget-minded person to accept anything less than genuine fast-acting Bayer Aspirin.

For at the most, it costs but a few pennies to get hours of relief from the pains of neuritis, rheumatism or headache . . . and get it with the speedy action for which Bayer Aspirin is world famous.

Try this way once and you'll know almost instantly why people everywhere praise it. It has rapidly replaced expensive "pain remedies" in thousands of cases. Ask for genuine "Bayer Aspirin" by its full name when you buy . . . never ask for "aspirin" alone.

WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS By Roger Shaw

German Troops March Into Rumania To Protect Oil Supply From British; U. S. Army Tanks Delivered to Canada; Chamberlain Leaves Britain's Cabinet

(EDITOR'S NOTE—When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of the news analyst and not necessarily of this newspaper.)

Released by Western Newspaper Union.

THE WAR:

Whither, Hitler?

It really looked as if the German invasion of England was called off for the season. The fogs were getting worse, and the channel was getting stormier. The German flatboats along the Franco-Flemish coastline had taken an awful hammering from the royal air force, and that seemed to be that.

The low-down was simply this: The Germans had gone through France, like a knife through a hunk of over-ripe cheese. It surprised everybody, including the Germans themselves. They had expected victory—but only after a much harder fight than they got. Hence, when they landed on the French and Flemish coasts, they were far, far ahead of schedule, and totally unprepared for any proper invasion of the British isles. The net result has been the aerial duel that has raged all over western Europe. The hammer of Thor is battering the British anvil, but to what ultimate purpose, none can tell.

SIR JOHN ANDERSON

A former Home Secretary and Minister of Home Security, Sir John succeeded Neville Chamberlain as Lord President of the Council.

But if invasion of England was not under way, Hitler's troops were by no means idle. For from Bucharest came word that German troops had entered Rumania. Berlin sources confirmed this news and readily explained the purpose of the infiltration. They said that oil and gasoline supplies are essential to the Nazi war machine and that they had heard rumors of an English plot to sabotage these supplies.

Rumania's government, now under control of the dictator Ion Antonescu, had earlier charged that British oil men with interests in Rumania had plotted to blow up oil fields. There was some indication, too, that the Nazi soldiers would be used in training Rumanian troops and would also assist in building a large naval and air base on the Black sea.

Italo

Meanwhile, the Italians had bogged down in Egypt. They had invaded the land of the Pharos from their own Lybian colony, next door, and were proceeding along the coast. Their ultimate objective was the Suez canal, England's trap-door at the eastern end of the Mediterranean. But, it appears, the Italians did not do so well. The Germans began to take over the direction of the Egyptian campaign. It was rumored that the Nazis would "winter in Egypt," while the Goering flying circus continued to make Hitler-hash out of London. It was believed that if the Germans really went to work in Egypt, they would perhaps clean up the place, and the Suez canal, too. Egypt itself, supposedly an English ally, like Turkey, another English ally, continued to be a neutral.

NEVILLE:

Chamberlain

Neville Chamberlain finally left the British cabinet. Winston Churchill had taken away his premiership last May, but Chamberlain's pale ghost had lingered on in the cabinet. Then Chamberlain had a serious operation, for an intestinal obstruction, and his health visibly slowed up after that. His retirement had been expected for some time. Chamberlain was also the official leader of the powerful Conservative party, which has a heavy majority in parliament. This had been an added tower of strength to the so-called "great appeaser."

Chamberlain and Churchill had always been unfriendly. The former was a typical Nineteenth-century Victorian (rather of the tory type) while the other tends to be a dashing, reckless cross between the Eighteenth and the Twentieth centuries (more the aristo-democratic liberal type). Churchill used to call Chamberlain (so the story goes)—"the undertaker from Birmingham."

Labor

Ernest Bevins, a radical Labor man, was admitted to the inner British war cabinet. Bevins had been the engineering brain behind the terrific British general strike, back in 1926, which very nearly succeeded. His executive, driving genius has been an important factor in the present war, and people spoke of him as Churchill's future successor. If Bevins did actually succeed Churchill, it would mean some sort of social revolution in England, and the Tories realize this. But Labor is getting more and more of its members into the British government, Hugh Dalton and Herbert Morrison being two of the other "pink" up-and-comers.

NAMES

. . . in the news

¶ Admiral Sir Edward Ratcliffe Garth Russell Evans, a Welshman, and a great naval hero of the first World war, became housing and shelter dictator of London, where German air raids have made housing and shelter vital things. Evans has also been president of Aberdeen university, and top-commander of the Australian navy.

ASIA:

Trouble Ahead?

Events in the Orient worried U. S. State Department officials to the point of informing consulates in China, Manchukuo, French-Indo-China and Japan, that American citizens within those territories should return to this country as soon as possible. Especial emphasis was placed on the early departure of all women and children and men in non-essential posts.

Approximately 9,000 white Americans live within the affected zone, plus some 2,000 Chinese-Americans and Japanese-Americans.

DEFENSE:

Tanking

There was a new angle to national defense, which evoked violent differences of opinion. The Canadian army received no less than 24 old American tanks, which were shipped over on flat-cars, to Camp Borden, Ontario. The Canadians have gotten hold of no less than 200 Yankee "combat cars," as tanks are called officially. These tanks are six-tonners, lightly armed, and built in the period of 1918-21.

MAJ.-GEN. EDMUND DALEY

In charge of Uncle Sam's important Caribbean "Gibraltar" is Edmund L. Daley, recently elevated to the rank of major general in charge of the department of Puerto Rico. War in Europe and developments about the Caribbean nations has put this vital gateway to the Panama canal on a virtual war footing. Daley formerly commanded the coast artillery in New England.

Most of the German tanks are Suhls, made in central Thuringia. It was an old Jewish concern. The French tanks were chiefly Renaults, the Italian tanks were Fiats, and the British machines (mostly lost at Dunkirk) were products of the Birmingham Small Arms company, commonly known as B. S. A. A large part of the new American tankage will be Chrysler-builts. Russian tanks are B. S. A.'s, or else come from the Red Putilov works in Leningrad.

RUSSIA:

What Now?

Russia was of great interest for several reasons. One reason was this: It looked as if the Washingtonian state department would be forced to woo the Soviets, due to the squabblings with Japan in the Far East, and the Jap-German axis agreement. This was an all-round headache for a large and influential section of the American people, both religious and business-minded.

'Miss America'

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J.—Posing modestly before some of the 600 dozen prize eggs at the Northeaster Poultry Producers convention here, is the "Miss America" of the fowl world. The biddy is a Rhode Island Red who scored 91.43 points in the judging. Producing 340 eggs in 51 weeks, "Miss America" topped all comers, from all sections of the United States. She is owned by E. B. Parmenter of Franklin, Mass.

CAMPAIGN:

Roughage

One metal wastepaper basket
Three eggs
Melons and/or tomatoes
One stone, via a dining-car window.

These were the tributes of certain enthusiastic New Dealers to Willkie, who was barn-storming around in Michigan. Detroit, especially, proved itself Rooseveltian, tough, and exuberant in its proletarian fervor, and in its roughhouse tactics.

Mr. Roosevelt and Boss Flynn, the Democratic campaign manager, were quick to repudiate such behavior, and they were courteous and correct in their sporting attitude. But it showed a significant thing, alas and alack. The wave of unthinking brutality which is sweeping the world, has its echoes even in the United States. The Detroit incidents seemed un-American, but they did not seem un-totalitarian, somehow. Willkie took the matter in a spirit of good humor.

Sidelight

This sidelight might well be labelled "ouch." It hurt. Three of the Michigan egg-throwers contra Willkie, were young lads of 15 or 16. They came from Pontiac, and they evidently took after big chief Pontiac, who panicked plenty of Yankees in his time. The juvenile court judge sentenced the three laddies to "a good old-fashioned whipping." Juvenile authorities offered to do the triple-job, but the stoical parents volunteered to do it themselves. Then the guilty were to write apologies, to be read in person before the student body of the Pontiac high school. Just how hard the parents beat the offspring, nobody seemed to know. Two other boys, implicated in the great eggy putsch, escaped the corporal punishment of the luckless trio afore mentioned.

NAZI:

Nags

German soldiers and German farmers are reported as having a very tough time in teaching the dulcet Teuton tongue to draft horses, requisitioned from France, Poland, Belgium and the Netherlands. There are a great many of these, ranging from the elephantine percherons of Belgium and northern France, to the wiry little ponies of the flat Polish steppes. The huge percherons, by the way, are the direct descendants of the old-time steeds of medieval knights. They can't gallop; they can only trot.

German grammar, always intricate, according to foreign correspondents, is giving the kidnaped horses special trouble. Dutch and French grammar is much simpler.

MISCELLANY:

H. G. Wells came over for a visit. We had already had Bertrand, Earl of Russell, Sir Norman Angell, and Sir George Paish, not to mention Capt. Alfred Duff Cooper and Lady Diana Manners.

None of these gentlemen agreed about anything. H. G., for instance, hoped the United States would stay out of the war. He also denounced the religious Lord Halifax (a semi-mystic with one arm) as "the quintessence of all that England should be afraid of." Lord Halifax is the British foreign minister, and a super-aristocrat, while Wells is inclined to the plebeian side, genius or no genius.

Wells said London was betting 10 to 1 against a German invasion in 1940. Like a good many others, he disapproved of the evacuation of children to the New world. He was pleased by the Chamberlain ouster. He added that Hitler was at the end of his "tether." He described some of the German pilots shot down over England, as merely boy-gangsters, and hardly trained aviators at all. The Wellsian freedom of speech was a happy augur of British democracy, even under the Churchill dictatorship.

PATTERN DEPARTMENT

SEWING CIRCLE

THIS type of two-piecer will be much in evidence on every campus this coming semester. The tailored blouse has the new, larger collar with long points that fits correctly over your suit revers. It's made with action back, and has link cuffs like the boy friend's. The skirt of design No. 8768 is smartly flaring and tailored, and you should wear a narrow leather belt with it.

For the blouse, flat crepe, washable flannel, spun rayon and linen are smart; for the skirt, tweed, flannel, serge or corduroy. You'll be amazed to see how easily both halves of this two-piecer tailor, even if you're no expert. Your pattern includes a step-by-step sew chart.

* * *

Pattern No. 8768 is designed for sizes 12, 14, 16, 18 and 20. Size 14 requires 2 yards of 39-inch material without nap for short-sleeved blouse; 2¼ yards for long-sleeved; 1⅞ yards of 54-inch material without nap for straight skirt; 2 yards for bias. Send order to:

Strange Facts

! Roving Banks
Prison Board Bill
Odd Sugar Sources !

¶ About a century ago when some states allowed banks to move from town to town at will, many went into hiding so their notes could not be presented for redemption in gold. One of them, the Bank of Morocco, was found by detectives, after a year's search, in a cabin in a dense Indiana forest.

¶ Although Michigan enacted a law in 1935 requiring prisoners who are financially able to pay for their maintenance (about a dollar a day) the state has only been able to collect this payment from two of the approximate 20,000 persons who have passed in and out of its prisons during this time.

¶ One of the strangest cases of human albinism occurred in Africa some years ago. A Negro couple had three white and three black children, born in the following order—two consecutive black boys, two consecutive white girls, one black girl and one white boy.

¶ Of the hundreds of different kinds of sugars, some of which are bitter and poisonous, many are made from such odd substances as seaweed, cottonmeal, chicory, dahlias, artichokes and ivory nuts. —Collier's.

Secret of Greatness

It is easy in the world to live after the world's opinion; it is easy in solitude to live after our own; but the great man is he who in the midst of the crowd keeps with perfect sweetness the independence of solitude.—Ralph Waldo Emerson.

Why Let Yourself Get Constipated?

Why endure those dull headachy days due to constipation, plus the inevitable trips to the medicine chest, if you can avoid both by getting at the cause of the trouble?

If your constipation, like that of millions, is due to lack of "bulk" in the diet, the "better way" is to eat Kellogg's All-Bran. This crunchy toasted breakfast cereal is the ounce of prevention that's worth a pound of emergency relief. It helps you not only to get regular but to keep regular, day after day and month after month, by the pleasantest means you ever knew.

Eat Kellogg's All-Bran regularly, drink plenty of water, and see if you don't forget all about constipation. Made by Kellogg's in Battle Creek. If your condition is chronic, it is wise to consult a physician.

ONE day there came a letter with a rough sketch of the old rocker at the upper right. The last line of the letter said, "I will remove the rockers if you say so, Mrs. Spears, but I would like to keep them." Well, why not? There is nothing smarter now than things Victorian. Old oil lamps with flowered globes are being wired for electricity so, why not redesign this rocker along simple lines? Cover it with plain rep in a nice shade of blue perhaps, and give it a matching foot stool and a hem stitched linen chair set all tricked out in tassels?

Here is the result of that idea and the diagram shows all the steps that led up to it. Almost any old chair may be transformed with a slip cover if a little work is done first to build out or to saw off projections. Padding is also important, and open spaces under arms may be covered by stretching the padding tightly and tacking, as shown here.

ABOUT RECIPROCITY TREATIES

If elected Congressman I shall certainly protest, to the best of my ability, against the so-called "reciprocity" treaties entered into by the President and Secretary of State, by which the home markets of the American farmers, and especially of those farmers living in this section of the country, has been traded off for foreign markets for manufacturers in our eastern states.

I hope also to protest that part of the farm policy which is building up the dairy industry and the cattle industry in other sections of the United States, on lands formerly used for growing cotton, tobacco and other crops, in competition with the dairy and cattle industry here in Minnesota. I do not think we should be on the losing end of the bargain in all these matters.

Proposed Amendment to the Constitution of Minnesota

To be submitted at 1940 General Election

STATE OF MINNESOTA
LEGAL DEPARTMENT

J. A. A. BURNQUIST
Attorney General

St. Paul, Minnesota,
February 5, 1940

Honorable Mike Holm,
Secretary of State,

Dear Sir:

In compliance with the provisions of Mason's Minnesota Statutes of 1927, Section 46, I make this statement of the purpose and effect of the amendment proposed to the constitution of Minnesota to be voted on at the November 5, 1940 general election in accordance with Laws 1939, Chapter 447.

PROPOSED AMENDMENT

By the enactment of Laws 1939, Chapter 447, the legislature has proposed an amendment to Section 36 of Article 4 of the constitution. This section now reads as follows:

"Section 36. Any city or village in this state may frame a charter for its own government as a city consistent with and subject to the laws of this state, as follows: The legislature shall provide, under such restrictions as it deems proper, for a board of fifteen freeholders, who shall be and for the past five years shall have been qualified voters thereof, to be appointed by the district judges of the judicial district in which the city or village is situated, as the legislature may determine, for a term in no event to exceed six years, which board shall, within six months after its appointment, return to the chief magistrate of said city or village a draft of said charter, signed by the members of said board, or a majority thereof. Such charter shall be submitted to the qualified voters of such city or village at the next election thereafter, and if four-sevenths of the qualified voters voting at such election shall ratify the same it shall, at the end of thirty days thereafter, become the charter of such city or village as a city, and supersede any existing charter and amendments thereof: Provided, that in cities having patrol limits now established, such charter shall require a three-fourths majority vote of the qualified voters voting at such election to change the patrol limits now established. Before any city shall incorporate under this act the legislature shall prescribe by law the general limits within which such charter shall be framed. Duplicate certificates shall be made setting forth the charter proposed and its ratification, which shall be signed by the chief magistrate of said city or village and authenticated by its corporate seal. One of said certificates shall be deposited in the office of the secretary of state, and the other, after being recorded in the office of the register of deeds for the county in which such city or village lies, shall be deposited among the archives of such city or village, and all courts shall take judicial notice thereof. Such charter so deposited may be amended by proposal therefor made by a board of fifteen commissioners aforesaid, published for at least thirty days in three newspapers of general circulation in such city or village, and accepted by three-fifths of the qualified voters of such city or village voting at the next election and not otherwise; but such charter shall always be in harmony with and subject to the constitution and laws of the state of Minnesota. The legislature may prescribe the duties of the commission relative to submitting amendments of charter to the vote of the people, and shall provide that upon application of five per cent of the legal voters of any such city or village, by written petition, such commission shall submit to the vote of the people proposed amendments to such charter set forth in said petition. The board of freeholders above provided for shall be permanent, and all the vacancies by death, disability to perform duties, resignation or removal from the corporate limits, or expiration of term of office, shall be filled by appointment in the same manner as the original board was created, and said board shall always contain its full complement of members. It shall be a feature of all such charters that there shall be provided, among other things, for a mayor or chief magistrate, and a legislative body of either one or two houses; if of two houses, at least one of them shall be elected by general vote of the electors. In submitting any such charter or amendment thereto to the qualified voters of such city or village any alternate section or article may be presented for the choice of the voters, and may be voted on separately without prejudice to other articles or sections of the charter or any amendments thereto. The legislature may provide general laws relating to affairs of cities, the application of which may be limited to cities of over fifty thousand inhabitants, or to cities of fifty and not less than twenty thousand inhabitants, or to cities of twenty and not less than ten thousand inhabitants, or to cities of ten thousand inhabitants or less, which shall apply equally to all such cities of either class, and which shall be paramount while in force to the provisions relating to the same matter included in the local charter herein provided for. But no local charter, provision or ordinance passed thereunder shall supersede any general law of the state defining or punishing crimes or misdemeanors."

If amended as proposed by the legislature, this section will read as follows:

"Section 36. Any city or village in this state may frame a charter for its own government as a city consistent with and subject to the laws of this state, as follows: The legislature shall provide, under such restrictions as it deems proper, for a board of fifteen freeholders, who shall be and for the past five years shall have been qualified voters thereof, to be appointed by the district judges of the judicial district in which the city or village is situated, as the legislature may determine, for a term in no event to exceed six years, which board shall, within six months after its appointment, return to the chief magistrate of said city or village a draft of said charter, signed by the members of said board, or a majority thereof. Such charter shall be submitted to the qualified voters of such city or village at the next election thereafter, and if four-sevenths of the qualified voters voting at such election shall ratify the same it shall, at the end of thirty days thereafter, become the charter of such city or village as a city, and supersede any existing charter and amendments thereof: Provided, that in cities having patrol limits now established, such charter shall require a three-fourths majority vote of the qualified voters at such election to change the patrol limits now established. Before any city shall incorporate under this act the legislature shall prescribe by law the general limits within which such charter shall be framed. Duplicate certificates shall be made setting forth the charter proposed and its ratification, which shall be signed by the chief magistrate of said city or village and authenticated by its corporate seal. One of said certificates shall be deposited in the office of the secretary of state, and the other, after being recorded in the office of the register of deeds for the county in which such city or village lies, shall be deposited among the archives of such city or village, and all courts shall take judicial notice thereof. Such charter so deposited may be amended by proposal therefor made by a board of fifteen commissioners aforesaid, published for at least once each week for four successive weeks in a legal newspaper of general circulation in such city or village and accepted by three-fifths of the qualified voters of such city or village voting at the next election and not otherwise; but such charter shall always be in harmony with and subject to the constitution and laws of the state of Minnesota. The legislature may prescribe the duties of the commission relative to submitting amendments of charter to the vote of the people, and shall provide that upon application of five per cent of the legal voters of any such city or village, by written petition, such commission shall submit to the vote of the people proposed amendments to such charter set forth in said petition. The board of freeholders above provided for shall be permanent, and all the vacancies by death, disability to perform duties, resignation or removal from the corporate limits, or expiration of term of office, shall be filled by appointment in the same manner as the original board was created, and said board shall always contain its full complement of members. It shall be a feature of all such charters that there shall be provided, among other things, for a mayor or chief magistrate, and a legislative body of either one or two houses; if of two houses, at least one of them shall be elected by general vote of the electors. In submitting any such charter or amendment thereto to the qualified voters of such city or village any alternate section or article may be presented for the choice of the voters, and may be voted on separately without prejudice to other articles or sections of the charter or any amendments thereto. The legislature may provide general laws relating to affairs of cities, the application of which may be limited to cities of over fifty thousand inhabitants, or to cities of fifty and not less than twenty thousand inhabitants, or to cities of twenty and not less than ten thousand inhabitants, or to cities of ten thousand inhabitants or less, which shall apply equally to all such cities of either class, and which shall be paramount while in force to the provisions relating to the same matter included in the local charter herein provided for. But no local charter, provision or ordinance passed thereunder shall supersede any general law of the state defining or punishing crimes or misdemeanors."

Purpose and Effect

The purpose and effect of the proposed amendment is to require publication of amendments to home rule charters once each week for four (4) successive weeks in a legal newspaper of general circulation in such city or village instead of publication in three (3) newspapers of general circulation in such city or village for at least thirty (30) days as now required.

There are many cities and villages which do not have three local newspapers. In such cases, under the present provision, publication must be made in newspapers printed elsewhere and circulating locally. If the proposed amendment is adopted, publication will be required in only one qualified newspaper, thereby reducing the difficulty and expense of amending home rule charters.

Very truly yours,
J. A. A. BURNQUIST,
Attorney General.

Prize Day & Smoker Oct. 26

Business places and residents of Holt will be all set on Saturday for one of the biggest Prize day and Smoker ever held here.

A well rounded out program has been lined up for the afternoon with Hartley Peterson, Mayor of the village as chairman. There will be a lot of races and contests for both the older folks and youngsters.

A good program has been lined up for the smoker in the evening at the school and this will be topped off with a big free lunch served by the local business firms of Holt.

Mrs. Lloyd Babcock and daughter returned to her home at Pembina, N. D. Sunday after a week's visit at the H. Moberg home. Accompanying her were Mrs. Hartley Peterson and Donovan, Bertha, Gerald and Walter Moberg who returned home the same day.

Fred Peterson wishes to announce that he has a good set of ropes to go with the new halters that some one took off of his team of mares. So if the party who took the halters will call at his place he will give them the ropes or else he would like to have the halters returned to him.

Town Officers Meeting

At a meeting of the Marshall County association of town officers held in the courthouse on last Thurseay night, October 17, it was decided to call a general meeting of town officers to be held at the high school in Newfolden on Saturday, November 2 beginning at 10:00 a. m.

The affiliation of the county unit with the State organization will be discussed and other matters of interest to town officers will se taken up.

A complete program will be printed in next week's edition of the county newspapers.

This meeting has been called by the directors of the county association. These directors are Erhard A. Anderson of Donnelly township, Alphonse E. Johnson of Sinnott township, Otto Thompson of Newfolden township and Louis Larson of Bloomer township, and Elling Waagedahl of Holt township.

Mrs. Henry Nohre, Mrs. Edgar Horien, Mrs. R. Nyval, Mrs. W. Stienhauer, Mrs. A. Stienhauer, Mrs. C. A. Larson were entertained at the L. M. Larson home last Thursday. Tney spent the afternoon making a quilt for the Ladies Aid sale.

Ladies Aid Auction Sale

The Ladies Aid of the Nazareth Church will have their annual Auction Sale on Saturday evening Nov. 8. For sale will be several woolen quilts made by the ladies, one especially nice called the Stepping Stone pattern which is hand quilted. There are also several sets of dish towels, bed room sets, table cloth and napkins, aprons, hand knitted socks and mittens.

Beginning at 2 o'clock in the afternoon all the articles will be for sale at a marked price and this selling will continue until 8 o'clock in the evening when the auction will begin. This is done so that those who wish to buy any special articles may do so, and also so that there will be less to sell in the evening. Lunch will be sold afternoon and evening.

With only 39 shopping days until Christmas, this is the place to come and do your shopping for gifts that are nicer than you can buy any other place at such a small price.

Sunnyside School Notes

We were happy to have Miss Evelyn Ornquist of Thief River Falls Teachers Training Department as practice teacher at our school this week.

We are busy making plans for our Ragball Social which will be held Oct. 30.

In Reading 7 we have completed "The Skeleton in Armor" and are beginning "Rip Van Winkle". We are studying short stories in in Reading 8.

Eleanor Ucland has already traveled completely around our chart of "Book Journeys Around the World."

Perfect attendance records for the first month of school are held by Milton Conklin, Raymond Peterson, Gloria Anderson, Virgil Larson, Lois Larson, Joan Benitt, Howard Peterson and Kenton Anderson.

We have completed the Scandinavian countries in Geog. 6 and are beginning the study of France. In Geog. 5 we are finishing the study of the Pacific States.

We have received some very good Minnesota State Traveling Library books.

A very large crowd attended the Dorcas Sale at the Nazareth Lutheran Church Wednesday evening. The proceeds were: Sale $69.50. Candy and grab boxes $6.00. Lunch $20.00.

Faith in Action Rally

A Faith In Action Rally will be held in Trinity Lutheran Church at Thief River Falls on Sunday afternoon, Oct. 27th, at 2:30 p. m. Dr. I. T. Aastad, president of the Northern Minnesota District, Detroit Lakes, will speak on "Casting Out the Nets". Rev. R. M. Fjelstad, local pastor of the church, will speak on "Thanking God for Our Sacred Heritage." Other speakers will be: Mrs. Alma Lind, Badger, for the W. M. F.; Miss Marie Phillipson, Middle River, for the L. D. R.; Mr. Charles Christianson, Roseau, for the Luther League; and Mr. M. K. Brastad, Roseau, for the Men's Brotherhood. Following this there will be lunch served by the Trinity Lutheran Ladies Aid.

At 4:45 p. m. the Rally will reconvene to hear a nationwide broadcast given by the N. L. C. A. Heard on this will be Dr. J. A. Aasgaard, president of the Norwegian Lutheran Church of America; Dr. J. C. K. Preus, Christian Education Secretary and Dr. A. J. Bergsaker, Secretary. All the officers of the congregation, Ladies Aid, Circles, Dorcas, Sunday School, Men's Club, Luther League and as many others as desire to come are urged to be present. For those who cannot attend, one may hear the broadcast at 4:45 over KFJM Grand Forks. Rev. T. C. L. Hanson is presiding at this Rally. All are invited to attend.

About 30 ladies gathered at the Walter Larson home on Monday afternoon and gave Mrs. Larson a birthday party. She received gifts and a cash purse and a delicious lunch was served.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Wegge and daugeter Sharon spent the week end at Egeland, N. D. where they attended the wedding anniversary of Mrs. Wegge's sister and brother-in-law.

Prize Day and Smoker at Holt Saturday, Oct. 26th.

Appointed Probate Judge

Attorney W. O. Braggans of Warren has been appointed judge of probate court of Marshall county, to fill the unexpired term of the late Judge Bernard B. Brett. Mr. Braggans received his certificate of appointment Wednesday of last week from Governor Harold E. Stassen, the board of county commissioners taking action the same day to confirm the appointment. The appointment holds good only until January 1941.

The Mission Church auction sale held Friday evening was a huge success. Mr. Arvid Carlson did a very fine job of auctioneering off the beautiful articles of fancy work, and he kept the audience in good humor all evening. The poceeds amounted to $95.35.

Ludvig F. Larson returned home recently from the Veterans Hospital at St. Paul where he had a thorough physical examination by the clinic.

Ragball Social

Come, everone, old and young, join in the fun! A Ragball Social will be held at Sunnyside School, Dist. 59, 3 miles east of Holt, on Wednesday October 30, 1940. Ladies please bring ragball and lunch for two.
Doris Carlson, teacher.

Sampson-Baker Wedding

Miss Mary Sampson and Mr. George Baker, prominent young couple living northwest of Thief River Falls, were married by Rev. Hanson at the Lutheran parsonage in Holt on Saturday evening, Oct. 19th at 5:30 p. m. Their attendants were Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Klungness, brother in-law and sister of the groom. The single ring ceremony was used. Mrs. Baker is a daughter of Mrs. Emma Sampson and Mr. Baker is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Nick Baker. They will make their future home on the grooms farm northeast of Thief River Falls.

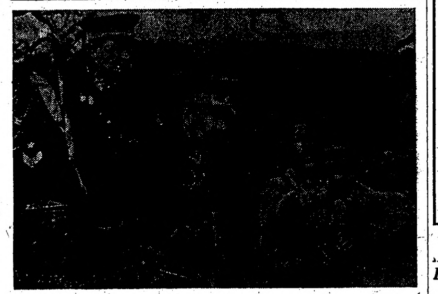
WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS By Roger Shaw

Trouble Looms in Balkans as Russia Masses Troops on Rumanian Border; Nazi Air Raids on London Continue; Political Campaign Enters Final Stages

(EDITOR'S NOTE—When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of the news analyst and not necessarily of this newspaper.)
(Released by Western Newspaper Union.)



Reports from the Balkans indicate that Russian troops have massed on the Rumanian border and are keeping a watchful eye on the activities of Hitler's troops who have entered that country. This picture would bear out these facts for here is none other than that seldom photographed Deputy People's Commissar of Defense, Marshal S. Budenny (mustache), looking across the Russian border into Rumania from a Soviet observation post in the Odessa military district. Two army aides are shown with him.

THE WAR:
Boiling Balkans

Always a question mark in the intrigue of European politics, the Balkan states again are claiming their share of the world spotlight.

When Adolf Hitler's troops marched into Rumania to "protect" Rumanian oil fields and "train" Rumanian soldiers, military experts wondered what effect this would have on the attitude of Soviet Russia toward the axis powers. For Russia, too, is interested in Rumania. More than this Russia is vitally interested in any eastward expansion of the Hitler regime.

At first Berlin reported that Moscow knew and approved of this infiltration. Then news began to come in that the Soviet troops were on the march toward the Rumanian border. Two Rumanian patrol boats on the Danube were reported sunk by the Russians. In the strategic area around the mouth of the Danube both the German and Russian forces were reported to be speedily strengthening their military positions.

Just what Hitler's plans in the Balkans are remained, of course, a closely guarded military secret. There was much speculation centering around two possible motives in addition to the avowed aid in training Rumanian troops and the protection of the oil fields, so vital to the German war machine. These speculative motives were: (1) perhaps the axis powers were attempting to draw attention away from the British Isles in order to launch some sort of a surprise tactic against England, or (2) Germany was using the Balkan route for a march to drive the British out of the eastern Mediterranean regions.

CAMPAIGN:
Home Stretch

As the 1940 campaign entered its final stages it continued to follow the outline established following the major party conventions. Willkie continued to make most of the speeches for his party and Henry Wallace was the busiest political speaker of the Democratic party.

Willkie's speeches grew more vigorous as the campaign drew toward a close and Roosevelt's rare "political" appearances still possessed the same pattern of 1932 and 1936.

Public opinion polls came in for their share of the praise and abuse. When the Gallup poll showed that Candidate Roosevelt would more than likely carry the election, the Republicans countered with the Dunn survey, reputed to show Candidate Willkie out in front.

BIG FOUR:
No Like?

There was increasing talk of a vast four-sided alliance between the British Empire, the United States, Soviet Russia and the China of General-Dictator Chiang Kai-shek. It was intended to thwart the axis of Germany, Italy and Japan. Thus would the world's seven big powers line up, it was stated by some railbirds.

The state department was undoubtedly wooing the Soviets, to counterbalance the rising sun of Nippon. Stalin liked the axis combine no better than did Roosevelt. It was true, objectors said, that British investments in the Far East were 10 times as large as those of the Yankees, and that the Far East was 7,000 miles away, and that we were scheduled to get out of the Philippines anyway, and many Americans did not like Moscow at any price whatsoever.

Some of the British were pleased, but others were gravely worried. Some of them said that the more we pointed far eastward, the less we could do for the British Isles in time of stress, strain and the beating hammer of Thor. Certain military men grumbled about quarreling on two fronts at the same time—a basic army axiom, anywhere, any time. It was all on the knees of the gods—yellow, red, and white, alike.

DEFENSE:
Registration

First step in national conscription was completed with the registration of some 16,500,000 young men between the ages of 21 and 36. Reporting to more than 120,000 polling places throughout the country they listed personal information about themselves and now await the results of the lottery in Washington which will decide in what order they may be called into service.

PLANES:
Estimates

According to one conservative British estimator, the Germans have lost close to 6,500 planes in the second world war. This is a whale of an estimate. The planes would be worth around half a billion dollars, which is a lot of money, and in marks is astronomical.

Not only that. There was more to it. The same estimator estimated that the Germans had lost 13,500 pilots. Pilots are much harder to replace than mere airplanes, be they Messerschmitts, Heinkels, Junkers, or Dorniers. It was figured that the Germans had lost three times as many bombers (Heinkels, Junkers) as they had fighters (Messerschmitts made in Augsburg). Most of these planes had Mercedes-Benz motors, built in the old Zeppelin works on Lake Constance, at Mannheim, and Stuttgart. The Mercedes plants have been badly bombed by the royal air force.

Germany was supposed to have an air force of approximately 20,000 planes and 25,000-30,000 pilots. The sensational British figures were probably topheavy, as is usual in aerial warfare.

'Kinder'

Germany might have lost those 6,500 and 13,500, but the Londoners didn't take it to heart. The London county council advised all mothers, in its complete 29 areas, to evacuate themselves and their children in toto. In addition, everybody of 65 or over, and the infirm of body, were told to get out and stay out. These provisions had previously been applied only to the 14 worst local areas, and the spread-over to 29, made the whole matter "totalitarian." Health Minister Malcolm MacDonald, son of the late-lamented famous Ramsay, was in charge of the woman-child-aged-infirm trek to the sticks.

Smuggled Refugee

HOBOKEN, N. J.—Franz Werfel, refugee author, is pictured aboard the Greek liner "Nea Hellas" as it arrived in this U. S. port recently. He was sneaked out of France via "underground railway" methods. Werfel is the author of "The Forty Days of Musa Dagh" and 35 other volumes.

Indifferent

Virginio Gayda, Mussolini's journalist stooge at Rome, denied that the so-called Axis was out to defeat Mr. Roosevelt. Gayda said that Italy was indifferent. Just the same, Italy was touchy. The local authorities ordered the expulsion of the famous Herbert Matthews, New York Times correspondent, because "he falsely stated that Italy and the Axis would interfere in the United States' presidential election." The Romans claimed that Signor Matthews tended to disturb relations between Italia and Columbia.

Signor Matthews knows all about pauper Italy-at-war. He was in the Ethiopian war, as a correspondent, and also in the Spanish civil strife, where Italians were rife. He is considered tops, professionally, as well as honest and objective, plus a conscience. He wrote an exceedingly good book on Spain & Ethiopia.

STYLES:
Anti-papal?

The pope addressed 10,000 Italian young women. He objected vigorously to up-to-date fashions and cosmetics. He also warned against bad novels (some say they're all bad nowadays), plays, movies, and amusement hotspots.

Said the pope: "You should ask your conscience, before putting on a frock, how Jesus Christ would judge it." He also spoke for peace, and repair of the fruitless devastation of the late-lamented past year. The Vatican showed anxiety lest England and America start wooing atheist Russia, as a counter-weight to Musso-Mikado-Hitler. World Catholicism still regards Stalin as the No. 1 foeman, and perhaps not without reason. But Earl Browder, the bad redboy, had another viewpoint altogether, for he suggested a triple Chinese-Russian-American alliance—to "win through, out of the present dangers and chaos."

BERMUDA:
Sidelight

There was a curious little appeal from New York out of Bermuda. It was just this. The retreat at Dunkirk was covered by two heroic Highlander regiments — the Black Watch and the Camerons. (Other Highland outfits are the Gordons, the Seeforths, the Argyle & Sutherlands. They all date back close to 200 years.)

Some 200 of the shattered Cameron veterans were sent to Bermuda for recuperation. Most of them were wounded, and had been decorated. Many were under 20 years of age. Their pay was only $3.75 per week, and they couldn't afford to sight-see in carriages, or travel by train.

So an appeal went out from New York for old bicycles, that these boy-vets could get around and have some fun. The appeal aroused considerable interest. The committee was ready to collect and dispatch the bikes free of charge.

MISCELLANY:

- One hundred fifty years, eight months and five days after the first U. S. Supreme court assembled in New York city to begin the writing of U. S. judicial history, the nine present justices of that body gathered in Washington for the first session of the 1940-41 term.
- Axis diplomacy was read into the Italian honor which was extended to Spain's General Franco, whereby he was made a "cousin of the king." He was decorated with the Collar of the Supreme Order of Santissima Annunziata.
- A serious New York truck strike was averted, when after a 36-hour walkout, drivers and employers agreed upon terms proposed by Mayor LaGuardia.
- In Cuba, 38-year-old Fulgencio Batista was inaugurated as president of that country.
- Princess Elizabeth Alexandra Mary, elder daughter of King George of England, broadcast an international radio message to all the children of the British empire in which she appealed to them to be brave and have courage during these "days of trouble."

STAGE SCREEN RADIO

By VIRGINIA VALE
(Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

ACTORS usually dread working with children on the stage or in pictures because children, like animals, invariably "steal" scenes. One cute gesture, one little smile from a child can make an Academy Award winner look like a piece of furniture, so far as audiences are concerned.

Nevertheless the members of the cast of "Shepherd of the Hills" were delighted to have four-year-old Virita Campbell in their midst while they were on location in the San Bernardino mountains. On location hours are usually very long, the rule being to shoot from daybreak to sunset to take full advantage of the natural light. Which means that actors, stars and all, get up at 5:30 or thereabouts.

But in the eyes of the state labor law Virita is an infant, so she can't start to work until 8 a. m. Consequently the actors who worked with her got two extra hours of sleep every morning. They brought pressure to bear on Director Henry Hathaway to extend her part so that it would last for the entire six weeks.

Deanna Durbin's new picture, "Spring Parade," is a honey, chiefly because she, S. Z. Sakall and Henry Stephenson are in it. The story is just another of those Old Vienna things, but Henry Koster did a good job of directing, the entire cast—it includes Allyn Joslyn, Reginald Denny, Robert Cummings and Franklin Pangborn—is good, and there are some lovely new songs. The grown-up Deanna is charming and sings beautifully, of course—and as the setting is what old Vienna always is in the movies, she sings an arrangement of the "Blue Danube."

Practically all the men stars in Hollywood were fired from perfectly good jobs before they turned to the movies. Preston Foster suspects that Nelson Eddy got the one he lost. Foster was working on a Philadelphia newspaper, selling classified advertising. He got extra jobs singing in the chorus and in minor roles in the La Scala Opera company. One day the boss dropped in at a matinee, and there was Foster singing when he should have been out selling advertising!

Meanwhile Nelson Eddy was working as a shipping clerk for an iron works company in the same city. He had a habit of bursting into song when he was working hard. The foreman couldn't stand it, so he fired the singer, who promptly got a job on the Philadelphia paper that hadn't appreciated Foster's singing—the job was selling classified advertising.

Robert Taylor was washing the inside of a windshield in a service station in Beatrice, Neb., when the rag slipped out of his hand and into the lap of a lady. He fled, not waiting to be fired.

One of the nicest stories ever told about Hollywood has as its hero the late Grover Jones, author of many a successful movie scenario.

Some years ago he and his wife, who were childless, went to The Cradle, in Chicago, to adopt one. The superintendent showed them hundreds of babies.

"How about that one?" asked Jones, pointing to a child with crossed eyes.

"That poor baby," said the superintendent. "He's been here longer than any of the others. Nobody wants him."

"We'll take him," said Jones.

Today the child, after being given every advantage of medical treatment, is straight-eyed. And three years ago the Joneses had a little girl of their own.

The popularity of a radio program can be judged by its Crosley rating, or by the price tickets to its broadcasts bring. They're not supposed to be sold, of course, but there is a well-organized group of neat, polite young men who beg people going into the broadcasts for their extra tickets. Westinghouse's "Musical Americana" is now in the top rank, along with a few other regular, sponsored shows; its tickets bring 75 cents. Tickets to Toscanini's first broadcast brought as high as $50.

Good news for Americans is the fact that the railroads WERE READY—geared to meet any defense emergency, as well as to perform their less spectacular but necessary job of transporting the products of farms, mines, forests and industries to distant markets.

How 8 Years Worked Out

Everybody pays for transportation—not just those who hand the freight charges to the station agent.

Take the farmer. The cost of shipping his products to the established markets is deducted from the prices prevailing at those markets.

Or yourself. The cost of transportation is included in the price of everything you buy.

So perhaps you would like to see how much money the Great Northern Railway Company made—or lost—in recent years, how much the stockholders got, and how this compares with what was paid out for taxes.

The accompanying figures will give you a rough idea as to whether you are being treated fairly; whether the 29,633 persons, companies, banks and other institutions who own the Company are getting fair "wages" from their investments; and whether the Great Northern's taxes bear a reasonable relation to "ability to pay".

| | "Profits"[1] | Dividends Paid Stockholders | Taxes |
|---|---|---|---|
| 1932 - - | Loss—$13,405,439 | $2,488,684[2] | $6,697,424 |
| 1933 - - | Loss— 3,187,760 | None | 6,660,944 |
| 1934 - - | Loss— 1,074,480 | None | 6,181,111 |

| | $20,865,072 | $7,486,472 | $60,509,692 |

[1] This is what was left after paying all expenses, including taxes and interest on mortgaged indebtedness. It is the surplus available for improvements, reduction of debt, offsetting losses in depression years, and for dividends to stockholders.

[2] Dividend declared previous year. 1931.

The owners, you will observe, received nothing from their investment during six of the last eight years; only $1 for each $100 share of stock in 1932 (from dividend declared the previous year), and $2 in 1937.

The year 1933, incidentally, was the first year in the history of the Great Northern Railway that those who have invested their savings with it have failed to receive a dividend in some amount.

Taxes during five of the last eight years were MORE than the profit which remained for needed improvements, reduction of mortgaged indebtedness, offsetting losses in bad years, and for dividends to stockholders.

Tax collectors, during the last 8 years, got $53,023,220 MORE than the owners.

Proposed Amendment to the Constitution of Minnesota

To be submitted at 1940 General Election

STATE OF MINNESOTA
LEGAL DEPARTMENT

J. A. A. BURNQUIST
Attorney General

St. Paul, Minnesota,
February 5, 1940

Honorable Mike Holm,
Secretary of State,

Dear Sir:

In compliance with the provisions of Mason's Minnesota Statutes of 1927, Section 46, I make this statement of the purpose and effect of the amendment proposed to the constitution of Minnesota to be voted on at the November 5, 1940 general election in accordance with Laws 1939, Chapter 447.

PROPOSED AMENDMENT

By the enactment of Laws 1939, Chapter 447, the legislature has proposed an amendment to Section 36 of Article 4 of the constitution. This section now reads as follows:

"Section 36. Any city or village in this state may frame a charter for its own government as a city consistent with and subject to the laws of this state, as follows: The legislature shall provide, under such restrictions as it deems proper, for a board of fifteen freeholders, who shall be and for the past five years shall have been qualified voters thereof, to be appointed by the district judges of the judicial district in which the city or village is situated, as the legislature may determine, for a term in no event to exceed six years, which board shall, within six months after its appointment, return to the chief magistrate of said city or village a draft of said charter, signed by the members of said board, or a majority thereof. Such charter shall be submitted to the qualified voters of such city or village at the next election thereafter, and if four-sevenths of the qualified voters voting at such election shall ratify the same it shall, at the end of thirty days thereafter, become the charter of such city or village as a city, and supersede any existing charter and amendments thereof: Provided, that in cities having patrol limits now established, such charter shall require a three-fourths majority vote of the qualified voters voting at such election to change the patrol limits now established. Before any city shall incorporate under this act the legislature shall prescribe by law the general limits within which such charter shall be framed. Duplicate certificates shall be made setting forth the charter proposed and its ratification, which shall be signed by the chief magistrate of said city or village and authenticated by its corporate seal. One of said certificates shall be deposited in the office of the secretary of state, and the other, after being recorded in the office of the register of deeds for the county in which such city or village lies, shall be deposited among the archives of such city or village, and all courts shall take judicial notice thereof. Such charter so deposited may be amended by proposal therefor made by a board of fifteen commissioners aforesaid, published for at least thirty days in three newspapers of general circulation in such city or village, and accepted by three-fifths of the qualified voters of such city or village voting at the next election and not otherwise; but such charter shall always be in harmony with and subject to the constitution and laws of the state of Minnesota. The legislature may prescribe the duties of the commission relative to submitting amendments of charter to the vote of the people, and shall provide that upon application of five per cent of the legal voters of any such city or village, by written petition, such commission shall submit to the vote of the people proposed amendments to such charter set forth in said petition. The board of freeholders above provided for shall be permanent, and all the vacancies by death, disability to perform duties, resignation or removal from the corporate limits, or expiration of term of office, shall be filled by appointment in the same manner as the original board was created, and said board shall always contain its full complement of members. It shall be a feature of all such charters that there shall be provided, among other things, for a mayor or chief magistrate, and a legislative body of either one or two houses; if of two houses, at least one of them shall be elected by general vote of the electors. In submitting any such charter or amendment thereto to the qualified voters of such city or village any alternate section or article may be presented for the choice of the voters, and may be voted on separately without prejudice to other articles or sections of the charter or any amendments thereto. The legislature may provide general laws relating to affairs of cities, the application of which may be limited to cities of over fifty thousand inhabitants, or to cities of fifty and not less than twenty thousand inhabitants, or to cities of twenty and not less than ten thousand inhabitants, or to cities of ten thousand inhabitants or less, which shall apply equally to all such cities of either class, and which shall be paramount while in force to the provisions relating to the same matter included in the local charter herein provided for. But no local charter, provision or ordinance passed thereunder shall supersede any general law of the state defining or punishing crimes or misdemeanors."

If amended as proposed by the legislature, this section will read as follows:

"Section 36. Any city or village in this state may frame a charter for its own government as a city consistent with and subject to the laws of this state, as follows: The legislature shall provide, under such restrictions as it deems proper, for a board of fifteen freeholders, who shall be and for the past five years shall have been qualified voters thereof, to be appointed by the district judges of the judicial district in which the city or village is situated, as the legislature may determine, for a term in no event to exceed six years, which board shall, within six months after its appointment, return to the chief magistrate of said city or village a draft of said charter, signed by the members of said board, or a majority thereof. Such charter shall be submitted to the qualified voters of such city or village at the next election thereafter, and if four-sevenths of the qualified voters voting at such election shall ratify the same it shall, at the end of thirty days thereafter, become the charter of such city or village as a city, and supersede any existing charter and amendments thereof: Provided, that in cities having patrol limits now established, such charter shall require a three-fourths majority vote of the qualified voters at such election to change the patrol limits now established. Before any city shall incorporate under this act the legislature shall prescribe by law the general limits within which such charter shall be framed. Duplicate certificates shall be made setting forth the charter proposed and its ratification, which shall be signed by the chief magistrate of said city or village and authenticated by its corporate seal. One of said certificates shall be deposited in the office of the secretary of state, and the other, after being recorded in the office of the register of deeds for the county in which such city or village lies, shall be deposited among the archives of such city or village, and all courts shall take judicial notice thereof. Such charter so deposited may be amended by proposal therefor made by a board of fifteen commissioners aforesaid, published for at least once each week for four successive weeks in a legal newspaper of general circulation in such city or village and accepted by three-fifths of the qualified voters of such city or village voting at the next election and not otherwise; but such charter shall always be in harmony with and subject to the constitution and laws of the state of Minnesota. The legislature may prescribe the duties of the commission relative to submitting amendments of charter to the vote of the people, and shall provide that upon application of five per cent of the legal voters of any such city or village, by written petition, such commission shall submit to the vote of the people proposed amendments to such charter set forth in said petition. The board of freeholders above provided for shall be permanent, and all the vacancies by death, disability to perform duties, resignation or removal from the corporate limits, or expiration of term of office, shall be filled by appointment in the same manner as the original board was created, and said board shall always contain its full complement of members. It shall be a feature of all such charters that there shall be provided, among other things, for a mayor or chief magistrate, and a legislative body of either one or two houses; if of two houses, at least one of them shall be elected by general vote of the electors. In submitting any such charter or amendment thereto to the qualified voters of such city or village any alternate section or article may be presented for the choice of the voters, and may be voted on separately without prejudice to other articles or sections of the charter or any amendments thereto. The legislature may provide general laws relating to affairs of cities, the application of which may be limited to cities of over fifty thousand inhabitants, or to cities of fifty and not less than twenty thousand inhabitants, or to cities of twenty and not less than ten thousand inhabitants or less, which shall apply equally to all such cities of either class, and which shall be paramount while in force to the provisions relating to the same matter included in the local charter herein provided for. But no local charter, provision or ordinance passed thereunder shall supersede any general law of the state defining or punishing crimes or misdemeanors."

Purpose and Effect

The purpose and effect of the proposed amendment is to require publication of amendments to home rule charters once each week for four (4) successive weeks in a legal newspaper of general circulation in such city or village instead of publication in three (3) newspapers of general circulation in such city or village for at least thirty (30) days as now required.

There are many cities and villages which do not have three local newspapers. In such cases, under the present provision, publication must be made in newspapers printed elsewhere and circulating locally. If the proposed amendment is adopted, publication will be required in only one qualified newspaper, thereby reducing the difficulty and expense of amending home rule charters.

Very truly yours,
J. A. A. BURNQUIST,
Attorney General

Venetian Blinds to Simulate Windows

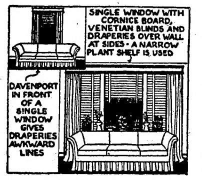
By RUTH WYETH SPEARS

HAVE you ever tried placing your davenport on the side of the room where there was a single window? You probably found that it did not look well, because the back was just high enough to give the draperies an awkward cut-off appearance, as shown in the upper sketch. The lower sketch shows how a friend of mine solved this problem, and changed her living room that had seemed hopeless, into an attractive, cheerful place.



SINGLE WINDOW WITH CORNICE BOARD, VENETIAN BLINDS AND DRAPERIES OVER WALL AT SIDES - A NARROW PLANT SHELF IS USED
DAVENPORT IN FRONT OF A SINGLE WINDOW GIVES DRAPERIES AWKWARD LINES

There are no windows under those lowered blinds. A painted box-like cornice board was made about 2 feet longer than the davenport and was fastened to the top of the frame of the one window. The venetian blinds and the rods for the draperies were fastened inside this. A narrow shelf for plants just the length of the davenport back was fastened securely to the window sill. The flowers increase the illusion that there are three windows and add a cheerful note of color.

NOTE: Sewing Book No. 1 tells how to make this cornice board. Also how to make curtains and draperies for every room in the house from child's room to kitchen. All about slip covers. Dressing tables from boxes, tables and old mirrors. You will be delighted with it. Send order to:

Star's Magnetic Influence Felt, but Not Recognized

The film star, a practical joker, had an electrified chair, disguised as an ordinary upholstered one, in his home. He delighted in seeing a guest, comfortably seated, suddenly leap at the press of a button.

A pretty girl came to interview him. She sat in the chair, and he couldn't resist pressing the button. But she just sat there, conversing animately.

Finally he asked: "Don't you feel rather strange?"

"Yes," she replied. "As if electricity were going through me. But I always feel that way when talking to film stars. They're so magnetic."

Nazis Solidify Norwegian Gains As Fierce Fighting Is Reported; Britain Claims Sinking 30 Ships

(EDITOR'S NOTE—When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of the news analyst and not necessarily of this newspaper.)

Released by Western Newspaper Union

II GERMAN WAR:

Nordic Phase

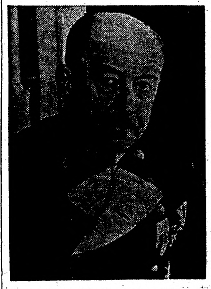
And still the Nordics fought among themselves up north — Norsemen, Germans, English, Anglo-Canadians and an occasional Norman peasant from Quebec. As some of the smoke and propaganda clouds lifted a bit, interesting news items revealed themselves to the American public. The Germans had captured Oslo, Norse capital, with an air-wafted force of 2,000 men. They had captured Narvik with a few hundred men. They had taken Bergen, second city of Norway, with a corporal's guard of 100. They had occupied Trondheim without firing a shot. So much for expert Trojan horsemanship.

It appeared, further, that many of the English troops dumped from the transports into Norway, were ill-equipped "territorial" militia, or half-trained regulars, without proper aerial support, heavy artillery, tanks, or even automatic rifles. The Germans facing them, had plenty of good, new automatic weapons, air bombers and fighters, anti-aircraft, tanks, and considerable knowledge of the Norwegian language. According to the military critics, the German leadership and staff work, too, seemed superior. As the German invaders worked their militant way along portions of the Swedish frontier, Sweden recoiled in terror, although German "promises" offered to soothe them. German "promises" make shaky Swedes.



ADMIRAL LINDSTROM
"Promises" made his nation shaky.

Under leadership of Admiral Lindstrom, Sweden's small but powerful navy is being tuned to full wartime strength.

Sea Losses

London claimed the loss of 30 German ships in two weeks: most of them troop transports. Four, said England, were captured; the rest were destroyed. Sinking transports is always a hideous process, and English sources reported 3,000 German bodies washed ashore on the eastern rocks of Oslo inlet. In the Skaggerak, the usually optimistic French reported the sinking of a couple of German patrol boats, at the hands of a flotilla of Gallic destroyers. Rumors from Berlin—and elsewhere — continued to whisper that more than half of England's 15 big capital warships were down or out.

But the English countered with the announcement of five coming new sea mammoths, an effort to fill up the decimated ranks. These water monsters would be payed for out of the coming fiscal year's budget of $9,000,000,000, including sales tax, "for the sake of victory." Excluding marines, sailors, deck hands, and flyers, England announced that its armed and armored man-total was now 2,000,000.

Norse Notations

Two Norse flyers stole a big German seaplane, painted out its insignia crosses, and flew it to England, where they joined the royal air force. The incident shows the evils of drink: the Nazi pilots had been beering.

C. J. Hambro, president of the Norwegian parliament, issued a statement that his country has definite proof that Germany planned its invasion of Norway for months. He also said that the night before the invasion a German whaling boat, crowded with hidden troops and supplies, sailed into the port of Narvik—flying the American flag.

Enterprising German troops, dropped by parachute behind the Norse lines, eddied down to earth carrying collapsible bicycles, machine-guns, radio-transmitting sets, cameras, saws, other tools, and gas-welding equipment.

President Roosevelt recognized officially the still undeclared Nordic war, and put Norway, like other belligerents, on a strictly cash-and-carry basis. Germany set up a puppet government in German-occupied Norway, modelled on that of German-occupied Czecho-Moravia-Slovakia.

HAIL COLUMBIA:

III Term

It looked more than ever like a Third Term effort by the White House white father. The President let out tentative plans for a three-weeks junket around the country in June, to counteract the Republican national convention at Philadelphia that month. Some of the political railbirds thought that Franklin would keep the Populus Americanus guessing until the very opening of the Democratic convention, at Chicago, in mid-July. Anti-duodecimals continued to yammer loudly against the President's seeming indecision. Pro-Rooses smiled sagely. Republican Publisher Frank Gannett of Rochester, N. Y., declared that four more Rooseveltian years might spell some great national calamity. Mr. Gannett seemed to indicate that there was a fiery Trojan Horse (of purest Norse breed) in the White House back-room. But Democratic Senator Guffey was renominated in Pennsylvania—on the ticket of a man who was a totalitarian for Roosevelt.

Taussig Tempest

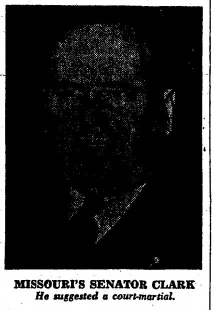
Rear Admiral Joe Taussig, assistant chief of American naval operations, stuck his neck out, when he testified on the navy expansion bill to a senatorial committee. He said we needed badly an independent China; that we better fight Japan with the help of England, France and Holland; and added that it would be, strictly, a naval war—as the Yankee buffalo and the Nippon whale could hardly get at one another by land.

Everybody scrambled around disavowing Mr. Taussig, "Cromwell" of the navy department. Secretary Hull, Secretary Edison, admirals, and "burocrats" all talked in worried, unhappy circles. Senator Clark of Missouri suggested a court-martial, to the open approval of masses of plain American citizens.

Japanese spokesmen took the incident with remarkable tact and good manners, considering that they are often labeled as Far Eastern "Prussians." They merely reminded their public that this was a Yankee election year, with plenty of "free" talk—to which they were too polite to add "cheap." Nevertheless, in service circles, Mr. Taussig ("would he were tongue-tied") is considered a good man.



MISSOURI'S SENATOR CLARK
He suggested a court-martial.

PROPAGANDA:

Anglo & Teuto

The Germans brought out still another propaganda job (White Book), to prove that the English had issued orders the first week in April, to seize Norse strategic points. According to the "plan," Norse defense against England, was to be phoney. Anglo-Norse "connivance" was the keynote of this masterpiece, ceremoniously distributed to the faithful, and to the press.

The London press tried turning on the pessimistic faucet, to explain Norse reverses, and English trimmings in Norway. The newspapers told their readers it would be a long, hard war up north, and appealed primarily—a clever propaganda dodge in England—to native Briton bulldoggery. On Germans, French, and Americans, this type of gloom-spreading has been proved disastrous; in Russia, as in England, it works!

It's a strange fact, but Americans know more about their war than Europeans themselves.

SUPREME COURT:

Pro-Picketeering

The nine, not-so-old any more, men stood up for labor again. They ruled as unconstitutional the anti-picketing legislation of Alabama and California, and said that free discussion of laborite lapses was a basic part of democratic government. Roosevelt-appointed Justice Murphy, now a "sophomore" on the court, wrote the opinions. Justice McReynolds, Wilson-appointed, hardly popular at any time, dissented.

Patterns SEWING CIRCLE

BUSY mothers with lively little girls in the 2-to-8 size range can solve several important problems with this one clever, very complete pattern (8674). It includes a puff-sleeved blouse with drawstrings, panties, and a pinafore frock that can be used, without the blouse, as a sunback outdoor fashion for summer play, too.

The whole ensemble is adorable, with a touch of quaintness that adds much charm to its simplicity.

A linen or gingham pinafore, with mull or dimity blouse, will be pretty for general wear. Plaid or striped seersucker will be practical for the pinafore when she wears it as a sunback frock—can be tubbed so easily, and needn't be ironed. The step-by-step sew chart gives complete, detailed directions.

Pattern No. 8674 is designed for sizes 2, 4, 6 and 8 years. Size 4 requires 2⅛ yards of 35-inch material for pinafore and panties; ⅞ yard for blouse, 2⅝ yards ribbon. Send order to:

Jumper and Blouse Outfit With Bolero

FOR all school-girls, in the grades and on up through college, the jumper-with-blouse outfit is the very best and most popular of classroom fashions. Every smart shop shows it. Every smart girl wants it. Here it is in a design (No. 1222-B) that can be quickly and economically made at home—with dart-fitted waistline, stitching for trim, and a very youthful, sufficient tailored blouse.

Add the bolero to it, and make a little suit! Several blouses and one jumper and bolero go a long way toward outfitting any girl for school, and giving her the variety she craves. Corduroy, velveteen and flannel are smart for the jumper and bolero; linen, flat crepe or batiste for the blouse.

Help Them Cleanse the Blood of Harmful Body Waste

Your kidneys are constantly filtering waste matter from the blood stream. But kidneys sometimes lag in their work—do not act as Nature intended—fail to remove impurities that, if retained, may poison the system and upset the whole body machinery.

Symptoms may be nagging backache, persistent headache, attacks of dizziness, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes—a feeling of nervous anxiety and loss of pep and strength.

Other signs of kidney or bladder disorder are sometimes burning, scanty or too frequent urination.

HOW TO SEW

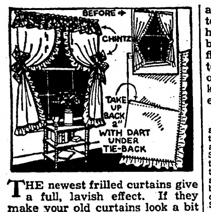
by Ruth Wyeth Spears



THE newest frilled curtains give a full, lavish effect. If they make your old curtains look a bit dejected, like those shown here at the right, don't be discouraged. The window at the left uses those same curtains with a dash of glamour added. This economy trick saved a certain young matron enough money to buy a number of smart new accessories for her living room.

She discovered that a diagonal dart, which took up the curtains at the back, threw more fullness to the front, thus giving the new high drape a smart line. Tie-backs and valance were made of flowered chintz in rose and plum tones, lined with plain plum colored chintz. One yard of each kind of chintz was required for each window.

NOTE: The chintz covered lamp shade and the spool table also add interest to this window. Full directions for making a shade like the one illustrated are in SEWING, Book 1. Directions for the spool table are in Book 5; also descriptions of the first four booklets in this series. ## Rag Ball Social

A large carnival and rag ball social will be held at the Pioneer school Dist. 61, 3 miles north of Holt. There'll be fun for everyone. Worthwhile contests, prizes and the like to be had. Attractions are too many to mention. Admission free and your money back if yor aren't satisfied. Girls bring your name wrapped with a lot of rags to form a ball and lunch for two. Men bring your best girl and a happy smile. We'll be seeing you all on Nov. 9th. Given by pupils and teacher Clarice Plymire.

Rev. and Mrs. Hanson and son Harold and Mrs. Martha Oppegaard were dinner guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Christ Engen Tuesday.

U. S. Senator Ball To Speak

Returning, for the first time since he was appointed United States Senator, to his home town, United States Senator Joseph H. Ball will be accorded a homecoming celebration Friday by the residents of Crookston and vicinity.

Less than 20 years ago Senator Ball, who at 35 is the youngest member of the United States senate, worked as a farm-hand and raised seed corn in the Crookston vicinity to earn money for his first year of college.

The homecoming fete includes a Friday night mass meeting in the Crookston armory, where Senator Ball will deliver an address that will be brosdcast from 9:45 to 10:15 p. m. by Stations KFJM, Grand Forks; KDOK, Moorhead, and KDGE, Fergus Falls.

Inez Anderson, student at Concordia College, Moorhead, spent the week end at the home of her parents here.

Richard Lorentson and Clarence Ness built several pieces of road here last week. They put up one out to the Lewis Sagstuen place from the village, and lead-in roads to the farms of Henry Nohre and Victor Johnson and also a short road for the township near the Bjerk farm east of town.

Claude Fauver of Roseburg, Washington, and Jack Ellis of Chattfield, Minn., spent a few days here recently at the V. E. Oakey home. Mr. Fauver is a former resident of this community.

Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Gunheim visited at the Alfred Larson home Sunday afternoon.

Deer Season Nov. 15 to 25

With duck hunting just under way, local sportsmen are already looking forward to the opening of the deer season.

As provided by the legislature for even number years, an 11 day deer season from November 15 to 25 was announced by the Department of Conservation this week.

Bear may be hunted in the regular season from November 15 to 25 under the law. The season was established after census surveys by game wardens and other Department observers indicated a plentyful deer supply.

Deer may be shot north of a line following certain highways roughly from the northwestern corner of the state southeastward to just north of the Pine county line.

The open season area is open north and east of the following highways: Beginning at Noyes in Kittson county on the Canadian-Minnesota boundry, south on U. S. 75 to Crookston, east on U. S. 2 to Erskine, south on U. 59 to Detroit Lakes, southeast on U. S. 10 to Frazee, east on State 87 te Menagha, south on U. S. 71 to Wadena, southeast on U. S. 10 to Motley, east on U. S. 210 to Brainerd, east on State 18 to Garrisson, south on U. S. 169 to Milaca and southeast to the line between Minn. and Wisconsin.

All the area south and west of this line is closed to deer and bear hunting.

Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Larson and family visited at the Ludvig Monson home Sunday evening.

Clarice Swenson of Greenbush spent the week end with Evelyn and Beatrice Larson.

Mr. and Mrs. Ole Larson visited at the John Benitt home Friday evening.

Ladies Aid Auction Sale

The Ladies Aid of the Nazareth Church will have their annual Auction Sale on Friday evening Nov. 8. For sale will be several woolen quilts made by the ladies, one especially nice called the Stepping Stone pattern which is hand quilted. There are also several sets of dish towels, bed room sets, table cloth and napkins, aprons, hand knitted socks and mittens.

Beginning at 2 o'clock in the afternoon all the articles will be for sale at a marked price and this selling will continue until 8 o'clock in the evening when the auction will begin. This is done so that those who wish to buy any special articles may do so, and also so that there will be less to sell in the evening. Lunch will be sold afternoon and evening.

With only 39 shopping days until Christmas, this is the place to come and do your shopping for gifts that are nicer than you can buy any other place at such a small price.

Harlan Gunheim left last Monday for Michigan to look for employment.

Shirley Horien left Sunday for Chicago where she will be employed.

Mr. and Mrs. Gust Haugen and family of Fertile visited at the Frank Erickson home recently.

Send us the news.

Attention Voters

In order to prevent my election as Probate Judge some people are saying that I am rich and don't need the office. I am not rich. I own no stocks or bonds. The only bonds I ever owned were the World War Liberty Bonds, bought with borrowed money, just like most of you old timers did, and sold when the war was over. I own a few farm lands mostly in eastern Marshall County. My tax bill to Marshall County is this year more than my total income from the lands I own. If I were to quit working what little savings I have would rapidly disappear. I must work to live the same as all of you do. This argument used against me is most unfair and untruthful.

I wish at this time to thank you all, whether you vote for me or not, for the consideration you are giving me, and I hope that the years to come will bring you happiness and a great deal more prosperity than you have had in recent years.

I'm Thinking Of A Man

I'm thinking of a man, not a political party!

I'm thinking of a man who has served his people well!

I'm thinking of a man who is honest unpredjudiced, fearless and true!

I'm thinking of a man, who in political office has represented his constituents by the dictates of his heart and concience!

I'm thinking of a man, who in common life is a dirt farmer, and who in public office has adhered to legislation of benifit to that class.

I'm thinking of a man who is expending every effort to keep this country out of war!

I'm thinking of a man, who if reelected will continue to render faithful and deligent service to district.

I'm thinking of a man who is experienced, qualified and of proven worth!

That man is Richard Thompson Buckler.

WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS — By Roger Shaw

Election Day Holds National Spotlight; Tension in Balkan States Increases As Axis Demands Greek Concessions; British Carry Air War to German Soil

(EDITOR'S NOTE—When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of the news analyst and not necessarily of this newspaper.)

(Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

THE WAR:

Aerial

There were rumors and counter-rumors about the total evacuation of London, in the face of Goering's aerial bombardment. Old people over 65, school children, and active mothers were advised to leave as soon as possible, taking with them all sick or invalided souls.

About half a million children—more than 50 per cent of the school population—were out of town, and 500 expectant mothers were departing weekly for parts unknown. It was not a cheerful picture. The British government still refused to leave, although an emergency parliament house had been prepared in readiness, at Cheltenham, in the extreme west of England. The board of trade already had announced the removal of its business offices records to the Grand hotel, in an unpronounceable spot in central Wales. The spot was, actually, Llandudno. The British board of trade corresponds to the U. S. Chamber of Commerce.

Reports from London, Berlin and Rome indicated that the British air force had launched a major air offensive against the axis powers in reply to the constant bombings of London by the Nazis.

While the RAF had by no means been idle during the preceding weeks, this current drive seemed to take on more force than heretofore. Invasion ports on the French side of the English channel were severely bombed and shipyards at Bremen were reported blasted. Industrial cities of northern Italy came in for their share of the beating, according to the dispatches from British headquarters.

Disease

The worst news of all was this: Spinal meningitis had broken out. This was due to the fact that nearly 3,000,000 people had been sleeping in unsanitary subways, crowded into unhygienic surroundings. Nerves were wearing out, and so was physical resistance, with an average of only four hours' sleep per night. The "cerebro-spinal fever" was blamed on a nose and throat germ, presumably air-borne. There was further danger of typhoid, influenza, a higher insanity rate, and other attendant ills. It will be remembered that epidemic disease is one of the four grim horses of the apocalypse, and perhaps the worst of the grisly team.

Here is Admiral Sir Harry M. Harwood, who commanded the British forces off the coast of South America when the German battleship Graf Spee was trapped, and now is named Lord Commissioner of the British Admiralty and Assistant Chief of the naval staff.

The Balks

When it came to the Balkans, there was increased tension. Rumania was further occupied by the German invaders. Bulgaria headed straight for the Axis orbit, while British citizens began to decamp from both Bucharest and Sofia. Jugoslavia, squeezed between Italy, Germany, Hungary, Bulgaria, and Italian Albania, signed a new trade and political pact with Hitler, which tied up the Jugoslavs in the German continental system, at least for the time being. Greece was threatened by the Bulgarians and Italians, and was backed up by Russia and Turkey. Greece and Turkey, along with Egypt and Portugal, were still nominal British allies. The Soviets were moving increasingly to the anti-Hitler viewpoint, for a Germanized Balkans did not appeal to the Kremlin at Moscow. The actual military value of the Red army was under constant discussion. Had it found itself, in the last month of the Finnish war? Was the Red aviation any good? Were there any suitable Red generals left alive after Stalin's purges? These were the moot questions, and even the left-eye monocles of the Prussian general staff were in some doubt about Marshal Voroshilov's warbids and warboys.

Reported demands upon Greece by the Axis powers included: (1) immediate severance of economic relations with the British, (2) cession of territory to Italy and Bulgaria, (3) use of Greek air bases by the Axis, (4) abdication of King George of Greece, (5) grant of a right of way to Italy for construction of a major military road.

DEFENSE:

Draftees

Thirty thousand draftees were to be put into the army by November 18, and another 800,000 by June 15. There had been a total of 17,000,000 young men that registered, which topped the forecasts. In reference to these young men, War Secretary Stimson declared: "Only God and Hitler know what will happen to the United States." The army, it was stated, plans to train 900,000 annually for the next five years, which is the life-length of the Burke-Wadsworth conscription bill recently passed by congress. The B-W bill provided that an annual 900,000 was to be the maximum number called up per year.

With America re-arming to the full, the woman's touch is used at the Frankford arsenal, Philadelphia, Pa., to feed these .50-calibre cartridge cases into the machine that tapers them. These cartridges are used in anti-tank guns.

Western

One southwestern Indian was found who claimed to be a member of the German Bund, and didn't want to register. He said he was waiting for Hitler to come and "free" him from the white man, the White House, and the great white father. Some people said that this aborigine was red in more ways than one.

POLITICS:

Wind Up

As the politicians all over the nation were busy winding up their blasts of campaign oratory, American voters were preparing to go to the polls to cast what was expected to be the largest ballot in the nation's history. Major candidates were completing their pleas to the electorate and latest public opinion polls indicated a close presidential race.

On Mr. R.

Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt did not try to predict the result of the 1940 campaign, which was coming to a peak. She said she simply didn't know, and implied she could take it or leave it.

Said Mrs. Roosevelt, who is popular even with the foes of her husband: "As far as the polls go, they mean very little to me. They are so often too much one way, or the other. When you've been the wife of a politician long enough, you learn not to express anything one way or the other, but just go along and see what happens . . ."

Duello

Meanwhile, Clare Boothe and Dorothy Thompson disagreed on the election. Miss Boothe wrote "The Women" and other things. She stood firm for Willkie. Miss Thompson, N. Y. Herald Tribune or no N. Y. Herald Tribune, plumped for Roosevelt. Miss Boothe razzed Miss Thompson, and the Herald Tribune held up Miss Thompson's stuff. There was quite a to-do about it all, with Miss Boothe apparently worsting Miss Thompson in this blitzkrieg of hairpins and cat-calls.

Aircraft Award

In recognition of his "contributions at aeronautical development and the production of many types of aircraft of high performance," Glenn L. Martin (above), president of the aircraft company that bears his name, has been awarded the Daniel Guggenheim medal for 1940. Mr. Martin, shown in his Baltimore office with a model of the first airplane he ever built and in which he learned in 1909, is currently working on two new bombing planes, said to be the largest aircraft of their kind in the world.

A. C. L. U.:

'Reforms'

The American Civil Liberties union used to be called radical. It defended Communists, Nazis, Negroes, trade unions and other varied causes, which was certainly an American way of doing things, but its leaders were sometimes accused of leftist tendencies.

Eleven new members were added to the national committee of the A. C. L. U. They were certainly of an orthodox, and even conservative, type. The new members included Mr. Roosevelt's headmaster of aristocratic Groton school, Dr. Endicott Peabody. Also, interventionistic Robert Sherwood, the famous playwright. Van Wyck Brooks, the blue-blooded author and critic, was another, and so was Pearl Buck, the "Chinese" novelist. Dean Christian Gauss of conservative Princeton university was on the list, and Dr. Frank Kingdon, director of the citizenship educational service. Also, William Draper Lewis of Philadelphia, director of the American law institute, William Allan Neilson, president emeritus of Smith college for women, Bishop Bromley Oxnam of the Methodist church in Boston, and Professor Sophonisba Breckinridge of the University of Chicago.

NATIONAL:

Socialism

Certain gloomy political scientists were maintaining that the blight of national socialism was spreading round the world to all the major countries: Germany, Italy, England, France, Japan, America, etc. In each country, they declared, it varied its pattern, but the basic essentials were always there.

Sad

They said that national socialism now combined the aggressive militarism of the political right with the aggressive socialism of the political left. This united left and right, and made for some sort of totalitarian state. The Churchill government, for example, unites radical labor (under Ernest Bevin) with the military mentality of Churchill himself. Chamberlain, they claimed, represented the last stand of Victorian middle-class capitalism. The Vargas dictatorship in Brazil, the Franco rule in Spain, and the Konoye regime in Japan—militarized and anti-capitalist—were additional samples.

LEOPOLD:

The Belgic

King Leopold of Belgium was accused last June of grave military treachery in the Flanders campaign. They said he let the British and French troops down by making that initial separate peace. France revoked his legion of honor decoration, and the Leopoldine bust was removed from the Belgium pavilion at the New York World's fair. Then, months later, people began to renovate their opinions about Leopold of the Belgians. The Petain government of France restored his legion of honor. The marble Leopoldine bust was restored to the World's fair exhibit. Some 700 people were specially invited to the bustial restoration. The pavilion had been open only two weeks when Leo made his peace with the Hitlerians. The weary months since that time have meant seclusion—for the monarch—in a guarded Belgian chateau, where he rules vaguely and in name only, if at all.

SNITE:

Iron Lunged

About the bravest young man in America is Fred Snite Jr. of Chicago. He has lived for four years in an iron lung, and has traveled in it to distant places. He has married happily and now has an heir. Snite wanted to register for the draft, with his customary pluck and grit.

They appointed Snite senior as a special registrar, and the father registered the son.

NAMES

. . . in the news

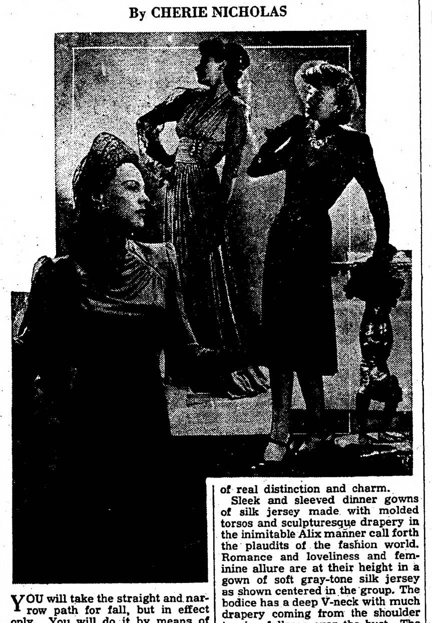
Old Marshal Petain was warned by his fellow politico, Marcel Deat, against any attempt to restore the monarchy in la France. The so-called count of Paris, Henry VI, is the candidate, a funny looking little creature. Petain himself would make a better king, if any. The duke of Guise, father of the present pretender, died last August.

New Silk Jersey Gives Illusion Of Slim, Sculptured Silhouette

By CHERIE NICHOLAS



YOU will take the straight and narrow path for fall, but in effect only. You will do it by means of illusion caused by the artifices of slimming silk jersies, of draping, subtle goring and intricate cut that achieves the effect of simple, slender straightness without losing one feminine curve, one iota of grace or walking comfort.

Right at the head of the silk parade of fall fashions comes daytime dresses, evening gowns, blouses, headgear, cunning little evening shawls and innumerable other accessory items made of silk jersey. For draping and achieving sculpturesque "lines," there is nothing in the entire fabric realm comparable to supple, lovely silk jersey.

Gray silk jersey is endorsed throughout the entire style parade, starting with blouses that will take you from luncheon right through to cocktails and important little dinners. For the most part these have long fitted sleeves, although the below-elbow length is also favored. The attractive blouse to the left in the illustration is typical. It is made with a high neck and curved seams running toward the armhole in front, in order to secure the cowl drapery in pretty precision. The sleeves are long and modish. The draped Persian silk turban gives just the right dash of color to glorify this exceeding chic blouse.

Bewitching are the dark silk jersey afternoon dresses. Because of the slim fall of the material, skirts are cut slightly fuller and there is much shirred and draped detail in bodices that will flatter every type of figure. See to the right in the group a black silk jersey daytime dress. Here the new long torso sculpture draping interprets current styling at its best. The American designer Kievette created this dress of real distinction and charm.

Sleek and sleeved dinner gowns of silk jersey made with molded torsos and sculpturesque drapery in the inimitable Alix manner call forth the plaudits of the fashion world. Romance and loveliness and feminine allure are at their height in a gown of soft gray-tone silk jersey as shown centered in the group. The bodice has a deep V-neck with much drapery coming from the shoulder to give fullness over the bust. The straight-falling generously full skirt slims into lines of infinite grace. Long sleeves accent the new "covered-up" look so definitely high-fashion for dinner gowns this season. The wide figure-flattering, tight draped midriff is enhanced by buckles jeweled with lovely pink moonstones.

Bi-colored silk jersey evening gowns continue to be fashion firsts. These have bodice and apron drapery in one color with midriff and skirt in another, in such dramatic combinations as flame red with black, accessoried with jet jewelry. Black magic also continues in gowns fashioned with sheer silk jersey tops with silk crepe for the skirt or black transparent lace bodices topping heavy black silk jersey skirts—enchanting and slightly wicked.

A "word to the wise" about caring for your silk jersey garments. Because it is a knit fabric, it is best to lay your blouses and dresses out flat in a drawer. And did you know that silk jersey practically never requires pressing as the "live" elasticity of silk reduces wrinkle to a minimum? In case an iron does have to be used, be sure just to place the iron on the spot you wish to press without rubbing back and forth, which would stretch the fabric. Silk jersey cleans beautifully, too, for the inherent characteristics of the fiber means that if the garment is properly cared for, it will not bag or sag or pull at the seams, but will return to its original size and shape. Delightful to wear under winter coats is sleek silken jersey, never too warm, never too cool—just right!

Shows Pompadour

Smart hats for fall and winter are fashioned and worn to show off the new pompadour hair-do. Here are two hats that do just that—play up to the fashionable pompadour coiffures. The one at the top is a youthful version with a big brim that lifts off the face and swoops low to the nape of the neck. The foundation of the hat is black felt with gold, maroon and navy stitching over its entire surface. A trio of quills in gold, red and blue puncture the uplifted front brim. The black velvet dinner hat below was especially designed for the new pompadour hairdress which shows off the forehead so becomingly. It promises to become increasing popular

Spotted Furs Have Become the Vogue

If you keep seeing "spots before your eyes" don't be alarmed. It is simply fashion making a demonstration of what's what in fur coats and fur trimmings.

The tremendous vogue for leopard and ocelot and other of the spotted type pelts is developing almost to an epidemic of spots. When in doubt as to the fur to enhance your new cloth coat, use the spotted kind and you will be fashion correct.

The way spotted furs will crowd the grandstand this year is something to marvel at. There will be entire coats of leopard or ocelot. There will be muff and neckpiece sets with matching hats of the spotted fur. There will be more than that, for huge pockets of spotted fur are adorning cloth coats.

There's no end in sight of the procession of novelty accessory items that will enliven the fall and winter style picture. You will be seeing spotted fur gloves with belts made of the same material. Hand bags to match are available, and lapel gadgets of "spots." Of course the program includes smart headgear of spotted fur to "make good" a complete ensemble.

New Wool Fabric Dress Has Hand-Knitted Section

Knitted sleeves in a wool fabric dress is big news. Attractive jersey dresses in the very new neutral colors take on sleeves and knitted sections. Details such as large pockets, belts and cuff-and-collar sets are done in yarn accurately color-matched.

That Nagging Backache

May Warn of Disordered Kidney Action

Modern life with its hurry and worry, irregular habits, improper eating and drinking—its risk of exposure and infection—throws heavy strain on the work of the kidneys. They are apt to become over-taxed and fail to filter excess acid and other impurities from the life-giving blood.

You may suffer nagging backache, headache, dizziness, getting up nights, leg pains, swelling—feel constantly tired, nervous, all worn out. Other signs of kidney or bladder disorder are sometimes burning, scanty or too frequent urination.

Try Doan's Pills. Doan's help the kidneys to pass off harmful excess body waste. They have had more than half a century of public approval. Are recommended by grateful users everywhere. Ask your neighbor!

Daisy Hot Dish Mat An Appropriate Gift

By RUTH WYETH SPEARS

IT WAS the flower handle of the tea-pot lid that suggested this daisy mat. I had been thinking of making a hot dish out of firmly braided strips of cotton cloth. I wanted it to be thick and sewn firmly like a rag rug, so that it would stand frequent scrubbings. The design had to be novel and gay so that it would be appropriate for a gift or to sell at a church bazaar.

Cotton flannel or heavy cotton knitted material are good to use for the braided strips. Cut the strips two inches wide if the goods is heavy or wider if light weight. Braid tightly and then use No. 8 white cotton thread to sew, as shown. A set of these mats are pretty on the table; and mats for oval dishes may be made by sewing two daisies together.

The Pleasant Way to Correct Constipation

Why let yourself in for all the discomfort of constipation—and then have to take an emergency medicine—if you can avoid both by getting at the cause of the trouble?

If your difficulty, like that of millions, is due to lack of "bulk" in the diet, the "better way" is to eat Kellogg's All-Bran. This crunchy toasted cereal—a natural food, not a medicine—has just the "bulk" you need. If you eat it every day, it will help you not only to get regular but to keep regular, month after month, by the pleasantest means you ever knew! Eat All-Bran often, drink plenty of water, and "Join the Regulars." Made by Kellogg's in Battle Creek. Sold by every grocer. If your condition is chronic, it is wise to consult a physician.

WOMEN IN YOUR "40s"

Read This Important Message!

Do you dread those "trying years" (38 to 52)? Are you getting moody, cranky and NERVOUS? Do you fear hot flashes, weakening dizzy spells? Are you jealous of attentions other women get? THEN LISTEN—

These symptoms often result from female functional disorders. So start today and take famous Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. For over 60 years Pinkham's Compound has helped hundreds of thousands of grateful women to go "smiling thru" difficult days. Pinkham's has helped calm unstrung nerves and lessen annoying female functional "irregularities." One of the most effective "woman's" tonics. Try it!

Decommissioned Subs Go Back to Duty

These submarines, shown tied up at Charlestown, Mass., said their farewell to arms after the World war armistice in 1918. Now they are getting ready to stage a comeback. These eight, and many others, will be recommissioned and returned to duty with the planned Atlantic fleet. The navy expects to have 36 of these submarines ready for duty by January 1. In addition, it has 104 first-line submarines, and 81 more which are now in the process of building.

Instead of a Campaign Button

Here's a new wrinkle, from Hollywood, designed by Max Factor Jr., for a red-hot political campaign. # SEWING CIRCLE PATTERN DEPARTMENT

YOUNG as a giggle, gay as a football tea when the home team wins, this shorty coat and full skirt form a very important chapter in the school life of every junior who knows her fashions—and her public. And every junior who knows how to thread a needle can have two or three versions, inexpensively and easily, by making this new design (No. 8772) for herself.

And she couldn't choose a smarter style! The casual coat has an inverted pleat in the back, and is trimmed with saddle-stitching. The collar turns back in becoming, pointed revers. Gathered onto a wide belt, the skirt is delightfully full. Corduroy, flannel, wool crepe and thin tweed are smart for this.

Our Coast Line

According to United States coast and geodetic survey figures, the continental United States, her territories, possessions and dependencies have a total general coast line of 16,900 land miles. If, however, all inland shores reached by tidal waters up to the point where such waters narrow to a width of three miles is included, the total coast line amounts to approximately 40,300 land miles.—Pathfinder.

WENDELL L. WILLKIE

CHARLES L. McNARY

The New Leaders America Needs

America cries out desperately for new leadership. Nine millions of men are unemployed, here in the richest nation in the world. Six and a half million farmers are struggling in vain for a fair return for their labors. We have the means, here in this boundless America, to provide the jobs needed for our workers and the markets needed for our farmers, if we will only release the chains that have shackled private enterprise under the New Deal and give America a chance to go ahead.

In this crisis, two outstanding leaders present themselves as candidates of the Republican Party for President and Vice President with faith that the nation can meet this challenge and provide jobs for our unemployed workers and parity for our farmers:

WENDELL L. WILLKIE, who has risen from jobs as a harvest hand in Minnesota, worker in steel mills and a tool dresser in oil fields and who says that America can and must be preserved as a land of opportunity.

CHARLES L. McNARY, life-long friend of the farmer, who is fighting for a cause that at last has a chance for attainment under Wendell Willkie—justice for the farmer.

Here are two men who have faith in America. Here are two men whose feet are firmly rooted in the soil—men who have worked with their hands, men who own farms and know that America can prosper only as the men and women who toil prosper. No desire for personal power stirs them. No ambition to meddle in the affairs of other nations or get involved in Europe's wars will ever be charged to them. No scheme for a third term to set aside the processes of democracy and prepare the way for a dictatorship can be expected from these men. Rather they seek to keep America at peace and preserve the liberties and opportunities which have enabled sons and daughters of every land, with equal chance, to find here a richer and more satisfying existence. America, they say, must be kept a land where every boy and girl has a chance.

SENATOR SHIPSTEAD Says:

"This is the most important election in our nation's history, and we must carry the state for Willkie and McNary.

"The challenge of the third term goes to the very roots of our American system of representative government. I am opposed to a third term for any President."

GOVERNOR STASSEN Says:

"Wendell Willkie is fair and friendly to the workingmen and the farmers. He will rely on the advice of that outstanding friend of the farmers, Senator McNary. I feel from my personal discussions with Wendell Willkie that he will prove to be a real friend of the farmer. He believes that it is just as important for the farmer to make a profit as it is for the business man and will help bring about this desirable end."

PAID ADVERTISEMENT: Prepared for Wendell L. Willkie and Charles L. McNary by Minnesota Republican Volunteer Committee, Rollin G. Johnson, Forest Lake, chairman, for which the usual rates have been paid.

General Election Returns

A large vote was cast here at the election on Tuesday when 101 voters went to the polls to cast their ballots for their favorite candidates.

This was the second time since we came here twenty years ago that the village voters have gone out of the Republican column in such a large majority that any other party has carried the village. Hjalmer Heterson carried the village by three votes over Governor Stassen.

The only other time that the Republicans have not been in the lead was during the Floyd B. Olson landslide. Following is a summary of votes cast here.

Scouters Will Count Deer

Deer population studies in cooperation with CCC camps and Boy scouts in the northern big game country were mapped by the Department of Conseruation last week.

Censuses to determine deer numbers in hunting areas before and after the regular season November 15 to 25 inclusive, and to learn how deer make use of game refuges during the shooting period will be undertaken.

For the first time, Boy Scouts in several northern Minnesota districts will cooperate in deer census tabulations under supervision of game wardens. They will concentrate their activities on game refuges.

The plan is to make population counts in several small refuges before the season opens. After November 25, a second deer drive will be made in the areas. In this manner the Department will test the utility of refuges as "safety zones" for deer during the season.

CCC camps will make regular population counts before the season over many areas. The camps will maintain checking stations on roads during the season to determine what percentage of hunters get deer and the length of time required.

Boy Scout population counts will be made in the vicinity of Duluth, Hibbing, Virginia, Eveleth, Brainerd, and across the Red River from Fargo and Grand Forks.

Boy scout officials cooperating in the project include Glen Prather, executive at Grand Forks; Paul Moore, camp official, and H. C. Gilbert, executive, at Fargo; J. D. Wiggins, St. Cloud; Louis Knutson, Brainerd, A. Mattioli of Hibbing and H. E. Barlet of Duluth, executive of the headwater council embracing range cities.

Deer counts will also be made in and around Jay Cook and Gooseberry Falls state parks. The Jay Cooke count which will be made near Thompson in Carlton County, is in cooperation with Park Superintendent W. C. Crandall, while Superintendent Tom Hughes will direct the Gooseberry activities north of Duluth.

Plans will be formulated on Monday evening, Nov. 11, for the organization of a Women's Chorus to supplant the Choir. It is felt that there are many women who would like to organize themselves into a musical organization. The work of this chorus will be under the direction of Mrs. A. W. Carlson. All the women who wish to sing are invited to meet in the Church Parlors of Nazareth Lutheran Church on Monday evening at 8.

Leona Davis Died Suddenly

Holt and community were shocked to hear of the sudden death last Thursday of Miss Leona Davis, 36 year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. T. R. Davis of Viking, formerly of Holt. Miss Davis was attending Teachers' Institute at Hallock when she suddenly passed away.

Funeral services were conducted at the Mission Church at Viking on Monday and interment made in the Ringbo cemetery.

Left to mourn her loss are her aged parents; a neice, Betty Elaine Waagedahl; of Viking and Mrs. C. A. Davis and daughte Margaret and Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Davis and baby of Holt.

Relatives from a distance who attended the the funeral were Lee Hammond from Rochester, O. C. Hammond and Ambrose Dixon from Albert Lea and Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Budlong of Brainerd.

Miss Beatrice Eastby of Gatzke visited at the parsonage last week.

Men's Club Meets Tuesday

The Men's Club of Nazareth Lutheran Church will meet again on Tuesday evening, Nov. 12th.

The Club has been inactive through the late summer and fall months. The speaker for the evening is Dr. John E. Teisberg of Middle River. Dr. Teisberg took up the practice of medicine in Middle River recently, having completed his education last spring. His subject will be one of interest to all who attend. It is hoped that a large turnout of interest to all who attend. It is hoped that a large turnout of men will be on hand for this event.

A birthday party was given for Mrs. Clarence Johnson at her home on Monday afternoon. Those present were: Mrs. C. O. Saastad, Mrs. Paul Olson, Mrs. G. Fricker, Mrs. G. Sanoden, Mrs. H. Engen, Mrs. O. T. Ness, Mrs. S. Lorentson, Mrs. C. A. Larson, Mrs. V. E. Oakey, Mrs. H. O. Hanson, and Mrs. Michaels. A delicious lunch was served and the honor guest received a cash purse.

1940 Call for Red Cross Recruits

The 1940 Poster of The American Red Cross sounds the call to the nation to serve humanity within the ranks of this army of mercy.

KEEPING step with the boys called to the colors in America's new defense army and navy, will be the American Red Cross, fulfilling its mission of service to the men in the line and to their loved ones at home, Chairman Norman H. Davis announced in Washington.

"Several thousand Red Cross nurses already have been called to the colors," Mr. Davis said; "and Red Cross field directors, and thousands of Red Cross workers in Chapters throughout the nation, are ready to help America's soldiers and sailors with personal problems, just as in the 1917-18 World War period.

"Every patriotic man and woman in the United States, who wants to do his or her share in upholding the national defense of our nation, can do so by sharing in the vitally important work of the Red Cross. Join as a member of the local Chapter during the roll call, November 11 to 30, and through your support you will strengthen the Red Cross army of mercy.

"Recruits are needed not alone as members, but also as volunteer workers in the Red Cross Chapters."

Red Cross work will continue undiminished in its usual domestic program of relief in disaster; community public health nursing; safety education and promotion of the Junior Red Cross. An individual membership supports all of this work, not only in Red Cross Chapters, but in the nation. Relief to war victims in Europe is financed by the $20,000,000 war relief fund contributed by the public during the summer of 1940.

Sandhill Cranes Go South

Moorhead, Minn. — One of the rarest of all birds — — the sandhill crane - appeared by the hundreds in southward migration through this vicinity last week to the amazement of veteran wild life observers.

Game wardens reported the unusual influx to the Department of Conservation at St. Paul and a motion picture photographer from the Minnesota Museum of Natural History recorded the spectacle.

At one point 30 miles north and east of Moorhead they observed 300 cranes. Near Rothsay a flock of 600 was observed the same day. The sandhill crane was believed bordering on extinction a few years ago.

Four birds with broken wings, apparently from fighting, were captured alive. Two were presented to the Como Park zoo at St. Paul.

Ashy gray in color with a red crown on its head, the sandhill crane is about four and a half feet tall. It was hunted as a game bird in the early days of Minnesota and in the fall large numbers were placed on sale in markets of the larger cities.

In recent years there have been no regular nesting records in the state. Sandhills have been observed in small flocks on their regular migrations, but the present concentration establishes a new record.

Ladies Aid Auction Sale

The Ladies Aid of the Nazareth Church will have their annual Auction Sale on Friday evening Nov. 8. For sale will be several woolen quilts made by the ladies, one especially nice called the Stepping Stone pattern which is hand quilted. There are also several sets of dish towels, bed room sets, table cloth and napkins, aprons, hand knitted socks and mittens.

Beginning at 2 o'clock in the afternoon all the articles will be for sale at a marked price and this selling will continue until 8 o'clock in the evening when the auction will begin. This is done so that those who wish to buy any special articles may do so, and also so that there will be less to sell in the evening. Lunch will be sold afternoon and evening.

With only 39 shopping days until Christmas, this is the place to come and do your shopping for gifts that are nicer than you can buy any other place at such a small price.

Sharon Lee, infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Starr of Delhi was baptised in Nazareth Lutheran Church on Sunday morning, Oct. 27th. She was born at Redwood Falls on Sept. 4th. Her sponsors were Mr. and Mrs. Harold Nohre of Pembina, N. D. and Mr. and Mrs. O. H. Nohre. Mrs. Starr is the former Ethel Nohre of this place.

Transforming a Box Into Smart Ottoman

By RUTH WYETH SPEARS

PAD the top of a box and slip-cover it; then add a separate cushion three inches thick. The result will be a smart ottoman that either may match or contrast with the cover of your favorite chair. The little feet made of drawer pulls keep the ottoman from looking like a box. A corded seam where the skirt of the slip cover joins the top, and an inverted pleat at each corner of the skirt also give a professional touch. I suggest tacking the slip cover firmly in place as shown in the sketch.

If down or feathers are used to fill the separate cushion, make an inner cushion of ticking with a top and a bottom piece the size of the box top; and a straight three-inch piece around the sides. If kapok is used for filling, this inner cushion may be made of muslin. The cover of the separate cushion has corded seams to match the box slip cover.

Although Roosevelt is officially listed as the thirty-second President of the United States, only 31 men have actually held the office. The discrepancy is explained by the fact that Grover Cleveland is down in American history as the twenty-second and twenty-fourth President—the only President who served two non-successive terms, Benjamin Harrison's term intervening.—Pathfinder.

WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS By Edward C. Wayne

Great Britain Rushes Help to Greece To Assist in Fighting Italian Invasion; First Peacetime Draft Lottery Held; Election Day Ends Spirited Campaign

(EDITOR'S NOTE—When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of the news analyst and not necessarily of this newspaper.)

DETROIT, MICH.—To break the "bottleneck" which is holding down production of fighting planes, William S. Knudsen, head of the national defense advisory commission, met here with heads of the auto industry to lay plans for the mass production of planes. Picture shows, left to right: C. E. Wilson, president of General Motors; Edsel Ford, president of the Ford Motor company; Knudsen; K. T. Keller, president of Chrysler corporation; and Paul Hoffman, president of Studebaker corporation.

GREECE:

Invasion

War came at last to Greece. Trouble had been looming for this country ever since the government rejected Italian demands for territory and for a free and unhampered passage of Fascist troops over Greek soil.

Italian motorized units first thrust themselves over the Greek-Albanian frontier in the mountainous borderland that stretches between the two countries. Then came two air-raid alarms for Athens, the Greek capital, and the war was on. Two of the city's major airports were bombed by the Italian planes in the first raids.

The Greek government officially announced that Great Britain was sending her 'unlimited support" in her resistance to the Italian invasion. From London came word that England's pledge to back up Greece would be immediately fulfilled and a special session of the British war cabinet was quickly called to consider the outbreak of this new war.

Italian sources claimed that the Greeks had been guilty of "provocations" and before the outbreak of actual hostilities, Rome had issued an ultimatum demanding the right for Italian forces to occupy Greece.

England's aid for her new "ally" would logically come in the form of air and naval forces operating from Egyptian bases, informed sources in London said. British men-of-war were immediately steaming out of these bases toward Greek ports, early war bulletins indicated.

What effect this new theater of military operations would have on the decision of the Turkish and Russian governments to cast their lot with either side thus became an important diplomatic question. Turkey's attitude would more than likely depend on how much aid Great Britain would give Greece and upon news of Russia's behavior in the present crisis.

CAPSULES:

Lottery Party

Selective service officials in Washington put all the numbers from one to several thousand in opaque blue capsules; trotted out a blindfold that had been a museum piece since the World war, and the notables of the nation drew them out of a fishbowl, just as was done in 1917.

Every effort was made to make the capsule party as near like its ancestor as possible.

It was the identical blindfold; supposedly the identical fishbowl (though there was some uncertainty about this) they were the same capsules, the same numbers.

And just to make everything perfect, there also was Lieut. Charles R. Morris of Elizabeth, N. J., who dropped down to the nation's capital to complete the picture.

He is the man who blindfolded Secretary of War Baker at the time No. 258 was drawn in 1917.

Lieutenant Morris even stirred the capsules with the same paddle that they were stirred with before.

Selective service headquarters announced the classification of the entire group would proceed, but that the first roll call would probably be small—about 20 per cent of the quota of trainees being summoned in the "first draft."

National Guard generals, after they'd talked things over in Washington, agreed it was improbable that trainees would "get off" with just one year in the army. Said one:

"The emergency probably will not be over in a year—and if it isn't, the army is going to find that they can't make real, efficient shock troops in 12 months. I don't expect either guard or draftees to be back home after a year."

STRETCH DRIVE:

Political Race

Few elections within memory have seen such a "stretch drive" as the two candidates put on while the 1940 race neared its end, with the "big surprise" (to voters of one side or the other) waiting at the "wire" November 5.

The Republican big guns unlimbered, with Dewey, Al Smith and John L. Lewis furnishing the major explosions. Al and his brown derby stepped into the picture against the man who nominated him.

Dewey went "all out" for the man who trimmed him at Philadelphia; and John L. Lewis deserted Roosevelt and jumped clean overboard from the ship of New Deal state, to sink or swim with Willkie.

New features on the political scene were the vanishing of the Literary Digest poll, and the appearance of Dr. Gallup and a half-dozen small-fry copyists, now seeing the thing from one side or another.

Wisecrackers said the "election Galluped along to the finish."

The closing days of the campaign were marked by more booing, yowling and cheering in movie theaters during newsreel political "shots" than the oldest resident could remember.

PRESSURE:

France Gives In

The yielding of the Vichy government to Hitler's demands brought the war to a new crisis, as Britain prepared for a possible naval onslaught on the French fleet at Toulon and other bases. It was believed the new fight might make the 10-minute battle at Oran seem like a picnic.

Pierre Laval's star was in its ascendancy, Paul Baudouin leaving the French cabinet, a move in which British statesmen could find little comfort as Laval is even more anti-British than was his predecessor.

Russia continued to teeter on the brink of trouble in the Balkans. Soviet leaders were invited to participate with the Axis powers in an epochal conference over the final disposition of the lower Danube in consonance with Europe's New Order. Yet Britain continued diplomatic pressure on the Soviet in the hope of keeping Russia a potential aid to Turkey and Greece in the Balkans.

Nazi air pressure relaxed for a couple of days. Londoners got a little bolder about their shopping, and suddenly daylight raiders jammed sticks of bombs into crowded streets. There was great slaughter. Italy proudly announced her planes were taking part in the London bombings.

Radio and press reports from Berlin admitted heavier raiding by British bombers. Chief development in the air was the use of the new type Nazi fighter-bombers, and the report that the R.A.F. was going to bring out a new model plane to combat them. Air losses by both sides were far below those reported in previous attacks, however, and ground casualties also were diminished, although property damage was heavy. British photos showed much destruction in their own country, and meager German reports admitted that Hamburg was hard hit.

Winter Fashions Turn Spotlight On Handsome Jewelry Accents

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

WEAR dramatic jewelry in a dramatic way and your costume will soar to dizzy heights of chic and charm this winter. The technique for the costume ideal as prescribed by current fashion demands that "clothes" be styled with utmost simplicity of elegant choice fabric to serve as a perfect setting for jewelry that is superbly adornful. After you follow this formula of dress to a nicety you can complete the ensemble with a devastating chapeau.

In selecting your jewelry collection keep uppermost in mind that fashion emphasis this winter is on handsome important individualistic pieces, rather than flashy glittery baubles. The smartest of the smart are finding definite appeal in the idea of a gorgeous clip or brooch strategically placed below the shoulder, preferably to one side, to "show off" on the bodice. To this they match up intriguing earrings, which are vastly important this season, an eye-dazzling finger ring and imposing bracelets. To be sure, a necklace may be added, but "the latest" whim of fashion is to concentrate on the clip of artful design and exquisite workmanship.

The illustration herewith tells a fascinating story of current jewelry trends. To the left above in the picture dull finished gold and platinum leaves set with pale yellow sapphires make an unusual clip worn smartly on the lapel of a brown sealskin coat. A tailored bracelet of the same dull finished gold with jewel-set buckle serves as an appropriate companion piece. The casual daytime dress (favorite two-piece type) is of sheer wool with cartridge tuckings at the shoulder and pockets. This stunning frock in neutral color is one of those tailored classics well-dressed women adore.

A beau catcher if ever there was one! She is the cunningly bonneted young girl centered in the group. Bonnet toques of quaint prettiness such as this are the "newest out." The young set like them immensely and wear them most becomingly. This one is of black broadcloth and has velvet ties under the chin. The suit is of the same woolen fabric used for men's tuxedos. Needless to say it tailors beautifully, and with its braid trimming makes a stunning formal costume for town. It's quite the thing, as you no doubt know, to affect masculine fashions both as to materials bought in men's tailoring establishments and details such as blouses cut shirt fashion, and coats that look as if they might have been filched from brother's wardrobe. At any rate the young miss pictured yields to feminine urge when she wears an eye-impelling single jewelry piece of rubies set in gold.

Appropriate for a young girl to wear for afternoon or dinner dates is the winsome jewelry "set" shown above to the right. The ensemble consists of two flower pins, uniquely positioned one below the other on the bodice together with bracelet and ring of unusual workmanship which are well accented against the black of her simple dress.

Soft tweeds, as noted below to the left in the group, make a stunning background for jewels. Here a gold clip with sprays of rubies accents a heather and ruby tweed dress. The bracelet of flexible gold links and gold balls encircled by square-cut rubies is matched by the earrings.

For bridge or informal dinners a black chiffon dress as shown below to the right achieves a sophisticated and perfect background for diamond and platinum jewelry. Earrings? Of course! For earrings are a fashion "must." They are tiny hoops of diamonds. A diamond clip brooch together with flexible platinum bracelet with diamond buckle add infinite style prestige. The only note of color is a resplendent cocktail ring of diamonds and rubies.

New Shape Handbag

Handbag designers continue to present new ideas. Here is the long handbag, low and wide at the base. It interprets a very new silhouette. Inside is a smart detail in the jewel-like wire zipper which protects the safety pocket. A bag with the "new" look like this will impart infinite chic to your winter costume.

Girdle Treatments

New frocks of the slenderizing type have wrapped hips done in gypsy girdle manner. Sometimes the girdle is draped with streamers to the front ending in a deep fringe finish.

Braiding, Quilted Designs Popular

Winter fashions display extreme enrichment in decorative detail worked out in lavish braiding, colorful embroidery and very interesting quilted design.

Many dressmaker suits have jackets that are allover braided in soutache. Braided sleeves and pockets add charm to many of this season's sheer wool dresses.

Evening sweaters and the new long-torso jerkins are all aglitter with all over sequin embroidery. Very new and chic too are draped turbans of fabric that has been colorfully embroidered.

Late Fall Scarfs Are Voluminous

Voluminous evening scarfs made of tulle or chiffon in vivid color are very charming. There is one the full width of the tissue-thin fabric and more than two yards long. Their effectiveness, thrown over bare shoulders when the dress is black or rich dark tone, and extremely decollete is very lovely. It is a grand way to give your black velvet evening dress a dramatic touch and to add the dash of color that flatters.

Tricolor Costume

Tricolor costumes for evening and daytime continue to have the approval of such famous designers as Mainbocher.

THE TRUTH SIMPLY TOLD
Today's popularity of Doan's Pills, after many years of world-wide use, surely must be accepted as evidence of satisfactory use. And favorable public opinion supports that of the able physicians who test the value of Doan's under exacting laboratory conditions.
These physicians, too, approve every word of advertising you read, the objective of which is only to recommend Doan's Pills as a good diuretic treatment for disorder of the kidney function and for relief of the pain and worry it causes.
If more people were aware of how the kidneys must constantly remove waste that cannot stay in the blood without injury to health, there would be better understanding of why the whole body suffers when kidneys lag, and diuretic medication would be more often employed.
Burning, scanty or too frequent urination sometimes warn of disturbed kidney function. You may suffer nagging backache, persistent headache, attacks of dizziness, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes—feel weak, nervous, all played out.
Use Doan's Pills. It is better to rely on a medicine that has won world-wide acclaim than on something less favorably known. Ask your neighbor!

Winona, Minn. — Witch-hazel is blooming on Gwinn's Bluff in Winona county - the point farthest north where this strange shrub is to be found.

The Division of Forestry is displaying a twig with the blossom, the fruit from the previous summer, the seeds and the large oily leaves. The bark is used in manufacture of astringent fluid extracts. Elizabeth Bachman, secretary to the Director of the Division of Forestry, climbed Gwinn's Bluff and found witch-hazel which blooms in October.

The plant is common in the south and central states.

Pioneer School Notes

The fifth graders have been busy working in their home made Arithmetic workbooks.

In first grade Language we learned when to say Thank You. We enjoyed giving little plays to show this.

Joyce Movick received a perfect score in her Science test.

We are studying a unit on China. We enjoy the stories we have read very much. Especially about the Chinese Coolies.

In Science we have had two experiments. One showed that potatoes had starch. The second three things necessary to combustion.

Don't forget the big carnival and social to be held at our school on Nov. 9th. We'll be looking for you.

On Friday we had visitors. They were Elaine and Joyce Johnson, Eloise Saugstad and Marilyn Movick.

Those with perfect spelling papers are: Wilma Movick, Joyce Movick, Harold Ness, Gordon McCullough and Edwin Mikkelson.

Don't forget Saturday night is the big night at Pioneer. Fun for everyone is to be had.

The pupils have been busy helping to get ready for the carnival. We have enjoyed it very much.

On Wednesday we had our Hallowe'en party. A good time was had. The visitors were Mrs. Smith, Mrs. Ness, Mrs. Skjerping, Mrs. Folden, Mrs. Mikkelson, Mrs. Hanson, Mrs. Plymire, Mrs Larson and Gordon and Mrs. McCullough and Delores. The pupils gave a short program. Afterwards fortunes were told, contests held and many other things. Winners in the contests were, Mrs. Smith, Chester, Alf, Harold, Edwin, Lawrence and Donald. In our drawing contest Harold received the prize for the lower grades and Edwin received the prize for the upper grades Honorable mention should be given to Chester, Joyce, Vernice and Gordon.

Those with perfect spelling papers are Wilma Movick, Gordon McCullough, Harold Ness, Edwin Mikkelson and Joyce Movick.

Pupils had vacation on Thursday and Friday because of Institute. On Tuesday we also had vacation because election was held at our school.

Our Club had it's election on Friday. New officers are: Pres. Yvonne Johnson, Vice Pres., Donald Skjerping, Sect., Chester Smith.

We had election in our school. The school voted 7 to 11 in favor of Roosevelt.

Carry Your Registration Card

A warning to men to carry their Selective Service registration cards with them at all times has been printed before in the newspapers of the state, but because of the importance of the announcement to every person who registered, we think the warning should be made public again.

Men must carry their registration cards with them at all times, or they are liable to arrest. Any law enforcement officer - including policemen, highway patrolmen, game wardens, and the like - has the right to ask a man for his registration card. It is now as essential to carry your registration card as it is to carry your driver's license.

It is emphasized that failure to produce the registration card upon request will result in a man's arrest.

Right now, when the idea of carrying the registration card all the time is new, officials do not wish to be too strict about the matter. But within a week or two, there will be a concerted drive to round up evaders of the registration law, and so this warning is again issued.

We think it is of tremendous importance to the readers of your newspapers to be reminded that, to avoid serious inconvenience and embarrassment, men who registered must carry their registration cards with them at all times.

Christmas Tree Capitol

Big Falls, Minn.—"Christmas Tree Capitol of the World" is the title claimed by this community in the heart of Koochiching County.

Hundreds of men are busily engaged in the Christmas tree industry centering in St. Louis, Itasca, Aithin, Carlton and Koochiching counties.

Processing of the trees centers in Duluth. Trees are treated to keep the needles from dropping, sprayed with colored paint and refrigerated for the holiday trade. Many hundreds of women and girls are employed part-time making wreaths and Yuletide ornaments.

Under regulations of the Division of Forestry and supporting laws, perpetuation of the Christmas tree industry in the state is assured.

Farmers Purchase Phosphate

Farmers in Marshall County who operate land needing phosphate or limestone have an opportunity to correct these deficiencies under the conservation materials program of the AAA, it was pointed out today by county agent R. A. Reierron.

Cooperators in the agricultural conservation program are invited in 1941 to purchase phosphate and limestone through government contract. The orders are pooled through the county and state AAA committees, and the cost to the individual farmer is deducted from his 1941 agricultural conservation check.

The phosphate, containing 48 percent superphosphate, will cost $40 a ton delivered to a central point in the county. The government will contract the fertilizer from TVA and commercial fertilizer companies. Farmers interested in securing conservation materials should contact the local AAA committee at once. The county committee will accumulate orders up to a carload or more and submit them to the state committee, specifying an early spring delivery. The agreement calls for the use of the fertilizer only on ground used for soil contervation crops, preferably alfalfa.

In the case of the limestone, the material may be applied to any cropland on the farm. All limestone will be contracted from local dealers under the AAA plan.

General soil surveys have shown that farms of this county are likely to be deficient in phosphorus. If in doubt as to specific needs, it is well to consult the county agent or arrange for suitable tests.

Selective Service Board

Under the Selective Service Act recently passed by Congress provision is made for the appointment of advisory boards for the purpose of furnishing aid to registrants who may need assistance in filling out their questionaires. The following have been appointed Advisory Board of the 14th Judicial District of Minnesota: Martin O'Brien, Chairman, Crookston; H. O. Berve, Secretary, Thief River Falls, and Oscar R. Knutson, Warren. Other persons in various communities in the district have also volunteered their assistance and have been appointed as associate members of the advisory board.

Local men who have been appointed to this associate membership are: G. W. Karvonen, Rev. T. C. L, Hanson and C. A. Larson. Any registrant who does not understand the filling out of his questionaire can go to these men for help in so doing.

Peterson Makes Statement

The people have again spoken in national and state elections. I congratulate the winners.

The big daily newspapers predicted that re-election of the governor was a cinch. Ulterior motive polls showed him with 81 per cent of the vote a year ago, 59 per cent ten day before election, and 67 per cent the day before election, with only 22 per cent for myself on that day. In spite of such erroneous forecasts, which were disheartening to hundreds of my volunteers, they continued their valient work for principles.

I extend my thanks to rural and urban people, organized labor, business and professional people, and the thousands of workers and voters.

A vote of five to one in Askov village, my home for 26 years, and seven to one by the farmers of Partdridge township, adjacent to Askov is gratifyiug.

The people's program, enunciated thru the Farmer - Labor principles and platform, made a good come-back and will win in 1942.——Hjalmar Peterson.

Jean Sorum of Grand Forks visited Sunday and Monday at the C. A. Larson home.

Milton Hanson, Lloyd Gilbertson, Orlin and Ruben Ness made a trip to Grand Forks Sunday.

Much State Land Sold

St. Paul, Minn.—The highest average price per acre in years was paid this year for state trust fund land according to tabulations by the Division of Lands and Minerals.

The average price was $8.96 per acre. In Roseau County one tract was sold for $33 an acre. This was burned over land, easily cleared and particularly adapted for producing clover seed.

A total of 14.063.46 acres were sold for $129,228.75. Many tracts leased by the state from year to year were sold and will be restored to the tax roll.

The highest average was in Wilkin where a price of $12.56 an acre was paid. Other county sales included Clay, with an average of $13.50 per acre; Kittson at $13.50 per acre and Norman county where $12.50 per acre was paid.

Most of the land brought a 10 per cent increase over appraisals made by the state. The results of the sale show an increased demand for state lands.

Mrs. H. O. Hanson and Lois and Milton visited at the Johnny Reed home at Thief River Falls Saturday.

Don't forget to have supper at the Mission church Saturday evening.

1940 Call for Red Cross Recruits

The 1940 Poster of The American Red Cross sounds the call to the nation to serve humanity within the ranks of this army of mercy.

KEEPING step with the boys called to the colors in America's new defense army and navy, will be the American Red Cross, fulfilling its mission of service to the men in the line and to their loved ones at home, Chairman Norman H. Davis announced in Washington.

"Several thousand Red Cross nurses already have been called to the colors," Mr. Davis said, "and Red Cross field directors, and thousands of Red Cross workers in Chapters throughout the nation, are ready to help America's soldiers and sailors with personal problems, just as in the 1917-18 World War period.

"Every patriotic man and woman in the United States, who wants to do his or her share in upholding the national defense of our nation, can do so by sharing in the vitally important work of the Red Cross. Join as a member of the local Chapter during the roll call, November 11 to 30, and through your support you will strengthen the Red Cross army of mercy.

"Recruits are needed not alone as members, but also as volunteer workers in the Red Cross Chapters."

Red Cross work will continue undiminished in its usual domestic program of relief in disaster; community public health nursing; safety education and promotion of the Junior Red Cross. An individual membership supports all of this work, not only in Red Cross Chapters, but in the nation. Relief to war victims in Europe is financed by the $20,000,000 war relief fund contributed by the public during the summer of 1940.

Many Go Deer Hunting

Deer hunting season started with a bang this morning and will continue thru Monday, Nov. 25th. The bad weather the first part of the week made it hard hunters to get out to for their old haunts as many of the trails are snow-blocked and can not be traveled by car.

Several of the local sportsmen have been out and found cabins to stay in for a few days and left here yesterday to be on the shooting range at the crack of dawn this morning. It is reported that deer are plentiful in this county which is all open to hunting this year with the exception of that part west of State Highway 75 in the west end.

Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Flak and family left last Thursday for Minneapolis to make their home where Mr. Flak is employed. That same day their youngest son became ill and had to be rushed to a hospital. Mr. and Mrs. Flak and sons and Mr. L. Flak, Clifford's father, have the past several years been engaged in farming on their farm here and were active members of all the Lutheran orgrnizations here.

Ruth Horien, student at Moorhead State Teachers' College spent Sunday at the home of her father C. E. Horien.

Heavy Blizzard And Snow

One of the worst blizzards to hit here in many a year broke loose from the northwest early Monday morning and by evening had practically all traffic tied up. A lot of snow fell and this was driven by a high wind that piled it up in huge drifts. By evening the main street here was blocked and cars stalled as they tried to come into town for the night.

The storm kept up a steady blow all night and did not quieten down before Tuesday night. School was closed here early on Monday so the children could all get home by daylight. There was no school Tuesday because of blocked roads and stormy weather. The Great Northern train from the south did not go through on Tuesday so we had no mail and the Triangle busses did not go through from either direction. The highway was not blocked up thru this area but visibility was so poor that commercial traffic did not want to take a chance on going out. It was reported that the storm raged over many states and many people lost their lives.

A large crowd attended the Ladies Aid Sale at the Lutheran church on Friday afternoon and evening. The sale amounted to around $106.00 and the lunch collection about $27.00.

Making Your Own Hook Rug Designs

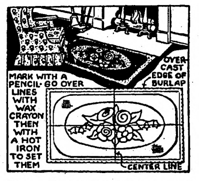
By RUTH WYETH SPEARS

ANTIQUE hooked rag rugs have a special charm because their designs show so much individuality. The women who made them, marked out their own designs on burlap, planned their own color schemes and dyed the rags. To draw a floral design, first make a circle and then a spiral line inside which becomes a rose. Two ovals with a triangle at the base become morning glories. Real leaves from plants and trees become tracing patterns for leaf designs. An oval cut from paper makes a pattern for a center medallion.



OVERCAST EDGE OF BURLAP
MARK WITH A PENCIL-GO OVER LINES WITH WAX CRAYON THEN WITH A HOT IRON TO SET THEM CENTER LINE

When making your own hook rug designs, always leave a hem allowance at least two inches wide to be turned under after the rug is hooked, and be sure to overcast the edge of the burlap as soon as it is cut. Center guide lines through the length and the width of the burlap will be helpful in balancing your design. The flowers and leaves may be cut out of paper pinned on the burlap, this way and that. When you get an arrangement that pleases, trace it to make your pattern.

NOTE: Mrs. Spears' SEWING Book 5, gives more rug hooking designs and further suggestions about how to draw your own flower designs. Also directions for a hook rug in the old-fashioned shell design. No. 5 contains descriptions of the other numbers in the series. To get your copy, address:

Speed of Torpedoes

Most modern type torpedoes can be adjusted before being launched, making their speed vary according to the distance they are to travel. For instance, the most powerful types—about 21 inches in diameter and more than 20 feet long—can travel through water for approximately six miles at a maximum speed of 30 miles an hour before their power is spent. If adjusted for a shorter distance, however, the same torpedo will travel for one, two or three miles at a speed of 40 miles or better an hour.—Pathfinder.

WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS By Edward C. Wayne

Greeks Stall Italian War Machine As British Occupy Island of Crete; Nazi Air Raids on England Slacken; U. S. Calls First Draftees This Month

(EDITOR'S NOTE—When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of the news analyst and not necessarily of this newspaper.)
(Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

In National Limelight . . .

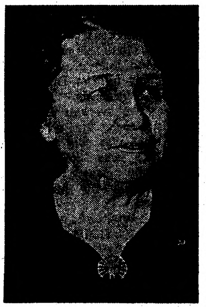
Lindsay C. Warren, former Representative from North Carolina, is pictured as he was sworn in as Comptroller General of the U. S. He replaces Fred Brown, former New Hampshire Senator, who retired due to illness. Warren was sworn in by Judge Vinson, U. S. Court of Appeals.



Senator Hattie Caraway (above), of Arkansas, acted as Senate Majority Leader in the absence of Senator Alben W. Barkley, regular Senate Majority Leader, thereby becoming the first woman to assume those duties in Capitol history.

GREECE:
A 'Dark Horse'

The stand that the Greeks were making against the Italian modern and mechanized army supported by considerable air strength was distinctly a surprise in the war news of the week.

Ioannina (Janina), far from falling a quick victim to the invaders, proved no easy nut to crack and instead of the Fascist troops falling over themselves on the road to Salonika, there were reports that Greeks had bayonet-charged their way into Albanian territory, capturing Biglista.

Whether or not the Italian invasion was bogging down, Count Galeazzo Ciano was rushed from Italy into Albania with instructions to speed up the Italian advance.

At last reports the Turks were sharpening their tools of warfare, all army leaves were cancelled, and it looked very much as though Ankara was getting ready for immediate action in case any of the other Axis spectators "piled on."

British aid was of a concrete nature, as forecast at the outset of the Rome-Athens difficulty. Islands of strategic import have been occupied by land forces, rushed from Egyptian bases.

R. A. F. planes are aiding the Greeks in force, and the battle seems joined on a more equal footing. Where the Albanians stand is still a mystery. Rome has asserted that Albanian units are fighting with the Fascist legions. Greece simply refers to these troops as "irregulars."

British occupation of Crete is variously interpreted. Some observers saw in this move the bottling up by the British Mediterranean fleet not only the Adriatic, but also the approach to the Dardanelles.

ORDERS:
Moving Manpower

The big lottery party in Washington put some 17,000,000 young men where the breeze of conscription could blow about 10 per cent of them into Uncle Sam's uniform for a year of military training.

Those who were carrying serial and order numbers around in their pocketbooks on little white cards were putting red rings around four dates on their calendars.

Late this month the first 30,000 will move toward "$21 a month and room and board for a year."

Another group will have a date with their local boards early in December, and the third and fourth allotments will start for camp, according to present schedules, in January and February.

It is taking higher mathematics to determine the ratio on which the various local boards will select their quotas. But the effort is to make it "even Stephen" according to number of registrants, each board permitted to subtract the numbers of volunteers, also those now serving in the army, navy, marine corps and the National Guard.

Of the 890,000 to be taken, 117,000-odd will come from New York state, but even the most sparsely populated sections of the nation will do their share.

How many will come back to civil life—how many will embrace the army as a permanent career—that is a big question. But the regular officers will do their best, when they find lads with a flair for the military life, to do a job of salesmanship.

The officers' training schools will do their part. When a $20-a-week clerk finds he can bark commands, and gets a yellow bar on his shoulder and a company to order around, what kind of a bet is it that he will want to go back to his desk?

FIFTY-FIFTY:
U. S. Aids British

Reports from London indicated that the pace of German air raids over that city and most of England had shown a decrease in numbers and intensity. Whether this slackening of pace was only temporary these reports could not predict. One thing was sure however: America's aid to Britain is not likely to soon slacken.

Just before the election dust settled down, President Roosevelt, in one of his final campaign addresses, brought the war right into the battle as an issue, and there it stayed for the rest of the race.

Americans were treated to the odd picture of campaign boosts for one side or the other coming, not from our own sidelines, but from across the big pond via short-wave radio.

When the Nazis issued a criticism of Roosevelt defense policies, that was translated by the candidates' supporters, from Flynn on down, as a message that the Nazis were rooting for the election of Willkie. And vice versa.

The war and peace issue, the question of taking sides with one or the other of the European combatants became a real issue.

In the closing days Roosevelt startled the nation by announcing that Britain was getting, would continue to get, one of every two planes coming off American assembly lines.

The U. S. bomb-sight turned out to be two bomb-sights, both better than any now in Europe, one belonging to the navy, one to the army. The latter, not quite so good as the former, was to be released to England, our nation hanging onto the latter, exclusively.

The army bomb-sight was to be put on all planes delivered to Britain and the navy sight was to go on all our own army and navy ships.

AVIATION:
Mishap

Ten persons were killed as an eastbound airliner crashed in a blinding snowstorm in the Wasatch mountains, ten miles north of Salt Lake City, Utah. Bound to Salt Lake from San Francisco, the huge transport was carrying seven passengers and a crew of three. Air officials stated after their first investigation that the crash probably was due to the "failure of the range or radio beam." Last word from the plane came as the pilot radioed he was approaching the Salt Lake airport following the radio beam.

NIBLETS . . . of the week's news

¶ Vichy, France, reports the birth of quintuplets to a French mother, four boys and a girl. The girl died, but the boys are said to be healthy, well-formed and likely to survive.

¶ A rare book sale was held in New York. An early Robert Burns edition brought $15,000, and a presentation copy of "Alice in Wonderland" by Lewis Carroll went for $15,300.

¶ In fall and winter storks migrate from Holland to South Africa. Johannesburg reports finding one that had eluded Nazi censorship. Attached to a leg was the message from a Dutch citizen: "We, inhabitants of Bergen-Op-Zoom tell you that life under Nazi occupation is hell." Another message said, "The Dutch people are dying under injustice."

Inspection

LONDON, ENGLAND.—Prime Minister Winston Churchill and his rarely photographed wife are shown as they watched firefighters during a tour of London docks after a German bombing raid. A special target for German raiders, the docks are important military objectives for their destruction would hamper or eliminate shipping facilities.

HISTORY:
Still Repetitious

During the World war, the nation's fledgling airplane industry was unable to cope with the need for Liberty motors to drive American fighters and bombers.

The work was "farmed out" to auto factories, geared to mass production.

Today the airplane industry is a giant—but the orders for planes and parts for their manufacture have come on such a gigantic scale that history has repeated itself, and once more the industry has proven inadequate to meet the situation.

The industry had geared itself up to better than 1,000 planes a month, but when orders began coming in for 20,000 bombers of one type alone, it bogged down again.

Now Washington is giving orders for plane parts to auto makers, and they are hard at work, tooling up for this process. Even as in 1918.

TRAVELER:
With Umbrella

Sir Neville Chamberlain, umbrella man of appeasement, who saw the Nazi dogs of war howl him out of his post of power in Britain and send him down into the limbo of nonentity in his native land, may end his days in sunny California.

Traveling in utmost secrecy and unheralded, he is said to be on his way to the land of climate and peace, accompanied only by his wife.

Chamberlain's departure from his home shores had its paradoxical side. At Munich he had signed a pledge with Hitler that would mean, as he put it later, "peace in our time"—a phrase that was hurled back in his teeth later when bombs dropped on London.

TWO MEN:
Saga of the Sea

Fishermen, wandering among the dunes on Eleuthera island in the Bahamas, saw a boat with tattered sail grounded on shore, and two spectral forms crawling painfully across the sand.

They were Robert George Trapscott, 19, and Wilbert Roy Widdicombe, 24, able seamen of the late British steamer Anglo-Saxon, shelled and sunk by a Nazi raider 500 miles off the Azores August 21.

Seventy days later, the sole survivors of seven who had cut their way loose from the sinking freighter, they had landed safely on British soil.

Later, somewhat recovered, they were flown to Nassau and told their story, a tale that recalled Charles Reade's novel "Foul Play," and brought reality to the visions of the Ancient Mariner, Robinson Crusoe, Treasure Island and other yarns of sailor men.

NAMES
. . . in the news

KING CAROL, desperate of improvement in his affairs, went out and bought 1,000 sheets of white paper, started to write his memoirs.

AMBASSADOR JOSEPH KENNEDY, who returned from Britain just in time to give support to President Roosevelt by declaring the English needed his re-election.

JACK KNIGHT, airline official, who reported one of his test pilots had flown an army machine at 520 miles per hour, and had driven it straight up in the air, 6,000 feet a minute. (Ed. Note—the fastest elevators go up about 120 feet a minute; and 6,000 feet a minute is close to 120 miles an hour.)

MARY and ITALIA D'ARPE of Brooklyn, charged with throwing an onion at the President. It turned out that they were having a picnic lunch on a roof, tore up newspapers for confetti and the onion got mixed up in the mess.

Star Dust
STAGE SCREEN RADIO

By VIRGINIA VALE
(Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

THE Pennsylvania State Board of Censors recently banned Paramount's "The World in Flames," which is as hard to understand as their banning "The Ramparts We Watch." The official ruling—"In the judgment of the board this picture has a tendency to corrupt and debase morals, and it is not proper."

The picture is a factual record of the past 20 years, and stresses the need of our nation's preparedness. It had its first public showing in Washington, D. C., before an audience of high officials of the federal government, and received the unqualified approval of such national defense leaders as the secretary of the navy and the secretary of war.

*

Henry Fonda's all in favor of living in glass houses. The room he likes best in his own house is the breakfast room, which is built entirely of glass bricks. The light seems to flow from the walls in cheerful, spirit-boosting doses, and he's found it the best cure for before-breakfast blues, even when he has to get up at the crack of dawn to be at the studio on time.

Henry Fonda

Fanny ("Baby Snooks") Brice strings right along with him. She had a huge hole cut in one of the walls of her San Fernando valley home and filled it with glass blocks—they let in plenty of daylight, but as they're non-transparent they don't make her feel like a goldfish.

*

It's news that Paramount won in the scramble to buy the screen rights to Ernest Hemingway's splendid novel, "For Whom the Bell Tolls"—the price was $100,000. It's a story of war-time Spain, with a love story even more beautiful and thrilling than the one in "Farewell to Arms." The hero's role is perfect for Gary Cooper, who's had long discussions with the author about it.

*

"Land of Liberty," the feature picture which was the contribution of the motion picture industry to the New York World's fair and the San Francisco exposition, will be distributed nationally by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer. Plans call for donating the net amount derived from the release of the film to welfare work among soldiers and sailors by the American Red Cross and similar organizations.

Bette Davis

The picture tells the history of America from the days before the coming of the white men to modern times. Included in the list of stars appearing in individual sequences of the story are Bette Davis, Spencer Tracy, Claudette Colbert, James Stewart, George Arliss, Margaret Sullavan, Walter Houston, George Raft, and many other headliners.

*

It took a month for Paramount to persuade one of Detroit's huge automobile companies to let them use the interior of the plant to film scenes for "Reaching for the Sun," a story of the automotive industry. Joel McCrea and Ellen Drew are co-starred, and the cast includes Albert Dekker, Eddie Bracken and Billy Gilbert.

*

Just before Ray Heatherton went on the air for Westinghouse's "Musical Americana" somebody asked him who composed "Annie Laurie," which he was to sing. Somebody else piped up and said, "Robert Burns, of course." Heatherton would have won money on that question on a quiz program, for he happened to know that Burns was no musician, and didn't even write the words of the popular old song.

Furthermore, he knew its history—that it developed as the result of a romance between William Douglas, a young Scotsman, and the real Annie Laurie; because her hard-hearted father objected to the romance, Douglas went off to the Flemish wars without claiming her as his bride. The verses, composed by Douglas, were found by Lady John Douglas Scott, who was a distant relative of Annie Laurie's, and she altered the words and composed the music.

ODDS AND ENDS—Frances Langford's deep voice is attributed to the loss of her tonsils . . . The sponsors of the Tom Mix radio series will continue it, despite his death, as an inspiration to young Americans . . . "Boom Town" has been so successful that Metro is preparing "Leadville," starring Vivian Leigh, James Stewart and Clark Gable; it's laid in the Colorado mining camp in the 1870s . . . If you belong to a Kenny Baker fan club, get ready to celebrate Kenny Baker Day on November 20th. Approximately sixty of the fan clubs have set that day aside as his, and will give him a plaque at his broadcast.

One's Purpose

The longer I live, the more deeply am I convinced that that which makes the difference beteeen one man and another, between the weak and the powerful, the great and indigent, is energy, invincible determination, a purpose once formed and then death or victory.—Nowell Buxton.

Correct Constipation Before—Not After!
An ounce of prevention is worth a pound of emergency relief. Why let yourself suffer those dull lifeless days because of constipation, why bring on the need for emergency medicines, when there may be a far better way? That way is to KEEP regular by getting at the cause of the trouble.
If it's common constipation, due to lack of "bulk" in the diet, a pleasant, nutritious, ready-to-eat cereal—Kellogg's All-Bran—goes straight to the cause by supplying the "bulk" you need.
Eat this crunchy toasted cereal regularly, drink plenty of water, and see if you don't forget all about constipation. All-Bran is made by Kellogg's in Battle Creek. If your condition is chronic, it is wise to consult a physician.

Last Step in Draft Lottery

Col. C. R. Morris, left, stirs the blue lottery capsules containing the draft numbers of 16,500,000 registrants, while Capt. R. B. Davidson pours the last of the capsules into the historic bowl. Note the "second story" added to the famous goldfish bowl after it was discovered the bowl was not large enough to hold the 8,500 capsules.

American Girls in Battle of Britain

These five girls are members of the personnel of the first two units of the American hospital now operating "somewhere in southern England." The hospital is sponsored by the Allied Relief fund. There are 17 Americans on the staff, 12 of whom are doctors, surgeons and technicians. The British caption did not give the names of these girls.

Breaks Neutrality

Frank McElherron of Philadelphia, who was arrested on returning from a trip to Scotland, for breach of the neutrality law. The law forbids any American citizen, with certain exceptions, from going into war areas defined by the President. This is the first case of arrest for violation of this law.

. . . Pre-views . . .

National 4-H Club Congress Meets

The nineteenth annual 4-H Club congress will meet in Chicago November 20 to December 7. Scenes shown above will be repeated again this year with contests in judging (upper left) and live-stock raising (lower left). The 1939 Health Kings and Queens are pictured (right) beneath their crown. The congress will be attended by about 1,400 rural boys and girls.

Conscript

This week the first group of conscripts will be mobilized. A private displays the clothing and equipment conscripts will receive. He carries all these in the field.

A. F. of L. and C. I. O. Convene Same Day

Lewis, who has been leading the C. I. O.

Half-Way Mark

The Philippine Islands, under the guidance of President Manuel Quezon, pass the half-way mark to independence on Nov. 15. In 5 years they will be free in accordance with the Tydings-McDuffie bill passed five years ago.

Patterns
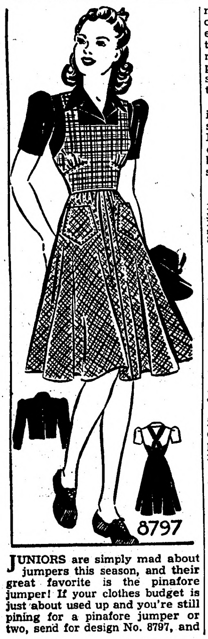
SEWING CIRCLE



JUNIORS are simply mad about jumpers this season, and their great favorite is the pinafore jumper! If your clothes budget is just about used up and you're still pining for a pinafore jumper or two, send for design No. 8797, and make yourself this perfectly charming style at practically no expense. It's dee-vinely flattering to your figure, with soft front fulness in a skirt that sways and ripples gracefully with your every step, and a corselet waistline, topped by gathers.

The wide straps button across in the back, you see, making it stay put securely on the shoulders. Make the jumper of plaid wool, corduroy, jersey or velveteen; the blouse of flat crepe, challis or jersey. Detailed sew chart included.

* * *

Pattern No. 8797 is designed for sizes 11, 13, 15, 17 and 19. Size 13 requires 2⅝ yards of 54-inch material for jumper; 1⅞ yards 39-inch material for short-sleeved blouse; 2 yards for long-sleeved. Send order to:

Beyond Shadow of Doubt It WAS the END!

A certain actor was fond of telling his friends what he would accomplish when he had a speaking part. He would show them some real acting.

Eventually he was booked for a coming production. He was to appear in a scene and say: "It is."

For three weeks he rehearsed nightly before his mirror, trying all sorts of gestures, expressions, tones, until he felt perfect.

The eventful night arrived. The actor impatiently waited his cue. It came. "And so this is the end?"

With his best tragedian air he stalked to the center of the stage, and in a voice of thunder cried: "Is it?"

In Memoriam

In Memoriam of our dearest Ernest who passed away one sad year ago November 18, 1939.

You have left us, dearest Ernest
For your home beyond the sky.
God thought it best to ease your suffering
So he called you home on high.
We miss you dearest Ernest
Every day it seems so long
But when we think of how you suffered
We will breathe a prayer and song
Yet again we hope to meet thee
When the days of life are fled
And in Heaven with joy to greet thee
Where no farewell tears are shed.

Sadly missed by Agnes Nohre and Mother.

Election Sidelights:

Both presidential candidates carried their own home voting districts. Roosevelt received a majority of 74 votes to win, 376 to 302; Willkie's native town gave him a margin of 438 votes. The count was Willkie, 4,151; Roosevelt, 3,713.

• • •

Post-election celebration kept Manhattan firemen busy after Roosevelt's victory became apparent. More than 50 fire alarms were turned in as a result of street bonfires set by celebrants.

• • •

In order to record the electoral vote the 531 presidential electors will gather on December 16 in their various state capitals and send their votes to Washington by registered mail. These letters will actually be tabulated by Congress on January 6 and President Roosevelt will be sworn in for his third term on January 20. Members of the electoral college used to get a trip to Washington but in 1934, congress decided that its duties were too routine and turned it into a "correspondence school."

HOLT WEEKLY NEWS

Issued Weekly From The Home Of The Biggest Co-operative Creamery In Marshall County

H. O. Hanson, Publisher; Mrs. Mabel Hanson, Editor Holt, Marshall County, Minnesota, Friday, Nov. 22, 1940. Volume 30, Number 30

Pioneer School Notes

The carnival held Saturday night was a great Success. Much fun was had by everyone. Miss Plymire appreciated the help the parents gave and to all the others who helped make the evening a success.

Winners were Lloyd Anderson Ray Gusa, Mrs. Movick and Amanda Fosholm.

Report cards were given out for the second period. Those who have not missed this period are: Vernice Smith, Joyce Movick, Yvonne Johnson, Wilma Movick Chester Smith, Gordon McCullough, Harold Ness, Betty Ness, Joel Vattendahl, Earl Ness and Donna Hanson. The first eight have not missed a day since school started.

Mrs. Movick visited school on Friday.

Those who had a perfect score in spelling are: Vervice Smith, Wilma Movick, Harold Ness, Keith Movick, Betty Ness, Donald Skjerping and Joyce Movick.

The second grade is busy studying the poem, "Moon, So Round and Yellow" in Language Class. In Arithmetic we are studying subtraction and have learned many problems.

The third graders are very much interested in their new problems centering around the multiplication of two's and threes's.

On November 11, the pupils listened to the Armistice Program over the radio.

A large number of people from Holt attended the Luther League meeting at Middle River on Sunday evening. The League from here furnished the program.

The Lutefisk supper served at the Mission church Saturday evening was a decided success. Although the ladies were prepared to serve many more people than they did, all who attended wore well satisfied. The proceeds were around $26.00.

Lorna Peterson left last Sunday for Thief River Falls where she will be employed.

Special Eye Bulletin

St. Paul, Minnesota— Every eye doctor has seen pathetic old people, who have bought one pair of glasses after another to help their failing sight only to find that they wasted both time and money.

Worse than that, they have thrown away their chance to halt a serious disease which leads to blindness if it is not discovered and treated early.

The Minnesota State Medical Association's Committee on Public Health Education calls attention to these people in a special bulletin issued today to caution against neglect of common eye troubles particularly after middle age.

"One of the most commonest causes of blindness in Minnesota is Glaucoma," the doctors point out in this bulletin. "If glaucoma is discovered early it can be halted and eye sight can be saved. The trouble is that the first symptoms are deceptive. A little mistiness of vision is sometimes the earliest sign. Dull headaches and bloodshot eyes are danger signals and also narrowing vision."

To try one pair of spectacles after another when these signals are present is to court disaster, the doctors say.

Glaucoma is a condition in which pressure of fluids within the eye produces hardening of the eyeball. Gradually the optic nerve is destroyed if the pressure is not relieved and once destroyed the nerve never functions again.

Glaucoma can sometimes be controlled in early stages by medicine. In a large number of cases surgery is necessary to permit escape of fluids and relief of pressure. A careful examination by a qualified physician is necessary, the doctors declare, to discover and control this grave disease.

Mr. and Mrs. I. A. Hovrud arrived here last week from Oregon for a short visit.

Many Turkeys Sold Here

25,500 lbs. of turkeys were shipped out of here for the Thanksgiving market through the Farmers' Co'op Creamery. Mr. Larson, manager, states that it is the highest total ever handled at the creamery for the Thanksgiving market.

Nils Johnson of St. Hilaire, formerly of Holt, returned to his home Saturday. He has been seriously ill at St. Luke's Hospital at Thief River Falls with pneumonia.

Fosholm-Christopherson

Miss Gelia Fosholm daughter of Hans Fosholm, became the bride of Herman Christopherson of Thief River Falls on Thursday of last week. Miss Fosholm has made her home at the Hans Fodstad home east of Thief River Falls for the past several years.

The wedding ceremony was read at the Mavie Lutheran parsonage with Rev. E. O. Sabo officiating. Their attendants were Amanda Fosholm and Carl Christofferson.

The newlyweds will make thier home east of Thief River Falls where the groom is engaging in farming.

Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Carlson made a business trip to Minneapolis Tuesday. On their return they stayed at Bertha to spend the Thanksgiving holidays at the home of Mrs. Carlson's parents.

To the voters of Marshall County:

Since I cannot see you personally to express my appreciation for your support and vote in the election, I am using the good medium of the Holt Weekly News and herewith extend my thanks and sincere appreciation for your support and good will, and for the confidence you have expressed.

Yours very truly,
Nels M. Engen.

THANKS

I take this means of expressing my appreciation to the voters who supported me in the last campaign and election, and I shall do my utmost to merit the confidence you have placed in me. I am especially grateful to the volunteer committee for the work they did in my behalf. With best wishes and thanks to all of you, I am,

Respectfully yours,

1940 Call for Red Cross Recruits

The 1940 Poster of The American Red Cross sounds the call to the nation to serve humanity within the ranks of this army of mercy.

KEEPING step with the boys called to the colors in America's new defense army and navy, will be the American Red Cross, fulfilling its mission of service to the men in the line and to their loved ones at home, Chairman Norman H. Davis announced in Washington.

"Several thousand Red Cross nurses already have been called to the colors," Mr. Davis said, "and Red Cross field directors, and thousands of Red Cross workers in Chapters throughout the nation, are ready to help America's soldiers and sailors with personal problems, just as in the 1917-18 World War period.

"Every patriotic man and woman in the United States, who wants to do his or her share in upholding the national defense of our nation, can do so by sharing in the vitally important work of the Red Cross. Join as a member of the local Chapter during the roll call, November 11 to 30, and through your support you will strengthen the Red Cross army of mercy.

"Recruits are needed not alone as members, but also as volunteer workers in the Red Cross Chapters."

Red Cross work will continue undiminished in its usual domestic program of relief in disaster; community public health nursing; safety education and promotion of the Junior Red Cross. An individual membership supports all of this work, not only in Red Cross Chapters, but in the nation. Relief to war victims in Europe is financed by the $20,000,000 war relief fund contributed by the public during the summer of 1940.

STAGE ☆ SCREEN ☆ RADIO

By VIRGINIA VALE

(Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

IN HOLLYWOOD apparently one of the first things a young actor has to learn is when to quit a job, if staying is likely to be a bad idea.

For example, there's Allan Jones. He left Metro, because he didn't like the kind of parts he was getting, when he got them. Margaret Lindsay left Warner Brothers. After a while they landed the romantic leads in "There's Magic in Music," and now there's a big demand for them.

Margaret Lindsay

Cary Grant and Jean Arthur departed from Paramount —and now look at them! Dick Powell and Joan Blondell left Warner Brothers and nice, fat salaries; now their "I Want a Divorce" shows that they were right in deciding that he wasn't just a singer and she was something more than a slap-happy girl.

Allan Jones

The list goes on and on and on. Fred Astaire left RKO, Paulette Goddard left Hal Roach, to become one of Paramount's most popular players; Basil Rathbone gave up a fat contract at Metro because he was sick of appearing in drawing room comedies; Marie Wilson left Warners and dumb dame roles, to become a sophisticated, glamorous woman in Paramount's "Virginia."

Madeleine Carroll left Walter Wanger to star for Paramount. Metro was perfectly willing to let Deanna Durbin go elsewhere, a fact from which certain executives will probably never recover, since Joe Pasternak developed her into one of moviedom's most valuable stars.

—*—

Virginia seems to be the most popular state in the Union, so far as movie makers are concerned. What with "The Howards of Virginia," "Virginia," and now "The Vanishing Virginian," which Metro has just purchased, you can hardly escape it for long if you go to the movies.

—*—

Knox Manning, one of the best-known news commentators, walked right into luck recently when he used a Scandinavian dialect on the air. Director Tay Garnett and Producer Richard Rowland were trying to find a performer who could both look and talk a certain role in "Cheers for Miss Bishop." Garnett happened to turn on his radio, heard Manning for the first time—and now the radio man will appear in support of such experienced performers as Martha Scott, William Gargan, Dorothy Peterson and Sterling Holloway.

Quite a few years ago, when he was a student at Yale, Beirne Lay Jr. spent 50 cents to see a picture called "Wings," and the course of his life was changed. He decided to be an aviator, and to write about flying.

That was in 1928. He decided to go into the air corps; in those days it took longer than it does now, but he was finally admitted to Randolph field in 1932, and was graduated the next year from Kelly. Then he began writing. He got a lot of rejections, but he stuck to both flying and writing, and was on his way to fame.

Last year, after he'd sold some articles on flying, his book, "I Wanted Wings," appeared. Paramount bought it. He thinks that proves the truth his own story offers—that a man who has freedom and future in America can get anything he wants if he'll try hard enough.

In New York city, Doris Dudley, star of the air's "Meet Mr. Meek," entertained members of the cast at a party in her haunted house. When photographers ushered them into the room where George Weinberg, member of the underworld, either was killed or committed suicide, and asked them to pose over the spot where the non-eradicable blood stains show, one chap gasped, turned green, and got out as quickly and quietly as possible. He was Frank Readick, formerly the bloodthirstiest villain on the air—The Shadow!

ODDS AND ENDS

¶ Three spectacular airplane crashes will be featured in "I Wanted Wings"—but no matter who seems to be crashing, Paul Mantz, veteran stunt pilot, will probably be the lad who does the flying leading up to the accidents.

¶ You may not consider Peggy Diggins, Warner's discovery, "The Most Beautiful Irish Girl in America," but she's pretty enough to have the second feminine lead in "Footsteps in the Dark," opposite Errol Flynn.

¶ And the British can hardly wait to see Charlie Chaplin as "The Great Dictator."

¶ In spite of daily air raids, "Gone With the Wind," is in its 18th week in London.

Hook Posy Pad for Chair or Foot Stool

By RUTH WYETH SPEARS

WHEN I made the sketch in Sewing Book 5 showing the method that our Grandmothers used for making original hooked rug designs, I forgot that Grandmother did not wear silk stockings every day. There have been dozens of letters saying, "I would like to hook the flower designs for which you give directions in Book 5. Will you please tell me if I can use old silk stockings for these?"

Silk stockings may be used for hooked rugs but they do not wear as well as woolen materials. They are perfect for hooked chair pads, foot stool tops and wall hangings. All the popular stocking colors may be dyed soft green, red and brown tones, without first removing the tan color. "White dye" should be used first if bright colors are needed. After dyeing, cut a strip around and around the stocking spirally, making it from ¾ inch to 1½ inches wide according to how fine the work is to be. When your design has been marked as described in Book 5, draw the stocking strips through the burlap with a rug hook.

WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS By Edward C. Wayne

Rough Weather Aids Greek Troops In Fighting Off Invasion by Italians; Kennedy Urges U. S. Aid for England; Soviet-Nazi-Fascist Diplomats Meet

(EDITOR'S NOTE—When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of the news analyst and not necessarily of this newspaper.)

(Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

President Roosevelt was guest of honor and No. 1 off the record speaker at the National Press club's annual dinner for the Chief Executive. Wendell Willkie, who had been invited, was not present. As usual, there was plenty of "panning" at the expense of the President and other high government officials. Picture above shows: (left to right) President Roosevelt; his bodyguard, Thomas Qualters; Richard Wilson, president of the National Press club and Vice President Elect Henry Wallace, just before they sat down to dinner.

DEBACLE:
Fascists Meet Greeks

The Greeks, aided by heavy storms and mountain torrents, claimed to have dealt a crushing blow to the Italian armies attempting invasion.

The Italians, using the accepted German formula of "pincers" invasion, were attacking boldly on two fronts, the left flank moving from Koritza as a base, and the right flank smashing southward close to the Adriatic coastline toward Ioannina (Janina or Yanina).

The right flank was making some progress, and at points had crossed the critical Kalamas river. The left flank, however, never had made any advances, and it was there, in the vicinity of Koritza, that the Greeks claimed their first and continuing successes.

Latest dispatches indicated that these successes were colossal. Thirty thousand Italian troops were first described as trapped, then nearly half of them cut off and captured, and finally thousands of them caught in a mountain torrent in a gorge and drowned.

Cut to pieces, London has heard, is one of Italy's crack divisions of Alpini, or mountain troops, called the Centaur division. Trapped in the Pindus mountains, the Greeks say it has been annihilated.

There was wild enthusiasm in Athens and throughout the nation. Added to this was the favorable report from the Kalamas river sector, where the Greeks reported the mechanized advance had been halted in its tracks and forced to take up defensive positions.

Heroes of the Greek victory seem to have been the Evzones, or mountain guerrilla troops, who have been clipping away at the Italian columns in a manner reminiscent of the Finnish depredations on Russian troops during the early days of that war.

Like the Russo-Finnish war, however, it is too early to write the attempted Italian invasion down as a failure, for there are other quarters, notably Russia and Germany, to be heard from.

While Italy has admitted no reverses, it was considered significant that Italian dispatches told of Greek attacks.

AMBASSADOR:
Speaks Out

Sensation was sprung by U. S. ambassador to the Court of St. James, Joseph P. Kennedy, who suddenly abandoned the hush-hush role of the diplomat, and in a copyrighted interview published by the Boston Globe told what he thought about the war and where Europe is heading.

Summed up in brief, Kennedy said:

1. England is holding out, but fighting with her back to the wall for her existence.

2. Democracy is dead, and Britain is not fighting to restore it, but to save herself from annihilation.

3. Out of it all will come some form of national socialism in Britain, in this country, too, if we get into the war, or if we catch it from Canada.

4. Aid given to Britain and her allies is "insurance" to give us time to prepare.

5. We should give and expect nothing back, simply "writing it off" as protection.

6. He said he told President Roosevelt "don't send me admirals and generals, but economists to study the situation."

SIDELIGHTS
. . . in the news

¶ An election aftermath in many communities was the public burning of all campaign literature as a gesture of "unity." In Salina, Kan., they had a fine blaze. In Tacoma, Wash., the gesture was a "flop." Reason—nobody showed up with anything to burn.

¶ The Civil Liberties Union has announced itself ready to aid in the legal defense of eight German-American Bundsmen charged with making anti-semitic speeches at Camp Nordland, Andover, N. J.

¶ The Chinese have invented a three-story bamboo "basket" which is placed on the roofs of important buildings to catch Japanese bombs. It works, too, according to neutral observers.

¶ A draftee in Washington, D. C., turned down because of ill health, leaped to his death from Rock Creek park bridge.

CHAMBERLAIN:
'Peace in Our Time'

Neville Chamberlain, tall, lean statesman who led Britain from the Munich appeasement through the first eight and one-half months of war with Germany and then resigned as prime minister, died at his Hampshire countryside estate. He was 71. Chamberlain's long record of service to his country was climaxed by work as prime minister in the hectic days before the outbreak of the present war. He gained world-wide recognition with his attempt to "appease" the dictators in the now famous Munich pact of Sept. 30, 1938.

TRIPLE THREAT:
Diplomats Gather

The Axis Allies have been described by observers as a "near-triangle" in which two of the sides do not quite meet.

In other words, Italy and Germany touch and unite, but the Russian side of the triangle, while apparently touching Germany, has not united with Italy.

The first triple threat was noted in the meeting of diplomats from Russia and Germany in Berlin, with Ciano announced as the third to be invited and to have accepted.

Purpose of the meeting, to discuss the Italian-Greek-Balkan situation. The Turks were frankly worried over the conference, having hoped to have found Russia aloof to the Axis move toward the Black sea and the Mediterranean.

The Turks have been willing to throw in with Greece if necessary, but had hoped it wouldn't be necessary. If Russia finally has decided to take an active part in the Macedonian situation with Germany, giving active aid to Italy, then Ankara saw itself up to the neck in the war, with dubious hopes of victory.

Bulgaria's position was the greatest threat to Turkish non-intervention, and it was in that direction that the Turks were casting anxious eyes.

That the Russian visit to Berlin might eventually have a far different outcome than that apparent on the surface was seen in many quarters as a possibility. There was believed to be little Russian sympathy for either Italy's or Germany's aims in Europe, and historians who remember the treaty of Tilsit in Napoleonic times have long wondered whether Russia may be planning to toss her allies overboard at the last instant, and go out for herself again.

POLLS:
Straws vs. Votes

Harold L. Ickes, just before election, sent the polls, or straw-votes, flying in the wind with his statement that if he had his way, newspapers would be barred from publishing them.

Immediately after election, each of the many polls, the Gallup poll, the Crossley, the News, the Wall and others, came out with articles explaining just how accurate they had been.

PATTERN DEPARTMENT
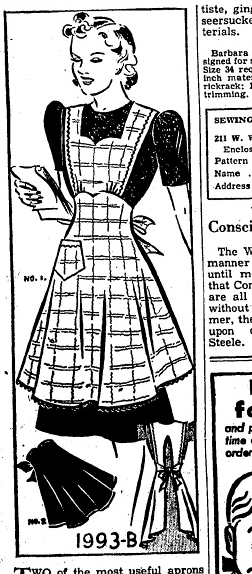
SEWING CIRCLE



TWO of the most useful aprons in the world are yours in this one simple pattern (No. 1993-B). One is the all-protective type that you rely on to keep your dresses clean while preparing supper. The other is the more or less decorative little tie-around that you wear when serving afternoon tea. Notice the special virtues of the coverall. It protects the top as well as the skirt of your dress; it goes over your head and ties in a jiffy. It's so cut that it can't slip from your shoulders.

Just leave off the bib part of the coverall, and you have the high-cut, saucy little tie-around. Batiste, gingham, linen, percale and seersucker are pretty apron materials.

Election Sidelights:

Both presidential candidates carried their own home voting districts. Roosevelt received a majority of 74 votes to win, 376 to 302; Willkie's native town gave him a margin of 438 votes. The count was Willkie, 4,151; Roosevelt, 3,713.

• • •

Post-election celebration kept Manhattan firemen busy after Roosevelt's victory became apparent. More than 50 fire alarms were turned in as a result of street bonfires set by celebrants.

• • •

In order to record the electoral vote the 531 presidential electors will gather on December 16 in their various state capitals and send their votes to Washington by registered mail. These letters will actually be tabulated by Congress on January 6 and President Roosevelt will be sworn in for his third term on January 20. Members of the electoral college used to get a trip to Washington but in 1934, congress decided that its duties were too routine and turned it into a "correspondence school."

Mrs. C. A. Larson and Geraldine, Calvin and Allan spent the week end at Crookston and also attended Mrs. Larson's cousin's wedding.

HOLT WEEKLY NEWS

Issued Weekly From The Home Of The Biggest Co-operative Creamery In Marshall County

H. O. Hanson, Publisher; Mrs. Mabel Hanson, Editor — Holt, Marshall County, Minnesota, Friday, Nov. 29, 1940. — Volume 30, Number 31

Village Pays $7.000 Bonds

At a special meeting of the village council of the village of Holt which was held on Monday evening, November 25th., the Council accepted the final payfrom the Interstate Power Co. covering the unpaid balance due on the electric light contract with the village.

The council at the same time ordered the payment of the $7,000.00 bonds held in connection with the sale of the electric light system to the Interstate Power Co. These bonds were issued in 1924 and due in 1944 and will be paid in advance. Although these bonds have never been a direct tax obligation of the village they have been a bonded obligation and this payment will now reduce the bonded debt to $6,000.00. The remaining bonds of the village come due in amounts of $500.00 per year and the bond due April 1, 1941 has already been paid.

At the same meeting the village council renewed the lease with the interstate Power Co. for a term of 20 years and also entered into a new street lighting contract with the company. Under the new arrangements, the village may have street lights at all times under a much cheaper rate than the old contract.

A complete publication of the franchise and the new street lighting contract with the Interstate Power Company will be published in the News at a later date.

Double Wedding Here Saturday

On Saturday morning at 9:30 o'clock a double wedding was performed at the parsonage of the Nazareth Lutheran Church, when Marilyn Oakey became the bride of Robert Forder of Holt, and Yvonne Oakey became the bride of Roy Hanson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Hanson of Twin Valley. The young brides who are sisters, are the daughters of Mr. and Mrs. V. E. Oakey of this place. Yvonne was attired in a winterberry sheer crepe gown with fur fabric trim and black accessories. Marilyn's gown was a blue sheer crepe with black accessories.

Rev. T. C. L. Hanson read the double ceremany after which the young couples left for a short honeymoon to Twin Valley and other points.

The grooms are employed by the Federal Government. Mr. Hanson has the job as chief mechanic at CCC camp 710 near Thief Lake east of Middle River and Mr. Forder is Game Warden on the Mud Lake Federal Game Refuge east of Holt. The Newlyweds will make their homes near their work. Mr. and Mrs. Forder will live in the new set of buildings constructed on the Webster place near the north tower in the Mud Lake refuge and Mr. and Mrs. Hanson will make their home at the Thief Lake headquarters.

The newlyweds have a host of friends who wish them happiness. The News extends congratulations.

Band Notice

All members of the Holt Community Band are requested to be present at the next Band Rehearsal Dec. 3rd 1940 at 8:30 p. m. Some important matters will be taken up at this meeting.

NATIONAL DEFENSE ★★★★ AND BEER

OUR Government will require everybody to participate in the cost of National Defense.

The Federal Government from July 1st has levied an additional Federal Excise Tax of one-dollar-per-barrel on draft beer as a National Defense tax.

The new Federal Excise Tax of one-dollar-per-barrel, thus makes a total tax of $6 per barrel. This will increase the Federal Excise Tax for Minnesota Brewers for the 1940 Fiscal Year to approximately $15,184,000, or about $2,500,000 over 1939. This means the Brewing Industry of the Nation will pay over $300,000,000 Federal Excise Taxes during 1940.

Beer is the popular national beverage of moderation and sobriety, and the new Federal Excise Tax will produce a large revenue for the National Defense. The sale price of draft beer will increase one dollar per barrel . . . with proportionate increase per case on bottled beer. This additional tax on a case of twenty-four 12-ounce bottles will be 8 cents.

Inasmuch as the increase in the cost to the retailer is only 1/3 of a cent per bottle the cost to the consumer should not be increased.

Two Deer Hunters Killed

Two young Marshall County men lost their life in the deer hunting season which closed on Monday. The first victim was Lawrence Gram of Gatzke. He in party with several relatives was hunting south of the Erling Giltvedt farm in Beltrami county about 15 miles east of Gatzke when the accident happened.

Mr. Gram had shot a deer and finished dressing it and the gang had all gotogether and had their lunch. He started off for the afternoon hunt and was only a few rods from his companions when a stray bullet hit him. The bullet entered one hip and came out thru the other hip, smashing all bones and tearing all the lower intestines. Being drilled in this manner he had no chance to survive. The other hunters had to carry him over a mile before they got to their cars and rushed him to a hospital at Thief River Falls.

The accident happened about noon on Saturday the second day of the season and Gram lived until 5:30 that afternoon. He was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Benson Gram of Gatzke. Mr. Gram was 25 years of age and was married last December. He was employed as mechanic at the garage in Gatzke.

The other victim who also was shot on the same day was Lawrence Sandland, son of Mr. and Mrs. Gunnuf Sandland of Grygla. Mr. Sandland together with relatives was hunting about seven miles northeast of Gatzke when one of his own party mistook him fos a deer and shot him thru the chest and right lung about four o'clock in the afternoon. He too, was carried out of the woods about three fourths of a mile on a crude stretcher and rushed to a hospital at Thief River Falls where he died early the next morning. He was 21 years old and a single man.

Milton Hanson, one of the hunters from Holt was near the Sandland boys when the shooting took place and helped what he could in getting the young man out to the road.

The hunting party from Holt of which Milton was a member, had just left the area in Beltrami county about and hour before Mr. Gram was shot. They had spent the morning hunting four miles away from the section in which Gram was hit. It was close to their cabin on Randen ridge, where the hunted in the afternoon the same day that young Sandland was shot.

Annual Village Election

The Annual Village Election of the Village of Holt will be held in the Village Hall on Tuesday, December 3, 1940, between the hours of 9:00 A. M. and 5 P. M. of said day.

Tax Collections Increased

Tax collections have shown an appreciable gain in Marshall county during the past year with a total increase of $63,181.01 from January 1 to November 1, 1940, over a similar period in 1939, according to records in the office of P. E. Kvikstad, county treasurer.

During the June 1 to November 1 period, tax the collections gained $28,544.22 over 1939, this figure including a $20,552.04 increase in current tax payments and a $7,992.18 gain in delinquent tax payments, a comparison of figures reveal.

Total collections until November 1 this year reached $490,342.56 while during the same period a year ago the collections reached only $427,162.55. Current collections for the period of June 1 to November 1 this year were $191,188.27 while a year ago the current collections were $165,636.23. The delinquent collections during the same period this year were $39,059.30 in comparison to $31,067.62 a year ago.

The gain in current collections for the year up to November 1 was $47,597.13 while the delinquent collection gain was $15,582.88, Mr. Kvikstad's records show.

The tax books are now being turned over to County Auditor Levi G. Johnson where the collections will be distributed into the various funds and warrants will be distributed to the various sub-divisions of the government. —Warren Sheaf.

Vattendahl-Baker Wedding

A quiet wedding was solemnized last Wednesday evening at the parsonage of the Nazareth Lutheran Church when Ethel Vattendahl, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hj. Johnson, became the bride of Kenneth Baker. Their attendants were Marilyn Oakey and Robert Forder. The bride was attired in a brown velvet street length dress and the bridesmaid a gold colored dress with brown trim.

The bride is well known here being a graduate of the local school and completing her course in Newfolden. The groom is the chief transportation agent of for several CCC camps in this region with headquarters at Camp 710, Middle River.

Local Teacher Breaks Leg

Miss Otos, teacher of English, Mathematics and Physical Education in the local High School, had the misfortune of breaking her leg on Monday afternoon. The accident occured while she was instructing the Physical Education class on the school playground. She was rushed to a hospital at Thief River Falls where she is being treated for a compound fracture of the ankle. Mrs. A. W. Carlson is substituting for her at school.

Annual Congregation Meeting

The annual meeting of the congregation and Ladies Aid of the Nazareth Lutheran Church will be held on Wednesday evening, Dec. 4th, at 8:00 p. m. The meeting is being held later than usual due to ccflicting events. Reports will be read at both meetings. Acceptance of new members usually take place at the annual meeting. Election of officers will be held. The ladies will serve free lunch.

Deer Checking Stations

Deer checking stations to determine the success of Minnesota hunters were in operation all throughout the big game season territory as Minnesota's biennial 11-day season drew to a close.

Monday was the last day for hunting. Reports from the north woods generally indicated good shooting, with many hunters reporting one of the best seasons on record.

To determine how long hunters were afield and their relative success, technicians for the Department of Conservation joined with game managers of the Superior and Chippewa National Forests in an extensive bag survey.

Hundreds of forest roads leading to the most desirable shooting grounds were manned with CCC boys from a score of northern camps. Each outgoing car was checked for deer, with the age and sex of the animals killed noted wit the time hunted.

Extensive censuses are planned of northern game refuges immediately after the season to determine how many deer sought haven there. The areas were censused immediately preceding the shooting period.

Department technicians are mapping several winter surveys of deer yarding grounds to learn browse conditions. Deer tagging to determine movements between years iscontemplated.

Local Hunters Bag Many Deer

Several hunters from Holt had dandy luck in gotting their deer this season. One party of hunters, O. T. Ness and son Rubin, V. E. Oakey, H. O. Hanson and son Milton from here; Theodor Ness of Red Lake Falls, and John Timmerman of St. Paul hunted together and the party came home with five deer.

This huntiug party with the exception of Mr. Timmerman, had the good luck on the second day of the season to see seven large Moose out in the wilderness in the northern part of Beltrami county. This was a sight that will linger in their hunting memories for a long time as some of the seven were giant size bulls and they sure looked majestic as they trotted along slowly over an open ridge at close range. The two young men of the party, Milton and Rubin, also had a fast running shooting rounds at a very large Lynx that came thru the brush coasting along at 20-foot leaps.

Other hunters from the village who brought in deer were Louis Sagstuen, Walter Peterson, Melvin Bottem and Howard Lorentson. Hundreds of deer were killed in the wooded areas northeast of here and many were also taken in central part of Marshall county which was open for the first time in many years,

Accessory Set for Sports or Campus

SPORTS accessories like this are much in vogue among smart young things, not only for sports, but also for campus and runabout. Design No. 1265-B includes weskit, calot and chunky mittens, all of which you can easily make for yourself—all, of course, except the feather in the calot! The weskit is drawn in to a tiny waistline by back-fastened side belts—just like its masculine prototype; all three gay little gadgets are trimmed with stitching. Take a brief glance at the diagram, and you'll see how easy they are to make.

Choose felt, flannel or suede for the set, and make it not only for yourself, in different colors, but also to tuck away for gifts. Step-by-step sew chart with pattern.

ELLEN DREW wasn't much good as a waitress when she worked at Brown's confectionery, in Hollywood, but she's worth her weight in gold to the place now as an advertisement for it.

For instance, practically everyone who comes in wants a Cinderella special; a note on the menu announces that it's named for her.

If you sit in Booth 5 you'll see a sign saying "At this booth, a customer offered Ellen Drew the screen test that has taken her to stardom." She'd been working in a dime store in Englewood, Ill., when she won a beauty contest conducted by the American Legion and went to Hollywood. She expected a film contract to follow, but it didn't. In two months she learned not to expect ever to get one.

But she made the test, and a contract followed. She is starred in three Paramount pictures awaiting release—"D. O. A.", "A Date With Destiny," and "Texas Rangers Ride Again," and also in "Christmas in July," now being shown.

WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS By Edward C. Wayne

Air and Naval Raiders Harass British As Greeks Hold Off Italian Invasion; Hitler-Molotov Talks Yield Little News; Dies Asks Funds for 'Sabotage' Probe

(EDITOR'S NOTE—When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of the news analyst and not necessarily of this newspaper.)
(Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

GRECO-ROMAN:
Round One to Greece

There seems little doubt any longer that the Greek victory over Italian forces has been as nearly complete as any action could be so early in a war. Fascist forces were reported fleeing from Koritza, setting fire to their supplies in this, the main base of the central attack.

Italian stories that only 362 men were killed in the campaign hardly gibe with eye-witness reports by reputable correspondents of two things—huge piles of bodies in the mud of the Pindus mountain passes—huge concentration camps filled with Italian prisoners of war who are being widely quoted.

Their reports of Italian attitude toward the war so encouraged England with the opportunity of dealing a crashing blow to Fascist morale that she sent big bomber squadrons to Taranto and smashed a goodly part of Italy's fleet.

DICTATOR METAXAS
Rough going for Italy.

Italy denied much damage except to one ship, so British sent over observation planes, took pictures, and reported the details. Two capital ships apparently permanently put out of action, four other smaller ones.

Stories of the Greek successes over the Italian forces further were borne out by the tone of Italian broadcasts and dispatches, telling of "reorganization" of the Italian drive; appointment of a new commander; also the Greek reports of attacks inside Albanian territory,

Credit for the Greek victory was given to several factors: Greek knowledge of the terrain; enterprise of guerrilla bands; skill with the bayonet, and surprise machine-gun and artillery attacks on enemy columns in difficult mountain passes, plus sudden onslaughts of bad weather; also Premier John Metaxas has been watching fellow-dictator Mussolini for some time.

Add to this stories from prisoners that they had no heart for the war and had been promised a relatively bloodless invasion, and one got a pretty good picture of the opening of the Greco-Roman war.

There were no surface signs that Italy was quitting, however, but might be steaming ahead for a more determined effort.

BRITAIN:
Feels Heavy Blows

The war has become more bitter for England, with Germany heavily increasing aerial attacks on cities, raining bombs on London and industrial centers like Coventry.

British, ever frank in admitting losses, reported Coventry in ruins, thousands slain and wounded. London damage was said to be terrific.

Losses at sea are staggering, and a raider on the loose in mid-Atlantic smashed into at least one large convoy. Germans first announced entire convoy sunk, along with Rangitiki, armored merchantman, and Jervis Bay, an auxiliary cruiser, which were protecting other ships.

Apparently this claim was made when numbers of SOS signals were heard and then news of convoy suddenly ceased. But British finally came through with the news that of 39 ships, 9 were missing, and later two of them showed up.

Naval hero was the commander of the Jervis Bay which boldly steamed to meet her stronger enemy, forcing raider's fire on herself, and permitting convoy to scatter.

Scandinavian skipper in convoy was so stirred by such bravery that he refused to flee to any great distance, returned to scene hours later, and had pleasure of picking up 65 survivors, many wounded.

Jervis Bay went to the bottom of the ocean with her gallant commander, who had one arm shot away during the engagement.

Over England, German bombers are using a new technique, making more difficult still the task of anti-aircraft fire and the work of fighters. They fly over the country in waves, traveling single file, which Indians discovered centuries ago was a good defensive formation.

First raider drops its bombs, and succeeding ships get a view of scene below in the glare of the first explosions and see better when and where to let go. Flying is done at 30,000 to 35,000 feet.

In many cases, however, British report bombing is done on "time tables" when there are cloud formations, the bombers flying certain mathematical distances from flying fields and then letting their cargoes go without any aim whatever.

That Britain is generally feeling the pinch was seen by reports of further restrictions in rationing. However, nothing as drastic was reported as the apparently authentic dispatch from Berlin that dog meat was made legal human fodder.

DIPLOMATS:
Home and Abroad

Diplomats, both domestic and foreign, came into their own as far as the spotlight was concerned.

In Berlin they buzzed about the capital like flies; Molotoff, (for whom bombs have been named) arriving with 33 guards and associates; lesser lights from Italy and the Balkans hovering about the outskirts of the main Hitler-Molotoff talks, with even a sprinkling of Japanese lurking about where they wouldn't have to rub elbows too closely with the "hated Russians."

It was another case of the mountain laboring and bringing forth a mouse—at least as far as the dispatches went, though there may be, and probably is a lot under the surface.

AMBASSADOR KENNEDY
Talk out of turn?

Out of it all has come to the public eye only the broadest platitudinous pledges:

Germany (with her Italian axis partner somewhat in the background) promises various powers that, if they are good, they will get something.

Germany and Italy will rule Europe.

Russia will get expansion room anywhere she wants as long as it doesn't interfere with European situations. Diplomats took this to mean at least a part of India and also perhaps Iran and portions of Turkey if she misbehaves.

Japan will get the rest of Asia, at least the southeastern part, and Russia and Japan are urged to get together at once about the rest of it.

In this country two diplomatic names stood out. Kennedy and Bullitt. The former was surrounded by a halo of rumors that he would resign following his "talk out of turn" in Boston. While denying much that was in the Globe interview, he continued to preach along about the same general lines, omitting his references to the death of democracy and the advent of national socialism in the United States.

Bullitt was being as signally rumored as Kennedy's successor. All he would say was that he wanted to resign to "speak and write" about conditions, and that the President had asked him to remain in public life, and that he was considering the matter.

Foreign Jottings . . .

Four Nazi vessels, heavily loaded, sailed from Tampico, Mexico, for European ports. Only one was heard from. She was the Phrygia, which "committed suicide" by scuttling rather than surrender to British and Canadian war vessels. She was hardly outside Tampico when caught. The other three were said to have headed back and to be lurking outside the harbor bar.

The British used 2,000-pound aerial torpedoes in sinking the vessels of the Italian fleet at Taranto, they reported. The planes fly low to the water, drop the torpedoes pointing at the ships. It's a dangerous job.

Americans returning from occupied France report bribery, gasoline bootlegging and the existence of a "black bourse" for dealing in foreign exchange.

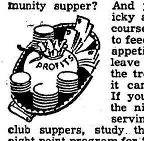
THE COMMUNITY SUPPER
(See Recipes Below)

So you're to manage the next community supper? And you're panicky about it! Of course it's a job to feed 200 people appetizingly and leave $25 profit in the treasury. But it can be done! If you must eye the nickels when serving church or club suppers, study the following eight-point program for "feeding the multitude":



(1) Pick a general chairman who can picture the job as a whole. (2) Appoint a responsible person in charge of each food. (3) Arrange the kitchen conveniently for the different jobs. (4) Prepare as many foods ahead of time as possible. (5) Have utensils ready and garnishes at hand. (6) Name a hostess to direct waitresses. (7) Plan a uniform method of serving. (8) Plan menus well ahead of time.

If the meat dish is different, the whole meal seems to have variety. And there's many a trick for serving thrifty cuts differently.

Take meat loaf, for instance. A ham loaf de luxe with a good mustard-horseradish sauce will "make" any meal. Beef stew can be thickened a little, ladeled into dripping pans, covered with rounds or squares or diamonds of biscuit, and when baked it appears crustily and temptingly yours. If you wish to make it more "de luxe" bake and serve in individual casseroles.

For something different, plan for meat balls with rice. You can serve buttered turnips, and a salad made of cabbage, celery, green peas and pimento which certainly sells the men this menu.

Now if pennies needn't be watched so closely and you want to do a fall or winter dinner up brown, here's a "ringer": Baked ham, raisin and cider sauce, raw vegetable salad, cranberry muffins, pumpkin pie, coffee, or milk.

Ham Loaf de Luxe.
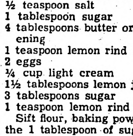
(Serves 50)



5 pounds smoked ham (ground)
3 pounds veal (ground)
¾ cup green pepper (minced)
¾ cup onion (chopped)
2 teaspoons salt
½ teaspoon pepper
8 eggs (beaten)
1 quart tomato soup (canned)
1 quart bread crumbs or uncooked cereal

Combine the meat, green pepper, onion and seasonings. Add beaten eggs, tomato soup, and bread crumbs or uncooked cereal. Pack into bread loaf pans and bake in a moderate oven (350 degrees) for 1½ hours.

Beef Stew With Biscuits.
(Serves 50)

9 pounds beef round (cut into 1-inch cubes)
2 cups flour
1 cup hot beef drippings
3 quarts boiling water
½ teaspoon peppercorns
2 bay leaves
1 quart turnips (diced)
1 quart carrots (diced)
1 cup onions (sliced)
Salt and pepper to taste

Cut beef into 1-inch cubes. Dredge in the flour and brown in hot beef drippings. Place in kettle and add boiling water. Cook slowly for 2 to 3 hours. Add peppercorns and bay leaves. Add carrots and turnips 1 hour before serving. Add salt and pepper. If necessary, thicken with flour paste. Serve hot with baking powder biscuits on top.

Meat Balls With Rice.
(Serves 40 to 45)

4 pounds beef (ground)
3 pounds pork (ground)
2 onions (minced)
2 cups rice (uncooked)
2 cups cracker crumbs
4 eggs (beaten)
4 tablespoons salt
1 teaspoon pepper
2 cups milk

Combine ingredients and mix well. Form into balls. Place in shallow roasting pans. Pour over 2 quarts tomato sauce or tomato soup. Cover pans. Bake in a moderate oven (350 degrees) for 1½ to 2 hours, turning the meat balls several times during cooking. Add water if necessary, during the baking.

Easy Entertaining.

"Easy Entertaining" was written for homemakers who occasionally run out of ideas on what to serve at tea parties, fall and winter bridge parties, and many other kinds of parties. It is an aid to those who would like to serve something a little different, to give the occasion a festive air.

For your copy write to "Easy Entertaining," in care of Eleanor Howe, 919 North Michigan Avenue, Chicago, Illinois, and enclose 10 cents in coin.

Cider and Raisin Sauce.
(Serves 12)

1 cup sugar
¼ cup cornstarch
½ teaspoon salt
1 quart cider
1 cup seedless raisins
6 small pieces cinnamon
12 whole cloves

Mix sugar, cornstarch, salt, cider and raisins together. Place spices in a cheesecloth bag and add to mixture. Boil gently for 15 minutes. Remove spice bag and serve hot sauce over ham.

Cabbage and Celery Salad With Peas.
(Serves 25)

4 No. 2 cans peas (2 quarts)
2½ quarts cabbage (shredded)
2 quarts celery (diced)
Pimiento (cut fine)
Salt to taste
Mayonnaise
3 heads lettuce

Drain peas (reserving liquid for soup, gravy, etc.) and chill. Add cabbage, celery, pimiento, salt and mayonnaise, and mix well. Serve on crisp lettuce leaves.

Lemon Cream Scones.
(Makes 30 scones)

2 cups flour (sifted)
2 teaspoons baking powder
½ teaspoon salt
1 tablespoon sugar
4 tablespoons butter or other shortening
1 teaspoon lemon rind (grated)
2 eggs
¼ cup light cream
1½ tablespoons lemon juice
3 tablespoons sugar
1 teaspoon lemon rind (grated)

Sift flour, baking powder, salt and the 1 tablespoon of sugar together. Cut in butter and add 1 teaspoon grated lemon rind. Reserving 1 tablespoon egg white for glaze, beat remaining eggs well and add cream. Combine with flour mixture. Add lemon juice and stir until soft dough forms. Turn out on slightly floured board and knead 30 seconds. Roll dough to ¼-inch thickness and cut into 3-inch squares, then cut each square from corner to corner, making triangles. Place on ungreased baking sheet. Brush tops lightly with slightly beaten egg white and sprinkle with mixture made of 3 tablespoons sugar and 1 teaspoon grated lemon rind. Bake in a hot oven (400 degrees) 12 minutes, or until brown. Before serving, spread with orange marmalade and reheat.

Cabbage and Carrot Salad With Peanuts.
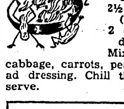
(Serves 25)



5 quarts cabbage (shredded)
20 carrots (grated)
2½ cups peanuts (chopped)
2 cups salad dressing

Mix together the cabbage, carrots, peanuts and salad dressing. Chill thoroughly and serve.

Set of Shelves From Spools and Can Lids

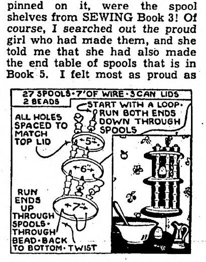
By RUTH WYETH SPEARS

THE other day I went to a Hobby Show and there, hanging on the wall with a blue ribbon pinned on it, were the spool shelves from SEWING Book 3! Of course, I searched out the proud girl who had made them, and she told me that she had also made the end table of spools that is in Book 5. I felt most as proud as she did. All her friends are saving spools for her and her urgent need at the moment was, "something to make for Mother for Christmas."



27 SPOOLS · 7' OF WIRE · 3 CAN LIDS
2 BEADS
START WITH A LOOP · RUN BOTH ENDS DOWN THROUGH SPOOLS
ALL HOLES SPACED TO MATCH TOP LID
5"
6"
RUN ENDS UP THROUGH SPOOLS · THROUGH BEAD · BACK TO BOTTOM · TWIST

Here is my suggestion. An adorable set of three corner shelves made of a lid from a tin candy box, one from a cracker can and a coffee can put together with wire, spools and two beads. These shelves were painted cherry red and hung up with a brass hook to hold salt and pepper shakers, vinegar cruet, and other things for making salads. Any homemaker will think of a dozen places where this handy set of shelves could be used. All the directions are here in this sketch.

* * *

There is time to make the hanging book shelves in Book 3, or the end table in Book 5, before Christmas, if you mail your order for these booklets today. Send order to:

Campaign For Inhalator

A campaign for the purchase of a new H-H Inhalator, a portable machine used for the successful resusciation of victims of carbon monoxide poisoning, gas asphyxia, electric shock, whooping cough, pneumonia, and other causes of respiratory failure, is going forward in this community this week. The creation of a fund to purchase the machine is being sponsored by the Thief River Falls Fire Department.

Representatives working under the direction of Mr. C. S. Jensen, each bearing a letter of introduction and identification signed by Leonard Hanson, Chief and H. L. Sceuster, Secretary, will call upon all residents of this community in the near future to explain details of the plan.

The Fire Department feels that this is a much needed piece of life saving equipment in this community. It was expressed by the officers in charge of the drive that this Inhalator will be subject to use by any individual of Thief River Falls, Holt, St. Hilaire, Hazel, Erie, Goodridge, Mavie, Oklee, Wylie, Viking, Grygla, Gatzke, Middle River, Newfolden, Rosewood, and surrounding rural at any time without charge. That the purpose in its purchase will be a means of saving a human life, and that no individual or organization will benefit in any financial way.

All money earned through the plan will go into a fund for the purchase of the Inhalator, and if the entire cost is not raised this year, the balance will be secured in a similar campaign next year. Funds so raised will not be spent for other purposes. The Fire Department hopes that their plan for securing the necessary funds will meet with the approval and cooperation of all residents. Donations to the fund are not expected, every person cooperating will get value recieved in magazine service.

Lake Shipping Closed

Duluth—Clearing the Duluth-Superior harbor with about 9,000 tons of iron ore from the Great Northern docks, Superior, the steamer Maryland officially closed the Lake Superior ore shipping season, third largest in history.

A total of 63,353,613 tons has been carried to lower lake ports since last April. Final shipments from all Lake Superior docks during November totaled 5,349,916 tons.

Previous season record shipments were 65,195,478 tons in 1929, all-time record; 64,734,198 tons in 1916 and 62,598,536 tons in 1937.

The Great Northern docks in Superior shipped the largest tonnage, 19,459,831 tons, with the D. M. & I. R. in Duluth second with 16,267,848 tons.

Locate Large White Spruce

A large white spruce located on Vermillion Lake, St. Louis county, near a Minnesota forest ranger's station may be one of the largest specimens in the country, according to a letter received by the Conservation Department from the American Forestry Association.

Director H. G. Weber of the Division of Forestry has written Ranger Alex Gerber, area supervisor at Orr, Minnesota to measure the tree, estimate its height and spread and forward the information to Washington where a project is underway to locate and preserve the largest specimens of important American species.

The Men's Club will hold its regular meeting on Tuesday evening. There will be an Open Forum discussion on "America and the Present World Crisis". In addition to this, Rev. Hanson will show his movies of the Western trip, those of Market Day and as many others as the men care to see. All are invited.

"TIRED? NOT ANY MORE"

"Since the doctor prescribed beer with my meals I never feel exhausted"

● More and more people today are slipping into an unhealthy state of exhaustion. Constantly tired and worried, they become easy prey to various ailments.

Because many prominent physicians regard beer as a food as well as a refreshing beverage, they are recommending its daily use in the diet to restore energy, soothe frayed nerves, and build up resistance to fatigue.

"The mineral and vitamin content of beer," says Dr. Clarence William Lieb of New York, "together with its calorie food value, comparing favorably in many respects with milk, makes it highly desirable food. Its predigested malt sugar, which is quickly assimilated, also makes it an invaluable drink in fatigue states of mind and body."

Beer has proved invaluable also in promoting economic health! In our own state, the brewing industry of Minnesota furnishes employment annually for more than 35,000 . . . pays about $2,000,000 a year in excise taxes . . . and buys over $3,500,000 worth of Minnesota farm products.

Conservation - Parity Payments

Conservation and parity payments totalling $21,905,578.02 have been approved to date for Minnesota farmers cooperating in the 1940 Agricultural Conservation program, Charles W. Stickney, Chairman of the state AAA committee, reported today in an interview on the progress of the farm program.

"This amount will be paid on 284,526 applications for conservation, corn and wheat parity payments," Mr. Stickney said, in pointing out the work of distributing money earned by farmers through cooperation in the 1940 farm program is rapidly progressing and nearing completion.

Early completion of payments on the 1940 farm program will make it possible to present the 1941 program at an earlier date, which gives farmers ample time to plan their 1941 farming operations so they can receive the full benefits of the program.

Mr. Stickney reported $16,047,211.52 in conservation payments have been approved on 135,815 applications by November 22, as compared to $961,440.28 paid on 12,505 applications for the same period in 1939.

Parity payments on corn and wheat are completed. A total of $4,187,522.06 has been paid on 76,801 corn parity applications, and $1,670,844.44 on the 72,410 wheat parity applications.

"The advanced progress this yeas is due largely to simplification of the program, better understanding by farmers, and an earlies check of performance," Mr. Stickney said.

"In past years farmers have complained they received their checks too late to be of assistance in preparing for their spring work. This resulted in the program for the following year being presented at such a late date as to make it almost impossible for some farmers to plan their operations so as to receive full benefits from the program," he pointed out.

"Considerable credit for the early completion of the 1940 farm program in Minnesota must go to the farmer-elected county and community committeemen in all counties," Stickney said.

"Besides making out some 248,00 conservation, corn and wheat parity payments, county committeess have been handling an enormous amount of work in connection with the commodity loan and crop insurunce features of the program.

"Reports reveal 9,226,792 bushels of wheat have been sealed, more than twice the amount sealed in 1939. In the rye producing counties, 419,676 bushels of this grain have been sealed, or 236,000 bushels more than a year ago. Barley was included in the loan program for the first time in 1940 and 1,633,773 bushels were placed under loan. To date, 15½ million bushels of 1938 and 1939 corn have been sealed, he reported.

"Applications for about 4,000 winter wheat crop insurance policies have been completed and county committees at the present time are working on this program for spring wheat growers. It is expected the number of policies written in 1940 will be well ahead of the 21,500 policies in 1939.

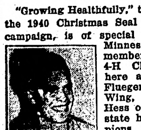
4-H Health Champions Help Fight Tuberculosis



"Growing Healthfully," the theme of the 1940 Christmas Seal educational campaign, is of special interest to Minnesota's 47,000 members of the 4-H Club. Shown here are Virginia Flueger of Red Wing, and Leo Hess of Pipestone, state health champions who go to Chicago, December 1, to compete for the national championship. 4-H Club members as well as all young people in Minnesota receive special attention in the Christmas Seal health program as this is the age group most susceptible to tuberculosis.

Village Election Was Quiet

The annual village election held here Tuesday was a quiet affair. Only two filings were made for office so the ballot had six blank spaces on it for the voters to fill in.

Those who filed and were reelected were: Geo. Fricker, Village Clerk; Gilbert Sanoden; Village Trustee for a term of three years; Marvin Sandberg, who did not file but was reelected Assessor for two years. Other elected were Sam Lorenson as Trustee for one year; A. P. Thompson, Justice of Peace for two years; Joseph Nelson, Justice for one year; C. A. Larson, Constable for two years and Melvin Bottem, Constable for one year.

There were 27 ballots cast and 27 different people in the village favored with votes for various offices.

Mrs. Otto Johnson Died

As we go to press news is received of the death of Mrs. Otto Johnson, pioneer woman of this community, on Thursday morning.

Mr. and Mrs. George Johnson, Mr. and Mrs. Herman Peterson and Vivian, Mr. and Mrs. O. B. Johnson and family visited at the Olaf Ness home Friday evening and helped Gladys celebrate her birthday.

Answers Republican Charges

Answering charges of Republicans that a possible connection between Reverend Colvin G. Butler, Republican nominee for U. S. Representative, and Henry J. Soltau, Minneapolis reformer, accounted for Butler's defeat in the ninth district, Harold C. Hagen, Congressional Secretary and campaign manager for U. S. Representative Richard Thompson Buckler, asserted that the top position of the defeated candidate's name on the ballot had cost Congressman Buckler thousands of votes and resulted in a close election.

In one Crookston precinct alone 25 ballots carried an X for the other Frrmer-Labor endorsed candidates on the county ballot and also an X for Butler, indicating an error in marking because of the similarity of names and Butler's first position on the ballot. A check up of the results in a number of Pennington county townships showed a similiar situation.

In spite of the handicap, Congressman Buckler won reelection for another two year term by a margin of 675 votes according to the official reports of the canvassing boards of the 15 counties in the district. Congressman Buckler carried 11 of the 15 counties, losing only Becker, Clay, Otter Tail and Wilkin.

WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS

By Edward C. Wayne

Key Albanian Cities Fall as Greeks Continue to Drive Back Italy's Army; Turks Declare Martial Law in 'Crisis'; Murray Heads CIO as Lewis Resigns

(EDITOR'S NOTE—When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of the news analyst and not necessarily of this newspaper.)

(Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

BACK DOOR:
War in Reverse

Events on the Albanian and nearby fronts gave military experts what they considered proof that the grand British plan of conducting the war from now on will be to knock out Italy first, then turn attention to Germany.

Hence Europe was treated to a war in reverse. Although England was continuing bombing raids against military objectives on German and occupied European bases including Norway, chief attention was focused on Italy, both on the continent and in Africa.

To full reports on the Taranto affair were added the fall of Koritza, accomplished with British air aid, and further Greek successes were accompanied by word that British territorials were fighting side by side with Greeks in the snowy and mountainous terrain of the Albanian frontier.

Mussolini, after denying all British and Greek claims of victory, two days later was the first to announce to the world the fall of Koritza and that a major defeat had met Italian arms.

Gen. John Metaxas, handsome Greek leader, was hailed as the savior of the nation from the Italian menace, and the numbers of prisoners taken were succinctly summed up as "too many to handle."

MONKEY WRENCH:
In Diplomacy?

Germany's diplomatic maneuvers, usually believed forerunner to huge military operations, continued to be watched closely in half a dozen capitals, and wonder was expressed again whether perhaps Soviet Russia might throw a monkey wrench into the proceedings again.

Balkan resistance to Axis domination showed signs of crumbling, with Hungary first to give in to Nazi demands, and Rumania showing final collapse, though it was pointed out that the latter was already in Nazi hands.

At this moment, Russia stepped in with two moves, the significant character of which was evident, but the meaning of which was not at once ascertainable.

Russia recalled Schwarzkev, Moscow's ambassador to the Reich, and replaced him with another commissar.

Russia sent a warning to her little Slavic neighbor, Bulgaria, to be slow and careful about joining fully in the Axis plans.

Tass issued a flat denial, publicly, that Russia had had any hand in Hungary's joining the Axis.

These three moves were projected on the diplomatic screen for what they were worth, speculators wondering mostly about the "monkey wrench" angle. Dictator Josef Stalin has a record of throwing "monkey wrenches" into international affairs.

RUSSIA'S STALIN
Monkey wrench thrower.

They can't forget the famous "treaty of Tilsit" in the Napoleonic war, and many are still betting that in the last analysis Russia will prove the turning point in the upset of the Axis hopes—if they are to be upset.

TURKEY:
Again to Fore

Declaration of martial law by Turkey throughout all the European part of her nation brought her again to the fore as a major factor in developments on the southeastern front of the world war.

The Turks expressed their own attitude as follows:

"If the Germans are to aid Italy against Greece, Russia will not be willing to sit idle.

"However, even if Russia gives her consent, Turkey will defend herself.

"Bulgaria must be kept aloof from this newest move."

So Turkey, joining Russia in the warning to Bulgaria, evidenced that she was on the threshold of entrance into the war on the anti-Axis side.

The counter diplomatic move was coming from Von Papen, who was believed ready to offer Turkey a huge slice of France's Syrian territory if she would agree to remain aloof while the Germans go down through the Balkans and knock out Greece.

Observers felt there was little chance that Turkey would accept, fearing rather Axis domination of the Dardanelles than wishing a slice of territory she could take over herself any time she desired.

S.S.S.:
Stress, Strikes, Sabotage

The defense front in the United States moved into the second of the phases that always have confronted this nation in times of industrial stress.

After a series of incidents that were widely interpreted as sabotage, strikes broke out in key industries in widely separated sections of the country.

ROBERT JACKSON
He blamed the Reds.

Leading squabbles involved the Aluminum Company of America, a plant employing 7,500 workers, and the Vultee Aircraft corporation at work on government orders totaling $84,000,000.

Strike fever spread to Baltimore, where 2,000 city workers went out, demanding more money and pay for overtime, most serious public employees' strike in city's history.

The Aluminum strike was over company's refusal to discharge one employee who owed $12 back C. I. O. union dues.

The Vultee shutdown, also a C. I. O. matter, was blamed by U. S. Attorney General Jackson on "Reds." Workers were demanding raises of 50 to 75 cents an hour in pay.

Back of these scenes of labor stress stood the Dies committee, probing and publishing, charg[illegible] the Nazis with responsibility fo[illegible] [illegible]uch and the Soviet agents with the rest of it all.

Jackson whipped back at Dies, stating he felt that the Dies group was accomplishing nothing but breaking down the public confidence in the ability of the G-men to solve crime and keep order and safety in the nation.

The C. I. O. closed its convention by electing Philip Murray to John L. Lewis' post, Lewis thus carrying out his "step-down" promise of the presidential campaign. The C. I. O. then announced it would attempt to organize the Ford Motor plant, and in the same breath asked governmental investigation of any affiliations the company might have with Nazi interests.

TWO MORE:
Destroyers

CHARLES EDISON
An honor for his father.

Down at Kearney, N. J., they launched two more destroyers for Uncle Sam's navy. The two new ones were called the Edison and the Ericsson, names that dovetailed nicely. The pair were named after Thomas Alva Edison, the greatest of inventors, and John Ericsson, who invented the famous Monitor warship in the Civil war. The Monitor, it will be remembered, defeated the Merrimac in the first battle between ironclads in the history of the world.

Tom Edison's son, Charles, is governor-elect of New Jersey. His mother sponsored the Edison destroyer. A great-great-grand-niece of old Ericsson sponsored the sister ship, Mrs. Ruth Wallgren. The architect of the Monitor was born in Sweden, where they haven't yet forgotten him.

French

These were two of the new American destroyers. England had obtained some 50 of the old ones, and was asking for more, like Oliver Twist. Meanwhile, France still had 50-60 destroyers, and also 50-60 submarines, and big ones at that. But one French battleship was out of the picture:

It was reported from Madrid that a big 22,000 tonner of the Paris class was sitting at Gibraltar. Over this Frenchman flew the white naval ensign of the British fleet, and on board there was a crew of typical Limies. Just how it got there, under foreign control, nobody seemed quite to know, but everybody admitted this Paris class-mate was a valuable sea prize.

DIPLOMATS:
In and Out

Two diplomatic travels caught public attention, one returning from Europe to the United States, Lord Lothian, and the other leaving the United States for France, new ambassador to Vichy, Retired Rear-Admiral Leahy.

Leahy, taking Bullitt's post after it was reportedly offered to and declined by General Pershing, was said to have been sent to France with friendly words from the White House, and offers of American aid to the destitute in occupied France during the winter.

It was not clear how this country planned to get the food to France in the face of Britain's final decision to continue a total food blockade, word of which was being brought back to this nation by Lothian.

The British ambassador, after a visit to his homeland to check up on war progress and Britain's war needs, was to ask this country for still stronger war aid.

Watchers figured that much of what Lothian wants for his country will be unobtainable until congress is in position to extend huge credits to London.

As the ambassador asked for wider aid to Britain, President Roosevelt announced army's newest and biggest bombers were earmarked for Britain in a trade for airplane motors, also in process of manufacture.

These bombers, with 3,000-mile range fully loaded with tons of bombs, will be used at once in sharpening the attack on German objectives, British war leaders said.

MISCELLANY:

Bombs — Two restaurant bombings, one in Philadelphia and the other in downtown Cleveland, were American repercussions of the Greco-Italian war, according to preliminary investigations.

T. B.—Medical men announced that Promin, new drug of the sulfanilamide group, was being tried out as an aid in combatting tuberculosis.

Birds—The Bronx zoo traded a touraco for a kea, swapping with the Washington zoo. A touraco is an African cuckoo and a kea is a New Zealand bird with the slightly odd penchant for breaking sheeps' backs with its beak.

Suicide—Dr. Mortimer J. Adler, U. of Chicago professor, suggested all the high school and college teachers of English commit suicide (academically), resign their jobs and allow some better method of education (like that at St. John's college, Annapolis) rush into "the vacuum."

Oil—A huge still at an Arkansas oil refinery was wrecked by a mystery explosion. G-men were called to investigate.

Roof—The roof of the Capitol at Washington being a bit weak, congress was moved out so that it could be repaired.

NAMES
. . . in the news

A report from New York indicated that Secretary of Labor, Frances Perkins, was resigning from President Roosevelt's cabinet.

Ralph W. Barnes, foreign correspondent of the New York Herald Tribune, was found dead in the wreckage of a British bomber which crashed and burned near Danilov Grad, Jugoslavia.

OVERSEAS BITS

Mail—Lisbon air mail shipments were resumed, first flight carrying 3,000 pounds, a lot of letters.

Home—Stay home for Christmas is the German slogan this year, people being told that railroads will be needed for war purposes, and not for travel.

Surrender — Unconfirmed reports were that a first-line French battleship had surrendered to the British at Gibraltar.

Americanized—A veteran of the Argonne battle of American troops in France, seeing the Greco-Italian Pindus mountain fight, said the Greeks fought like the Yanks, from rock to rock and tree to tree.

Classes—W. L. White wrote from London that he couldn't understand Kennedy's statement that democracy was dead in England. He said all classes mix on equal footing when the bombs fall.

STAGE SCREEN RADIO

By VIRGINIA VALE

(Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

WALT DISNEY'S "Fantasia" has made its bow at last, and also made history. It is "a series of eight musical compositions, interpreted by Leopold Stokowski and the Philadelphia Symphony orchestra" with comments by Deems Taylor. It is also the most beautiful presentation of color and sound that the screen has ever offered.

The music was recorded by the orchestra, then Disney and his idea men listened to it, and on the screen we see what the music suggested to them. We have Mickey Mouse as the "Sorcerer's Apprentice," amazing prehistoric animals in Stravinsky's "Rite of Spring," delightful centaurs and "centaurettes" in Beethoven's "Pastoral Symphony."

WALT DISNEY

Disney selected the music carefully, to appeal to all tastes. He hoped to aid in popularizing classical music, an undertaking so ably begun by radio. Special RCA reproduction equipment is necessary to handle the innovations in recording.

The experiment is a magnificent one, into which Disney has poured more than two million dollars. Its success should be as great as the courage of its producer.

*

Fred Astaire has the longest motion picture feature devoted exclusively to dancing in the world, and it's getting longer all the time. The picture, right now, is being lengthened by two dance numbers which Astaire created for himself and Paulette Goddard in his latest Hollywood production, "Second Chorus." The addition of these two numbers makes Astaire's own picture run more than four hours, and probably the world will never see it; a stickler for originality, he has accumulated it from the thirteen screen productions in which he has appeared so far.

*

Mary Anderson is Hollywood's newest Cinderella. One of the girls who was tested for the role of "Scarlett O'Hara" and didn't get it, she did play "Maybelle Merriweather" in the famous Southern war picture, and then stayed on in Hollywood and worked for Warner Brothers. Now she has a difficult role in Richard Rowland's "Cheers for Miss Bishop." Only eighteen, she has a good start on what promises to be a highly successful career.

*

About a year ago lovely Joan Blaine, featured in the NBC serial, "Valiant Lady," was walking down Broadway when she slipped on the icy street and fell. A quiet young man picked her up, brushed her off, and disappeared in the throng.

"Just my luck," she told some of her friends later. "I didn't ask his name, and I'll probably never see him again."

Recently Rikel Kent, director of "Valiant Lady," told her she was acquiring a new man on the show. "His name is Lawson Zerbe," Kent told her. "You don't know him." Then Zerbe appeared for rehearsal, and—you've guessed it. Out of all the actors in New York, he was the quiet young man who'd come to her rescue nearly a year before.

*

Gary Cooper is dead set against anything that is unnatural; he insists on letting nature take its course before the cameras, which is why you never see him curl his lips and show his teeth when he's angry—watch him in "North West Mounted Police" and you'll see him as he is in real life. He's one of the few actors in Hollywood who depends on a mirror only when he's shaving, making up for work or combing his hair.

*

ODDS AND ENDS—James Melton and Irene Beasley used to sing for nothing on a small station in Memphis, Tenn., years ago, after a lapse of ten years they encountered each other in a New York night club, and discovered that they were booked to sing on Raymond Paige's "Musical Americana" on the same night . . . John Wayne and Ward Bond made a gallon of authentic moonshine the other day for a scene in "Shepherd of the Hills," using a real still, and when the scene had been shot the federal agent who represented law and order poured the "corn" on the ground, while various members of the cast lamented, but to no avail.

Jumper Blouse for Juniors Very Smart

1252-B

IN A season when jumpers have jumped way out in front of any other school style, this one stands right at the head of its very smart class. Why? Because it's the pinafore type, cut high and dart-fitted, that juniors are mad about. Because the skirt is made with unpressed front fullness that looks perfectly charming on slim little figures. Because it's adorned with two big patch pockets, as decorative as they are convenient. Last but not least, it's easy to make.

For the pinafore jumper of this design (No. 1252-B) choose corduroy, flannel, jersey or wool crepe. For the plain little tailored blouse (with short or long sleeves) challis, flannel, linen, flat crepe or batiste are smart.

* * *

Barbara Bell Pattern No. 1252-B is designed for sizes 11, 13, 15, 17 and 19. Corresponding bust measurements 29, 31, 33, 35 and 37. Size 13 (31) requires 2⅜ yards of 54-inch material for jumper; 2 yards of 39-inch material without nap for long-sleeved blouse. 1⅝ yards for short-sleeved blouse. Send order to:

That Nagging Backache
May Warn of Disordered Kidney Action

Modern life with its hurry and worry, irregular habits, improper eating and drinking—its risk of exposure and infection—throws heavy strain on the work of the kidneys. They are apt to become over-taxed and fail to filter excess acid and other impurities from the life-giving blood.

You may suffer nagging backache, headache, dizziness, getting up nights, leg pains, swelling—feel constantly tired, nervous, all worn out. Other signs of kidney or bladder disorder are sometimes burning, scanty or too frequent urination.

Try Doan's Pills. Doan's help the kidneys to pass off harmful excess body waste. They have had more than half a century of public approval. Are recommended by grateful users everywhere. Ask your neighbor!

SLEEPY, an oilcloth burro, is as lazy as he can be. He just nods and sleeps all day, and seems not to care what the children do with him. But he has three redeeming recommendations: a cute personality, ease of making, and his ability to part from fingerprints with the whisk of a damp cloth.

There's a Good Reason You're Constipated!

When there's something wrong with you, the first rule is: get at the cause. If you are constipated, don't endure it first and "cure" it afterward. Find out what's giving you the trouble.

Chances are it's simple if you eat the super-refined foods most people do: meat, white bread, potatoes. It's likely you don't get enough "bulk." And "bulk" doesn't mean a lot of food. It's a kind of food that isn't consumed in the body, but leaves a soft "bulky" mass in the intestines and helps a bowel movement.

If this is your trouble, you should eat a natural "bulk" producing food—such a one as the crunchy, toasted, ready-to-eat cereal, Kellogg's All-Bran. Eat it often, drink plenty of water, and "Join the Regulars." All-Bran is made by Kellogg's in Battle Creek. If your condition is chronic, it is wise to consult a physician.

Before One's Conscience

FOR HEAD COLDS

Just 2 drops Penetro Nose Drops will instantly start you on the "open-nose" way out of cold-stuffed misery.
Remember, free and easy breathing takes the kick out of head colds—helps cut down the time these colds hang on. So, for extra, added freedom from colds this winter—head off head colds' misery with genuine Penetro Nose Drops.

Will Manufacture Mattresses

Bales of choice Southern cotton will be shipped directly into Marshall County to be turned into mattresses for the use of local families if plans are carried thru for the latest type of cooperation to remove price-depressing surpluses from the American market.

County Agricultural Agent R. A. Reierson took the initiative on December 5 in calling the first meeting of persons interested to consider steps for sponsoring the program in this county. Representatives of six county organizations were present to hear an explanation of the plan given by Miss Mildred Sailor, home demonstration worker from University Farm. They discussed setting up a local committee which would take the steps necessary for receiving applications and compiling the figures needed to place the cotton order from this county. An advisory committee was appointed consisting of G. T. McCleary of Stephen, C. N. Kranz of Strandquist, Jessie Herbeson of Warren, Mrs. J. H. Rosendohl of Warren, Irene Pulman, Warren, Anton Anderson of Argyle, Ole Bergman of Alxarado, Gunsten Skomedal of Thief River Falls, Paul Steen of Warren, Alphonse Johnson of Stephen, Tom Howard of Warren, Art Anderson of Newfolden. This committee will meet on January 9, 1941 to acsept or reject the cotton mattress program. Their determination will be governed by the number of applications made by families in the county. This committee will also be responsible for setting up of work centers and will have general supervision of the program should it be approved.

The United States Department of Agriculture is backing the plan whereby Minnesota farmers, who have themselves wrestled with surplus problems, will have an opportunity to turn Southern cotton surpluses into mattresses for their own use.

The Extension Service, the Agricultural Adjustment Administration, and the Surplas Marketing Administration are providing leadership, while the local civic groups will help with the plan. The county AAA office will certify families for eligibility.

Baled cotton and good grade ticking will be shipped here direct to be made into mattresses at work centers established in this county. People to receive the mattresses will do the work of manufacturing themselves, under trained instructors, at these centers. Four adult persons working one day is required to make a mattress.

In order to insure the placing of the mattresses in homes where there is an actual need for them, the program is limited to families whose total net incomes in the preceeding year has not exceeded $500, plus $50 for each member of the family in excess of four persons. Families ~~are limited to one mattres for each~~ two members, with a maximum of three. Each family must send two adults to the center to work on the mattresses they will receive. There may also be a small charge to cover needles, thread and minor local expenses.

"TIRED? NOT ANY MORE"
"Since the doctor prescribed beer with my meals I never feel exhausted"

● More and more people today are slipping into an unhealthy state of exhaustion. Constantly tired and worried, they become easy prey to various ailments.

Because many prominent physicians regard beer as a food as well as a refreshing beverage, they are recommending its daily use in the diet to restore energy, soothe frayed nerves, and build up resistance to fatigue.

"The mineral and vitamin content of beer," says Dr. Clarence William Lieb of New York, "together with its caloric food value, comparing favorably in many respects with milk, makes it highly desirable food. Its predigested malt sugar, which is quickly assimilated, also makes it an invaluable drink in fatigue states of mind and body."

Beer has proved invaluable also in promoting economic health! In our own state, the brewing industry of Minnesota furnishes employment annually for more than 35,000 . . . pays about $2,000,000 a year in excise taxes . . . and buys over $3,500,000 worth of Minnesota farm products.

Life Of Mrs. Otto Johnson

Mrs. Otto Johnson, nee Caroline Danielson Nelson, was born in Valdres, Norway, on June 24, 1866. She was the daughter of Daniel Nelson and his wife, Gunhild. She grew to womanhood in Valdres. On the 26th of December, 1886, in Valdres, she was married to Otto Johnson, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Halvorson.

Mr. and Mrs. Johnson emigrated from Norway to America on June 24th, 1887 and arrived at Grafton, North Dakota, on the 20th of July, 1887, where they made their home for 7 years. On the 2nd of September, 1894, they moved to a farm north of of Holt which was their home until November 1st, 1937, when they moved into their home which they bought in town. 43 years of their lives were spent on the farm north of town and 3 years in town for a total of 46 years in this community.

Eight children were born to this happy union; 3 whom have preceded her in death.

She is survided by her husband, Otto Johnson and the following children:

Karen, Mrs. Ole Garthus Duluth
John O., of Holt
Ole, of Fargo
Nels, of St. Hilaire
Inga, Mrs. Rudolph Smith, Holt.

The deceased are: Gilbert, Mrs. Gust Johnson, (Alma) and Clara who passed away at the age of 11 weeks.

30 grandchildren living; 3 are dead; 15 greatgrandchildren, 1 dead. Besides her own family, Mrs. Johnson, together with her husband, raised 3 grandchildren following the death of their mother, Mrs. Gust Johnson and they are: Helena, Mrs. Arthur Moe; Eunice and Verna.

She has one sister living, Mrs. Mary Knutson of Sexsmith, Alberta, Canada. 3 brothers and 1 sister have preceded her in death Simon, Ole, Nels and Mrs. Andrew Arnevik.

There are 3 half sisters and 5 half brothers surviving, namely Andrew Ness, California; Daniel Ness and Mrs. Anton Myrom, of Thief River Falls; Mrs. Thea Olson of Sweden; Mrs. Karina Svensrud of Pelican Lake Wisconsin; Knute and Gilbert Nelson all of Holt.

This obituary was written by herself and sealed for opening upon her decease.

Mrs. Johnson was at the time of her death, Dec. 5th, 74 years 5 months and 12 days.

The funeral was conducted in Nazareth Lutheran Church on Monday afternoon where a crowd filling the church auditorium and Church parlors was present. Rev. T. C. L. Hanson officiated assisted by Rev. Thv. Myhrer of Newfolden who spoke in Norwegian. Vocal solos were rendered by Mrs. O. H. Nohre, Mrs. John E. Ness and Mrs. Clarence Larson. Honorary Pallbearers were C. H. Gunheim, Guy Anderson, Alfred Anderson, Anton Sagstun, O. B. Johnson and John Hagberg. Active pallbearers were Carsten Sagstuen, Ingvald Fosholm, Ludvig Sagstuen, Henry Fosholm, Clarence Smith and Carl Johnson. There was a wealth of floral offerings and In Memoriam gifts.

Gunheim and Larson were in charge of arrangements.

Some of those who came from a distance to attend the funeral included: Mr. and Mrs. Dan Ness, Mr. and Mrs. Anton Myrom, Mrs. Lester Halvorson, Mrs. C. L. Heinze, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Heinze, Halvor Fodstad, Mrs. Ed Hiram, Mr. and Mrs. Herman Christofferson and Mrs. Iver Engebretson all of Thief River Falls; Mr. and Mrs. Anten Peterson of Hazel; Oscar Kana of Grafton; Mr. and Mrs. Ole Johnson and Daughters of Moorhead; Mrs. Ole Garthus of Duluth, Mr. and Mrs. Nels Johnson and Oscar Haugen of St. Hilaire; John Hanson and John Hegstad of Badger; Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Johnson and Mrs. Elmer Nohre of Karlstad; Mr. and Mrs. Theo. Ness of Red Lake Falls; Mr. and Mrs. Ole Ellingson of Warren and Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Mattson of Rosewood.

Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Gunheim served lunch to about 55 relatives and friends of the deceased at their home after the funeral.

Pretty Party Frock For the Little Girl

MAKE this adorable frock for your own little girl, tie a ribbon round her head and send her off beaming to her next important party date! You may be sure she'll have a good time, and be the smartest little girl there! Correctly simple, with waistline slimmed in by inside tucks beneath which the skirt flares and ripples, it's trimmed with frills and ribbon at sleeves and neckline. You can see from the diagram sketch how easy this design (No. 8827) is to make. Just cut out four pieces, make the tucks and the darts, and sew it together. Even the least experienced mother or doting aunt can do it!

For the coming holiday parties this frock will be most appropriate in velveteen or taffeta, with organdy or very fine lace for trimming. Simple as it is, this pattern includes a step-by-step sew chart.

Nazis Widen Scope of Bombing Attacks On Vital Ports and Industrial Cities; Italian and British Naval Forces Clash; Weird Stories Told of Rumanian Purge

(EDITOR'S NOTE—When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of the news analyst and not necessarily of this newspaper.)
(Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

BUCHAREST, RUMANIA — Shortly after this picture of King Michael and his mother was taken, the streets of this city ran red with blood. This is the last picture taken of the king and his mother before the outbreak of the Iron Guard blood purge of political enemies. Now Michael has fled into hiding and his mother is reported to be in Italy.

RUMANIA:
Haywire?

Bringing to mind the French revolution, the downfall of Tsarism in Russia, and other rarities of human experience of similar ilk, Rumania went haywire following abdication of Carol and anschluss with the Axis.

Guns barked in public squares of half a score of towns, including Bucharest, where the enemies of Iron Guards found themselves perforated and laid in row upon row of corpses in bloody streets.

In vain did Gen. Ion Antonescu order peace and quiet, death followed death; jails and other refuges were entered and victims dragged forth to the general slaughter.

The Germans, who had touched off the inner revolt to the Nazi way of life, were aghast at their handiwork, fearing lest all value of their new acquisition would be swept away in an avalanche of anarchy.

King Mihai fled into hiding; his mother, Queen Helen, who had returned to Bucharest joyfully as soon as Carol and Mme. Lupescu decamped, hastened off to Italy and the comparative safety of exile there.

None could tell where Rumania was headed. Revolution immediately spread to the recently Sovietized Bessarabia, its dwellers crying out for "food, lower prices, fuel and medicines."

Weird stories emanated from the madness within Rumania, perhaps the oddest of all the story that 30 Iron Guardists, the ones who slew the 64 "enemies" who were held responsible for the prior assassination of Codreanu, had immediately committed suicide after the slayings.

Another yarn told how during the slayings a loud-speaker blared forth the voice of Codreanu, words of a threat against his enemies made during a famous speech when he was at the zenith of his career.

BOMBS:
For Industry

After the British had been wondering what new line German bombing would take, the Germans made it instantly plain by starting a new type of attack on a long series of industrial centers of Britain with results the reports of which varied according to the source.

The test tube for these attacks was the relatively small town of Coventry, but this was followed with smashing bombings of Bristol, Manchester, Liverpool, Southampton and other cities of greater size.

In general the industrial heart of England lies in the Midlands, and on many nights the bomber waves passed up London entirely to smash away at towns in this territory.

German accounts of damage done are optimistic, the British call them "highly exaggerated," but apparently the Nazis didn't know and the British wouldn't tell how extensive the damage has been.

Berlin claimed and London admitted that Southampton was in flames after a bitter day and night attack by the Nazis. England's chief southern port town, Southampton, is 80 miles southwest of London. Once the main port of call for transatlantic liners it was the object of the constant pounding by the feared dive bombers. While German dispatches stated that the city was in flames, London admitted that many fires had been started but that they were put under control within a short time.

Of interest to war observers, however, was the adoption by Germany of the tactic which has been earmarked by the R. A. F. since the commencement of the "all-out" air war.

From the first the R. A. F. has concentrated on objectives of two types, despite the widespread popular demand for bombings of Berlin. The R. A. F. planes have deluged the "invasion ports" with explosives, and also the industrial and munitions centers of Germany.

This attack also has been extended to industrial Italy, with devastating blows at Turin, Naples and Leghorn among other centers. Before the war, military observers predicted that of the three nations, Germany's industrial cities were best protected against air attack, England's next best and Italy's most vulnerable. All predicted, however, that if Germany held mastery of the air she conceivably could cripple British industry.

GREEKS:
History Makers

Generations to come will find in their history books the story of the defense of their nation by the Greek armies under General Metaxas, who continued their successes, though at somewhat slower pace as they proceeded many miles into the difficult Albanian terrain.

Study of military maps showed the dangers of the Italian position, but reports tended to show that although badly beaten and knocked back on their heels into Albanian territory, the Italians were still planning to make a fight of it.

Greeks were taking their victories calmly, General Metaxas giving the United States to understand that little Greece could not hope to "go it alone," but would need expanded American aid in addition to liberal help from British land forces and airplanes.

The Grecian armies were fighting a brilliant and vigorous campaign, with much of the drive that goes with repeated successes. Dramatic sidelights were the fighting of the Macedonian women, who told how they gathered on a mountain plateau against orders of Greek commanders and started avalanches of heavy rocks down on Italians trapped in a ravine below them.

Another dramatic sidelight was provided by the Italian radio, which broadcast a bitter denunciation of the Greeks for use of the bayonet, calling it a "barbarous weapon."

Leslie Hore-Belisha, writing of the Greeks, said real test would be reached when Italians reached the coastal plain, where Fascist mechanized equipment would get a fairer test. Greeks were promising to make no stops in driving Italians into the Adriatic.

DIES:
Vs. Administration?

Martin Dies, foe of the fifth column, whenever and wherever he finds signs of it, ran into a snag when President Roosevelt handed him an admonitory telegram at his Orange, Texas, home. President warned Dies that his "White Paper" and "Red Paper" were premature and hampered work of the G-men.

Dies, taking a leaf from the Rooseveltian book, declared he has a "mandate" from the people for continuation of his committee's work, and promised two more "papers" as his answer to presidential objections.

He went to the nation over the air-waves, urging a radical change in American methods of spy-fighting. Army and navy heads admitted Dies' charge of Communist members in the armed forces, and promised to "crack down" if any of them became active.

New Senator

LAS VEGAS, NEVADA — Berkeley Bunker, above, appointed by Governor Carville to be United States senator from Nevada to succeed the late Key Pittman. Bunker, 34, served two terms in the Nevada legislature and was speaker of the house, last year.

AMERICA:
A World Banker

The United States, digging deep into the taxpayers' pockets to finance preparedness for the national defense, now has become the world's banker, reverting to the American status of 1914-1918, when this nation put out $24,000,000,000, not much of which ever returned.

Present requests for war credits came presently from Lord Lothian, representing Great Britain, which will want some sort of credit status in 1941; from Greece, which says its need for aid is immediate; and China, who has been needing more and more right along.

China was first to get hers, the U. S. okaying $100,000,000 in credits of which one half is secured by Chinese "metals," to be delivered during the next two or three years. Part of this will be the priceless antimony the world supply of which is highly restricted. It will pass from China to U. S. via the Burma road, under the hail of Nipponese bombs.

China got her credits on the very day when, as Japanese and puppet state envoys were getting together to sign a treaty of "peace," guerrillas blew up a train—estimated dead and injured, 400.

Sumner Welles announced the United States had agreed to Grecian aid "in principle," and that exact details would be worked out, and munitions sent.

Britain's first maneuverings for credit, however, met with a storm in house and senate circles, strongest opponent being Hiram Johnson, author of the neutrality act. But from embassy circles and also across the water came the plea:

"Send us planes, lots of planes, and we'll blast Germany out of the skies."

The planes, paid for in cash and motors, are on the way.

TO SEA:
Goes the War

Naval activity, which has furnished some of the best stories of the war thus far, spruced up, with British, Italian and German naval units clashing on the high seas.

One observer said "battles appear to have been on a large scale if we ever find out what happened," recalling that they are still telling the story and publishing pictures of the Battle of Oran—way back early last summer.

Sketchy accounts show these facts:

British Mediterranean fleet met strong force of Italian vessels, headed by two battleships, off Sardinia. British say firing started at "extreme range" (probably about 15 miles) as ships were "hull down" on the horizon. Italian cruisers fled for harbor under smoke screen.

British cruisers followed and met heavy fire from heavier-armed battleships, then veered away themselves for safety. They say that battleships also fled from the engagement, pursued by aircraft, which caught up with them and torpedoed at least two vessels, one of largest size.

British admit that Italian airplanes made three attacks on their fleet, admit that one cruiser was hit by a naval shell and eight killed, several wounded. Observers told how Ark Royal, aircraft carrier, vanished in spray from 30 bombs, which hit nearby, but came up firing and drove off planes.

Italian story checks with British in major details, but with opposite result.

British battle with German vessels took place in the channel, Germans claiming two naval vessels damaged and two merchant ships sunk, making it apparently a convoy engagement. British were mum on this meeting.

THE TRUTH SIMPLY TOLD

Today's popularity of Doan's Pills, after many years of world-wide use, surely must be accepted as evidence of satisfactory use. And favorable public opinion supports that of the able physicians who test the value of Doan's under exacting laboratory conditions. These physicians, too, approve every word of advertising you read, the objective of which is only to recommend Doan's Pills as a good diuretic treatment for disorder of the kidney function and for relief of the pain and worry it causes.

If more people were aware of how the kidneys must constantly remove waste that cannot stay in the blood without injury to health, there would be better understanding of why the whole body suffers when kidneys lag, and diuretic medication would be more often employed.

Burning, scanty or too frequent urination sometimes warn of disturbed kidney function. You may suffer nagging backache, persistent headache, attacks of dizziness, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes—feel weak, nervous, all played out.

Use Doan's Pills. It is better to rely on a medicine that has won world-wide acclaim than on something less favorably known. Ask your neighbor!

THREE wire coat hangers, two old bath towels, some fine wire hair pins and needle and thread made this cunning woolly lamb. All the directions are in the sketch. The wire hangers are bent and bound together with hair pins to make the foundation. A ball of soft cloth is fastened inside the loop that forms the head, and is covered with a square of the toweling bound and sewn as shown. The rest of the body is all padded and shaped by winding and sewing four inch strips of the toweling, as shown.

Someone has just thumbtacked a letter on my drawing board to give my day a good start. It is from a reader who says, "I have all five of the sewing booklets and every time I look through them I find some exciting new thing to make that I have not seen before." Hurrah! I am certainly happy when people say they like those booklets. I have been so interested in doing them and now Book 6 is ready for mailing. It is full of new ideas for making new things for the home. I am pretty excited about it and hope you like it and use it again and again just as so many of you have written me that you have used the others. This new Book 6 contains a description of each of the other five booklets of the series. Send order to:

Chritmas Day Services

Christmas will be ushered in with two services in the Nazareth Lutheran Church on Wednesday morning. The first services will be at 9:30 when the Norwegian language will be used. Many of the older folks of our community prefer to hear the Christmas message in their mother tongue and this will give them the opportunity. Immediately following this service, there will be the usual English service at 11:00. Not only will this arrangement facilitate the use of two languages, but with a double service the crowds will not be greater than those who wish to worship will be given the opportunity to do so.

The Christmas Tree Program under the auspices of the Sunday School will be given on Thursday evening, Dec. 26. at 7:30. To defray expenses, a collection will be received.

Judge Brattland Died Friday

Michael A. Brattland, judge of the 14th district, died at his home at Thief River Falls on Friday after an acute illness from cancer.

Appointed by Governor Floyd B. Olson in February 1934, he was re-elected in 1934 and again in November 1940. Previous to his appointment, he had been prominent in Norman county legal circles, having served as county attorney and judge of probate.

Judge Brattland, who was 74 years old, was born at Waseca, this state, Oct. 9, 1866, and moved to Norman county with his parents when a child.

He graduated from the University of Minnesota in 1890, being a member of the first law class of that school. Upon graduation, he moved to McIntosh and began a law practice there in 1891.

In 1892 he established a practice in Ada and from 1896 to 1900 was judge of probate court in Norman county. He was elected Norman county attorney in 1912 and held that position until 1926.

He was married to Mabel Dawley at Ada in 1897. They moved to Thief River Falls in 1935.

Surviving are his wife; one son, Armond D., practicing law in Bemidji; one daughter, Lois, at home, and a brother, Gilbert, of Thief River Falls. His older brother, Ole, died at Fargo in August.

Services were held in Thief River Falls yesterday afternoon and at Ada this afternoon with interment made at Ada.

Judge Brattland was an avowed liberal, being a member of the Populist and Socialist parties in earlier days. He came within a few hundred votes of winning the race for congress in 1912 on the Public Ownership platform. He was also a strong supporter of the Good Templar movement, being an active worker in behalf of prohibition.

Mr. and Mrs. Pete Hanson of Warren and Mr. and Mrs. H. O. Hanson made a trip to Minneapolis over the week end to have H. O. Hanson's artificial leg repaired. He had slipped on the sidewalk and broken it badly.

Notice for Bids

The clerk of School District No. 59 will receive bids for 8 cords of green split white poplar wood in 4 foot length. The bids to be in the hands of the clerk by 1 o'clock p. m., Friday, Dec. 27, 1940. The school board reserves the right to reject any or all bids.

Given Wedding Reception

A wedding reception was given for Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Baker at the Nazareth Church Wednesday evening. A program consisting of an accordian solo by Leonard Ness, reading by Ferne Peterson, vocal solo by Arline Michaels, vocal trio by Peterson sisters and a talk by Rev. Hanson was given, and the newlywedded couple were presented with a whole table full of gifts.

The most Chrismassy looking place around here is Carlson's store which has been decorated on the whole front with evergreen and colored lights by A. W. Carlson. It is in form of a huge Christmas tree with three stars at the top. Reports are that it can be seen a couple of miles away coming to town from north

Rev. Hanson also has trimmed a tree on the parsonage lawn with colored lights and also one on their porch which brighten up that whole corner.

Circle 5 and 6 entertained the ladies of Holt at a Christmas Party at the Nazareth Church Monday evening. Gifts were exchanged around a Christmas Tree and a program and various games held. Refreshments of sandwiches, apple pie with whipped cream, coffee, candy and nuts were served.

File Applications Now

The Better Way to Correct Constipation

One way to treat constipation is to endure it first and "cure" it afterward. The other way is to avoid having it by getting at its cause. So why not save yourself those dull headachy days, plus the inevitable trips to the medicine chest, if you can do it by a simple common-sense "ounce of prevention"?

If your trouble, like that of millions, is due to lack of "bulk" in the diet, "the better way" is to eat Kellogg's All-Bran. This crunchy, toasted, ready-to-eat cereal has just the "bulk" you need. If you eat it regularly—and drink plenty of water—you can not only get regular but keep regular, day after day and month after month! All-Bran is made by Kellogg's in Battle Creek. If your condition is chronic, it is wise to consult a physician.

FOR HEAD COLDS

. . . rush out clogging miseries—rush in vitalizing healing air.

Just 2 drops Penetro Nose Drops will instantly start you on the "open-nose" way out of cold-stuffed misery.

Remember, free and easy breathing takes the kick out of head colds—helps cut down the time these colds hang on. So, for extra, added freedom from colds this winter—head off head colds' misery with genuine Penetro Nose Drops.

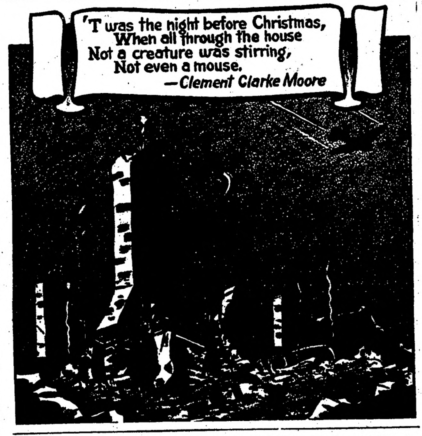
WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS By Edward C. Wayne

U. S. Isolationists 'View With Alarm' All Moves to Aid Britain and Greece; 'Bottlenecks' Worry Defense Leaders; Italian Drive Suffers New Reverses

(EDITOR'S NOTE—When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of the news analyst and not necessarily of this newspaper.)

(Released by Western Newspaper Union.)



'T was the night before Christmas,
When all through the house
Not a creature was stirring,
Not even a mouse.
—Clement Clarke Moore

TAKING HAND:
U. S. Steps In

While prominent isolationists "viewed with alarm" each successive step, it was evident that the United States was becoming daily a more vital factor in the various phases of World war II.

Summed up, these might be catalogued under (a) promised aid to Greece; (b) promised food credits to Spain; (c) placing aid to Britain even ahead of vital national defense; (d) preparations to place the navy immediately in shape to aid Britain in patroling ocean lanes.

President Roosevelt's assurance to King George of Greece that material aid will come from this country, and immediately, was couched in terms that showed the nation ready to succor any and all peoples suffering from aggression.

At the same time that the state department and national defense council busied themselves with this problem, Ambassador Weddell approached the more ticklish task of aiding Axis-friendly Spain. The Spanish admittedly were in dire need of food to tide them over the winter.

Franco was unable to give immediate assurance of Spain's non-participation in the war, but while America apparently was willing to waive a definite pledge, a demand was made that Spain announce her principle of non-intervention.

The United States was anxious to give Spain food, partly from this country, partly beef from the Argentine, but equally as anxious that these provisions not fall into the hands of Axis belligerents.

In addition to huge American commitments to give Britain planes, tanks and war material of all kinds, the need for merchant ships was being met through the purchase here of 150 ships, more than 100 of them to be constructed by one shipyard alone.

NAZI SPEECH:
Rival Worlds

In a 90-minute address to German war workers, Adolf Hitler, told them and the world that the current war was a fight between two worlds, one of "special privilege," in which he included the United States, the other a world of equality and freedom as represented by Nazi Germany. He indicated that Britain would feel more and more the might of Nazi armed force. Expressing supreme confidence in Germany's strength, Hitler promised his followers that the tempo of war would be stepped up until Nazi victory was assured.

LAGGING:
Bottlenecks

Appropriating billions for defense production is one thing, getting the material another, as the U. S. defense leaders were finding out.

The headache—bottlenecks! Number One of these was Engines—Number Two, Aluminum; Number Three, Landing Gears; Number Four, Machine Tools, and Number Five, Guns.

In spite of big increases in production at the Pratt-Whitney, Curtiss and Allison plants, facilities for making planes were still far ahead of the engines to make them go.

Those in the know admit that U. S. commitments to Great Britain are such that our plants will not be able to deliver engines in quantity to this country until around next September. After that time the Ford plants, it was said, will be geared up to make Pratt-Whitney engines in quantity, and the Packard factory will have the Rolls-Royce liquid-cooled motors in hand. These are essential for pursuit planes.

Two other auto factories are surveying their ability to turn out airplane engines, but even if they work out the problem, they won't be in production until late in 1941, well behind the Ford and Packard situation.

As to aluminum, the country is increasing its production of the raw material rapidly, but there is a long lag between raw material and the sheets and forgings necessary to make turrets, mounts and fuselages.

Next bottleneck was the landing gears, the shortage being in wheels, brakes and the air-compression cylinders necessary for the heavy types of bombers with retractable wheels. Factories are gearing up for these in mass production, but are far behind the plane factories.

Machine tools, starting point in all mass production, constituted the biggest headache among the bottlenecks. Knudsen and his associates started on the machine tool problem first, knowing it would be most vital, but the lag here has been even greater than expected.

One new machine tool, having to be built and turned out in mass production, may cause a lag of months in making airplanes on an assembly line basis.

The guns referred to are of heavier caliber than those we formerly used on our planes. Here, again, the defense leaders have realized that guns are not designed and built in quantity in a day, and concentrated effort is being made in this direction.

DOMESTIC SCENE

℄ Miami—President Roosevelt, after kidding newsmen that he was going into the Caribbean sea to visit Easter island and hunt Easter eggs, showed up at various naval bases on inspection.

℄ Washington — Dies committee probers say they knew sabotage had been committed on a pursuit plane of a type to be delivered to Britain some time before the plane crashed in a test flight.

ITALY:
Unrest at Home?

Serious signs of Italian unrest at home matched continuing news of disaster at the Grecian front, although the lapse between occurrence and admission still was about ten days to two weeks.

The Italians have to wait at least that long before learning what has happened to their boys "over there" across the smiling Adriatic. At first there were reports of constant successes as the Fascist war machine smashed into Grecian territory, sweeping the Greeks ahead of them as the defenders marshalled their forces swiftly and sought defendable positions for men and guns.

Then the Evzones, those kilted mountaineers, began striking and Italian gains became losses, and the invaders were swept back across the Albanian frontier into a retreat that was steadily continued.

It was 10 days after the fall of Pogradetz, important northern base, before the Italians learned of it officially. Northern Italy learned of it through their Jugoslavian neighbors long before the press had it.

The news of the abandonment of Porto Edda and Argirocastro was similarly delayed. Reports of rioting inside Italy, especially in northern cities, was persistent but unconfirmed officially, as Marshal Pietro Badoglio, popular hero, was summarily set down for the failure of the Albanian invasion.

Cues—Not Swords

HEROES:
Sagas of the Sea

The 20,000-ton merchant cruiser Carnavon Castle took its place among sea heroes when it limped into Montevideo after telling of a "chase" fight of nearly 24 hours with an unidentified Nazi surface raider that has taken a heavy toll of British and neutral shipping.

Once more, as in the case of the Graf Spee, the battle took place in South Atlantic waters, tending to confirm the British belief that ports in that general neighborhood send out ships which refuel and re-provision the raiders.

The Carnavon Castle, undoubtedly lighter in armament and slower in speed than the German raider, reported that it left its antagonist badly hit astern, and afire. Carnavon's skipper expressed the opinion that the raider had not long to survive.

The merchant cruiser arrived in port hit a dozen times, with many killed and wounded, and listing heavily to port. Ballast tanks had been filled on purpose to accomplish this, and to lift her starboard side out of water, thus bringing huge holes at the waterline up out of the water, keeping the ship afloat.

REDS:
In School

An aftermath of Dies committee revelations occurred in New York, where the American Legion took cognizance of hints that Communist party members were teaching in New York classrooms, and the revelations were sensational.

No less than 24 teachers, many of them in Brooklyn college, a city-owned institution, were found in colleges, high and grade schools who were charged with being Red party members.

Instances of circulation of Marxist propaganda, also the teaching of Communist doctrines were uncovered, and the matter well-aired.

CRASH:
Another Tragedy

Perhaps a mite smug over their wonderful record of safety in passenger-carrying, the plane lines had a rude shock when a mainliner crashed in Chicago, with the loss of many lives.

Review of accident brought two things to the notice of investigators: (1) that Pilot Scott changed from one plane to another in Cleveland because he didn't like the sound of one motor when he "revved" it up prior to a takeoff; (2) He had to circle about for 28 minutes in a blinding snowstorm over the Chicago airport before he could land.

Six ships were "in line," stacked up at thousand-foot intervals as they took turns coming into the port. The possibility of snow-blindness was mentioned, as at the last moment the pilot radioed ground forces that he "had a good view of the landing field" and was coming in.

Suddenly a wing dipper and he crashed from 150 feet. Six died at once, and four later. Pilot, copilot and stewardess lost their lives.

FOREIGN JOTTINGS:

℄ Berlin—Jan Kubelik, master violinist, was reported to have died in Prague at 60. Reckless of money, he died in comparative poverty and with his beloved Czecho-Slovakia crumbling around him. By his side was "Charles Dawson," a Hindu medical student who once heard Kubelik play, deserted his own life and studies to "stay forever" with "such a master."

℄ Paris — An "international incident" was the detention by Nazi occupation authorities of Mrs. Elizabeth Deegan, 40, a clerk in the American embassy. It took Washington days to find what had become of her.

℄ London — Londoners who think German raiders are aiming "right at them" were disabused of this notion by British pilots, who reported that at usual bombing height, five miles up and more, "London looks as big as a book on the "floor" and bombers are lucky to hit the city, let alone particular objectives.

SANTA Goes Modern

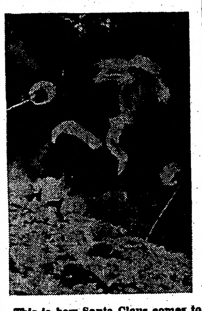
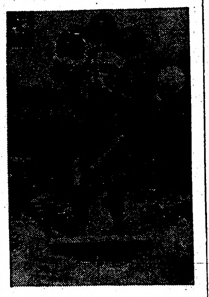
Santa Claus often steps out of his reindeer sleigh these days to make faster time, or to go where the sleigh cannot go. Here he is in the person of Capt. William Wincapaw, veteran New England pilot, ready to take off from the East Boston airport with another load of Christmas gifts for the lonely lighthouse keepers and isolated islanders.



This is how Santa Claus comes to Sun Valley—on skis. Here is the gay St. Nick speeding down the snowy slopes and right into the chimneys of the residents and visitors.



In lands of no snow Santa can be expected to use this novel method of bringing Yuletide joy to those who celebrate on the beaches. This warm-weather Santa who skips so nonchalantly over the deep blue sea happens to be Phil Daubens-Peck, famous Olympic games swimming champion.

Mistletoe Has Known Long, Eventful History

Of all the Christmas greens, the best-loved, probably, is the mistletoe, which likewise has experienced the most eventful history of all plants.

In the days of pagan worship in England the mistletoe was chosen for great honors, being cut from its host, the oak tree, with golden axes. It was gathered for the people and a bit given to each person to ward off illness.

But the plant paid dear for these honors for when the Christian church was established it was not allowed in any church because of its pagan association, and it is told that preachers even would stop in their sermons if a tiny bit were spied and the service waited until the offending bit of green was removed.

In later centuries it became again the symbol of peace and friendship and has since been tacked on the doorway as a token of friendly greeting.

Yule Log Cake

This year you may want to make a "Yule Log Cake." It's quite simple. Spread over a jelly roll a jellied fruit nut mixture. Roll quickly and wrap in waxed paper. Then chill until set. Cover with chocolate French pastry icing. The "bark" can be made by making grooves with a fork or pastry tube. You'll want some "knot holes" in your Yule Log Cake. Small white and green candles will do the trick. The "log" should be kept chilled until time to serve

Happy Hours Ahead

A gift to make many happy hours for pipe and "makin's" smokers is the Prince Albert Christmas package—one full pound of ripe, rich-tasting, mellow tobacco. Colorful holiday wrappers put these popular presents in gay Christmas setting—and a handy gift card is enclosed. Your regular tobacco dealer has the one-pound gift tin of Prince Albert on display. Remember! Prince Albert is the cooler-burning tobacco—the National Joy Smoke.—Adv.

Helpful Laughter

Laughter is a most healthful exertion; it is one of the greatest helps to digestion with which I am acquainted; and the custom prevalent among our forefathers, of exciting it at table by jesters and buffoons, was founded on true medical principles.—Dr. Hufeland.

New Date Frock In Princess Style

YOU'LL need an extra pretty afternoon frock, with many parties coming on, and teas. A frock that will make your figure look particularly slim and supple, your face fresh and appealing! That's just the kind of frock you can make for yourself with design No. 8826, in velveteen, chiffon-thin wool, spun rayon or flat crepe.

See how beautifully the princess cut makes it melt into your waistline, in a most belittling fashion! That clever skirt detailing in front is a perfect way to achieve the smart "concealed fullness." The draped bodice is not only an important fashion point, but also very becoming to slim figures, because it tends to round out the bosom. Make it of lace, or contrast or, as shown in the small sketch, of the frock fabric.

* * *

Pattern No. 8826 is designed for sizes 12, 14, 16, 18 and 20. Size 14 requires, with short sleeves, 4⅞ yards of 39-inch material without nap; long sleeves, 4⅛ yards, ½ yard lace. Step-by-step sew chart comes with your pattern. Send order to:

New and Fascinating Transparent Sewing

By RUTH WYETH SPEARS

THERE are fascinating new transparent materials on the market now. Luncheon sets and aprons and rain coats and closet accessories all take on new glamour when made of them, and you will find that every left-over scrap will be used for something that is attractive and worth while.

Less than 50 cents' worth of this window-pane clear material made the hat cover, underwear case and two glove cases like the one shown here. All the directions for cutting and making the hat cover are given here in the sketch. The material from two corners made the square underwear case. The material from each of the other two corners was folded to make a glove or handkerchief case. Bright blue bias tape was used for seam binding and the bottom facing and loop handle of the hat cover; and colored zippers to match the bindings were used for the case closings.

Marshall Co. Historical Society

Nels M. Engen, Warren attorney and Probate Judge-elect who will take office early in January, was elected president of the Marshall County Historical Society at the annual meeting of the organization held in Warren recently. Mr. Engen succeeds the late Judge B. B. Brett who headed the organization since its beginning.

All other officers of the society were reelected including O. M. Mattson as vice president, Mrs. W. A. Knapp, secretary and Mrs. J. J. Pagnac of Stephen as treasurer. Directors reelected include Dr. I. George Wiltrout, Oslo; Mrs. H. C. Haugen, Newfolden; Rev. L. M. Brynestad, Warren; P. B. Malberg, Excel township; Miss Ruby Anderson, Argyle and John Whalen, Stephen. The officers are ex-officio members of the executive board. The society will endeavor to promote a project for constructing wall cases in the corridors of the court house in which the museum pieces from the North Star College collection will be placed. The entire collection is now in storage in the court house attic awaiting a definite place for housing.

The society also recommended that the 1941 picnic be staged at Alvarado, although definite action on this proposal will not be taken until an executive board meeting is held later in the spring. The society has staged its annual picnic in different localities throughout the county in an effort to bring more attention to historical values in the respective communities.

The society welcomes new members, the membership fee being only 50c a year. Payments may be made to any officers or to S. D. Lincoln, historical investigator of Stephen.

Mrs. J. G. Nelson was taken ill Wednesday morning and had to be rushed to a hospital at Thief River Falls.

Happy New Year Folks

And may good health, happiness and fortune be by your side through the coming year.

Apply For Loans Early

Like doing one's Christmas shopping early, there is good reason why farm families expecting to call upon the Farm Security Administration for operating credit should do so at this time of the year. This was explained by Charley Ommodt, Farm Security Administration Supervisor in Marshall and Pennington counties. He advices farmers to "think ahead" about their credit needs, instead of waiting until they get down to their last bushel of feed.

Mr. Ommodt pointed out that a farmer applying now for credit which he will not need for several months may have it held for him and made available on a specified date. Thus, the loan does not begin to bear interest until it is actually used.

"The advantage of applying in the winter is that it is the in-between season when farmers can size up their past year's busines and plan for the new year," Mr. Ommodt stated.

"The FSA Supervisor, too, has more time to help the farm family develop a farm and home management plan which is fundamental to our program, and often of more benefit than the loan itself. Sometimes the working out of these plans requires considerable time and every spring we are forced to turn away applicants who apply too late to permit such plans to be drawn up. Many other farmers, while approaching us in time to receive the loans, find themselves caught up in the spring rush in our office just when they are most pressed for time."

Farm Security Administration loans are made to farm operators, whether owners or tenants, who are unable to obtain credit on reasonable terms from other sources. The loans can be made for feed, seed, fertilizer, livestock, equipment and similar operating goods for periods of from one to five years, with interest at five per cent.

The FSA Supervisor also called attention to the Farm Debt Adjustment service. This service, which is confidential and free of charge, brings farmers and their creditors together in an attempt to find a mutually acceptable solution of their difficulties. The service is available to any farmer, or his creditor, on request, according to Mr. Ommodt, whose headquarters are in Thief River Falls.

Mr. and Mrs. V. E. Oakey and Jackie, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Hanson and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Forder were guests at the Olaf Simonson and P. B. Malberg home Christmas Day.

Preliminary Deer Census

St. Paul, Minn.--A preliminary census idicating that deer made good use of at least one game refuge during the recent hunting season was reported by the Department of Conservation this week.

CCC boys from Camp S-144 at Akeley under direction of Paul R. Highby, Department mammologist, surved a typical square mile of the 8,960 acre Paul Bunyan refuge in Hubbard county located south-east of Itasca State Park.

Two censuses were made. The first, a few days before the hunting season started, showed 12 deer. The same area counted immediately after the shooting period contained 32 deer.

The Department cautioned that these figures are not necessarily conclusive, and there is no proof the ratio will apply to all game refuges in the deer country. Similar surveys of several other refuges are not yet tabulated.

A deer count in the Smiley refuge 13 miles southeast from Thief River Falls by interested sportsmen disclosed a bull elk or Wapiti to be in the area. Apparently the animal had wandered 45 miles from the northeast where a herd of animals were released on the Upper Red Lake refuge some years ago.

The elk was sighted by several persons participating in the drive. Tracks of a second elk, believed a cow, were also found nearby. Farmers in the area had reported seeing a "moose" wandering in the vicinity for several weeks.

While the Department will not have official census data on the past deer deer season before late January, the general belief among field investigators is that ample big game remains for seed stock in the most heavily hunted areas.

Preliminary surveys showed that the November snowfall made many normal hunting areas inaccessible, thus reducing the take in remote places. On the other hand, many point were the scenes of concentrated hunting.

In the latter classification was the territory around Crookston, Thief River, and Grand Marais.

Many Cars In Smashup

Last Saturday night was one of those when motorists had trouble staying on the highway. Five cars figured in a smashup south of Holt. Two cars going south, one being towed by the other, were hit from the rear by another south going car. This was due to the fact that the car being towed had no lights. These three piled up and as two other cars, one belonging to Mernet Johnson and another one met at the accident and also were damaged as they had too little room to pass and sideswiped eace other.

In Memoriam

In memory of Lyle and Wendell Pederson.

They are not dead, those loved who have passed
Beyond our vision for a while.
They have but reached the Light While we still grope in darkness where
We cannot see them smile.
Then let us gird us once again with hope,
And give them smile for smile
The while we wait,
And loving, serving when our Father calls, We'll go find our Loved ones wait for us at the gate.

Sadly missed by Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Pederson and Adelyn.

The program at the Holt School was a decided success. Each room presented a play, the Glee Club sang two song and the Rythm Band played two numbers. Christmas parties were held in each room next day.

Marshall "Death-Free" County

With less than a week of 1940 remaining, only two Minnesota counties — Chippewa and Marshall — remain in the traffic "death-free" group according to latest reports of the Minnesota Highway department's safety division.

Neither of these counties has had a traffic death within its borders in the eleven months of this year and their aim during the few remaining days of this year is to maintain their unblemished records and to go into the new year leading the statewide campaign to "Save 100 Lives." In 1939, Chippew county was charged with five traffic fatilities and Marshall county with three, so if they maintain their present "death-free" records until the end of the year, they will have saved a total of eight lives this year.

Rev. and Mrs. O. O. Bjorgan and son Rudolph visited at the parsonage on Friday evening. Rudolph returned home after teaching here the past three weeks.

Happy New Year

Is our wish to you all at this happy season

Many Buy Forfeited Land

More than 100 persons were present at the bidding on tax forfeited real estate offered for sale at the office of the County Auditor at Warren on Monday of last week. with brisk bidding bringing the price paid for many parcels well above the valuations at which they had been appraised by the county board.

According to County Auditor Johnson, 151 parcels of real estate were disposed of at the sale, the total paid aggregating $30,331.50.

Of the 151 parcels sold, 63 were city and village lots, while the remainder was agricultural lands. Parcels sold in various townships and villages of the county were set up in the report as follows; Holt village 9, Warren 9, Stephen 3, Strandquist 2, Argyle 28, Radium 1, Alvarado 5, Augsburg 2, Comstock 6, Excel 2, Foldahl 8, Fork 1, Holt township 8, Lincoln 9, McCrea 8, Marsh Grove 3, Nelson Park 1, Newfolden 2, New Maine 9, Parker 1, New Solum 9, Spruce Valley 6, Viking 5, West Valley 5, Wright 2.

Those from Holt who bought property were Fred Peterson, he bought the Flak farm southwest of the village; O. T. Ness, Hartley Peterson and H. Engen who bought village lots.

Born to Mr. and Mrs. Walter Larson, Friday, a boy.

Greeks Continue to Push Back Italians As British Seize New African Bases; Laval Loses French Government Post; Knudsen Claims Defense Program Lags

(EDITOR'S NOTE—When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of the news analyst and not necessarily of this newspaper.)

(Released by Western Newspaper Union.

DEBACLE:
Italian Version

Unquestioned was the fact that Italy had been kicked wholeheartedly out of the war by Britain, Greece and the Free French, together with other sundry allies such as Polish, Czech and other hands that had joined into the Battle of Greece and the Battle of Egypt.

The invader, who stepped briskly into the war just at the moment of France's collapse, shot forces along the Mediterranean coast from the border of Libya to Sidi Barrani, and who sailed across mountains for Athens from an Albanian take-off, had become the invaded on both fronts.

As the British and Greeks summed up huge supplies of war materials captured, and enormous inventories of prisoners in hand and still coming in, the Vesuvian rumbles began sounding through various parts of Italy, but more particularly in the north, and about the industrial cities of Turin and Milan.

Persistent rumors current in Europe say that Bruno Mussolini (above), eldest son of Il Duce, was shot down and killed during an air raid on Salonika, Greece. Official Italian circles have denied this report and say he is serving at an airport in southern Italy.

Despite all efforts of censorship to keep the true situation from becoming generally known, the debacle was too enormous to be hidden longer, and Mussolini's aides had to take to the radio and to the Italian press to prevent a spread of the disaster to home fronts.

Dismissal of leaders, disaffection in the Dodecanese islands, riots in the streets of the two big factory towns had leaked out, and then the Fascist party line editors and commentators began dishing out orders to the populace from the higher-ups, at the same time issuing warnings to Britain and the Hellenes as to what they might expect from the Italian troops when "they get really mad."

While there was some news of sporadic increased resistance at certain points in the fronts, the general words were two—retreat and evacuation all along the line. And the press' articles about the might of the British enemy and the "unfair" bayonets of the Greeks were just a foretaste of what was to come, with Tirana full of wounded and dying soldiers back from the front lines.

UNREST:
French Version

Britain was getting little comfort, according to her own sources, from France's governmental upheaval which sent Pierre Laval, pro-Fascist foreign minister, flying out of the Petain cabinet presumably into confinement, and put Flandin, pro-Nazi, into his place.

In fact, British circles frankly doubted the authenticity of any internal disturbance to amount to anything, and laid the whole change to orders direct from Hitler.

However, it was a notable occurrence, and accompanied by a scurrying about the streets of Vichy, and presumably Paris of a body of GP-men—France's new Gestapo or GPU. In Italy they were calling them "action squads," but they are all the same sort of strong-arm governmental police.

France called them "Groupe de protection," hence the GP on the arm-band. It was a GP band that took Laval into custody, thus putting into at least a momentary decline the man on whose shoulders rested considerable of the onus of France's surrender.

Rumor floated double-barreled around the French overturn. Rumor No. 1 had it that Old Man Petain, realizing that revolt was stirring beneath him, charged Laval with plotting to get France into the war against England, and had summarily ousted him.

Rumor No. 2 was to the effect that Laval had plotted to overthrow Petain and create a new government with himself as dictator. Whichever might be true, watchers agreed that the aged general acted with much the same speed as the younger Hitler in slapping down a "purge" which shot Laval's feet from under him with dispatch.

The upheaval met the same view in most circles, that it was another evidence of the general European unrest that was moving through all the conquered territories, an unrest that might find no directional force for a long, long time.

SIX DAYS:
Shalt Thou Labor

Pointing toward the six-day, perhaps seven-day week in defense industry, Defense Council Chairman Knudsen belabored American industry for lagging, and declared the United States was "not getting the spirit" of defense work.

Knudsen told the manufacturers many things, but one of these was outstanding, and had to do with airplane manufacture.

U. S. goal, declared Knudsen, had been 1,000 warplanes a month by January 1. He said at the rate things were going, we'll be lucky if we are getting 650 a month by that time.

The reason for the lag is lack of comprehension by manufacturer, by laborer, of the meaning of the national defense program. U. S. is supposed to be getting ready to protect the nation in case of aggression and to help England hold things in status quo until that time.

Knudsen pulled no punches and told the manufacturers that they were spending too much time figuring what to do with their profits and earnings, and not enough getting out the material. This was a double-barreled blow at the employers for temporizing with employees' demands for higher pay, and with employees for threatening and carrying out strikes.

WILLIAM KNUDSEN—Pictured as he urged a "wartime basis" for industry to speed production of vital defense needs.

He introduced the longer work-week idea by stating that employers should find a way to use machines on Saturdays and Sundays, making the obvious point that use of these two days on a full-time schedule would automatically speed up production about 30 per cent, or the amount it is lagging.

In advance he answered the manufacturers' plaint that they lacked the trained men to do this. Knudsen told them to get more men and train more men. He told them to "stagger" their trained men through the extra shifts, thus swiftly training the less-able to catch up to full-time production.

His address to the manufacturers was an air-clearer, like the first lightning flashes before a storm that he hopes will rain airplanes and other defense material.

HIGHLIGHTS . . . in the week's news

Baltimore—The new Martin B-26, latest American medium bomber, underwent test flights, made around 400 miles an hour, landed at 125 miles, and was able to stop on the field O. K. Army pilots hailed it as a "bomber's dream." One said that if its brakes were shot away it would roll more than two miles against the wind before it would stop.

Hoboken—Fire destroyed a million-dollar defense plant, engaged in making unreported appliances needed by U. S. naval vessels.

Washington—The government sought $500,000,000 at the lowest rate of interest ever to be paid on a loan. On the first day, it was oversubscribed eight times, more than $4,000,000,000 being offered for the certificates.

Champ Recruiter

NEW YORK.—Called the champion recruiter of North America, this winsome young lady, Miss Elaine Basset, is the original of the Canadian Join-the-Army posters, where her face did such a good job that it now has been selected to perform a like service for Uncle Sam.

PRESIDENT:
And Flying Duke

President Roosevelt returned to his White House desk to face tremendous problems, behind him a 4,000-mile trip on U. S. S. Tuscaloosa which was shrouded in secrecy before it began, turned out just what had been predicted—a junket throughout prospective naval-air bases in the Antilles—and wound up in a blaze of front-page articles when the duke of Windsor flew out to sea to confer with the Chief Executive.

It all began when Duchess Wallis, who had to have an infected tooth out (translated in royal language into a "major dental operation") decided to have the surgery performed in a Miami hospital. She and the duke went thither in the yacht of a Swedish friend who oddly was a pal of Goering's.

The day after the death of Lord Lothian, the operation was safely over, with the duchess convalescing bewitchingly, and the duke with a considerable amount of time on his hands. Suddenly it was announced that President Roosevelt wanted to talk to him.

A navy bomber soared down onto the blue Biscayne waters, a motorboat met the duke, and off he went, shrouded with more secrecy than the President himself had been when he started out. He was back the same day, and the next day the Tuscaloosa came in and the cruise was over.

The public, prepared by all this for something monumental, had to satisfy itself with the story that the duke and the President had talked about the unsuitability of pint-sized Tayaguana island for a naval-air base, and asking the duke if he couldn't arrange a better one.

It was the biggest anticlimax in months.

CITY:
Anxious

Strangest public health story in years "broke" in Rochester, N. Y., with a whole city of 300,000 souls rushing to be inoculated against typhoid.

First in sharp sequence of dramatic events was the "firing" of two city officials when a public health officer, "on his toes," discovered the city's water supply had been contaminated with water from the Genesee river, infested with sewage.

Rochester's population, most of them modernly health conscious, rushed to have themselves inoculated against typhoid, a job which takes three injections with an interval between.

First day, the health officers distributed 8,000 "shots" of the serum, which were promptly gobbled up by private physicians and shot into 8,000 anxious arms.

LOTHIAN:
Predicts, Then Dies

The notable, blunt-spoken British bachelor Marquess of Lothian, ambassador from Britain to the United States, lay dying in his Washington home from uremic poisoning at the very moment when his written words, spoken by proxy at nearby Baltimore, were predicting what the war in Europe will be.

Lothian's "deathbed" prediction was that Britain, with the help already promised and under way from America, will win the war "decisively" in 1942.

Whatever the facts may be, the shocking news of his death gave his final utterance unusual prominence in the news, editors tearing their hair over the problem of whether to put the largest headlines on what had happened to Lothian, or on what Lothian had said.

His passing was the occasion for the press here and abroad to express genuine sorrow and shock at his untimely death, and his loss was believed to have left a gaping hole in Britain's diplomatic body.

Lothian was a worker, his speech was brusque, and these two qualities alone had given him great weight in Washington.

As to his prediction of the end of the war in 1942, and with Britain victor, it was met with keen interest and perhaps added power because it was to all practical purposes, his dying utterance.

DRAFT MAKES MAJOR MISTAKE

The draft army turned down a New York taxicab driver the other day. This must show that it doesn't think there is any immediate need for fighting men in the army.

• • •

In this case the taxi driver was turned down because he didn't pass a 100 per cent eye test. Imagine that! Why, everybody knows from experience that a New York taxi man is dangerous under all conditions and twice as much of a threat to friend or foe if he can't see.

• • •

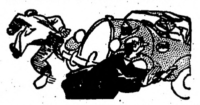
For that matter, imagine a taxi driver being turned down by the army for any reason!

• • •

A taxi driver, particularly a big city one, is the country's best bet in any war. He could even be America's "mystery weapon," if given any encouragement.

• • •

"If I was with an enemy army," declared Elmer Twitchell today, "and I had to choose between a mess with an average regiment and one New York taxi driver, I would dodge the cabbie and take on the regiment."



• • •

"Every time I think of the medical experts turning down these cabbies it makes me sore," continued Elmer. "Taxi drivers are the only group in American life who need no training to put up a fight. They are in constant training.

• • •

"I read in the papers that Uncle Sam is short of tanks. Tanks are an urgent need in modern war. Okay, but what can a tank do that a modern big city taxi pilot and his cab can't do, if it's necessary?

• • •

"What is the chief advantage of a tank? It is its ability to get across any kind of terrain, regardless of obstacles, and act as if it didn't know they were there. Am I right? Of course I am. And ain't that where a New York taxicab fills the bill 100 per cent?"

• • •

Elmer was quite agitated. "The army not only should've welcomed this driver, regardless of the fact he wore glasses, but should have admitted his CAB!" he insisted, pounding the table.

• • •

"If I was of draft age and had to get into a war, nothing would make me feel safer than if I knew a flock of taxis were advancing ahead of me. They would scare the hell out of any foe on earth, and that goes for Hitler, Goering and Goebbels. A mere announcement that America was recruiting a division of cab drivers would bring a peace movement at once, and I don't see why Roosevelt don't appreciate it.

• • •

"Please, Mr. Roosevelt, rescind that ban on that nearsighted New York taxi pilot, throw down the gates to all taxi drivers, and then let Europe get the information that they are to be our first line of attack and defense, and you will get peace in no time."

• • •

TO THE GREEKS

My bonnet is off to the Greeks—
They scorned big machines or a "plan,"
And showed to a badly scared world
There still can be fights, man to man;
One terrible stiff kick in the pants
They give to the law "Might makes right,"
And flashed to a darkening world
A steadying, rallying light.

• • •

'DUCHESS' TOOTH WEEK'

Miami and Miami Beach have had many curious backgrounds for the formal opening of the winter season, but this is the first time it's all been done around an infected tooth.

• • •

The bathing beauties and Miss Americas upon whom Miami Beach has so long depended for publicity via press and newsreels are in a state of high indignation. The artist's models have become the Forgotten Mannikins. A shapely leg, a dimpled knee and the public strip have for the first time gone into the discard, believe it or not. The tooth is the thing!

• • •

No leg ever did as much for Miami and Miami Beach as Wally's jaw is doing this season.

• • •

HERO FOR 1940

Here's to Billy Friesell,
A wonderman so strong
That he can make an error
And frankly say "I'm wrong."

• • •

Police Commissioner Valentine of New York is completing plans to mobilize 18,500 policemen for emergency defense. Everything will be okay up to the time some defense general asks a cop how to reach a certain destination.

But we would hate to be in a war and have to look for a policeman.

New Year's RENDEZVOUS

"ONLY a year, my dear," he pleaded. "Twelve months to prove that I'm a new man—for myself, for the world and, above all, for you."

That was last New Year's Eve, the day Joe walked out of prison a free man. Margie met him at the big iron gate, a puzzled and frightened boy wearing an ill-fitting suit. His debt was paid.

Twelve worried months Margie had waited, praying each night that, wherever he might be, her Joe was safe on the narrow path. And now his year's probation was up.

The clock struck eleven thirty and Margie turned on the radio. Back east, in New York, it was already 1941. She should have arranged to meet Joe there; it would all be over now!

At eleven forty-five her heart beat furiously.

"Please, God," she prayed. "Make him come to me at midnight!"

Suddenly she heard a furious clamor in the hallway. Then a knock, nervous and sharp. The knob turned, and suddenly she saw Joe, his eyes wide and his face dead white.

"Margie!" he cried. "Hide me quick. The cops are after me but I didn't do anything . . . Honest!"

"But Joe!" she answered. "Why should you hide, then?"

"Please, honey, don't argue!" His hands were trembling.

While the midnight bells tolled outside, Margie rushed him to the unused closet off the hall. Then she went calmly back to the living room and sat down.

While the bells tolled outside, she rushed him into the closet.

A second later they came, two burly Irishmen.

"—A young fellow just come in here?" one asked.

"Ah, er, yes," Margie began. Then, resolved: "You'll find him in the closet."

"Ye'll have to come along, too, young lady!" the copper said. And a few minutes later they were driving to the police station. Joe, beside her, was silent.

"I'm sorry, Joe," she offered. "But I couldn't marry a dishonest man."

He didn't answer.

At the station they were whisked into a small room. It was strangely quiet, Margie thought. In a corner two men were whispering and suddenly one of them walked over to her chair.

"Know what ye've done, young lady?" he asked ominously.

"I've done nothing," she replied, thoroughly indignant.

"Yes ye have!" he insisted. A faint smile crept into the corners of his Irish mouth. "Ye've got yerself a husband!"

Suddenly the room was filled with laughter and the next thing Margie knew Joe was kissing her again and again. When she finally looked around they were alone.

"Oh, Joe," she sighed, "then you really haven't done anything wrong?"

"Of course not, dear!" he answered. "I'm a detective now—have been for the last six months since I helped the cops smash a burglar ring."

"But Joe," she moaned, "to think that I refused to hide you back at the apartment. I—I'm not worthy, Joe."

"Don't worry about that, Margie!" he replied. "I'm not a crook myself, any more, and I wouldn't want to marry one!"

Out in the captain's office a faraway radio brought the sound of revelry. Marg looked at her watch. It was one o'clock in the morning now; in the Rocky mountains they were welcoming the new year.

"Honey," she said, "let's pretend we live in Denver."

"And why?" asked Joe.

"Because it's New Year's Eve there now, and you've just come back to me!"

A Resolution

Resolved, to live with all my might while I do live. Resolved, never to lose one moment of time, to improve it in the most profitable way I possibly can. Resolved, never to do anything which I should despise or think meanly of in another. Resolved, never to do anything out of revenge. Resolved, never to do anything which I should be afraid of if it were the last hour of my life.

Mastering Things

Accustom yourself to master things which you seem to despair of, for, if you observe, the left hand, though for want of practice, is insignificant in other business, yet it holds the bridal better than the right because it has been used to it.

Watch Your Kidneys!
Help Them Cleanse the Blood of Harmful Body Waste
Your kidneys are constantly filtering waste matter from the blood stream. But kidneys sometimes lag in their work—do not act as Nature intended—fail to remove impurities that, if retained, may poison the system and upset the whole body machinery.
Symptoms may be nagging backache, persistent headache, attacks of dizziness, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes—a feeling of nervous anxiety and loss of pep and strength.
Other signs of kidney or bladder disorder are sometimes burning, scanty or too frequent urination.
There should be no doubt that prompt treatment is wiser than neglect. Use Doan's Pills. Doan's have been winning new friends for more than forty years. They have a nation-wide reputation. Are recommended by grateful people the country over. Ask your neighbor!

Fear

By MAGNUS OLESON

(Associated Newspapers.)
WNU Service.

THEY were dressing her for her wedding. Emily submitted passively, more concerned with the darkened sky and continuous roll of distant thunder than with the silks Mrs. Lape had been so busy over these past weeks. The two elderly women in the room tried to forget or ignore the coming tempest, though their efforts merely made them hysterically cheerful. Minerva Lape's babble was hindered by a hare-lip, but her troubled voice muttered as if in competition with the steadily lifting reverberations of the storm. Stout Ma Snavely had no such handicap.

Emily merely knew that they were talking. Pale and tremulous, with eyes glazed by emotion, she looked in her half-clad slenderness like fear itself by the window. Bittner's creek was bank full from the morning storm. She could see the liquid, yellow mud swirling under the old bridge.

Men's voices mumbled from the porch below. Emily impulsively flung up the window sash and leaned out. Her father was there, stiff and clumsy in his starched linen and black clothes; the hired hands were there in their clumsier best.

Emily had little more than a glimpse of the anxious group. Ezra looked up at the rattle of the window sash. His dark face flamed at sight of her and his lips parted. Her father glanced upward, too.

"He's comin'," Pa Snavely bellowed. "Seen his car racin' down Blackoak hill."

Emily's mother pulled her back into the room and slammed the window. Emily heard little of the tirade that followed; it was something about showing herself shamelessly like that—and what would Ezra think? Though he'd be her man quick enough, if the storm would get by and the reverend would come.

"He's coming," Emily said. "Pa saw his car."

Driven rain lashed down unexpectedly, with an impact that smothered under its continuous roar the snap of lightning and crash of thunder. In the dusk they lit a kerosene lamp, lowered the window shade and went on hurriedly to complete Emily's costume. But Emily could not be kept in the center of the room. She was staring at the bridge, until at last, she saw a dark car dart over.

"Well," she said, "he got across. It didn't wash out."

"I'll run right down," Ma Snavely said. "Reverend Perkinson's a brave man—never afraid when it's the Lord's work. I'll tell him you'll be ready soon as the thunder stops."

"I'll go, too," Mrs. Lape said nervously. "Emily's ready now. It's comforting to have a man o' God in the house during such a terrible storm. Comforting and protecting."

"The Lord's work." Emily sat and stared at the shaded window, where blue light came fitfully, and the rain clamored against the glass. It was hailing now. A tinkle of stones on the panes threatened to break them. "Yellow clouds," she thought dully, "always hailed." And again, "The Lord's work!" Well, money and fear had more to do with it than God. Fear of poverty and love of money. Ma had known how to use arguments like that. Pa's way had been more forthright; it had been: Marry Ezra, or take a beating! Hail came again; or was it hail? Emily ran to the window and whipped up the blind.

A yellow dusk was out of doors; dusk and the black rain, flooded by the blue glare of hurtled bolts. Sheets of water washed the window glass, but at times she could see the cars parked in the yard below; among them Ezra's roadster, already decorated with tin cans, and beside it a small, battered runabout.

The hail rattled again close to her face; but it was not hail. And the runabout was Jim O'Hara's. Of course, Jim! She flung the window open to the storm.

He extended his arms. His gay, Irish face was laughing as the water ran over it. His lips moved. She couldn't hear, but she knew what he was saying.

"If you're not afraid of the storm, darlin', and $30 a week—if you're not afraid—"

She had been afraid, horribly. Always she shrank to a pin-point when the lightning came. And she had been afraid of life—of $30 a week. But now she was afraid of Ezra; deathly afraid of his thick lips and flushed face and prisoning farmhouse. Fear of Ezra had smothered other fears. She had welcomed the storm, praying that it would wash out the bridge, do something, anything, to keep the Reverend Mr. Perkinson where he belonged, at home. Afraid of it! It was glorious!

She climbed to the window sill. Her white silks were instantly drenched.

"If you're not afraid, jump, darlin'."

Afraid! Emily laughed silently; laughed at the impotent thunder, the dull house and its stogy occupants, the lashing, drenching rain, the mud she was going to roll in; laughed at Jim's ugly car, Jim's wet face.

"Jump, darlin'."

Emily's laugh pealed out over the storm eagerly, gaily, a challenge and a triumph as she obeyed.

ON HER way home from the club Mrs. Martindale was thinking, "It will be my turn next. What will they think when they come to our house?" Then she put her latch key into the lock and stepped into her own front hall. "Just what I was afraid of," she said aloud. "When you look at this hall as an outsider the worst thing you think is that its owner is lacking in imagination."

Right then things began to happen. The shabby old hall carpet was washed right on the floor and then dyed a deep green with hot dye applied with a scrub brush. The long lines of the new green sateen curtains turned the space between door and window into a definite panel crying for a long mirror and a console shelf. The sketch shows you how these were made from next to nothing. The frames of the three inexpensive small mirrors were painted red before they were fastened together. The shelf was covered with cream colored monk's cloth to match the walls and woodwork and edged with cream color cotton fringe tacked on with large red tacks.

Patterns SEWING CIRCLE

IF YOUR daughter is just about ready for a new jumper, and several new blouses to go with it then make them up with this new design (No. 1282-B) and she'll be perfectly delighted with the result. This jumper is dart-fitted to create a smallness of waist that school girls covet and are not likely to possess, and the skirt has smart front fullness, with two convenient patch pockets to park car fare and hankies. The tailored blouse has a becoming sports collar, and can be made with long or short sleeves.

Corduroy, velveteen, flannel and wool plaid are smart for the jumper. Make the blouse of linen, flat crepe, challis or pique. Both are easy to do, even for beginners.

HIGH PRICES
Do Not Go WITH ADVERTISING
Advertising and high prices do not go together at all. They are extremely incompatible to each other. It is only the product which is unadvertised, which has no established market, that costs more than you can afford to pay.
Whenever you go into a store and buy an item of advertised merchandise, it doesn't make any difference what, you are getting more for your money—more in quality and service—than you would get if you spent the same amount for something which was not advertised.

A Right Merrie Christmas Dinner

THE formula for a good Christmas dinner is somewhat a matter of geography. Although the spirit of Yuletide is the same the world over—customs and foods differ.

English dinners at Christmas time have always held a particular fascination, perhaps because of the colorful accounts of these meals in classic literature. Addison in "The Spectator" likes to see the whole village merry in his great hall. "I allow a double quantity of Malt to my small Beer, and set it a running for twelve Days to every one that calls for it. I have always a Piece of cold Beef and a Mince-Pye upon the table, and am wonderfully pleased to see my Tenants pass away a whole Evening in playing their innocent Tricks, and smutting one another."

Cranberries—Cheeses—Coffee

Washington Irving in "The Sketch Book" says "A distinguished post was allotted to 'ancient sirloin,' as mine host termed it; being, as he added, 'the standard of old English hospitality, and a joint of goodly presence, and full of expectation.'"

So, whether you plan to have the roast beef of England, goose, roast stuffed suckling pig, or our own American turkey to grace your Christmas table, see that your menu is "right merrie" with the bright red of cranberries and perhaps tomatoes, plum pudding which is excellent in any language, and cheeses, nuts, raisins and black coffee to wax eloquent over. How does the following menu appeal to you for a merry Christmas dinner?

Celery Assorted Stuffed Olives
Shrimp Appetizer
Roast Stuffed Suckling Pig
Cranberry and Pineapple Ice
Mashed Sweet Potatoes
Scalloped Tomatoes
Cucumber and Radish Salad
Plum Pudding with Vanilla Ice Cream or with Rum Sauce
Assorted Cheese
Nuts Black Coffee Raisins

Shrimp Appetizer: Combine three-fourths cup chili sauce, one teaspoon Worcestershire sauce, two tablespoons lemon juice, one-fourth teaspoon salt, one tablespoon grated horseradish and two drops tabasco sauce, and chill thoroughly. Remove the viscera from two small cans of shrimp, being careful not to break the shrimp. Chill well. Divide the cocktail sauce among eight small glasses and sprinkle with chopped green pepper. Set glasses in small bowls of crushed ice, if possible. If not, set on small paper doilies on glass plates. Then hook the shrimp over the rims of the glasses, using four to six shrimp to each glass.

Cranberry and Pineapple Ice: Boil two-thirds cup sugar and one-half cup water for five minutes. Dissolve in it one and one-half teaspoons gelatin which has been softened in four tablespoons cold water. Cool. Add one and one-half cups canned pineapple juice, one and one-half cups bottled cranberry juice and two tablespoons lemon juice, and freeze to a stiff mush. If frozen in refrigerator trays, stir often until mushy; then remove to a cold bowl and beat well. Return to trays and continue freezing. Serve with the meat course.*

Farmers To Get Phosphate

Under the 1941 Agricultural Conservation Program the AAA will furnish phosphate fertilizer to farmers at $40.00 per ton delivered provided farmers will apply this on conserving crops such as alfalfa, sweet clover, alsike, timothy, bromus etc. The fertilizer may be applied on either old stands or new seedings of the above grasses. In no case can it be used on depleting crops or on non - depleting flax. The cost of the fertilizer may be deducted from the 1941 Agricultural Conservation Payment. Credit toward the soil building allowance will be given if this fertilizer is used in an approved manner.

Eleven meetings will be held for the purpose of discussing the value of phosphate on hays and pasture. Orders for phosphate will also be taken at these meetings. These meetings will be held as follows:

Newfolden, Tuesday Jan. 14, at 1:30 p. m.

Farmer-Labor Convention

Marshall county Farmer-Laborites expressed no willingness to enter into the proposed merger with the Democratic party at the annual convention of the Farmer Labor association held in Strandquist yesterday afternoon.

In Polk county, at their convention Saturday, George Hagen together with numerous other party leaders expressed their decision to withdraw from the Farmer-Labor forces and that they would join with the Democrats in an effort to curb the Republican party in Minnesota.

The Marshall county organization reelected Emil Morberg, Marshall county's representative-elect to the legislature, as chairman with Oscar C. Toftner of Warren as vice-chairman and Arnold Dahlin of Bloomer as secretary-treasurer.

Directors of the committee chosen include V. F. Kruta, Gatzke; Nels Hokanson, Alma; Ben Eliason, Strandquist: William Wickstrom, Strandquist; G. A. Sustad, Viking and H. O. Hanson, Holt.

William Wickstrom and Arvid Wickstrom of Strandquist, Fridolph Ahlm of Big Woods; Levi G. Johnson and O. C. Toftner of Warren were elected as delegates to attend the district and state Farmer-Labor association conventions.

The association also passed a resolution supporting State Senator George Lommen in his fight against the lowering of iron ore valuations on the iron range.

About 20 members of the association attended the Strandquist convention,—Warren Sheaf

Good diets are not necessarily expensive. They are good because of the kinds and quantities of food they contain. Eggs, milk green leafy vegetables and Vitamin C rich fruits generally make the difference between good and poor diets.

Halifax Named British Envoy to U. S. As Eden Gets Foreign Minister Post; U. S. Defense Set-Up Revised in Effort To Speed Up Industrial Production

(EDITOR'S NOTE—When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of the news analyst and not necessarily of this newspaper.)

(Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

SOMEWHERE IN ENGLAND—A "Pioneer" squad is shown marching to work after a night raid on a Midlands town. The duty of these men is to clean up the debris and make roads passable. They also demolish parts of buildings left standing by the bombs but which might constitute a hazard. Often they work right through the raid while bombs drop.

BOSS: ### Becomes Servant

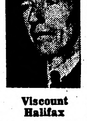
Selection of Viscount Halifax as British ambassador to the United States was a case of the boss becoming the servant and vice versa, for Anthony Eden was named as most likely candidate for succession to Halifax's post as foreign secretary.

Halifax left the cabinet, the last of the Chamberlain appeasement crew, a man for whose scalp the British anti-Chamberlainites had howled for months without success.



Viscount Halifax

Washington conceded the great ability of the new ambassador, and predicted success for him here, while admitting that American public opinion at the outset might recall his appeasement tactics before Munich.

It was announced that Britain might add the post of minister to its staff in Washington. Both ambassador and minister had been the custom in Britain's Paris office, but hitherto Washington has had only an ambassador.

Just what Eden has been up to in Egypt and the near East has never been made clear, but it must have been successful, because observers pointed to the fact that B. E. (before Eden) things had been at a standstill in the eastern Mediterranean sector, and after Anthony arrived on the scene, of a sudden the British rose up, pelted the Fascists, and sailed them way back into Libya.

The British effort against the Dodecanese islands also was crowned with a great deal of success, and Eden is believed to have had a finger in that pie as well.

So now he is to be brought back as foreign minister from his present post as secretary for war, and this will be odd, for he will go back into a job he held under Chamberlain, and which he vacated because he openly expressed himself as out of sympathy with the then premier's appeasement policy.

SECONDS:
In the Ring

Italy was not, perhaps, knocked out of the war by England-Greece, but her seconds, at any rate, jumped into the ring. Presence of large numbers of German troops was confirmed in many quarters.

Purpose of these was a bit dubious, but consensus was that some would be used in actual fighting in the Battle of Greece and the Battle of Africa, and that others would be employed to bolster home morale.

Germany, in admitting official aid to Italy, let it be known that Axis partners must stand together, and that in sending aid to Il Duce's tottering armies Germany was but repaying aid sent to her by Italy in the form of "hundreds of pilots and planes for cross-Channel bombing."

It was too early for the general effect of these reinforcements to be noted in the war reports. British mechanized forces, backed by naval guns from the Mediterranean and by naval and army planes from overhead, pushed on rapidly into Libya.

The fall of Salum forced an entry into Italian territory, and the British, using the German tactics of the fight through Flanders, shot ahead down the coastal roads 175 miles within the border, completely surrounding and cutting off some 20,000 troops in Bardia, principal port.

Bardia was placed in a state of seige, and the British main forces after leaving sufficient men to prosecute the reduction of Bardia, later to be reinforced from the rear, pushed on toward Tobruk and Derna.

Marshal Graziani and his main forces were still able to keep ahead of the British, but the latter claimed enormous numbers of prisoners, killed and wounded Italians, totaling around 30,000, great booty, all accomplished with a British loss of only 1,000.

Just where the Germans would enter the picture in the Battle of Africa was not clear, with the British naval forces apparently in charge of the coastline and unmolested, and the better ports either in British hands or under siege.

CLAUSE SIX:
And National Defense

When President Roosevelt wants to do something drastic and final and something that has not been done before, he has a system all his own.

He calls his legal advisers in, tells them what he wants to do, and then has them find a law for it.

He has created a new job, called the Office for Emergency Production Management, and put into it William S. Knudsen, wizard automobile production man, with instructions that he is to be the "czar" for U. S. defense, and all lights extending before him will be green lights.

Knudsen took the job (which he almost had before the new order) grabbed his new authority, and told America to "roll up its sleeves and go to work" building planes and munitions.

"There must be no appeasement," he said, and he called the war in Europe "irreconcilable" in character, and asked the nation to "recognize the full gravity of the crisis" which resulted in additional power being given to his organization.

One writer said that, seven months ago, when Knudsen was given the defense chairmanship, he gave that funny half-smile of his and asked President Roosevelt "who's the boss?" The President said "I am." And Knudsen took the job, it was said with misgivings.

These misgivings have been more than justified in the defense industry lag. Now, it is held, Mr. Roosevelt has said to Mr. Knudsen, in effect, "I was wrong before. Now you are the boss!" And now Knudsen will go ahead with full authority.

As to Clause Six, and the part it played, some of the Washingtonians questioned the President's authority to give Knudsen supreme power. He pointed to the Second Reorganization act. Now, that act did not give the President this power specifically, but acting under its authority the President issued an executive order (which he WAS empowered to do).

Clause Six of this order read:

"(6) In the event of a national emergency, or threat of a national emergency, (the President may create) such office for emergency management as the President shall determine."

HIGHLIGHTS . . . in the week's news

A few years ago America was overbuilt and real estate was going begging. Today a housing shortage is one of the bottlenecks of defense industry. Here are a few reports:

Seattle (plane center) reports "this time next year they'll be sleeping in tents."

Rock Island, Ill., (arsenal) has an acute shortage of housing.

BERMUDA—The British have taken from the SS Excambion Oscar R. Stabler, 35, the ship's barber, a German-born naturalized American citizen.

MALTA—Prince Philip of Greece is first member of the royal family to join the British armed forces. He's 19 and has been assigned to active duty on a battleship.

He Said 'No'

VICHY, FRANCE.—Shown here is Fernand Di Brinon, French ambassador in German-occupied Paris, who acting under orders of the French Chief-of-State Philippe Petain, delivered to the Germans, France's refusal to make any changes in the French cabinet or to take back the ousted Pierre Laval.

TRENDS

AIRPLANES—At San Diego, Consolidated Aircraft corporation announced a $14,000,000 building project doubling its present capacity.

WINE — At Livermore, Calif., Schenley Import corporation gave impetus to the American wine industry by purchasing the Cresta Blanca Wine company.

PRODUCTION—At Washington, the Federal Reserve board reported that during November industrial production hit a record high, 132 per cent of the 1935-39 average.

ARMS—At Washington, British officials completed a master list of $3,000,000,000 in new war orders to be placed in the U. S., including 12,000 combat planes.

GREEK:
Aims Revised

The Greek war cry of "Tirana by Christmas" had to be revised, when Italian resistance stiffened, and the skirted Evzones had to fight ahead every inch of the way at bayonet point.

Whether it was German reinforcement or not was not clear, but as the Italians neared the hopping off places they fought harder and the Greek advance, while continuing steady, was not as spectacular.

The Greeks reminded one of a football team nearing the goal-line and meeting a stiffened defense. Enormously important objectives had been achieved, however, Pogradetz on the north and Argirocastro on the south, Porto Edda and other vital points having fallen into their hands.

Maps showed a good third of Albania taken back from the Italian invaders. Immediate objectives were the port town of Valona, and the inland bases of Tepelini and Chimara.

Greek generals claimed the Italians had moved out of Klisura, but that the Greeks were not entering the town until the Fascists had been stormed from their positions on the heights to the rear.

Former Greek army officers now in the United States placed utmost importance on the conquest of Tepelini, an important road junction point. They stated categorically that if the Greeks capture Tepelini, further Italian resistance in Albania would be impossible.

On the other side, experienced military men pointed out that beyond Tepelini and toward the coast line the Albanian plains, and it was in this territory that the Fascists' mechanized forces, especially if aided by German tanks and dive bombers, might succeed in halting the Greek advance.

The British fleet boldly ranged up and down Italy's private Adriatic, bombing Valona with thousand-pound naval shells and receiving no answering fire. The outcome still was in doubt, though dispatches continued to favor Greece.

HOOVER: ### Speaks Again

Herbert Hoover, announcing himself as definitely and forever out of politics, took the speaker's stand again to appeal for a general U. S. sentiment in favor of making plans to feed Europe's hungry—without letting any of the food get into German stomachs.

The former hero of Belgian relief told the people he believed this could be accomplished, but that it would not be the work of a week or a month—but would require months of planning before it could be carried out.

Millions of men, women and children in the overrun countries of Europe will be facing real hunger, cold and starvation before the next harvest, and if lives are to be saved, said Hoover, America must do the saving.

Hoover's statement as to the imminence of starvation went unchallenged, and news dispatches from Shanghai, for instance, told of 12,900 bodies being found, dead from starvation, more than two-thirds of them Chinese children, in six months alone in the one city.

"I," he said, "excuse my knife—
Am champion of the broader life;
I," he said, "excuse my gun—
Am just a little ray of sun."

"You," I said, and raised my hand,
"I find quite hard to understand;
How can you be my guiding light
While slugging me with left and right?"

"I am," he said, "a leader kind—
Excuse my wallops from behind—
The things I do are for the best—
Excuse my fist; it's just a test!"

"Your logic isn't overclear,"
I said (then landed on my ear);
"It's hard to think you such a lamb
When underneath your feet I am."

"I am," he said, "a leader kind—
If you can't see it you are blind;
I want this world a sweeter place—
Excuse it if I bash your face!"

"I somehow fail to follow you,"
I said, now very black and blue;
"How can I see you as my hope?
You're standing on my chin, you dope."

* * *

"You are," he said, "so very dense,
It always gives me great offense;
If I but run you up a tree
You question if it's best for thee."

"It isn't very clear," I said,
"When you have knocked me nearly dead,
That every new atrocity
Is done to make it nice for me."

"I am," he said, "the Voice of Good—
Excuse my bomb! (I knew you would);
I am all sunshine and all bliss . . .

On the Tonawanda Seneca reservation in New York, the United States government made its 146th annual presentation of six yards of calico to each Indian in the Iroquois Confederation Saturday, keeping a treaty of 1794. ## WHO'S NEWS THIS WEEK

By LEMUEL F. PARTON

(Consolidated Features—WNU Service.)

NEW YORK. — Simultaneously, Chancellor Hitler and Mme. Elsa Schiaparelli renounce gold and extol the fruits of the spirit. Preparing to return to France soon, the famous dressmaker finds that Americans are too much given to money-grubbing to appreciate the beautiful art of couture. "The Paris designer is free," she says, but here in America "in creating a costume you must think about cost." So she's going back to Paris where art is unfettered and nobody worries about money.

Schiaparelli Says Cost Fetters Our Art of Creation

Molyneux fled, to make gowns in London, but Lucien Lelong, the new Judge Landis of the French fashion industry, remains in the service of art—not money of course. The latter implication might suggest that Paris as a continuing world style center is somehow geared into Chancellor Hitler's jug-handled economy, and that, of course is a rather gauche idea. In Herr Hitler's new order, it's art for art's sake.

Soon after the occupation of Paris, Mme. Schiaparelli arrived here to begin a national lecture tour. We seemed to be suffering from much misapprehension about France. It was business as usual in Paris, and anyone who fancied that New York might become the world style center had another thought coming. However, she reserved her apostrophe of art against money for the last.

Addressing the Junior League of Los Angeles recently, she said:

"All of us in Paris are impressed by the generosity of American men regarding their women. American men have a world-wide reputation for the money they spend on women.

"I say bravo to you! Go right ahead."

I had an idea that the French felt that way a few years ago when I was privileged to see some of the inner workings of Lanvin's establishment in Paris, to talk to the vendeuses and witness the deference to a Texas oil magnate, when he came in to help his wife choose a gown.

Mme. Schiaparelli lived five years in New York. Her daughter, Marisa, was born in her Ninth street house in Greenwich Village. That was before the days of her fame and opulence, and she thought about money a great deal in those days.

Taking an unheated flat in Patchin place, a dingy little nubbin of a street off Jefferson Market court, she found a $20 bill on the floor. It was a good omen. Other money came and she returned to a garret in Paris, to write poetry. A sweater design brought her into her career. For one who scorns money she is a masterful and diligent business woman, her huge establishment turning out around 10,000 garments a year at prices up to $5,000. Of a distinguished Italian family of astronomers and scholars, she has been described by Edna Le Fevre as "a woman nobody can know, absorbed with books on metaphysics, aesthetics and philosophy."

ELMAN B. MYERS, inventor of the new "jet expulsion" motor which is expected vastly to increase the range, speed and fighting effectiveness of war planes, was a Newburgh, N. Y., boy who just happened to be a self-starter and finisher. Without benefit of any academic seminars, he became a hayloft radio inventor. This, incidentally, was in the Bronx where there weren't any haylofts; but make it a cellar and the result is the same.

'Genius at Need' Is a Self-Starter And Finisher, Too

After 32 years he appears with his critically important invention. He got a job with a wireless station in Sacramento, and was soon throwing his voice farther than anybody else in those parts. He later worked with Lee De Forrest and by 1932 had brought through a "cold light" radio tube. He started work on his jet expulsion or "rocket" motor four years ago. Engineers say it may increase the speed of fighting planes by 200 miles an hour.

IT WAS not until they began work in strengthening the roofs of the Capitol at Washington that most Americans were aware that an architect was regularly attached to a structure of which George Washington first laid the cornerstone in 1793. He is David Lynn of Hyattsville, Md. Lynn in 23 years of service had ample opportunity of learning all the ins and outs of the famous building. He served 10 years as civil engineer of the Capitol and in 1927 became architectural supervisor.

Everybody Likes This Smart Apron

THIS design was so extremely popular, when it first appeared, that it is repeated now, for those who might have missed it the first time. Of course you can easily see why everybody likes it. Design No. 8824 slips on over the head and ties in a jiffy—no buttons, no troublesome cross-straps. It's nice and slim at the waistline, is guaranteed to stay put on the shoulders, and covers your frock thoroughly, above and below! Send for it right away, because your home work will seem much lighter and pleasanter when you've half a dozen such aprons.

Choose cheery percale prints, gay gingham checks, or colorful polka dot calico, and trim the edges with ric-rac braid. It's so easy—you can finish it in a few hours.

* * *

Pattern No. 8824 is designed for sizes 14, 16, 18, 20; 40, 42 and 44. Size 16 requires 2¾ yards of 35-inch material without nap; 7½ yards of braid. Send order to:

That Nagging Backache

May Warn of Disordered Kidney Action

Modern life with its hurry and worry, irregular habits, improper eating and drinking—its risk of exposure and infection—throws heavy strain on the work of the kidneys. They are apt to become over-taxed and fail to filter excess acid and other impurities from the life-giving blood.

You may suffer nagging backache, headache, dizziness, getting up nights, leg pains, swelling—feel constantly tired, nervous, all worn out. Other signs of kidney or bladder disorder are sometimes burning, scanty or too frequent urination.

Try Doan's Pills. Doan's help the kidneys to pass off harmful excess body waste. They have had more than half a century of public approval. Are recommended by grateful users everywhere. Ask your neighbor!

'The Olympics of Aviation'

Will Defend Title

The world three-cushion billiards tournament will be held in Chicago on January 13. At this tournament Willie Hoppe of New York (shown above) greatest billiard champion of all time, will defend his title.

Celebrate 'Old Christmas'

The young boy above points to January 5, the day when the people in his village of Rodanthe, N. C., celebrate Old Christmas on the day before Epiphany. Santa Claus is shown making a delayed visit to one of the homes while "local talent" provides music for the dancing which always accompanies the celebration.

Leads C.I.O.

Philip Murray, new C.I.O. president, will preside at an important board meeting Jan. 8. It is believed this meeting will open a campaign of organization in all industries.

Bonnie's Mother

By MARY WILSON

(Associated Newspapers.) WNU Service.

SAM DONOVAN was courting Theresa Redmond. There was no doubt about it. The news spread rapidly through Ravenna, a town of 10,000, for Sam and Theresa were both important enough to be of interest, not only to Ravenna but to the neighboring city of Philadelphia.

Although many years Theresa's senior, Sam was the most eligible widower in Ravenna.

Theresa was a charming woman, highly educated, extensively traveled and thoroughly cosmopolitan.

Sam and Theresa were deeply in love—that was apparent—yet, somehow, they did not wed.

"If you must know," Theresa's somewhat crusty old father had said to an inquisitive neighbor, "Theresa doesn't want to assume the responsibility of mothering five children. And I don't blame her."

That, in fact, was the very thing that kept Theresa single. So Ravenna concluded. If Theresa became Mrs. Donovan she automatically became the mother of five youngsters, two boys and three girls, Bonnie, the youngest, being eight, and Nadine, the eldest, 17.

Nadine was a beautiful spoiled young creature, who ruled her father, the house, the other children, her schoolmates and her teachers with an imperious sway. Theresa was afraid of Nadine.

Well might Sam Donovan love Theresa. She was only ten years older than Sam's oldest daughter, and much of the loveliness of youth had clung to her. She looked scarcely any older than Nadine.

"Poor little Nadine. She needs you." Sam pleaded with Theresa. She lacked a mother's care at the most critical period of her life."

Thus Sam urged his suit, thinking thereby to strengthen it.

"And is that the only reason you seek my hand in marriage, Sam Donovan?" she asked, a sly twinkle in her eye.

Sam, realizing how inept his speech had been, hastened to make amends most effectively with a caress and a swift rush of loving words.

"Theresa, darling. You know I worship you, aside and apart from the kids and their needs. Only I thought, perhaps, you might come to know them and to love them in time, as I do," Sam hurried on. "I'll give you my word of honor they'll never intrude on you, never make demands on your time, never interfere with your personal life."

Again Theresa smiled knowingly. Only Theresa knew the truth. It was not the responsibilities nor the curtailment of her personal freedom that she dreaded. She even courted them, and it was the appeal of those five motherless children that inclined her toward Sam. She dreaded Nadine. The young chit had publicly snubbed her on several occasions and had said ugly things.

Not for worlds would Theresa tell Sam the truth. That doting parent had done everything a man could do to spoil his children, but he had no idea of the persecution to which Theresa was being subjected.

Determined that they should all become better acquainted, Sam gave an elaborate family dinner. He invited a host of relatives and had in a caterer from Philadelphia to cook and serve the meal. Theresa would have preferred a quiet family dinner.

The affair would have gone off very well, except that Nadine chose at the last moment deliberately to absent herself, pleading a previous engagement. Only then, for the first time, did Sam sense the true state of affairs. Throughout the long dinner he evolved in his mind various schemes for dealing effectively with that 17-year-old offspring.

On the whole, however, the dinner was a great success. But Theresa's mind was in a turmoil. Apparently it was to be war to the knife as far as Nadine was concerned. Theresa's courage failed her. She felt she just could not face the thought of years of combat ahead. She made up her mind to tell Sam the truth after dinner—that it was better that they should give one another up.

Theresa wanted to break the news to Sam in a beautiful spot. It would be a blow, she knew—a blow for both of them. So she asked him to take her out on an inclosed veranda, a charming out-door sort of room.

As the two approached the room their attention was attracted by a childish treble voice. It seemed to be repeating a phrase time and again. Theresa and Sam entered quietly. There was eight-year-old Bonnie curled up in a big leather chair. Over and over again she kept saying the word "mother."

Suddenly the child looked. Apparently Bonnie was not in the least disconcerted. With all the frankness of childhood she smiled up at them. "I was just practicing so I will know how to say 'mother' when Miss Redmond marries you, Daddy," she explained naively.

That was enough for Theresa. She was ready to surrender completely. She no longer even feared Nadine.

"Sam, I'll marry you tomorrow," she said to that bewildered individual. Then she furtively wiped a tear from her lovely eyes and went over and took Bonnie in her arms with a perfect mother gesture.

BIAS TRIM
18"
LONG SLIP-STITCH IN PROTECTOR EDGE • SHORT STITCHES IN BLANKET
FASTEN WITH SLIP-STITCH BASTING

IT WAS a bride of ten years who reminded me of blanket protectors. I say bride because her home still has the immaculate freshness of a bride's house. Her wool blankets have never been washed or cleaned, yet their soft light colorings show no sign of soil. She brought out some long pieces of cotton material; "I baste these over the tops of the blankets," she said "and change them every few weeks."

I thought of some dainty bed linens that I had seen all trimmed in flower sprigged cotton print. Why not make flowered blanket protectors to harmonize with blanket colorings? Here is one that would go with either rose or blue. It is easy to hide basting stitches that fasten it temporarily to the blanket by slipping them along in the pink or blue binding as shown. One length of material as long as the width of the blanket will make a pair of these protectors. A half yard extra of the flowered material will face a matching pair of pillow cases.

You will also find some other ideas for trimming pillow cases in SEWING Book 2. THE PUBLIC nature of advertising benefits everyone it touches. It benefits the public by describing exactly the products that are offered. It benefits employees, because the advertiser must be more fair and just than the employer who has no obligation to the public. These benefits of advertising are quite apart from the obvious benefits which advertising confers—the lower prices, the higher quality, the better service that go with advertised goods and firms.

Minutes Of A Special Meeting Of The Village Council Of The Village Of Holt, Minnesota

A Special Meeting of the Village Council of the Village of Holt, County of Marshall, State of Minnesota, was held at Bank, in said Village on the 25th day of November, 1940, at 8:00 o'clock P. M.

There were preeent:

Hartley Peterson (President)
Geo. Fricker, (Clerk)
Olaf Ness
Gilbert Sanoden

constituting all of the members of the Council.

The President, Mr. Peterson, called the meeting to order and presided thereat, and the Clerk, Mr. Fricker, acted as clerk of the meeting.

The President stated that the meeting had been duly called as a special meeting by written notice served by the Clerk upon each member of the Council, a copy of which notice, with the Clerk's Certificate of Service thereto attached, was presented to the meeting and ordered filed.

Moved by Ness and seconded by Sanoden that the Village of Holt accept the offer of the Interstate Power Co. to pay the sum of $2410.80 in full payment of the balance due on the Electric Light contract with the Interstate Power Company and dated Aug. 1, 1935, and the said sum of $2410.80 be credited to the Village of Holt Trust Account.

Motion carried.

Moved by Sanoden and seconded by Ness that the Village Clerk and Village Treasurer be authorized to pay the Security State Bank, Bemidji, Minn. the sum of $4902.40 and in full payment of $4,000.00 Village of Holt Electric Light Bonds as per their letter of November 7, 1940.

Motion carried.

Moved by Fricker and seconded by Ness that the President of the Village Council and the Village Clerk be authorised to sign a receipt for the funds received from the Interstate Power Company and a letter authorising the Northwestern National Bank & Trust Co. Mpls., Minn. to surrender the Bill of Sale to the Interstate Power Co. covering the electric light equipment in the village of Holt and which was held in escrew by the said bank.

Motion carried.

The President stated that Interstate Power Company, a Deleware Corporation, had submitted a proposed Electric Franchise to be granted by the Village of Holt, Minnesota to said Interstate Power Company. He then presented a proposed Ordinance granting a Franchise to said Interstate Power Company, which Ordinance was fully read.

Trustee Ness then moved that the Ordinance as read be adopted as Ordinance No. 17. The motion was seconded by Trustee Sanoden. A roll being called on said motion, the following voted "Aye":

Hartley Peterson
Geo. Fricker
Olaf Ness
Gilbert Sanoden

and the following voted "Nay":

The President stated that the motion had been carried by an unanimous vote of all of the members of the Council, and the Ordinance legally adopted as Ordinance No. 17, said Ordinance being in words and figures as follows, to-wit:

ELECTRIC FRANCHISE ORDINANCE NO. 17

An Ordinance of the Village of Holt, County of Marshall, State of Minnesota, granting to Interstate Power Company, a Deleware Corporation, its successors and assigns, permission to erect, install, construct, reconstruct, repair, own, operate, maintain, manage, and control an electric plant within the corporate limits of said village and an electric distribution system consisting of poles, wires, conduits, pipes, conductors, and other fixtures in, under, over, along, and across the streets, lanes, avenues, sidewalks, alleys, bridges and public grounds of said village for the purpose of producing and furnishing electric energy for light heat and power purposes to the inhabitants of said village for a period of twenty (20) years from and after the passage, approval and publication of this ordinance according to law.

The Village Council of Holt, Minnesota, do Ordain as follows:

Section I. That there is hereby granted unto Interstate Power Company, a Deleware corporation, its successors and assigns, herein called the "Grantee", the right, permission, privilege, and franchise for a period of twenty (20) years from and after the taking effect of this Ordinance, subject only to the laws of the State of Minnesota, as now in force and to the conditions and limitations hereinafter contained, to erect, install, construct, reconstruct, repair, own, operate, maintain, manage and control an electric plant and an electric distribution system consisting of poles, conductors and other fixtures within the limits of said municipality, necessary, convenient, or proper for the production, transmission, distribution, and delivery of electric energy to the inhabitants of said municipality for light, heat and power purposes.

Section II. That said Grantee, its successors and assigns, is hereby granted the right-of-way in, under, over, along and across the streets, lanes, avenues, sidewalks, alleys, bridges and public grounds of said municipality for the purpose of erecting, installing, constructing, reconstructing, repairing, owning, operating, maintaining, managing, and controlling said electric plant and said electric distribution system.

Section III. That said Grantee shall hold said municipality free and harmless of and from any and all liability, damages, actions and causes of action caused by or through the neglect or mismanagement of the Grantee in the erection, installation, construction, reconstruction, repair, operation, maintenance, management, or control of said electric plant and electric distribution system.

Section IV. That said Grantee shall not, during the erection, installation, construction, reconstruction, repairing, operation and maintenance of said plant or distribution system, unnecessarily impede public travel on the streets, lanes, avenues, sidewalks, alleys, bridges, and public grounds of said municipality, and shall leave all of said streets, lanes, avenues, sidewalks, alleys, bridges, and public grounds upon which it may enter for the purpose herein authorized in as good condition as they were at the date of said entry.

Section V. That said municipality by resolution of its governing body, may, upon the written demand of any person whose dwelling or place of business, located within said municipality, shall have been wired for electric service, require said Grantee to extend its said electric distribution system so as to furnish electric energy to said person, provided that said Grantee shall not be required to extend said electric distribution system farther than 150 feet for each such person, and provided furtl that said person demanding such service shall enter into the customary written contract with said Grantee for the purchase of electric energy for a period of not less than one year.

Section VI. That whenever any person has obtained permission from the municipality to move any buildings or structure which may interfere with the poles, wires or other fixtures of said grantee, grantee shall, upon five days' notice thereof, and at the expense of the person desiring to move such structue, remove such poles, wires or other fixtures as may be necessary to allow the passage of such structure, for a reasonable length of time, upon receipt from such person of satisfactory assurance covering the cost of such removal and replacement and any liability or damage resulting therefrom.

Section VII. That if any section or portion of a section of this Ordinance shall be declared null and void by any competent authority, the remaining portions hereof shall not be affected thereby.

Section VIII. That all ordinances or resolutions or parts thereof heretofore adopted by said Municipality in conflict with the terms hereof are hereby repealed.

Section IX. That this Ordinance shall take effect from and after its passage, approval, and publication according to law.

The [President] then stated that Interstate Power Company, a Delaware corporation, had made a proposal to furnish electric energy for municipal street lighting, and he then presented a proposed Contract for Municipal Street Lighting, which, after being read by the Clerk, was ordered to be inserted in the minutes of this meeting as follows:

CONTRACT FOR MUNICIPAL STREET LIGHTING

THIS AGREEMENT, made in triplicate and entered into this 25th day of November, 1940, by and between Interstate Power Company with offices at Crookston, Minnesota, its sucessors and assigns, hereinafter called the "Company", and the Village of Holt, County of Marshall, and State of Minnesota, hereinafter called the "Municipality":

WITNESSETH:

That, Whereas, the Company now owns and operates a street lighting system within the corporate limits of the said Municipality, consisting of: 12—Bracket type overhead lamp fixtures and,

Whereas, the Municipality desires that the Company shall continue to operate the said street lighting system;

Now, Therefore, for and in consideration of the mutual covenants and agreements herein contained, it is hereby mutually agreed by and between the parties hereto as follows:

I. That the Company shall operate and maitain said street lighting system and furnish electric energy for the same, but the Municipality agrees to patrol the system and replace, at its own expense, all lamps and glassware, in accordance with the following schedule, to-wit:

Number In Use—12
Size Of Lamps—100 Watt
Hours Of Burning—Dusk to 11:00 P. M.

II. That the Municipality shall pay to the Company, each month, for maintaining and operating said street lighting system and furnishing electric energy thereto during the term of this contract, a consideration computed upon the following schedule of rates, to-wit:

Service Charge:—
$ .55 per lamp each month plus
Energy Charge:—

All kwhrs used at 3c per kwhrs provided, that said consideration shall be not less than the sum of Six and 60-100 Dollars ($6.60), each month, during the term of this contract.

III. That the Company shall, as soon as practicable after the end of each month, render a bill to the Municipality for the operation and maintenance of said street lighting system and the furnishing of electric energy thereto during the preceding month, and the Municipality shall pay said bill within fifteen (15) days from the date of presentation thereof.

IV. That the Municipality hereby represents that it has taken due and proper action, in accordance with the Statutes of the State of Minnesota, to appropriate sufficient funds for the payment of bills to be rendered hereunder and it agrees that if such funds shall be insufficient for that purpose, it shall, at the time and in the manner and to the extent provided by the Statutes of said State, appropriate additional funds and-or assess, levy and collect a tax sufficient for the prompt payment of said bills.

V. That should any tax, national, state or other tax be levied upon the electric energy thus to be furnished, in addition to such tax as may now exist, such tax shall be added to said consideration in this agreement.

VI. That the Company shall, upon proper written request therefor from the Municipality, install additional overhead or ornamental street lighting equipment and maintain, operate and furnish electric energy thereto at the rates hereinabove specified; provided, however, that the Company shall not be required to install any such additional street lighting equipment during the last year of the term of this contract or of any extension thereof, unless the Municipality shall give notice to the Company, evidenced by a certified copy of resolution or ordinance passed by its governing body, that it is going to and has elected to renew this contract for a period of not less than five [5] years, and provided further that the Company shall not be required to extend its overhead street lighting circuit farther than four hundred feet (400') for each additional overhead street light and its ornamental street lighting circuit farther than one hundred fifty feet (150') for each additional ornamental post.

VII. That the Company shall operate and maintain said street lighting system and furnish electric energy thereto at its own cost and expense, and the Municipality agrees to patrol the system and replace, at its own expense, all lamps and glassware.

VIII. That the Company shall render good and sufficient service for the purpose of this agreement, but shall not be liable for failure of such service due to events not caused by it.

IX. That the agreement shall be and remain in full force and affect for a period of five (5) years from and after the date hereof; provided, however, that the term hereof shall be extended an additional five (5) years if the Municipality shall not, within sixty (60) days prior to the expiration hereof, notify the Company, in writing, of its desire to terminate the same at the end of said five (5) years.

X. That all contracts and agreements written or oral heretofore existing between the parties hereto and covering the subject matter hereof (if there be any such) are hereby cancelled and the Municipality hereby represents that it has by appropriate action repealed or amended all ordinances, resolutions and rules or parts hereof heretofore adopted by it in conflict with the terms hereof.

XI. That the Municipality represents that this agreement has been duly authorised by a unanimous vote of its Council in accordance with the Statutes of the State of Minnesota, and certified copies of the proceedings therefore shall be promptly furnished to the Company for approval of its Counsel.

XII. That if any Section or part of a Section of this agreement shall be declared null and void by any competent authority, the remaining portions hereof shall not be affected thereby.

In Witness Whereof, the parties hereto have caused this agreement to be executed by their respective officers thereunto duly authorized and their respective corporate seals to be hereunto affixed, the day and year first above written.

Farmers To Get Phosphate

Under the 1941 Agricultural Conservation Program the AAA will furnish phosphate fertilizer to farmers at $40.00 per ton delivered provided farmers will apply this on conserving crops such as alfalfa, sweet clover, alsike, timothy, bromus etc. The fertilizer may be applied on either old stands or new seedings of the above grasses. In no case can it be used on depleting crops or on non depleting flax. The cost of the fertilizer may be deducted from the 1941 Agricultural Conservation Payment. Credit toward the soil building allowance will be given if this fertilizer is used in an approved manner.

Eleven meetings will be held for the purpose of discussing the value of phosphate on hays and pasture. Orders for phosphate will also be taken at these meetings. These meetings will be held as follows:

Battle Against Infantile Paralysis

H. F. Hedquist, Argyle, is chairman for the 1941 Marshall county Committee for the Celebration of the President's Birthday, it was announced today by Arthur D. Reynolds, state chairman. Mr. Hedquist will head the county organization which will raise funds for the battle against infantile paralysis. This campaign will culminate with the observance of the President's birthday on Jan. 30 when communities throughout the state will stage fund-raising entertainments, Mr. Reynolds said.

One half of the funds raised in each county will be used for the benefit of local polio victims. The other half will go to the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis to be used for research into the causes and cure for the disease.

Funds raised by the Birthday Celebration Committees will be turned over to the County Chapter of the National Foundation which directs the expenditures among local polio victims.

Income Tax Law is Changed

Gross income determines the liability for filing federal income taxes for 1940 and not the net income, it was stated by Arthur D. Reynolds, collector of internal revenue here.

Notices have been prepared which state that single individuals, or married individuals, not living with husband or wife, having a gross income of $800 or more, and married individuals living together having a combined gross income of $2,000 or more are required to file income returns for the calendar year of 1940.

The notice reads: "Therefore, every citizen or resident of United States will be required to file a return for the taxable year of 1940 if his gross income in 1940, regardless of the amount of his net income, comes within the amount specified above for his particular status.

Failure to file return under the circumstances outlined, subjects the resident to penalties prescribed by law."

Volunteers Called in Polio Drive

St. Paul: A call for volunteers to aid in the battle against infantile paralysis was issued today by Arthur D. Reynolds, Minnesota chairman for the celebration of the President's Birthday.

In launching the 1941 campaign, Mr. Reynolds asked for men, women and children to aid in the campaign under the slogan "Help the Youngster Around Your Corner." He asked that volunteers report to their county chairman or to the State Committee for the State Committee for the Celebration of the President's Birthday, Hamm Building, St. Paul.

Net receipts from the 1940 campaign, Mr. Reynolds said, showed that Minnesotans contributed $30,,103.86 of which $15, 021.93 was used to aid polio victims in the counties where the funds were raised. The National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis, devoted to research into causes and cures for the disease, received $14,011.96. Expenses for the statewide campaign were less than 3½ per cent.

A report issued today by Dr. O. M. Daniel, director of the Division of Preventable Diseases Minnesota Department of Health revealed that 255 cases of infantile paralysis with 25 deaths were reported to the department in 1940.

"These figures reveal the need for aiding in the battle against polio. In the past 10 years 2,788 Minnesota children and adults were stricken with the disease, and 286 died," Mr. Reynolds said.

The Good Old Days

The hospitality a man received was sometimes measured by the size of his pocketbook, even in the good old days, judging from an advertisment found in a newspaper of the Fifties by a research worker of the Minnesota Writers' Project, Work Projects Administration. The advertisement, for a restaurant, stated: "Cash customers are allowed to sit at the table 15 minutes after eating. Credit customers, whose notes draw 4 percent a month, 10 minutes after eating. Credit customers who have book accounts only time enough to pick their teeth."

WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS By Edward C. Wayne

President Scores 'Peace Offensives' And Urges Additional Aid for Britain; Nazis Pour More Troops Into Rumania; English Bombers Pound Invasion Ports

(EDITOR'S NOTE—When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of the news analyst and not necessarily of this newspaper.)
(Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

SOMEWHERE IN FRANCE—A picture released by the German censors, purporting to show French newspaper men being shown the effect of German cannon fire on the Maginot line fortifications. The line, upon which France once pinned its faith against invasion, is now a bad memory of the past for those in occupied France.

PEACE:
U. S. Offensive

As the U. S. administration moved ever more vigorously toward aiding Britain, isolationists groups in senate and house started individual "peace offensives" which the President had scored in no uncertain terms in his radio address Sunday before New Year's.

Back of them all was the familiar theme of asking the U. S. to demand that Britain and Germany state their war aims and that this country make one last effort to bring the two chief warring nations together before the world as it now exists falls apart.

The theory back of it all seemed to be a feeling on some of the administration's heartiest opponents that President Roosevelt still would like to see himself in the role of peacemaker, on any basis. But the President himself indicated that there could be no negotiations with the Axis powers bent on "conquering the world" by the use of gangster tactics.

The demand of Knudsen that manufacturers work for "victory," and by this evidently meaning a British victory, was seen as enough indication of the true temper of White House feeling in the matter.

Editorially, the anti-British American press hailed this domestic "peace offensive," and the Anglophile press editorially condemned it, saying that normally intelligent senators and congressmen were allowing themselves unwittingly to be made tools of Hitler.

Defense Capacity

America's productive capacity for defense is rapidly expanding to meet the nation's armament needs. According to the defense commission, the nation's arms output has reached 2,400 aircraft engines, 700 planes, more than 10,000 semi-automatic rifles and 100 tanks a month.

The commission added that more than a million persons have been put to work in the last two months and that "several million more" will be needed by next November.

GREECE:
Now Anxious

There were two schools of thought as to the reports that Germany was sending anywhere from 100,000 to 500,000 soldiers into Rumania via Hungary.

School No. 1 figured that these troops were aimed to be shot into Greece through Bulgaria, thus attempting to keep Italy going, and thus perhaps hurling Russia and Turkey into the southeastern end of the World war.

School No. 2 doped it out that this latter eventuality was just what Germany sought to avoid, and that the troop movements, if any, were largely a "smoke screen" to cover a severe invasion attempt on the West Front.

The British evidently belonged whole-heartedly to School No. 2, for they followed up the unofficial holiday truce by hurling an average of 100 bombs a minute on the invasion ports, giving them a taste of war from the air that they hadn't had since October.

Early advices from England's scouts on the continent seemed to indicate that the objective had been attained, and that any invasion attempt would have to be postponed again.

At the same time the British put into volume production a new type of torpedo boat, said to travel 70 miles per hour, barely touching the tops of the waves, highly maneuverable, and carrying all sorts of armament, including one cannon and several torpedoes.

Purpose of this boat is to be a counter-move against any troop-carrying barges that may seek to cross the channel.

BRITISH:
Get Second Wind

The campaign in Egypt, which saw the British capture upward of 35,000 prisoners and huge quantities of war material while hurling the Italians not only out of foreign territory but well back within their own Libya, reached a point where the British sat still for a while, apparently catching their "second wind."

Sit-down point was Bardia, where a state of siege was declared, and the British, under General Wavell, apparently decided to shell the defenders into submission with artillery from land and sea and bombs from the air rather than to risk heavy casualties in a direct assault on the well-fortified town.

Bardia is said to be defended by 20,000 Italians, and while cut off from outside help or supplies, and apparently doomed to fall, showed signs of being able to hold out for a while. Prisoners who deserted from within the town and ran the gantlet of fire to the comparative safety of surrender, said Bardia was a hell-on-earth.

They described the havoc wrought by British fire, and felt themselves well out of it all. Rome was slow to admit British successes, but there were signs of sweeping further changes in command. These mostly came from British sources, which announced that as the Italian air force was fighting more vigorously, they assumed that Italy once more had fired a general and hired a new one.

DIPLOMACY:
Beats the Punch

Diplomatic circles did a bit of shadow-boxing around a supposed plan of President Roosevelt to widen the neutrality area to include Ireland, thus permitting British-aid-carrying American vessels to run to west Irish ports.

The diplomats themselves said nothing, but the newspapers in the dictator nations opened fire on this proposal before it was made, and their barbs shot in all directions and across all oceans.

German papers threatened America with everything, practically including a declaration of war if the move was made. The ships would be sunk without warning, they said. They called it Britain's "dirtiest trick" that the English have tried to foist on America.

Following this the Rome press followed suit, going ever further, and promising Ireland that the Axis powers would give Eire full aid if she were to go to war with Britain. And this shot fell info Ireland and set the Irish almost at each other's throats again.

HIGHLIGHTS . . in the week's news

Athens: Greek sources reported a submarine had attacked and sunk an Italian convoy in the Adriatic, with a loss of 25,000 to 30,000 tons.

Melbourne: Australian army chiefs reported that a Nazi sea raider, disguised as a Japanese vessel, shelled and badly damaged buildings on the isle of Nauru, 5,400-acre atoll in the south Pacific, chiefly noted as a source of phosphate.

Ft. Meade: Camp building for the National Guard and draftees is big business, this cantonment reporting that 18,000 men were currently at work there.

Lisbon: A move is on foot, it was reported at Lisbon, on the part of the Vichy government to set the African colonies free, thus giving them carte blanche to move in any direction they see fit.

Camera, Action—!

Here is Richard Green, motion picture actor, climbing out of a tank "Somewhere in England," where he is training with the tank unit in which he enlisted. Sometime before his enlistment was accepted in England he made a flying trip from Hollywood to Vancouver, B. C., in an attempt to enlist in the Canadian army. He was rejected there but is now serving with the British forces.

QUAKE:
But No Sabotage

New England and a large part of the surrounding country was treated to a pair of earthquake shocks, one of the few disasters in recent months that hasn't been investigated by the FBI or the Dies investigators or both.

Most remarkable was the prediction of one quake expert that the shocks felt are just a preliminary, and left New England sitting on the anxious seat. For this scientist predicted that within eight months the earth's fault will really settle, and that a truly disastrous quake will occur.

New Englanders, who have smugly sat back for decades looking over at sunny California, studying their own gloomy climate and saying "well, anyway, we don't have earthquakes," are now revising their slogans accordingly.

And such is their confidence in college professors that New England won't be "sitting pretty" until the eight months have passed away—without a quake!

NLRB:
Gets 'Red' Tag

The Smith committee of the house of representatives tendered its final report, branding the National Labor Relations board as "avowed enemies of constitutional government," and recommending not its disbandment, but a thorough house-cleaning.

The committee approved the President's naming of Dr. Harry A. Millis and Dr. William S. Leiserson to the board, and the qusting of Edwin S. Smith.

Rep. Howard W. Smith's group turned its chief barbs against Smith.

Ending 17 months of investigation of the NLRB, the committee recommended and charged:

1. Prompt dismissal of all members of Communist "front" groups.
2. Sweeping revision of the Wagner Labor Relations act.
3. Institution by congress of an investigation of the entire field of labor relations.

The report tied up Smith with Harry E. Bridges, the stormy petrel of labor on the West coast, charged it with "wrecking labor and employers alike" and of having pronounced "C.I.O. sympathies."

TRIAL BY BOMBS:
Air War Continues

For periods of as much as two days no German planes appeared over England. Then in a lightning raid a devastating blow is struck. One such blow was on the port of Liverpool and another at Manchester. Damage was admitted heavy.

The British, on the other hand, conducted nightly raids, and sought to make them on the same giant scale. Their most serious blow was on Mannerheim, home of the huge I. G. Ferbenindustrie, one of the largest plants in the world. The bombings were not confined to Germany, however, but strung out from northern Norway to Italy. One night R. A. F. planes flew as far as Venice, dropped bombs and returned.

Neutrals also felt the effects of the air war. Several towns in both Northern Ireland (Ulster) and Southern Ireland (Eire) were struck. Civilian casualties were recorded as well in Switzerland.

Otherwise on the war front:

- German Junker planes were reported carrying Italian soldiers from the east coast to Albania. It was denied any German troops were being ferried.
- The British submarine, Swordfish, which attained a notable record, was missing with its crew of 40 and considered lost.
- The house of parliament again was struck by a bomb.
- Hitler told his Nazi soldiers in a New Year's message that the "year 1941 will bring the greatest victory in our history."

Gentlemen—The Navy!

The United States Navy is now 165 years old. When the current defense program achieves its goal, the U. S. Navy will be more powerful than any navy, or combination of navies, afloat!

The "mother" of the U. S. Navy was the "Hannah" (right), a Massachusetts schooner owned by Capt. John Glover, commissioned as a man-o'-war in 1775. The schooner scored the first naval victory in the history of the American navy by capturing a British ship off Beverly, Mass., on Sept. 5, 1775.

GREAT WHITE FLEET . . . The world sat up and took notice of the growing power of the U. S. Navy when Theodore Roosevelt sent the Great White Fleet around the world in 1907. Above are five units of the White Squadron.

Yarn-Spinner, Ancient . . . "Shot" of an old salt spinning his salty yarn to shipmates aboard the old U. S. S. Richmond. In this respect the Navy has not changed much during the decades.

Yarn-Spinner, Modern . . . Beneath the wing of one of the ship's fighting planes, the boys lend willing ears to the tall tales of a shipmate aboard the ultra-modern U. S. S. Saratoga.

GROWN UP . . . And here is a view of a few of the mighty floating fortresses of the modern United States Navy—our first line of defense. Look back at the picture of the tiny "Hannah" and make comparisons.

WINGS OF THE NAVY . . . From the deck of the aircraft carrier, "Ranger," we see the U. S. S. Saratoga and the U. S. S. Lexington, each with their coves of fighting planes on flight deck, gliding majestically through calm waters.

The launching of the frigate, "Fulton the First" at New York, October 29, 1814, the first steam-driven warship in the world.

Lovely Frock for School or Parties

HERE'S an unusually sweet princess frock for junior girls that you'll want two ways for Sunday and everyday! This is the most becoming line in the world for petite figures. There are adroit gathers at the sides of the front panel to give a little roundness where roundness is needed, and the waist scoops in to beguiling tininess, above the piquant flare of the skirt.

In velveteen or taffeta, with a white silk pique collar, design No. 1269-B will be the prettiest kind of party frock. In flannel, spun rayon or corduroy it will be smart for classroom, all in one color or, as shown in the small sketch, with a wide splash of contrast down the front.

Barbara Bell Pattern No. 1269-B is designed for sizes 11, 13, 15, 17 and 19. Corresponding bust measurements 29, 31, 33, 35 and 37. Size 13 (31) requires 4⅛ yards of 39-inch material without nap; ⅜ yard contrast for collar. Send order to:

THE TRUTH SIMPLY TOLD
Today's popularity of Doan's Pills, after many years of world-wide use, surely must be accepted as evidence of satisfactory use. And favorable public opinion supports that of the able physicians who test the value of Doan's under exacting laboratory conditions.

These physicians, too, approve every word of advertising you read, the objective of which is only to recommend Doan's Pills as a good diuretic treatment for disorder of the kidney function and for relief of the pain and worry it causes.

If more people were aware of how the kidneys must constantly remove waste that cannot stay in the blood without injury to health, there would be better understanding of why the whole body suffers when kidneys lag, and diuretic medication would be more often employed.

Burning, scanty or too frequent urination sometimes warn of disturbed kidney function. You may suffer nagging backache, persistent headache, attacks of dizziness, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes—feel weak, nervous, all played out.

Use Doan's Pills. It is better to rely on a medicine that has won world-wide acclaim than on something less favorably known. Ask your neighbor!

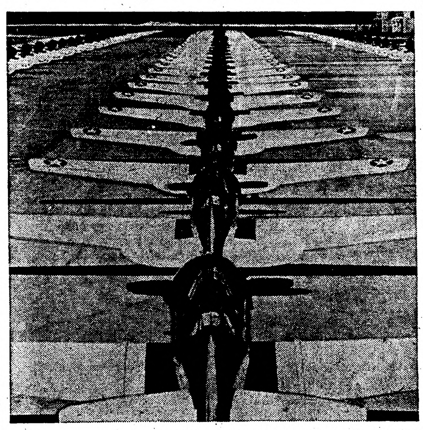
Lesson in Perspective for Prospective Pilots



Remember how the railroad tracks seemed to meet in the distance? Well, nowadays a string of airplanes has the same effect. The imaginary line of the wing tips is drawing towards a point in the distance. These are some of the training craft at the "West Point of the Air," Randolph Field, Texas. The planes will be used for training the 500 flying cadets.

ARE you planning things that will sell well at a Fair or Bazaar? Or is this the season that you catch up on odds and ends of sewing for the house? In either case you will like to stitch up a bag like this one. Everyone seems to have a special use for one of these bags on a hanger. I have one that I use for laundry when I go traveling. Men and boys like them for closet laundry bags too, as they are plenty big enough for shirts. A little girl I know has a small version of one of these in which she keeps doll clothes scraps. I have also seen them used for everything from dress patterns to dust rags.

This green and white ivy patterned chintz with green facing makes a good looking bag. Pictorial chintz will amuse a youngster—something with animals or toys or a landscape in the design. I saw a material the other day with a pattern showing all kinds of rope knots. A boy would like that. Each step in making the bag is shown in the sketch.

In SEWING Book 3 there are directions for still another type of bag on a hanger; also a pocket for the pantry door. ## AROUND the HOUSE

Items of Interest to the Housewife

Save the peels of oranges and tangerines, dry them in the oven and store in glass jars. They give puddings and custards a delicious flavor.

* * *

When making peppermints drop them onto a piece of waxed paper instead of onto a pan. They are more easily removed from waxed paper.

* * *

Hard sauce, highly flavored with cinnamon, grated orange and lemon peels and a little fruit juice, gives just the proper finish to hot fruit puddings.

* * *

Windows may be kept clean and clear during the winter if rubbed over with glycerine occasionally, then polished with a dry cloth.

* * *

When a sweater is washed the buttonholes will not stretch if they are sewed together before the sweater is put into the water.

* * *

When a splinter has gone very deep into the flesh, try extraction by steam. Heat a wide-mouthed bottle and fill it two-thirds full of very hot water and place under the injured spot. The suction in a few minutes removes both splinter and inflammation. This method is particularly good when the splinter has been in for some time.

* * *

A little sweet cream spread over the top crust of a pie before it is put into the oven will make the crust brown and flaky.

* * *

Filling the icebox with scraps of left-over food is a waste of room and usually of food. Never allow them to accumulate.

Plant bulbs close to the window panes and away from the heat of the room instead of starting them in a dark room. You will get better results.

* * *

Brass knockers and doorknobs that are exposed to the weather will stay clean and bright longer if rubbed with paraffin after they are cleaned and polished with a soft, dry cloth.

Flag Display

According to the United States Flag association there are three known places where the flag flies both day and night. They are: The World War memorial in Worcester, Mass.; the Grave of Francis Scott Key, Frederick, Md.; the east and west entrances of the United States Capitol.

The only written statute or rule concerning the 24-hour display was set forth in the report of the capitol architect for 1938, which stated that the flag was to fly in all weather, all times over the Capitol.

Benefits to Our Readers

THE PUBLIC nature of advertising benefits everyone it touches. It benefits the public by describing exactly the products that are offered. It benefits employees, because the advertiser must be more fair and just than the employer who has no obligation to the public. These benefits of advertising are quite apart from the obvious benefits which advertising confers—the lower prices, the higher quality, the better service that go with advertised goods and firms.

DOG POINTERS

PALS

When I see a boy who hasn't a dog,
Or a dog that hasn't a boy—
I think of the lot they are missing
Of frolic and genuine joy.
Some parents think dogs are a nuisance,
Just something to bark and annoy—
They can't know how badly a boy needs a dog
Or how sadly a dog needs a boy.
—May Norton Morris.

* * *

When deciding on a dog for the home, all breeds should receive careful consideration. For apartments and city homes a small breed is usually best. One usually tires of a large dog in close quarters. Also, close confinement is unfair to a large dog.

* * *

In the suburbs or rural districts a large dog is fine, providing he can get out and roam around or be given a good romp every day. Especially excellent with young children are the big slow acting breeds such as St. Bernards or Great Danes. No companion is finer for a growing boy or girl from seven on up than a big, rollicking dog.

* * *

"Your Dog, His Care and Training" published by the Ralston Purina Company, deals with such problems as teaching the puppy where to sleep, arrangements for puppy outside, housebreaking your puppy, how to remove spots on rugs, teething and chewing things, feeding and immunizing, the right kind of bed, daily exercise, riding in cars, brushing and bathing, clipping and trimming, how not to have puppies, dog psychology.

* * *

H. F. Owens, famous dog trainer of St. Louis, kindly worked with Purina Mills on the chapter of "Your Dog, His Care and Training" titled "Training and Teaching Tricks." Mr. Owens has devised an unusual aid for teaching and training dogs. It works wonders in the hands of a novice as well as in more experienced hands.

* * *

To obtain a personal copy of "Your Dog, His Care and Training," mail the coupon envelope that is found in each bag of Dog Chow, to the Ralston Purina Company, St. Louis, Mo., enclosing ten cents. Promptly the book will be sent.

* * *

While looking at puppies, don't pass up the females. They usually cost less, are just as hearty, and, if anything, are more devoted and kinder with children. They are easy to keep at home. Danger of their getting puppies comes only twice a year and can be guarded against by keeping them shut up for a few days while in season. Too, a good female dog offers the pleasure of sometime raising a litter of puppies.

* * *

Insist on getting papers on a purebred dog before final payment is made. To obtain papers, it is necessary to have the pedigree for three generations back, signed by the owner of the bitch at the time she is bred. Also obtain a filled out and signed application for registry from the seller, to file with the American Kennel Club. If the dog is already registered, ask for his certificate and a transfer blank so you can have him transferred to your name. Total cost is around $2.

* * *

Vitamin G is a growth vitamin and an abundance of it aids a sturdy, vigorous growth in pups. A new, rich source of this growth vitamin—Puri-Flave, has just been developed by science. This new ingredient is now in Dog Chow to assure puppies getting plenty of Vitamin G.

* * *

Two common misbeliefs about dogs are that mad dogs refuse to drink water and that every dog that foams at the mouth has rabies. "Neither is correct," says A. H. Leonard, head of the Dog Department of Purina Mills. "Dogs may be foamy at the mouth from any one of a dozen trivial causes, from slight indigestion through more serious troubles. And dogs that refuse to drink water are not so likely to be mad as they are to be just not thirsty. In neither of the two forms of rabies—excited rabies or dumb (paralyzed) rabies—do dogs have fits or convulsions."

* * *

Fits in dogs may show up at any time as a result of distemper, worms, and continued feeding of an improper ration. Not one dog in a thousand accused of having rabies really has the disease. Dogs with excited rabies will be playful at the start of the disease and crave attention and petting. Later the bark will get lower in tone and the dog will become uneasy and seek dark corners in which to hide. Later they lose recognition of their owners and are likely to attack any animal or person who comes within range.

Species of Salmon

There are only five species of salmon in North America, although many are the names of the salmon fish. The five species are chinook, silver, sockeye, dog and humpback. Under the chinook specie are the king, chinook, tyee, spring and blackmouth. Jack salmon is a young male salmon of any species which matures a year earlier than normal. It is only found as a chinook, a silver salmon or a sockeye. A Blueback is generally accepted as another name for sockeye, although it has different local meanings. Coho is another name for silver salmon.

Rural Credit Sold Many Farms

The State Department of Rural Credit report the following sale of Real Estate: During the past two years 2,428 farms were sold 1,025 in 1939 and 1,403 in 1940, 526 were sold for all cash in the amount of $1,904,471.54 and 1,902 were sold on time payments for a total sales price of $4,997,441.39, on which the Department received 26.3 per cent in cash at the time of possession It is interesting to note that 605 of these farms were repurchased by the former owners or their children; 878 by local tenants; 672 by local farmers; and 273 by outside buyers.

In Marshall County the Department has sold 155 farms during 1939 and 1940; 43 to local tenants 45 to local farmers, and 29 to outside buyers, placing back onto the tax rolls $12,091.55 annually.

Advice For Preventing Colds

Here is important information for everyone on the Prevntion of influenza.

With warnings that the Flu epidemic, which started on the west coast and is coming eastward may hit Minnesota, eight concrete recommendations for resisting the disease are given by the Minnesota Public Health Association in the current issue of Everybody's Health, the Christmas Seal Magazine. They are as follows:

Obtain sufficient sleep and rest.

Eat adequate amounts of proper foods, including meats, eggs, milk and other dairy products, fruits and vegetables.

Wear clothing suitable to the weather.

Exercise regularly in the open air.

Avoid crowds.

Keep away from people with colds.

If you feel a cold coming on go to bed and relax.

Secure prompt medical attention for all respiratory infections.

With the distribution of more than two million paper handkerchiefs, to the chools of the state in connection with the Christmas Seal campaign, the Minnesota Public Health Association is carrying on an educational campaign for the prevention of colds. " Proteet Others — Cover Every Cough and Sneeze " is the slogan.

The Weather

The weather the past has been mild and warm with light snow fall which almost turned to rain and made roads slippery.

R. R. V. Winter Shows Program

Plans for the 31st annual Red River Valley Winter Shows and Northwest School Farmers' week which will be held at Crookston, February 3—7, are now complete According to T. M. McCall, president of the Winter Shows, the general theme of the evening meetings will be "World Affairs" on which four outstanding athorities and news analysts will bring up-to-the-minute information from Norway, South America, the Far East, and from our nations capitol.

In the daily educational meetings, national and state authorities will, at the men's meetings, emphasize efficiency in production in all branches of agriculture The Women's meetings will deal with the vital problems of clothing, essential food values, child welfare, and a better rural life. The rural youth problems will be general theme of the 4-H club leaders' conference during the week.

According to advance entry figures, the three large exhibit halls owned by the R. R. Valley Livestock Association will be filled to capacity with approximately 2,000 entries of livestock, crops, and poultry which will make the 1941 Shows the largest winter fair in the northwest.

More than $6200 in prizes will be awarded during Winter Shows week. The state legislature grants prize awards to all livestock and poultry' and the Red River counties and state Crop Improvement Association pays premiums in the crops divisions.

The free educational programs which attract daily from 1200 to to 1500 persons are commanding interest to people throughout the Red River Valley. The night programs and the day shows had a paid attendance of 10,773 in 1940.

An inovation this year will be a speaking program combined with the concert of the Northwestern Minnesota Singers Association on Tuesday' February 4. Evard Hambro, son of the president of the Norwegian Parliment will speak on "What Happened in Norway and the Nazi Threat" Mr. Hambro escaped Norway last summer and has firsthand information on the invasion of Norway and its meaning to the rest of the world. M. W. Thorson, director of the Northwestern Singers, has indicated that special music numbers in Norwegian will be dedicated to Mr. Hambro in the concert.

Ernest K. Kindley, Washington correspondent for Newsweek Magazine, and who writes under his own name in the Washington Post and leading American newspapers' will bring to the Red River Valley the American view of the world situation in an address "America's Place in the World", on Wednesday evening, February 5.

Julien Bryan of New York, who has just completed a study of conditions in our South American Republics, will speak on Thursday evening, Feb. 6, on the subject "Will South America Go Nazi or Join With the United States?" Mr. Bryan will show late motion pictures of subversive groups in South America.

Wilfred Laurier Husband of New York will give the concluding address of the week on Friday evening, February 7, when he will speak on the subject "What Next in the Far East?" Mr. Husband will illustrate his lecture with motion pictures in color that were taken in late summer.

Truck Drivers Have Good Record

Once again the much maligned truck driver has come to the front with a traffic safety mark for ordinary motorists to shoot at. Vital statistics show that the three largest livestock trucking terminals in the state, South St. Paul, Austin and Albert Lea had not a single traffic fatality during the year just past, despite their heavy traffic volume.

At South St. Paul, for example upwards of 180,000 truck-loads of livestock are shipped in annually and more than 20,000 truck-loads are shipped out.

Lloyd Knutson, who has been operating a farm here for several years, left Sunday for Seattle Washington, where he expects to find employment.

Lawrence and LeRoy Reierson visited at the Obert Reierson home at Strathcona Sunday.

Emil Dahl, Alfred Moberg and John Moberg of Gatzke visited at the H. Moberg home Saturday

Mr. G. Fricker and LaRue, Mrs. L. Wegge and Mrs. H. Moberg visited at the Alfred Anderson's and helped Mrs. Anderson celebrate her birthday anniversary which had occured on the previous Monday. All reported a pleasant time.

Mrs. T. C. L. Hanson, Mrs. Backlund, Mrs. Miller, Mrs. Lorentson and Mrs. Hagen visited with Mrs. Jos. G. Nelson Monday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs Hans Langlie and family visited at the C. O. Larson home Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Sorum and Lawrence Larson of Grand Forks were Holt visitors Monday. Mr. Larson is a brother of C. A. Larson.

Mr. and Mrs. M. Sabo visited relatives at Mahnomen Saturday.

Steel Drilled

A person can at home make a hole in some very hard steel by using an acid. Cover the steel to be drilled with melted beeswax; allow the beeswax to harden, then make a hole in the wax, the size of the hole you wish in the steel. Put a drop of nitric acid in the hole in the beeswax, allow it to stand for an hour, rinse with clear water, apply another drop of the acid, and keep repeating until a hole is eaten through the metal.

Farms Acquire Conveniences

Conveniences in farm homes have been steadily increasing in recent years, according to a seven-year study of 1,262 Centre county farms made at the Pennsylvania State college by J. E. McCord, professor of farm management and agricultural economics. The number of furnaces doubled during the seven years. Radios increased 20 per cent and running water increased 5 per cent. The number of farms equipped with electricity increased from 41 per cent to 55 per cent.

Making a Frame For Rug Hooking

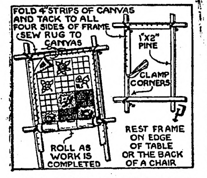
By RUTH WYETH SPEARS

TWO of the nicest hook rugs I have were made without a frame. Many rug makers like to work this way so that they may turn the work as they do different parts of the design. Then, too, whenever rug hookers meet there is sure to be an exchange of treasured bits of colored fabrics. In no time at all a rug making group is meeting and it is difficult to carry a frame when one goes visiting. It is often difficult to find space to put a frame away in a small house or apartment, too.



FOLD 4" STRIPS OF CANVAS AND TACK TO ALL FOUR SIDES OF FRAME
SEW RUG TO CANVAS
1"X2" PINE
CLAMP CORNERS
REST FRAME ON EDGE OF TABLE OR THE BACK OF A CHAIR
ROLL AS WORK IS COMPLETED

You can see by this that I rather favor working without a frame though I know perfectly well that it is more efficient to work with one. Almost all professionals have frames that rest on a permanent base. I have sketched here the type of frame that most amateurs use. You can buy the corner clamps at the hardware store and put the frame together quickly. It may be the size of your rug or smaller. If it is smaller, just part of the rug is stretched on the frame at one time.

SEWING Book 5 tells you exactly how to prepare the burlap for a hooked rug like the one in this sketch and gives much other valuable information on rug hooking. There is still another hooked rug design in Book 6; also a braided and a crocheted rug. Send order to:

Vatican Currency

Under the terms of a financial convention ratified between the Vatican and Italy in January, 1931, the Vatican state issues currency. Recently, new coins bearing the head and armorial markings of Pope Pius XII were put into circulation. The Vatican coins are of the same value, material and dimensions as the Italian coins, the only difference being in the minting.

WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS By Edward C. Wayne

President Calls for Armaments Drive With Increased Aid for Democracies; Irish Investigate Bombings of Dublin; New Congress Tackles Vital Problems

(EDITOR'S NOTE—When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of the news analyst and not necessarily of this newspaper.)
(Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

CONGRESS:
State of the Nation

Calling upon all U. S. citizens to "make the sacrifices that the emergency—as serious as war itself—demands," President Roosevelt in his personally delivered message to the new Seventy-seventh congress pledged full defense and help for those ". . . people who are keeping war away from our hemisphere."

He pointed out that he believed the United States to be facing an unprecedented foreign peril and he asked for a "swift and driving increase" in armament production. Both the United States and the "democracies" would reap the benefits of such increased production, according to the President.

"I also ask this congress," said the President, "for authority and for funds sufficient to manufacture additional munitions and war supplies of many kinds, to be turned over to those nations which are now in actual war with aggressor nations." While he did not actually list the nations to which such aid would go it is generally believed that he meant Britain, China and Greece.

President Roosevelt then proceeded to make clear that he did not consider such aid an "act of war even if a dictator should unilaterally proclaim it so to be." He stated further that "When the dictators are ready to make war upon us they will not wait for an act of war on our part. They did not wait for Norway or Belgium or the Netherlands to commit an act of war."

Here is retiring Vice President John N. Garner, as he rapped his gavel calling to order the 77th congress. He will wield the gavel until the new Vice President, Henry Wallace, becomes the senate's presiding officer after his inauguration, January 20.

He also said that the American people would never "acquiesce in a peace dictated by aggressors and sponsored by appeasers."

NEW BROOM:
Gets Sweeping Material

The "old broom," namely the Seventy-sixth congress of the United States, 366 days old, having closed down, its successor found itself with a lot of "sweeping" to be done, and the evidence was plain that it was scheduled to be a stormy and epochal session.

Swearing in of new and re-elected congressmen accomplished, the senate and house hoppers, emptied of all unfinished business, rapidly began filling with the new, and it was plain that the bills would come under three general classes.

There would be bills aimed to test the strength of President Roosevelt's administration, most of them in the form of curbs upon his powers; there would be administration-inspired bills seeking wider aid to Britain and broader powers to rush forward the lagging American national defense; there would be something done about labor, unemployment and relief, what one might call the social relations field.

Rapidly, as the session rushed into its full stride, various figures of importance raised their voices in one or another of these outstanding issues, some expectedly, others to the considerable surprise of their constituents and the general public.

Back of it all the various polls, especially the Gallup Poll, which Ickes sought to stifle, kept sounding public opinion on moot questions. Eighty per cent of Americans wanted national defense industry speeded up; 54 per cent wanted all aid to England, even if it put the country into war; and so on.

It looked like a race to see whether congress would wag the polls, or if the polls would do the wagging. Outstanding among the early measures was one aimed to curb the President's financial powers, dubbed the anti-inflation bill; one aimed to change the national labor picture through revamping the labor board and creating an appeals "court" for labor; still another urging repeal of the neutrality act and a substitute permitting loans to England; and one that would set old age pensions at $30 the month.

IRELAND:
On War's Brink

Aerial war reports were featured by a small but continued bombing of neutral Ireland, and George Bernard Shaw rushed an interview over the cables saying that either Britain or Hitler would get Ireland into the war somehow before long.

Hitler, said Shaw, wants Ireland in on the Axis side, to give him a possible landing site for aerial invaders. England wants Ireland actively in on the British side to give her good naval bases and a better defense against submarine activities in the eastern Atlantic.

Investigation of the bombs that dropped at first seemed to indicate that the Germans were attempting to line the Irish coast with magnetic mines and that some of them had inadvertently landed inshore.

This, however, was not borne out, for later bombs were not of the marine type, and then came a full daylight raider, with no excuse for missing, and popped one or two right into the streets of Dublin.

Examination of the bombs showed them to be of German manufacture. The Axis, both Rome and Berlin, immediately leaped into print claiming that the bombs had been taken from downed planes by the British, who had been calmly bombing her neighbor, trying to get the Irish mad enough to declare war on Germany.

GREEKS:
Still on Move

Despite the rumbling thunder of Germans about to swoop through Bulgaria toward Salonika, the Greek armies, facing worst blizzards in Albanian history, continued to move forward, but more slowly in the face of stiffening Fascist resistance.

Chief gains were made on the southwestern front, but gains were reported in all sectors. Interesting were the dispatches telling of how Italians were taking to skis with disastrous results, and how Italian mechanized forces were bogging down.

Picture editors in this country continued to get dozens of photos of Italians surrendering, one of the captions even saying that when a cameraman happened not to be present at one "surrender scene," the Fascist troops obligingly posed for the picture when one finally showed up.

"Tirana by Christmas" did not materialize, and the Italian stiffer resistance did—but there was continued evidence that if the Greeks were to be beaten back and Italy kept in the war, German planes and German troops would have it to do.

Hitler's statement, made when he was "mad" with Italy before her entrance into the war on the eve of the fall of France, that it would take 10 to 15 divisions to keep Italy going if she did come in, seemed to have been conservative.

Estimates of German troops already available for an invasion of Greece through the Bulgarian door had risen to half a million, or four times the maximum of Hitler's estimate.

FOREIGN BRIEFS:

LONDON. — British report that since October 15, more than a dozen German infantrymen, representing eight different units of the German army, have been captured on British soil. They called them the "first men of the invasion army" to reach England alive.

ROME.—The Axis will knock England out of the war before U. S. aid can arrive for Britain, the Lavoro Fascista prophesied.

Quiet, Please!

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Counterpart of the "Don't tell war secrets" placards so widely used in England is this new poster which has made its appearance throughout the United States war department. The war department poster uses cartoons to bring home its "Button up your lip" message.

SOLDIERS:
Spoil for Fight

The old saying "spoiling for a fight" was borne out in the fall of Bardia, Libyan port besieged for several days by the British forces in northern Africa.

The British blitz mowed down Italians and rushed them back from the Egyptian border into their own territory, almost to Tobruk, with the result that an estimated 20,000 Italians were surrounded and cut off at Bardia.

General Wavell, wishing to conserve lives of his soldiers, decided to put on a siege, to "take things easy" and bomb and shell the Fascists into surrender.

But his command included fresh, vigorous Australian troops (much like Americans in makeup, physique and morale), and they howled for a chance to charge in.

Finally Wavell surrendered to desire of his own men for attack, and "let 'em go." They smashed through the Italian defenses, captured 5,000 prisoners the first day, and within three days had captured the town.

Capable authorities estimate now that Graziani's forces have been cut about one-third, and that British probably outnumber their enemy now on the Egyptian front.

HOPKINS:
Hops to Europe

Announcement that President Roosevllt was sending Harry Hopkins at once to Britain as his "personal representative," caused considerable speculation as to the reason for delay in naming an ambassador to fill the shoes of the recalcitrant Kennedy.

Washington observers were inclined to the view that Hopkins' hop to London meant that a "career man" would finally be sent, probably one at a considerable distance, who could not leave right away.

Eyes turned to Norman Armour at Buenos Aires as a possibility. He is a career man—he is far away—it would take him time to get ready to go.

That seemed all the basis for the report, as the White House was silent. The former commerce secretary, however, was a fact, not a rumor.

LAG:
Leads the News

Usually it takes something more than a lag to make a headline. But the continually lagging national defense program continued to lead the news pages.

Mark Watson wrote that an aluminum shortage was menacing plane production right at a vital stage. And this story came out just after the public had been informed that there was plenty of this important material.

Watson said his information was being flatly denied by defense commission men, yet revealed that production men were finding the shortages of aluminum alloy castings, forgings and "extrusions" (shapes which are pressed cold) were giving them more headaches than any one thing.

There are two bottlenecks, says Watson,—one of them the fact that several new aluminum plants will not be in full production until mid-1942, and one of the main ones not until June, 1941; and the other bottleneck is the dependence of the country mainly on Guiana and Brazil for supplies of bauxite, the raw material from which huge electric plants make aluminum ingots.

FIRE:
New Angle to Bombing

Germans, having found that fire bombs are more effective in ruination of civilized dwelling places than high explosives, have changed their tactics and now are dropping about 1,000 incendiaries to 100 TNT's.

They nearly wiped London off the map, only determined and brave work by fire fighters saving the city. The people, raging against the Nazis, roamed the streets, roaring to Churchill to give the Germans reprisals.

Patterns SEWING CIRCLE

ONE special beauty of this design (No. 8836) is that you can make it up in household cottons for home wear, cutting the sleeves off short, and in spun rayon or thin wool for runabout, cutting the sleeves long! And it's so easy to make that you're certain to repeat it many times.

Belted only in the back, with lengthening bodice panels that accent height, thus making you look slimmer, and gathers beneath the yoke portions, this dress is cleverly detailed to give exactly the effect that women's sizes require. The v-neckline is finished with a deeply notched collar, the sleeves are trimmed with narrow cuff-points. And you'll find it one of the most comfortable fashions you ever put on!

Pattern No. 8836 is designed for sizes 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46 and 48. Size 36 requires, with short sleeves, 4⅞ yards of 39-inch material without nap; with long sleeves, 4⅓ yards; ⅝ yard for contrasting collar and cuffs. Send order to:

At Close Speaker's Remarks Had Become a Nightmare

The dinner came to an end, and the chairman called for silence.

"Gentlemen," he began, "I will now call upon Mr. Long, our distinguished guest, to make his speech."

The guest rose and was greeted with polite applause.

At the end of ten minutes he was still speaking, but when at the end of half an hour he had not finished the patience of his listeners began to get exhausted.

In the end the speaker wound up with: "Speaking is nothing to me. As a boy I used frequently to talk in my sleep."

"And now," a drowsy voice was heard to exclaim, "you talk in ours."

With the Air Arm of the Royal Navy

These photos, released by the British admiralty, give the layman an idea of what goes on behind the terse communiques. Top left, scene in the below-deck hangar of an aircraft carrier of the royal navy. Top right, the ground crew takes to its heels as the motors rev up for the takeoff. Lower left, the port wing of a Walrus plane gets its load of bombs before the takeoff. Lower right, a war bird comes home to roost.

Military Training Helps Reformation

Army training is making men out of these boys at the New York City reformatory, at New Hampton, N. Y. At the suggestion of Mayor Fiorella La Guardia, military drill was tried as an experiment at the correctional institution. The average age of the boys is 19. Here you see (left) a company presenting arms at a flag-lowering ceremony. Right: Inmates charging with their wooden guns during field drill.

Free French Fight on for Liberty

HONNEUR PATRIE

Somewhere in England, and in an English port, this destroyer now flies the standard of the Free French forces who fight on for liberty. It was one of the ships of war that came over to England rather than surrender when the French government capitulated to the Nazis. Craft of the Free French navy are now doing regular duty with units of the British fleet.

June and December

Honeymooning in front of their one-room brush shanty is Pleas Hickman, 82, of Roan County, Tenn., and his bride, the former Geneva Powell, 17, of Rock Castle, Ky. The girl ran away from home a year ago in search of romance. She says she is "completely happy."

The Army's Men in White

"Ten below zero" is what the thermometer said as this ski patrol of the U. S. army started out from the Plattsburg, N. Y., barracks for a winter training march. These men, clad in outfits like those made famous in the recent Finnish war, are members of the Twenty-sixth infantry. They are being trained in ski and snowshoe maneuvers.

Here's a Change From Old Stand-Bys: Cereal Cookies; So Tasty, Low in Cost

DID you ever hear of a "cerealia?" No, it's not a breakfast food. It's the festival that the ancient Romans staged every year in honor of Ceres, Goddess of the Grains. You can have a cerealia of your own; a Cookie Cerealia, for when it comes to turning out those batches of cookies, there's nothing that adds so much taste and variety at such a low cost as the well-known morning cereal.

Nice part about making cereal cookies is that the cereal is already cooked and tested in the manufacturer's ovens. All you need do is mix it in according to directions. But nicer still are the gorgeous-tasting delicacies that you can produce from just ordinary, every-day corn flakes and the like. Sort of a change from the old stand-bys, the sand-tarts and ginger snaps.

Even the names of these cookies sound good: Bran Butterscotch Cookies, New Zealand Corn Flake Kisses, Mincemeat Hermits, Peppies, and Peanut Butter Macaroons. Happily, none of these call for expensive ingredients.

Bran Butterscotch Cookies.

1 cup butter
2 cups brown sugar
1 egg
1 cup all-bran
3 cups flour
2 teaspoons baking powder

Cream butter; add sugar gradually and beat until light and fluffy. Add egg and beat well. Stir in all-bran. Sift flour with baking powder and work into first mixture, a small amount at a time. Knead and shape into rolls about 1½ inches in diameter; wrap in waxed paper, covering ends so that dough will not dry out. Store in refrigerator until firm. Cut into thin slices and bake on ungreased cookie sheet in moderately hot oven (425 degrees F.) about 10 minutes.

Yield: 7½ dozen cookies (2 inches in diameter).

Note: One tablespoon water or milk may be added to dough if it is difficult to shape into rolls.

New Zealand Corn Flake Kisses.

½ cup butter
1 cup sugar
1 egg
1¼ cups flour
1 teaspoon baking powder
½ teaspoon salt
1 cup finely cut dates
½ cup corn flake crumbs

Cream butter and sugar thoroughly; add egg and beat until fluffy. Sift flour with baking powder and salt; add to first mixture along with dates. Mix well. Roll one teaspoon of mixture in corn flake crumbs and flatten down on greased cookie sheet. Bake in slow oven (325 degrees F.) about 20 minutes. Remove from pan while warm.

Yield: 3 dozen cookies (1¾ inches in diameter).

Mincemeat Hermits.

⅔ cup butter
1⅓ cups sugar
2 eggs
½ cup milk
¾ cup all-bran
3½ cups flour
2 teaspoons baking powder
1½ teaspoons cinnamon
1 teaspoon cloves
½ teaspoon mace
½ teaspoon nutmeg
1 teaspoon salt
1 cup mincemeat

Blend butter and sugar thoroughly; add egg and beat well. Add milk and all-bran. Sift flour with remaining dry ingredients and add to first mixture; mix well and chill. Roll dough to about ⅛ inch thickness on lightly floured board and cut into rounds. Place teaspoonful of mincemeat on one round, cover with second and press edges together. Bake on greased baking sheet in moderately hot oven (400 degrees F.) for about 12 minutes.

Yield: 45 cookies (2¾ inches in diameter).

Peppies.

¾ cup shortening
1 cup sugar
2 eggs
1 cup molasses
1 cup vitamin-enriched wheat flakes
4 cups flour
½ teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon soda
1 teaspoon ginger
1 teaspoon cinnamon
½ cup sour cream

Blend shortening and sugar thoroughly. Add well beaten eggs, molasses and wheat flakes. Sift flour with salt, soda and spices; add alternately to first mixture with cream. Chill thoroughly. Roll to ⅛-inch thickness; cut and bake on greased baking sheet in moderate oven (375 degrees F.) about 20 minutes.

Yield: 2½ dozen cookies (2½ inches in diameter).

Orange and Lemon Cookies.

(Makes about 5 dozen cookies)

1 cup sugar
¼ cup orange juice
¼ cup lemon juice
1 teaspoon lemon peel (grated)
1 teaspoon orange peel (grated)
3½ cups flour (sifted)
2 teaspoons baking powder
½ teaspoon salt
½ cup butter (melted)

Mix sugar and fruit juices well. Add grated peel, dry ingredients and melted butter. Stir well. Doug should be firm enough to roll. Roll very thin and cut with fancy cutter in various shapes. Bake on a greased sheet in a moderately hot oven (375 degrees) for about 10 minutes, or until lightly browned on the edges.

Ultra-Violet Light

Ultra-violet light in sunshine is largely filtered out by the cornea, the lens and the aqueous humor in the eye before the light rays reach the retina, points out the Better Vision institute. The cornea, the tough outer covering of the eye, absorbs about two-thirds of the short ultra-violet rays. When a person's eyes become irritated from over-exposure to strong sunlight, as at the beach, the soreness is usually in the cornea, or its external covering membrane, the conjunctiva.

Pretty Pears

A LITTLE girl who liked to know all about things was listening with great interest while her mother told her about the habits of birds. They ate grain, yes; they ate crumbs, yes, she had seen them eat crumbs; and they ate fruit—

"But mother," the little girl interrupted, "how do they open the cans?"

Whereupon, no doubt, the mother explained, how the bird gets up even earlier than the canner to get the prettiest fruit it can find. But it is an early bird, indeed, who can beat the canner to the choicest fruit, for this, in most cases, is especially grown for the canneries so that it may be grown under the best conditions and harvested when it is at its ripest and best.

Canning Beauty

Take pears, for example. Pears are a fruit with a long and honorable history, yet they have received less attention from recent generations than many other fruits probably because of the poor keeping-quality of fully-ripened fresh pears. Even though we pick them when they are a beautiful, light golden yellow and bring them indoors and place them in a fruit dish, it is only a short time before they begin to deteriorate.

How different they look after a short time off the tree, from the pretty firm, yet tender, white pears that we are familiar with when we open the can. The delicate flavor of the canned pear is perfectly retained because it has not been allowed to become over-ripe before picking.

It is this delicate flavor which makes it blend with other fruits so that it has become one of the most popular for use in fruit cups, salads and fruit desserts. In the dish on the table, as well as on the branch of the tree we hear the same term used—"pretty pears."

Hitchhiker Depot

Weary hitchhikers have found such comfort in the "depot" set up by Thomas J. Bromfield at Albion, Mich., that they stop at the rate of 300 a week. Bromfield, a filling-station operator, built the resting place a year ago. While hitchhikers sit on a bench under the trees, a large painted thumb tells passing motorists they are willing to ride awhile. The thumb is adjustable and may be turned to point either way down the road.

American Industry in Canada

Although Canada's population is no greater than that of the metropolitan area of New York city, American industry has $4,000,000,000 invested in that country and controls nearly 2,000 of its companies, half of which are manufacturing plants.

Cost, Four Gallons

New Yorkers may blush when they remember their city once was bought for $24, but the people of Kernersville, N. C., really get red when they remember that in 1756, Caleb Story, an Irishman, bought what is the now thriving town of Kernersville for four gallons of rum.

Slight Change In Tax Rates

Only slight changes in tax rates will be noticed generally throughout Marshall county by taxpayers when they pay their 1940 tax bill this year, according to the new tax rate sheet released last week by P. E. Kvigstad, county treasurer.

A comparison of the rate sheets for 1940 and 1939 reveals that rates will be higher in 72 school districts including agricultural lands and village properties and 32 townships and villages. Rate reductions were noticed in 57 school districts including agricultural lands and village properties and 20 townships and villages. The same rates will apply in 52 school districts and seven townships and villages.

As announced in a previous issue of the Warren Sheaf, the state rate on non-homesteads and personal property will remain at 10 mills while the state homestead rates were decreased to the new low of 1.24 mills. The county rate was reduced from 45.2 to 47.71 mills.

With a combined rate of 145.71 mills which includes village, school district, county and state rates, the village of Strandquist has the lowest rate of any high school village in the county. The highest rate including the same classifications will be found in the village of Holt with a total combined rate of 244.61 mills.

The following tabulation shows the total rates on non-agricultural lands and personal property for the high school villages in the county for 1940 and 1939.

| | | |
|---|---|---|
| Stephen, Dist. 1, | 170.41 | 160.4 |
| Warren, Dist. 2 | 159.31 | 159.9 |
| Argyle, Dist. 3 | 179.31 | 181.0 |
| Alvarado, Dist. 31 | 159.21 | 160.5 |
| Holt, Dist. 85 | 244.61 | 220.3 |
| Newfolden, Dist. 49 | 160.11 | 168.6 |
| Strandquist, Dis 65 | 145.71 | 138.2 |
| Oslo, Dist. 125 | 168.31 | 179.7 |
| M. River, Dist. 126 | 172.61 | 169.3 |

Taxpayers will not notice a considerable variance with the above rates, due to lower state rates on homesteads as well as lower rates on agricultural lands located within each school district. However, the above tabulation gives a comparison as to changes in rates on village personal property and non-homestead real estate.

Warren Sheaf.

Rev. Hanson, G. Karyonen, H. Peterson, O. T. Ness and S. Lorentson attended the District meeting of the Boy Scout Council at Thief River Falls Monday evening.

R. R. V. Winter Shows Program

Plans for the 31st annual Red River Valley Winter Shows and Northwest School Farmers' week which will be held at Crookston, February 3—7, are now complete According to T. M. McCall, president of the Winter Shows, the general theme of the evening meetings will be "World Affairs" on which four outstanding athorities and news analysts will bring up-to-the-minute information from Norway, South America, the Far East, and from our nations capitol.

In the daily educational meetings, national and state authorities will, at the men's meetings, emphasize efficiency in production in all branches of agriculture The Women's meetings will deal with the vital problems of clothing, essential food values, child welfare, and a better rural life. The rural youth problems will be general theme of the 4-H club leaders' conference during the week.

According to advance entry figures, the three large exhibit halls owned by the R. R. Valley Livestock Association will be filled to capacity with approximately 2,000 entries of livestock, crops, and poultry which will make the 1941 Shows the largest winter fair in the northwest.

More than $6200 in prizes will be awarded during Winter Shows week. The state legislature grants prize awards to all livestock and poultry' and the Red River counties and state Crop Improvement Association pays premiums in the crops divisions.

The free educational programs which attract daily from 1200 to to 1500 persons are commanding interest to people throughout the Red River Valley. The night programs and the day shows had a paid attendance of 10,773 in 1940.

An inovation this year will be a speaking program combined with the concert of the Northwestern Minnesota Singers Association on Tuesday' February 4. Evard Hambro, son of the president of the Norwegian Parliment will speak on "What Happened in Norway and the Nazi Threat" Mr. Hambro escaped Norway last summer and has firsthand information on the invasion of Norway and its meaning to the rest of the world. M. W. Thorson, director of the Northwestern Singers, has indicated that special music numbers in Norwegian will be dedicated to Mr. Hambro in the concert.

Ernest K. Kindley, Washington correspondent for Newsweek Magazine, and who writes under his own name in the Washington Post and leading American newspapers' will bring to the Red River Valley the American view of the world situation in an address "America's Place in the World", on Wednesday evening, February 5.

Julien Bryan of New York, who has just completed a study of conditions in our South American Republics, will speak on Thursday evening, Feb. 6, on the subject "Will South America Go Nazi or Join With the United States?" Mr. Bryan will show late motion pictures of subversive groups in South America.

Wilfred Laurier Husband of New York will give the concluding address of the week on Friday evening, February 7, when he will speak on the subject "What Next in the Far East?" Mr. Husband will illustrate his lecture with motion pictures in color that were taken in late summer.

Poss. of Pickerel and Pike Limited

St. Paul, Minn. -- Conservation Commissioner W. L. Strunk today ordered additional year round protection for pickerel or Northeran pike in place of the ban on winter spearing, by reducing daily catch and possession limits.

Applying to angling, the daily catch limit, 30 days from the date of the order's legal publication, will be six with 12 permitted in possession. The former limit was eight pickerel daily with 20 allowed in possession.

Effective at once the Commissioner's order reopened the winter spearing season on pickerel or Northern pike, until Mar. 1 st, with a daily take limit of two permitted. Possession limits will be the same as for angling.

Asserting that surveys have repeatedly demonstrated the need for according pickerel more protection, the Commissioner said the new regulation of limits will help conserve this fish.

" An investigation by the Director of the Division of Game and Fish and the State Bureau of Fisheries showed that the pickerel will derive the needed protection from the reduced limits", Strunk said.

" The burden of protection will thereby be imposed upon all fishermen instead of upon the comparatively limited number of winter spearmen. "

Mr. and Mrs. Hartley Peterson Mr. and Mrs. Louis Sagstuen, Raymond and Dorothy Sagstuen, ~~Mr. and Mrs. Arnold Sannes,~~ Bertha, Gerald and Walter Moberg were dinner guests at the J. S. Leiran home at Thief River Falls on Sunday.

'A Noble Animale'

A Hindu student was asked to write an essay on the horse. He said:

"Horse is wild animal of four feat. He has longh mouth and he suppose himself to be obedient to men. Its food is generally grass and grains. He is also useful to take on his back a man or lady, as well as some cargo. Also he is useful to drive the carriages.

"He has power to run as fast as he could. He has got no sleep at night and always standing awaken. Its appearance is very long. Also there are horses of short size. They do the same as the others are generally doing. Probably the Arabian horses are always bigger."

We Can All Be
EXPERT BUYERS

● In bringing us buying information, as to prices that are being asked for what we intend to buy, and as to the quality we can expect, the advertising columns of this newspaper perform a worth while service which saves us many dollars a year.

● It is a good habit to form, the habit of consulting the advertisements every time we make a purchase, though we have already decided just what we want and where we are going to buy it. It gives us the most priceless feeling in the world: the feeling of being adequately prepared.

● When we go into a store, prepared beforehand with knowledge of what is offered and at what price, we go as an expert buyer, filled with self-confidence. It is a pleasant feeling to have, the feeling of adequacy. Most of the unhappiness in the world can be traced to a lack of this feeling. Thus advertising shows another of its manifold facets—shows itself as an aid toward making all our business relationships more secure and pleasant.

'Lease-Lend' Bill Would Give President Broad Powers in 'Aid-to-Britain' Plans; Greeks Continue to Push Back Italians As British Speed Up Campaign in Libya

By Edward C. Wayne

(EDITOR'S NOTE—When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of the news analyst and not necessarily of this newspaper.)
(Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

BILLIONS:
In Double Figures

Congress knew what was coming when the Roosevelt message on the budget was handed them, but it was a shock none the less.

Some things shock one even when one knows in advance all about them.

Seventeen and a half billions.

More billions (unmentioned and extra-budgetary) when the lend-lease plan goes into effect.

A debt limit probably up to 60 billions. Hoary-headed congressmen harked back to the days when they worried about awarding a mere pittance of a billion and a half to World war veterans for the soldier bonus.

Yet the temper of the congress was such that even while being shot back on their heels by the magnitude of the thing, they agreed it would pass, and the lend-lease measures along with it.

And as to the "all-out" aid to Britain, the congress and the administration were seeing eye to eye, or at least nearly so.

The budget and the presidential message were received in kind across the ocean. The Nazi and the Fascist press were vocal in their distaste of the whole proceeding, while the Russian press was relatively silent.

Senator Alben W. Barkley of Kentucky, senate majority leader, and Senator Walter F. George of Georgia, chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations committee, are pictured as they looked over the "lease-lend" bill before presenting it to congress.

Britain, not counting its chickens before hatching, nor its ships before receipt, was quietly appreciative, but seemed to feel her fate was safe in the hands of the President and congress. Whatever aid can be given will be given, the British felt sure, so why whoop it up?

SHOCK:
For Isolationists

Those in favor of knitting our own socks whether Europe collapses or not got a shock that had nothing to do with the budget.

Senator Nye of North Dakota declared there were between 30 and 35 positive votes (14 to 19 short of a majority) for the United States to declare war on Germany right away, with no more "beating around the bush."

Nye, a leader of the non-interventionist bloc, hasn't the faintest hope that the lend-lease bill (dubbed "blank check aid for England") will be defeated in either house.

He, however, flatly calls this bill a "declaration of war." He gave the 30-35 positive vote figure in case President Roosevelt should, after passage of the unofficial declaration, ask the congress to "make it official" with a formal declaration.

Nye's pessimistic (from his viewpoint) prediction of passage of the bill in some form was echoed by most of his colleagues in the non-intervention bloc, and they seemed ready to center their fight on a basis of some form of revision of the (to them) more drastic provisions.

President Roosevelt, admitting the bill gave him vast powers, sat back quietly waiting for victory in the voting, saying "I know it, but somebody had to have the power."

BRITISH:
Show Speed

Rivalling even the blitzkrieg that swamped the low countries and knocked France out of the war was a swift attack on Libya put on by the forces of Gen. Sir Archibald Wavell, trim British commander of the top-flight colonials in Africa.

Learning their lesson in Flanders that shock, surprise and speed are the primary qualifications of a successful attack, the British have kept going, even at the cost of getting hundreds of dangerous miles away from their sources of supply.

The despairing cry of Tommy Atkins in Flanders fields and on the road to Dunquerque was "give us planes!" General Wavell was not holding back the planes in the African offensive. Indeed inside information was that of the RAF pilots the banner men were in the Mediterranean offensive, operating both on the Albanian front and in Africa.

Sidi Barrani fell to the Italians without resistance. There they bogged down, never reaching the next stop, Marsa Matruh. Graziani halted and prepared, and waited for supplies that never came. Suddenly the British struck.

Sidi Barrani fell, then in quick succession Salum and Bardia. Then Tobruk was cut off, and the spearhead of the attack split in one direction toward Bengasi, the capital, and toward Derna, the only remaining coastal town of importance.

Fireside critics and editorialists were warning Wavell of "over-reaching" but Wavell's answer to these was to move faster and farther.

After Bardia, the British announced 44,000 officers and men killed or captured. Rendered ineffective since the campaign started, the estimate was around 100,000, or half Graziani's army.

Australian forces are being given much of the credit for the successful drive by the force of the British empire. Famous for their courage and ability in the war of 1914-18, the Aussies had their first major test in the battle for Bardia and they lived up to expectations. When the time came to attack the city there was no stopping them.

GREEKS:
Near Victory

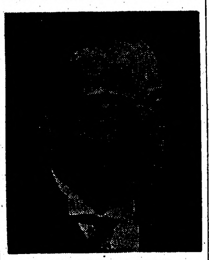
Even if the Germans stage a "movie show" rescue act, and come rushing in at the last moment to knock out Greece, the Greeks have had their hour.

They stood on the verge of a complete victory with the fall of Klisura. Around Klisura, the Italians had made a determined stand. Regiment after regiment of "crack" Roman troops had been hurled into the defense.



DICTATOR METAXAS
His Greek forces 'pushed on.'

The battle was fought amid severest snowstorms, some of near-blizzard proportions. But finally the Greeks had their way, and Klisura was abandoned.

Stories of this abandonment show how vulnerable the retreating army is in modern warfare, especially when inferior in the air. The Italians, according to the reports, hastened from the field of battle in long columns, winding along mountain passes and the rough Albanian roads.

What a mark for British and Greek bombers, especially the eight-machine-gunned fighter craft of the Hurricane and Spitfire type. The British reported that their planes did devastating damage to the retreating Italian columns.

Men so "strafed" during retreat find little stomach for turning and making a stand. Yet turn they had to, at Tepelini, or the roads to Valona and Tirana would be wide open. The Greeks reached the outskirts of Tepelini—and this, according to military men, is the most vital town of all Albania.

French Hero

NEW YORK CITY.—E. Casanave-Cabanne, a demobilized French soldier, is shown as he arrived in New York aboard the SS San Domingue. He sports a Croix de Guerre, awarded him for shooting down a Heinkel bomber during the "battle of France."

FIRE:
And the Reply

As Germany continued its newest policy of raining 100 fire bombs to one explosive on Britain's more or less inflammable cities and towns, especially including London, the British found two replies, each (they hoped) more or less effective.

Basic defense against this warfare has been the naming of a new corps of volunteer roof-top fire-watchers, who have been showing extraordinary bravery in quenching blazes as soon as started, even during the heaviest bombing raids.

Second reply has been an increased tempo of British bombing attack on invasion ports and German cities, Bremen having been given a going over that lasted three days, and this was followed by an invasion port attack in which more than 550 British planes took part, more than 100 of them bombers and the rest machine-gunning fighters who held the Nazis on the ground.

JUNK:
Dealers 'Told'

Leon Henderson, styled by his introducer on the speaker's platform as the administration's "No. 1 Economist," but officially titled "Defense Commissioner for Price Stabilization," talked turkey to the scrap-metal suppliers at their institute convention.

Briefly he said:

"The government is not satisfied with the soaring price of scrap steel ($16 a ton in October—to $24 a ton).

"We are giving you a last chance to handle this yourselves.

"Otherwise we will handle you."

Junk dealers and brokers looked solemn. Then he said:

"We've got to have a supply of scrap steel. We'll get it where we can.

"As for me, I'd make a deal with the Devil to lick Hitler."

Solemn faces broadened, broke into cheers. The convention broke up, the dealers resolved to "go home and be good boys."

RUSSIA:
Scouts Around

The Soviet, acting on the heels of America's "all-out" effort to aid Britain and the democracies to win, announced a treaty with Nazi Germany whereby "Russia would feed Nazis."

Diplomatic rustlings and whisperings followed this report, all of which aimed at knowing "what's next?" from Russia. Indignance in some quarters was followed by this from the Soviet:

"The treaty with Germany on foodstuffs and supplies is not aimed at any other power. We are seeking similar alliances with other nations."

All of which seemed to boil down to more Muscovite fishing in troubled waters—this time for an export market—with the seas boiling with torpedoes and mines, if not actually closed.

UNREST:
Reports Grow

Surveys of unrest in conquered democracies or semi-democracies in Europe showed increases in hostility to Germany and Italy, and the newspaper evidence that Italy was suffering internal pains was growing.

The latter stories were mostly centered around "uncensored" reports filtering back to the United States apparently from members of the Mazzini, Italian-American organization opposed to Fascism.

One report, typical, said 500 of these men were on one Italy-bound ship, landed, dispersed through the country, and were spreading unrest.

Most of the other stories emanated from returning travelers who had been in France, Norway, or other occupied zones, and had managed to make a getaway.

Tales of hunger, of the autocratic domineering of the soldiery, of financial sabotage, of purchases of goods for marks that practically amounted to theft on a super-wholesale basis, were common.

RESTAURANT MEN ARISE!

"Washington.—A meeting of the Regional Restaurant Convention was told by speakers here that restaurant owners should serve foods which would help national security. 'Restaurant men should put their knowledge of nutrition and diet to work in the cause of defense,' a speaker said. 'They can help improve the stamina of America.'"—News item.

* * *

Elmer Twitchell was much interested in the above item. As an old restaurant man himself, the idea absorbed his interest. "I think there's something in it," he declared. "You take a hamburger . . .

The reporter reached out to take one, but Mr. Twitchell explained he was speaking figuratively.

"Take a hamburger. There are hamburgers and hamburgers. I don't know how they rate in the matter of stamina, but the kind many restaurants serve today certainly make a man want to fight."

"What about all-hots?" he was asked.

"The all-hot rates about B plus in a defense program," explained Elmer solemnly, consulting his charts. "They are not only nutritious, but they are a national habit. They are a part of the American system. Take our frankfurters and rolls away from us and our morale would undergo terrific damage."

* * *

"How does the combo or ham and egg on rye rate in a national defense program?"

"Our tests have shown," replied Elmer, "that a man cannot remain an adequate fighting unit as long on the combo as he can on a three-decker liverwurst with lettuce and mayonnaise, but he is within one point ten of being as durable as a man who prefers a salami on a hard roll."

"What about the minute steak?"

"This minute steak business demands an immediate study," snapped Mr. Twitchell. "It covers too much territory. I ordered a minute steak sandwich in a fairly good restaurant last night. It unfitted me even for draft purposes by loosening all my front teeth."

* * *

"How about chicken salad as an aid to national security?"

"I understand there are places where chicken salad is chicken salad," replied Elmer, "but I have not been able to locate 'em. There is nothing in the chicken salads I have ordered that would sustain a man through a minor skirmish with a platoon of Singer midgets."

"What about the cheeseburger sandwich? Could the nation put its trust in that in time of war?"

"The war and navy departments have the cheeseburger under consideration at this moment. Messrs. Stimson, Knox and others had a special session to determine the proper place of the cheeseburger in any defense program," said Elmer.

"How about beef stew and beans?"

"Now you're talking sense," concluded Elmer. "No matter what the restaurant man or the defense bodies may suggest, stew and beans are what the fighting forces will get . . . and past performances show it ain't half bad."

Reaction to the ASCAP-Radio War.

I cannot get the old sweet songs;
Somehow it strikes me funny
That those who write of "love and you"
Can think so much of money.

Germany has gone to the rescue of Italy. This may turn out to mark the introduction of a new type of German warfare: Rescue with pursuit.

Crowned Before Born

Shapur II of Persia was the only king who was crowned before birth, the coronation, which consisted of placing the royal circlet on the head of his waiting cradle, taking place three days before he was born in 310, says Collier's.

Inez de Castro of Portugal was the only queen who was crowned after death, the coronation, for which her body was exhumed and set on the throne, taking place two years after she was murdered in 1355.

Patterns SEWING CIRCLE

NO WONDER she looks sweet as pie and decidedly pleased with herself! This little miss, with the bows in her curls and her doll by the arm, is wearing the newest and best of pinafore-jumper fashions, and one that you should make up immediately for your own small daughter. The pinafore-jumper is so deliciously full, below that down-scooped cut in the front, and the sash bow in the back accents its saucy flare. The little guimpe is plain and tailored, as it should be for school and kindergarten, with a round, tailored collar and a little neck bow.

Send for the pattern right away (the number is 8860). Make the pinafore-jumper of checked gingham, printed calico or plain chambray, and trim with braid or bias binding. Repeat the guimpe several times in batiste, lawn, dimity, or linen.

SAME ROOM WITH CURTAINS OVER WALL AND WINDOW SPACE FRAMED WITH CUPBOARDS SINGLE WINDOW WITH LONG CURTAINS MAKES SMALL ROOM LOOK NARROW

ON A Thursday afternoon the south end of a certain dining room was as shown here in the upper sketch. The following Monday it appeared as shown below. Cupboards had been added to display china and give storage space, yet the room actually seemed wider and more spacious than before.

The transformation was made by the handy man with no tools but a hammer, saw and screw driver plus the aid of his willing helper with needle, thread and paint brush. The new curtain treatment, shown in the sketch, made the window seem wider and the strong horizontal lines of the cupboards also helped to create an illusion of width. The cupboards were eight inches deep and made of one-inch lumber with doors of plywood for the lower part.

Bloomin' Parrot Was Passing Its Lesson On

Bert had spent hours trying to teach his parrot to say "Hello, Uncle," ready for the visit of his wealthy relative.

Uncle came—the parrot was dumb. Bert seized the bird by the throat. "Say 'Hello, Uncle,' or I'll wring your bloomin' neck," he roared.

And when silence continued he twisted the bird's neck and threw it into the fowl pen.

Queer squawks drew him to the fowl pen next morning. On the ground were three dead hens. The parrot had a fourth by the neck, shaking him and shouting: "Say, 'Hello, Uncle,' or I'll wring your bloomin' neck."

Carlson Promotes Sheep Project

Arvid Carlson of Middle River well known in Holt, last week started ten boys on a sheep project whereby he presented each boy with a purebred ewe he had purchased from the Frank Hardisty ranch near Thief River Falls. These boys were organized into a 4H club and named "Carlson's 4-H Club" and will study sheep and their care, assisted by Mr. Carlson.

Mr. Carlson has always been interested in boys, and is to be commended for the fine way of helping boys to get started on such a project. It no doubt will grow into something that the whole community will benefit by in years to come, in the making of responsible youths as well as the returns from the sheep financially. This old world would be a far better place for all if more people would help at the beginning of men's lives instead of thinking of ways of punishment after life is molded.

The interior of the Marshall County State Bank has been much improved by the remodeling of the fixtures. The "Cage" has been taken out making the ffxtures more streamlined.

Those with perfect spelling papers were: Wilma Movick, Harold Ness, Joel Vattendahl, Joyce Movick, Betty Ness, Gordon McCullough, Earl Ness and Evelyn Sagstuen.

What the Quartermaster's Department is to the Army, the Stores Department is to a railroad. Some 70,000 items, ranging from tooth picks to telephone poles and coal to car wheels as pictured above, are quickly obtainable from storehouses and storage yards along the Great Northern's 8,000 miles of main and branch lines. Some 500 persons are kept busy handling these stocks of materials and supplies that inventory about $9,000,000.

Feats in Tax-Eating

Some kinds of transportation are unable to stand on their own feet. To keep them going, it has been necessary to pour billions of your tax dollars into them.

The inland waterways probably are the worst examples. For instance, the Upper Mississippi River, from Minneapolis to St. Louis.

When you total up the tax dollars that have been lavished on this "improvement," and figure interest at 4 per cent, and add the annual cost of maintaining dams, locks and channel, you discover that to provide "cheap" transportation for those who can ship by river, it is costing the taxpayers about $3.50 for every ton of freight floated.

The subsidy alone amounts to about twice what the railroads would have charged for hauling the traffic!

This particular kind of transportation—slower than any other, frozen up completely for five months of the year, and contributing no taxes at all—requires taxpayers to pay out about $10 for every $1 it saves a shipper!

Highway transportation also leans heavily on the taxes paid by the owners of homes and farms and by other general taxpayers.

All of the various kinds of special taxes imposed on motor vehicles—many as they are represented to be, and mounting to really impressive totals—have been equivalent only to about one-half of the cost of maintaining and improving highways, bridges, roads and streets.

And this leaves nothing to compare with the taxes imposed on railroad transportation for the support of schools and the various other functions of government—which take about 10 cents of every dollar the railroads collect from their patrons.

Against such competitive odds as these, your railroad fights to maintain that volume of traffic without which unit costs go up—for railway transportation is mass transportation, dependent on volume to reduce costs.

The key to the lowest possible railroad rates obviously is VOLUME—not the artificial diversion of traffic to tax-eating kinds of transportation.

4-H Club Has Large Enrollment

Marshall County 4-H club members have already made a good start on a successful progarm for 1941, says R. A. Reierson, county agent. Enrollment for the new year is progressing steadily, with more boys and girls than ever expressing interest in the opportunities offered by the 4-H program. The 4-H leaders of the county say that they believe membership for the coming year will climb well over the 1940 figure.

A. J. Kittelson, state 4-H leader, sends congratulations to the 4-H members of Marshall county on their 1940 record and urges them to make an early start on an even better program for 1941. He reports that the state 4-H enrollment for 1940 broke all records with a total of 49,258 boys and girls taking part. This was an increase of 2,692 over the preceding year. Of the 1940 membership 23,891 were boys and 25,367 girls.

Nearly all projects showed an increase in enrollment last year.

Nearly all projects showed an increase in enrollment last year. The total project enrollment was 80,990, indicating that members averaged nearly two projects each. While stressing rather than quantity of work, Kittleson commended the boys and girls on their eagerness to carry several projects in one year.

The average enrollment in the state last year was 566 members per county.

A gratifying development in the 4-H work during 1940 was the increase in the number of volunnary adult leaders who are helping county agents and club agents with the program, Kittleson said. The nnmber of local leaders increased from 3,846 in 1939 to 4,482 in 1940.

Becoming Frock Changes a Chair

By RUTH WYETH SPEARS

IF A CHAIR is all legs, angles and curves in the wrong places, a slip cover may do as much for it as a becoming frock will do for an awkward girl. The right color, a dash of style, fabric cut to bring out graceful lines and cover defects, and presto—a new personality for the ugly duckling!

That was the treatment given a set of old chairs like the one shown here. A two-piece frock was planned to repeat tones in the wall paper of the room in which the chairs were to be used. The bold stripes of the putty tan, green and wine red material gave just the right contrast with the flowered pattern on the wall. Narrow green fringe was used for edging and the sketch shows how the two pieces of the slip cover were made.

More traffic moves through the Suez canal than through the Panama canal. In 1938 the Suez carried 34,418,000 tons of cargo against the Panama canal's 26,227,268 tons.

Both are far outstripped by the Detroit river and Sault Ste. Marie canals. In 1938, for example, 66,760,000 tons moved through the Detroit river and 40,042,739 tons through Sault Ste. Marie.

We Can All Be
EXPERT BUYERS
● In bringing us buying information, as to prices that are being asked for what we intend to buy, and as to the quality we can expect, the advertising columns of this newspaper perform a worth while service which saves us many dollars a year.
● It is a good habit to form, the habit of consulting the advertisements every time we make a purchase, though we have already decided just what we want and where we are going to buy it. It gives us the most priceless feeling in the world: the feeling of being adequately prepared.
● When we go into a store, prepared beforehand with knowledge of what is offered and at what price, we go as an expert buyer, filled with self-confidence. It is a pleasant feeling to have, the feeling of adequacy. Most of the unhappiness in the world can be traced to a lack of this feeling. Thus advertising shows another of its manifold facets—shows itself as an aid toward making all our business relationships more secure and pleasant.

President's Third Inaugural Address Emphasizes Faith in U. S. Democracy; Lease-Lend Act Fight Rips Party Lines As Cabinet Supports Roosevelt's Plan

(EDITOR'S NOTE—When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of the news analyst and not necessarily of this newspaper.)
(Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

THIRD TERM:
Inaugural

After taking the oath of office as President of the United States for a precedent-breaking third term, Franklin D. Roosevelt delivered to a waiting nation a high tribute to his faith in democracy. In the inaugural address which was marked with constant references to the "spirit of America" and the "spirit of democracy" the President declared that the purpose in his next four years of office would be to: "protect and perpetuate the integrity of democracy."

"For this," he said, "we muster the spirit of America and the faith of America. We do not retreat. We are not content to stand still. As Americans, we go forward, in the service of our country, by the will of God."

While some of the pomp of other Inaugural days was missing because of the solemn pall of foreign affairs that hung over Washington, the thousands that lined Pennsylvania avenue to watch the President pass cheered loudly as they saw his party. The day was bright but a raw wind chilled the onlookers.

High point of the day's historic rituals came when the President standing below the Capitol's white dome, placed his hand upon a 200-year-old family Bible and swore for the third time to "preserve, protect and defend the Constitution." The oath was administered by Chief Justice Hughes of the Supreme court.

CHURCHILL:
Looks Ahead

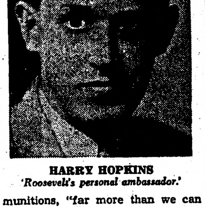
Winston Churchill, following his conferences with Harry Hopkins, Roosevelt's personal ambassador, looked into the future of the war during 1941.

He said that Britain would not find the war less terrible this year than last, would have to face continued destruction of British towns and cities without being able to make adequate reply.

He admitted Hitler's great advantage in being able to move his armies about Europe at will.

Churchill said Britain wanted no armies from overseas in 1941, but would need a constant stream of munitions, "far more than we can pay for."



HARRY HOPKINS
'Roosevelt's personal ambassador.'

Britain, however, is not in "extremis" if such aid comes, said Churchill. He said:

"We have enough men on the fighting line to hold the front line of civilization if we get American aid and American credits."

This unheralded address before a Glasgow audience was widely quoted in the lease-lend fight in Washington.

BITTERNESS:
And Unity

President Roosevelt's inauguration day came at a time when the fever of the country was away above normal in a bitter fight over the lease-lend bill—No. 1776.

Not since the Supreme court fight had the press of the nation printed stories of such vitriolic attacks by one group upon another, with counter charges and charges flinging themselves across committee tables with apparent utter abandon.

Party lines were smashed to smithereens, with Willkie claiming the Republican party would kill itself forevermore if it failed to recognize the principle of "blank-check" aid to Britain, and allow Roosevelt all the power he desires.

Republican Tinkham countered with the charge that Willkie was "incompetent" on foreign policy questions. Ambassador Kennedy was being welcomed with open arms by isolationist editors and hailed as a comrade and then said he considered the isolationists the worst "defeatists" of all.

American unity, supposedly the nation's greatest safeguard during the stress of national defense preparedness, appeared jeopardized. National leaders differed in their prescriptions for the critical moment as far as the poles.

They ranged from Carter Glass, Virginia, who wanted the U. S. to declare war at once, to the outright isolationist and non-interventionist of the type of Montana's Senator Wheeler, who opposed No. 1776 from opening word to finish.

While this was the temper of official Washington, a couple of U. S. sailors fanned the flame by tearing down a Nazi banner from a German consulate celebrating the seventieth anniversary of the founding of the German Reich. They clambered up to a ninth-story flagpole in San Francisco to cause a national crisis to become that much more critical, while thousands cheered on the sidewalk below.

CABINET:
Rolls Sleeves

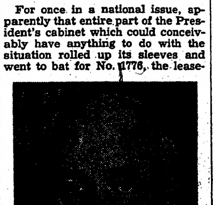
For once in a national issue, apparently that entire part of the President's cabinet which could conceivably have anything to do with the situation rolled up its sleeves and went to bat for No. 1776, the lease-lend bill, calling for all-out aid to Britain.



CORDELL HULL
With others, he 'went to bat.'

Morgenthau, treasury secretary, stepped into the arena, declaring that Britain was right then at the end of her dollar rope, and that some form of unpaid-for aid must be found if Britain was to continue to get supplies.

Hull, in a most powerful session with the committee which left the nation stunned, excoriated the totalitarians, and called for the nation to realize that the crisis was real and immediate.

Stimson, war secretary, declared in a two-day bout with the committee that he favored sending American warships "anywhere," and that Britain's complete crisis was a matter of 60 to 90 days.

Navy Secretary Knox hinted that the real crisis might be the wresting of Britain's navy from her control by the Nazis, who then would be able to establish themselves in South America.

ASIATIC:
Turmoil Grows

All Europe and all the Western hemisphere was watching the diplomatic battle between the United States and Japan before a backdrop of Asiatic warfare that was becoming daily more sanguinary and gloomy.

Even the Battle of Siam was assuming more headline proportions, with conflicting reports from French Indo-China and from Siam itself as to the success of the counter moves.

Most positive claims were made by little Siam, which claimed that important Indo-Chinese border points had fallen to their arms. And while the French did not deny these facts, they did claim that any such advances had been purchased at an enormous loss in manpower.

European diplomats of the Axis powers were striving to keep Japan and the U. S. at odds, thus hoping to cement Japan more firmly to the Axis.

U. S. DEFENSE . . . . . . in the news

⸿ Federal Loan Administrator Jones announced that defense commitments of the RFC now aggregate more than $1,000,000,000, including approximately $550,000,000 in loans for the construction of defense plants; $125,000,000 in loans to manufacturers; $260,000,000 for the purchase of strategic metals; and $140,000,000 for the acquisition of stocks of rubber.

⸿ The war department announced its plans to maintain the army at 1,418,000 enlisted men and 97,371 officers during the coming fiscal year. This would include selectees and National Guardsmen.

⸿ A long stream of American-made planes was being flown from Botwood, Newfoundland to England, the record being from "breakfast to teatime."

Tag Day

FORWARD:
Go the Greeks

As Germany still continued to withhold aid to Italy in Albania, the Greeks moved steadily forward in their effort to drive Italian forces from the western shore of the Adriatic.

A thousand "crack" troops were reported captured in one engagement, and all along the southern and eastern battle lines, the advance was steady, but slow.

Many American Greeks, most favorable to their countrymen's cause, were most cautious about the situation, however, informed sources holding that the Germans were holding back only because of the difficulties of fighting over mountainous Balkan terrain in the wintertime.

They believed that the Nazis would move in force, perhaps not through Bulgaria (which would bring Turkey, perhaps Russia into the war) but through Jugoslavia.

While admitting that many things may happen in the next two months to change the situation, these sources felt anything but confident that the Grecian forces, in the long run, could drive out the Italians.

Particularly on the northern front was the advance slow, though in central Albania Klisura had fallen and Tepelini was apparently a certainty, and Greeks in the north, it was felt, might be particularly vulnerable to a sudden attack from either the Bulgarian or the Jugoslavian border.

German aid on the Albanian front to that point, however, had confined itself to the entrance of a few Stukas and bombers from the forces quartered (reportedyl) on Italian soil.

EGYPT:
Quiets Down

In the African campaign, the Germans began the groundwork of more vigorous aid to Italy, while the land attacks of the British colonial army continued favorably, though not quite so sensationally as in previous weeks.

The fall of Tobruk, another important Mediterranean port, was regarded as a foregone conclusion, and the British armies, in command of Libya's important coastal roads, moved at will toward other objectives like Derna and Bengasi, the country's capital.

Yet there was a feeling, almost like an "aura" of standstill in the land campaign, possibly attributable to a rearrangement of forces for a new offensive.

That the Italians were anything but satisfied with the situation was the most favorable reaction evident in press dispatches. The Fascist army in Africa was regarded as having been rendered impotent, and without German aid in considerable numbers, Britain was favored to make its victory in Africa complete.

Yet events seemed to be pointing to the fact that the Nazis were planning such a move in force, and watchers anxiously awaited the unfolding of such a plan.

PLANE:
Versus Warship

Loss of the 9,000-ton cruiser Southampton in the Mediterranean after an attack entirely by Stukas finally settled the question of whether a first-class warship could withstand a first-class plane attack.

The planes won the verdict. Yet the Illustrious, 26,000-ton new British aircraft carrier was more fortunate, and escaped, though apparently with tremendous damage inflicted upon her.

The official British phrase stating that she "made port under her own power" hints that she was limping, if not crawling back to Malta.

The Illustrious carried plenty of planes, yet dispatches failed to tell why more of them did not get into the fight to protect the carrier and save the Southampton, which was sunk by her own crew to guard her secrets after she caught fire.

Official communiques about the Illustrious-Southampton incident did say that 12 Nazi bombers were shot down into the sea, but gave no figures about British planes.

Star Dust
STAGE ✩ SCREEN ✩ RADIO

By VIRGINIA VALE
(Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

J. WALTER RUBEN, Metro producer, took all of two weeks off recently; with three pictures ready to be released he'd earned it! The three are "Bad Man," with Wallace Beery, "Maisie Was a Lady," and "Flight Command," a navy picture, with Robert Taylor and the talented and beautiful Ruth Hussey.

It was a busman's holiday, in a way, as Mr. Ruben had to see all the new plays. Mrs. Ruben (Virginia Bruce) was with him, but wasn't on exhibition as so many Hollywood stars are when they visit New York.

He was enthusiastic about the cooperation given him by the navy during the making of "Flight Command," and also about Robert Taylor and the tremendous handicap he had to overcome because he was launched as a handsome and romantic lad who bowled women over on sight. When somebody mentioned the possible effect on Hollywood of this country's entering the war he predicted that men would join up in droves. Ruben himself formerly held a reserve commission in the army, and has been offered one in the navy.

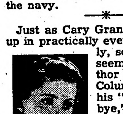
Just as Cary Grant seems to bob up in practically every picture lately, so James Hilton seems to be the author of the moment. Columbia will film his "And Now Good bye," co-starring Joan Fontaine and Brian Aherne for the first time; it is her first screen appearance since "Rebecca." And Metro is doing his "Rage in Heaven," with Ingrid Berman and Robert Montgomery. This is said to be one of the most exciting "perfect crime" stories to be brought to the screen. So Miss Berman is in for a lot of horror; she has "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde" as her next assignment, with Spencer Tracy.



Joan Fontaine

George Raft, poker-faced as usual, almost lost his aloofness when he saw "Pal Joey" recently. "Pal Joey" is a musical show with a real plot, and is currently one of the hits of the New York theatrical season. The hero is a master of ceremonies who dances superbly, and the role is right up Raft's alley.

It's said that the next day he implored Warner Brothers to buy the screen rights for him. Certainly it seems a natural. The only difficulty is that, to get by the Hays office, the plot and the hit songs would have to be discarded; in fact, there wouldn't be much left but the title.

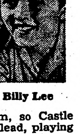
Remember Billy Lee, the appealing boy actor who scored such a hit in "The Biscuit Eater"? You'll see him in "Power Dive," an aviation picture; Jean Parker and Richard Arlen star in it, supported by Roger Pryor and Don Castle, a young Paramount contract player who's on his way up fast. Paramount gives its younger players featured roles as stepping stones to stardom, so Castle was given the second lead, playing Arlen's younger brother, in "Power Dive."



Billy Lee

Vivian Leigh and Laurence Olivier finally set off for England, and possibly for more movies; Paramount would like to have them as stars of J. M. Barrie's famous play, "The Admirable Crichton," screened many years ago with Gloria Swanson and Thomas Meighan.

John MacCormick is the quiet-voiced, dignified young man who announces the numbers each Sunday afternoon on Columbia network's "Design for Happiness" — hearing him, or even seeing him, you'd never suspect that he once was a speed demon. At 17 he designed and built a racing car that would hit better than 100 miles an hour, and was a regular participant in the dirt-track classics at Robey's Speedway near Chicago. At the same time he began studying aviation, and now holds a full transport pilot's license. Now, at 26, he's overcome his desire for speed, and is quite content to earn his living just by talking.

ODDS AND ENDS

⸿ Warner Brothers will give "Flight From Destiny," a typical Hollywood opening in Buenos Aires, with Mona Maris presiding.

⸿ Rudy Vallee makes his debut as a ventriloquist in Pathe's "Picture People."

⸿ Parents' Magazine chose Virginia Weidler as 1940's outstanding screen juvenile—Mickey Rooney was the winner for 1939.

⸿ Clocked for laughs at a "sneak" preview, Preston Sturges' latest for Paramount, "The Lady Eve," recorded an average of two laughs a minute . . . It co-stars Barbara Stanwyck and Henry Fonda.

HOUSEHOLD QUESTIONS

Grease the measuring cup before measuring syrup or molasses and it will not stick to the sides of the cup.

* * *

When two glasses become wedged together place cold water in the upper one and set lower in warm water. They will then separate with little effort.

* * *

Ivy grows best in water in the house and in a glass vase through which light may reach roots.

* * *

If rubber gloves are sprinkled on the inside with corn starch or powder they will slip on more easily.

* * *

To revive frozen house plants, set in a cold closet in which the temperature is near the freezing point and let plants thaw out slowly.

* * *

Don't buy very large or very small vegetables. There is much waste in the small ones and the large ones have lost some of their flavor.

* * *

A window box of seasoning herbs is handy for winter cooking.

* * *

For something new and different spread baked ham with a half-cup of molasses and bake 30 minutes in moderate oven. This gives a delicious flavor and a brown top. You can include a teaspoon each of cinnamon and cloves for a spicy touch.

FINES AND SALES MAKE INCREASE FOR GAME & FISH

Tightened game and fish law enforcement with increased revenue from fines and sale of seized equipment is reported in the biennial report of the Bureau of Law Enforcement, Division of Game and Fish.

Revenues from fines and equipment sales during 1940 increased $45,000 over 1940. Operating costs for 1940 were approximately $40,000 below the preceding year. There were 3,004 game law arrests in 1940 compared with 2,431 in 1939.

Seizure increased in virtually every bracket. Sample statistics: trap seizures in 1940—1,394; in 1939—267; shotgun seizures in 1940—231; in 1939—111; venison seizures in 1940—2450 pounds; in 1939—922 pounds.

A not too commonly known use for the airplane is that of crop dusting. This new but dangerous industry is making rapid progress in the great cotton growing districts of the south and provides an exciting background for the story The Air Mouse, by A. Capwell Wyckhoff in the January issue of Boys' Life.

1941 Marshall County Fair Dates Are Set

Annual Exposition To Take Place June 30, and July 1 and 2

Officers Engage Attractions At St. Paul—Entirely New Midway Shows

The 1941 Marshall County Fair will take place at the Fairgrounds in Warren on June 30, July 1 and 2.

Dates for the big annual summer exposition were selected at St. Paul last week during the sessions of the Red River Valley Better Fairs Circuit and the Minnesota Federation of County Fairs which were attended by R. B. Taralseth, president and O. M. Mattson, secretary of the local agricultural association.

The Red River circuit will operate as a four county organization in 1941, the Norman county fair at Ada dropping out. The circuit will open with the Clay County Fair at Barnesville on June 23, 24 and 25 followed by the Kittson County Fair at Hallock on June 26, 27 and 28. The Marshall County Fair will be followed by the Polk County Fair at Fertile on July 3, 4 and 5.

An entirely new midway will greet visitors to the Fair this year, the officers entering contracts with the Frisk Greater Shows for this entertainment feature. The Frisk Shows, a Minnesota concern, is being greatly enlarged for 1941 and will include at least 10 major rides, several of which have never before appeared at the Marshall County Fair and also 10 or 12 first class shows in addition to the usual number of concessions. The Frisk organization was well received at the sessions in St. Paul and were the only midway company which was able to fill its entire schedule of dates for the season at the convention, said Mr. Taralseth.

An outstanding array of attractions was also booked by the fair officials while in St. Paul through the Lew Rosenthal Amusement Enterprises of Waterloo, Iowa. This concern has supplied grandstand attractions for the Red River Valley circuit over a period of years and has proved reliable in dealings of the past, Mr. Taralseth pointed out. The circuit delegates were unanimous in their selection.

Headlining the attractions will be the Billetti troup of performers who perform on a wire 60 feet above the ground. This group ride a bicycle and do numerous stunts while on the wire without any safety devises whatsoever. Another outstanding troupe of performers are the Bonta troup of Arabians who do hand balancing acts and pyramiding on the track. As a novelty attraction, Chrisman's Goats were booked. This will be the first time in the history of the Marshall county fair that trained goats will perform. Another troupe will be the Steiner trio, who are comedians performing on triple bars while the final circus act includes Monroe and Adams, known as being among the world's foremost and topnotch jugglers.

The evening programs will center around "The Fantasies of 1941," a fast moving revue of dancing and chorus numbers. The revue will include a dozen girls in the chorus in addition to numerous specialty numbers. An eight piece band will be supplied. An elaborate stage setting is also being constructed especially for this night show.

Members of the board of directors of the association will hold a meeting at an early date at which time the contracts will be explained and plans for further afternoon attractions will be discussed. The directors are united in their efforts to make the 1941 Marshall County Fair one of the most outstanding fairs in its history and will leave nothing undone to attain this end.

Premium lists for the 1941 exposition will also be gone over in detail as soon as superintendents of the various departments have been selected.

N. W. Good Roads Group To Meet On February 13

Twenty years ago a constitutional amendment created the state trunk highway system.

The twentieth anniversary of this event will be celebrated by a conclave of highway authorities, good roads advocates and civic leaders at Radisson hotel, Minneapolis, on Feb. 13, according to E. W. Moeller, Minneapolis, executive secretary of the Northwest Good Roads association. The feature of the meeting will be a banquet at 7 p. m.

The conclave is being sponsored by the Northwest Good Roads association, the Minnesota Editorial association, the State association of County Commissioners and 25 other civic groups.

Jennings Randolph, congressman from West Virginia and highway ranking member of the House roads committee, State Highway Commissioner M. J. Hoffmann, and others will speak at the conclave, Moeller said.

All persons interested in assuring Minnesota good, safe, all-weather state and county roads are invited to attend this demonstration of public opinion for good roads. Reservations for the meeting and banquet can be made at the Northwest Good Roads association's headquarters at 335 Plymouth Building, Minneapolis.

March Of Dimes Helps State's Polio Victims

Scores of braces, thousands of dollars of physiotherapy equipment, medical care and special treatment has been provided for Minnesota infantile paralysis victims from funds raised by the Committee for the Celebration of the President's Birthday.

This is the report today of Arthur D. Reynolds, state chairman, who urged that communities thruout the state intensify their efforts in the 1941 campaign now underway. It will include the "March of Dimes," distribution of Birthday Banks, house parties, and entertainments which will wind up the campaign on January 30, the President's Birthday.

Typical of the cases aided is that of a young farmer's wife, mother of two small children, who was stricken with infantile paralysis. Heavily in debt, the family was faced with special hospitalization. The county chapter of the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis issued a check for $50 to help pay expenses. She is expected to regain the use of both her legs.

In Kandiyohi county eight persons were provided with braces, hospital care, special shoes and medical aid at a cost of more than $230. Kittson county victims were provided with special braces.

In the Twin Cities, regional and statewide institutions such as Gillette Hospital for Crippled Children, Children's Hospital, and the Shriners Hospital for Crippled Children have received several thousand dollars for physiotherapy equipment, designed for treating the after-effects of the disease.

Similar work has been done in other counties throughout the state, Mr. Reynolds said. One-half of the money goes to the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis for research into causes and remedies for the maiming disease. The other half is expended by the county chapter for local polio victims.

From 1940 Minnesota proceeds $15,051 went to local polio sufferers. The National Foundation received $14,011. Expenses totaled $1,039 for the statewide campaign—approximately a three cent stamp for every dollar contributed, Mr. Reynolds said.

THREE-CENT STRIKE

Once upon a time they had a three-cent strike in Minnesota. Evidently the three cents meant a good deal to those involved. A research worker for the state WPA Writers' Project read about it in a newspaper published in 1872: "The coopers of the barrel factory of Messrs. Doud & Son at Winona and Minneapolis are on strike because of a reduction of three cents a barrel in the price of manufacturing. Doud has telegraphed to Milwaukee for men and the men (the strikers) have declared war."

Safety is sanity in action.

Many In State Benefit From Social Security

In hundreds of Minnesota families in which the wage earner died this year, the widow and young children are now receiving monthly insurance checks from the Federal government under the new provisions of the Social Security Act which were effective January 1, 1940. In addition, approximately 3,000 wage earners (who retired from employment after attaining age 65) and wives and children of many of these retired wage earners are receiving monthly insurance checks through the Social Security Board in Minnesota.

Total payments to many of these families, according to Fred M. Wilcox, Regional Director of the Social Security Board, will, over the years, amount to between $5,000 and $10,000. The widow and children of a deceased wage earner get these monthly payments entirely as a matter of right and no "need" basis must be established before a welfare board. The National average payment to widows is more than $20 per month, while the National average payment to children of widows is about $13.25 per month. This means that a widow of a deceased wage earner, qualified under the Social Security Act, with two children receives over $46.00 a month, based on average figures.

All payments are based on the fact that the worker had been employed at jobs covered by the Social Security Act on which he had paid one per cent contribution of his wages or salary (and on which his employer also paid one per cent), and had sufficient employment and earnings to entitle his family to the insurance benefits.

Two conditions must be satisfied before these payments are made. These are (1) the worker must have been employed at work covered by the Social Security Act in at least six of the twelve calendar quarters immediately preceding his death and he must have earned and been paid at least $50 from such employment in each of those six quarters, and (2) the worker's death must have occurred after December 31, 1939.

"A 'fairly typical case' of these insurance payments," said Frank H. Daly, manager of the Bemidji field office of the Social Security Board, "would be that of a worker who had averaged $30 a week or about $130 a month on jobs covered by the law since January 1, 1937, and who died this year leaving a widow and two children of ages 5 and 8.

"In that particular case, the widow and children would receive insurance checks of $50.47 a month or a little more than $600 a year—not as charity, but as insurance payments which are theirs as a matter of right. Payments would continue at this rate for about 10 years, or until the eight-year old attained age 18. Total payments would be approximately $6,000 in those 10 years.

"After the older child is 18, the mother and younger child receive benefits of $36.05, approximately $430 a year for three more years, at which time the younger child would have attained age 18. In those three years about $1,300 additional insurance was paid, bringing payments in this hypothetical case to about $7,300.

"A monthly insurance payment check is paid to each child until he becomes 18, although payments between the ages of 16 and 18 will not be made unless the child is attending school. If the widow does not remarry, she receives her check until her youngest child is 18. When she reaches age 65 the widow again receives a monthly insurance check if she has not remarried, and these monthly payments then continue to the time of her death."

During 1940, more than 2,200 wage earners covered by the Social Security Act in Minnesota attained age 65 and retired from active employment. By so doing they began receiving their monthly insurance checks from the Federal government after presenting their claims to the field office. More than 500 wives, also 65 years of age or more, and 300 children of retired wage earners in this state, are now receiving monthly insurance checks through the Social Security Act. At present more than $58,000 a month is being paid retired wage earners, their wives, and children in Minnesota.

Farmers Are Urged To Order Phosphate Now

Nine Carloads Ordered To Date Following AAA Meetings In County

Farmers in Marshall county who are planning to purchase phosphate fertilizers under the AAA program during 1941 are urged to do so within the next two weeks, R. A. Reierson, county agent, stated yesterday following the close of 11 meetings held during the past two weeks acquainting farmers with the program.

Approximately nine carloads of phosphate fertilizer have been ordered by county farmers to date, and if others wish to take advantage of the liberal AAA program to improve soil productivities, are urged to communicate with the county committee or with Mr. Reierson as soon as possible.

The program is known as a grant of aid program which permits farmers to obtain triple superphosphate from the AAA for use on tame grasses. It is important that the orders be received within the next two weeks so that the phosphate can be shipped and distributed from central points in the county in plenty of time for spring application.

The price of the fertilizer is $40.00 per ton delivered in the county. This cost can be deducted from the 1941 conservation payment, or may be made in cash. The AAA will give credit for its use toward earning soil building allowances. Farmers may purchase only up to 70 per cent of the 1941 conservation payment. The fertilizer, under this program cannot be used for soil depleting crops, but only on tame grasses.

Tabulations are now being prepared in the county agent's office which when complete will give the amount of phosphates purchased in each township under the program. These figures will be published as soon as available.

That Nagging Backache

May Warn of Disordered Kidney Action

Modern life with its hurry and worry, irregular habits, improper eating and drinking—its risk of exposure and infection—throws heavy strain on the work of the kidneys. They are apt to become over-taxed and fail to filter excess acid and other impurities from the life-giving blood.

You may suffer nagging backache, headache, dizziness, getting up nights, leg pains, swelling—feel constantly tired, nervous, all worn out. Other signs of kidney or bladder disorder are sometimes burning, scanty or too frequent urination.

Try Doan's Pills. Doan's help the kidneys to pass off harmful excess body waste. They have had more than half a century of public approval. Are recommended by grateful users everywhere. Ask your neighbor!

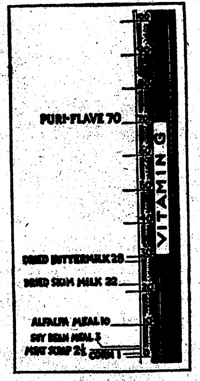
EMPHASIZES NEED OF GROWTH VITAMIN IN POULTRY FEEDS

St. Louis, Mo.—"One astonishing fact disclosed by the study of vitamins is how absolutely necessary these substances are to poultry," says H. C. Schaefer of the Purina Biological Laboratories.

"Consider for a moment that very important growth substance—Vitamin G (Flavin)," Schaefer explains. "Heuser, Wilgus and Norris of Cornell University have found that this vitamin is required by chicks in the following amounts:



Age 2 weeks—330 micrograms of Vitamin G per 100 grams of ration
Age 3 weeks—290
Age 4 weeks—240
Age 5 weeks—200
Age 6 weeks—160
Age 7 weeks—130
Age 8 weeks—100

"Bearing in mind that it takes 28,300,000 micrograms to make an ounce, a comparison of the above Vitamin G (Flavin) requirements of chicks with the below amounts of Vitamin G contained in basic feed ingredients, reveals how accurate the feed manufacturer must be in balancing his chick starting and growing rations to insure a sufficient quantity of Vitamin G for proper growth:

| Ingredient | Micrograms Per Gram |
|---|---|
| Wheat Bran | 2 |
| Soy Bean Oil Meal | 3 |
| Fish Meal | 2 to 8 |
| Meat Scrap | 0 to 5 |
| Barley | ½ |
| Oat Groats | ½ |
| Wheat Germ | 8 to 12 |
| Corn | 1 |
| Wheat—Red Dog and Mids | 2 |
| Sun Cured Alfalfa Leaf Meal | 8 to 12 |
| Dehydrated Alfalfa Leaf Meal | 15 to 20 |
| Dried Skim Milk | 22—variable |
| Dried Whey | 25—variable |
| Dried Buttermilk | 28—variable |
| PURI-FLAVE | 70 |

"So important is an adequate amount of Vitamin G to successful chick growth," says Schaefer, "that every poultry raiser can well afford to inquire of his feed dealer whether or not the starting and growing feeds he handles contain Puri-Flave, the ingredient that is two and one-half times richer in Vitamin G than any other commercial ingredient. If the answer is 'no,' then the poultry raiser should consider the Vitamin G content of the ingredients which that dealer has in his starting and growing mashes. The two tables given in this article will be found helpful in making such an investigation.

"Probably the most practical way to assure one's self that the poultry rations he buys contain sufficient Vitamin G (Flavin) is to select only chick starting and growing mashes that are made by a manufacturer who uses precise, nutritional-value measuring laboratory apparatus, who conducts numerous feeding tests, and whose integrity is well recognized. It requires knowledge and integrity to make successful starting and growing mashes."

Mrs. John P. Augustine Called

The whole community was grieveously shocked last week when they heard of the death of Mrs. John P. Augustine on Thursday afternoon. She has been ill the past year, suffering from a heart ailment which brought other complications. Before the final attack, however, she was quite well and active and she and her husband had recently returned from a visit with relatives in the southern part of the state.

Funeral services were held on Tuesday afternoon at the Nazareth Lutheran church with both the basement and church filled to capacity with friends and relatives. An amplifying system was used to permit all to hear the service. Rev. T. C. L. Hanson officiated.

Mrs Augustine was very active in the community and endeared herself to all who came in contact with her. She was especially active in all church organizations and had been an officer of the Ladies Aid for several years. Church work lay close to her heart and, as Rev. Hanson so ably brought out in his sermon, not because of fame but because of her faith in the living Christ.

There was a wealth of floral and In Memoriam offerings speaking silently of the esteem which this community held for the departed. Mrs. Alton Carlson sang a solo.

Pall bearers were: Ludvig M. Larson, W. Wendt, Wm. Holst, Wm. Mehrkens, M. Pederson, and Henry Nohre.

Mrs. Alma Anna Margaret Benitt Augustine was born on Nov. 7, 1896 of parents Mr. and Mrs. H. P. Benitt at Goodhue, Minnesota. She was baptised into the Holy Trinity on Dec. 26, 1896 by Rev. Hinderer and confirmed in the Lutheran faith on May 29, 1910 by Rev. Meyer.

On August 25, 1917, she was united in marriage to Mr. John P. Augustine with Rev. Hinnenthal officiating. Shortly after she moved with her husband to their farm east of Holt which has been her home until her demise.

She joined the Nazareth Lutheran church in 1937 on transfer from St. John's Lutheran Church at Thief River Falls.

She leaves to mourn her passing, her husband, John P., two children, Marlan and Angeline; her mother, Mrs. H. P. Benitt of Goodhue; two brothers, John of Holt and William of Hastings. Her father, one sister and one brother have preceded her in death.

She passed away at her home on January 30, 1941, at 3:30 p. m at the age of 44 years, 2 months and 23 days. Interment was made in the Ridge cemetery.

Carlson Funeral Service had charge of arrangements.

Those from a distance who were here for the funeral were Mr. and Mrs. John Augnstine, Herman Augustine and Mrs. Clarence Johnson from Red Wing; Mr. and Mrs. Charley Augustine from Lake City; Mrs. B. Dierks, Mrs. P. Nibbie, Lillian Beritt, and Mrs. Henry Hadler from Goodhue; William Benitt from Hastings. These places are all in southern Minnesota. Also Rev. and Mrs. Seebach of Mavie; Mrs. Clarence Doran from Grygla and Henry Mehrkens and son Maynard of St. Hilaire.

State And Federal Seed Laws

Every Marshall county farmer should be familiar with the state and federal seed laws so that he may get full benefit of their protection, says county agent R. A. Reirson.

Requirements of the state law are specific and can easily be checked.

The county agent suggests pasting these five points on the granery door, or putting them where can be referred to easily:

1. Look for a ladel on the container. Don't buy unlabeled seed.
2. The label should give per cent of germintion ( be sure this is high ).
3. It should give the per cent of weeds in relation to the grain.
4. It should list by name primary noxious weeds present such as field binweed ( jenny ), leafy spurge, thistles, perennial pepper grass, russian knapweed.
5. It should give name and addess of seller.

Labels ought to be kept at least a year. Marking on them the date the seed is bought and where it is used, will help in tracing the source of unclean seed.

Farmers who want to check up on questionable seed, or wish to make tests of their own seed may avail themselves of the service offered by the State Seed Laboratory, University Farm.

Mail a pint (large seed) or cup of (small seed) to the seed laboratory for analysis. The county agent's office will be glad to give assistance in providing envelopes and forwarding these samples.

Palm of Victory

The palm is a symbol of victory and was adopted by the early Christians to represent the triumph of the faithful over the enemies of the soul. It is the special badge of martyrs, and the Congregation of Rites, 1688, regarded the representation of a palm on a catacomb tomb as proof that a martyr was interred there, but this was later declared untenable. The palm tree gives shade and fruit and hence is emblematic of God's protection and grace.

SKating Show at T. R. F. Sat.

As a pleasant interlude in the midwinter season, the fourth annual ice carnival, featuring forty skaters who are members of the famed Winnipeg Winter club, will be presented Saturday afternoon and evening, Feb. 8th, in the Thief River Falls arena under the auspices of the Junior Chamber of Commerc.

Outstanding performers will supply two hours of skating thrills, including ensemble of wide variety, among them being a special flame number, waltzes solos and ballets. There also will be comedy numbers, among them amusing performance by bicyclists on ice. A feature number on the program will be provided by the Duncan- Willis pair, who will perform intricate dancing steps on skates.

The spacious arena provides ample accomodations for a large audience. The matinee peformance will start at 2:30, with the evening show set for 8 o'clock.

Approximate 2,345 men will be called from the State of Minnesota to fill the February Selective Service quota, it was announced last week by Lt. Col. J. E. Nelson, State Director of Select-Service.

Colonel Nelson emphasized the fact that this figure is un-oficial and is subject to reduction at a latter date if the army is not able to absorb these men according to present plans.

Miss Opal Werner was initiated into Lambda Phi Sigma, local honorary educational fraternity at Moorhead State Teachers, College, recently.

Entrants are selected on the basis of scholarship, particularly in education and student teaching. Miss Opal is a sophomore in the the two year elementary course. She was a honor graduate of Lincoln High school class of 1939.

A musical variety program will be given Friday evening Feb. 21, by the Holt Community Band. Watch this paper for further announcements.

Both Sides Are Heard on 'Lease-Lend' As Congress Continues Open Hearings; Reports Reach U. S. of Italian Revolts; FDR Meets British Envoy on U. S. Arrival

(EDITOR'S NOTE—When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of the news analyst and not necessarily of this newspaper.)
(Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

LEASE-LEND:
Line-Up

To the administration's lineup which included the chief cabinet members and Bullitt, Dorothy Thompson and General O'Ryan (who urged that we get in the war right away), the rebuttal forces brought several notable figures, but none who produced the sensation that did Colonel Lindbergh.

In fact, the much-heralded statement by Ambassador Kennedy fell far short of being critical enough of the administration to suit the lease-lend bill opponents, as he generally favored the plan, only thought the President's powers should be limited.

But Lindbergh minced no words, though the administration adherents fired questions at him, hoping to trap the flying colonel into some admission that he was "pro-Nazi" and "anti-British."

The closest they came was when Bloom asked him point-blank:

"Who do you hope wins the war?"

And to this Lindbergh said:

"I hope neither side wins. I am hoping for a negotiated peace."

They went back to "Lindy's" previous address, in which he had showed more marked anti-British sentiments, and all they could get was:

"I admit that if I had it to do over I would not have made that speech."

Lindbergh's plan was simple—that we drop all aid to Britain, disassociate ourselves entirely from the war, let it muddle itself out as best it could.

At the same time, he urged, let us manufacture a fleet of 20,000 planes, 10,000 on the first line and the same in reserve, and a two-ocean navy, with plenty of bases in North and South America.

CHARLES A. LINDBERGH
For a "Negotiated Peace."

Let us take our stand on the Monroe Doctrine, and make ourselves too strong to attack, entering a war immediately, however, if the Monroe Doctrine is abused.

When the anti-bill smoke blew away, Lindbergh stood as the chief witness.

BULLITT:
Then—and Now

Former French Ambassador Bullitt, in testifying before the lease-lend bill investigation of the house foreign affairs committee, told Chairman Bloom that he was in entire accord with President Roosevelt's plan for all-out aid to Britain short of war.

He used the strongest phrases, such as "this terrible, terrible emergency," and stressed the need of "buying time" for the United States to prepare.

He said that if England fell, we must be prepared to defend these shores by 1946 at least. He asserted he was of the view held by many that if England fell, the British navy also must fall, if not actually in the fall of England, then that it would be rendered useless because the Nazis would threaten the officers and crews of surviving vessels with dire reprisals against their relatives ashore.

Bullitt asserted that therefore, unless Britain were to survive, this nation would find itself with a one-ocean navy, needing two. He also asserted that during 1941, we would find the Japanese navy raised to equal force with ours.

His evidence was given extremely unusual point when Chairman Bloom introduced a letter he had written to Acting Secretary of State Moore in 1936 in which he gave Moore the inside "dope" on the French attitude toward a struggle that everyone believed inevitable.

In this letter Bullitt had expressed the belief that the French were strongly depending on promises of American aid in the form of a navy and army, and pointed out that he was just as surely promising the French that they could count on nothing of the kind.

The closing paragraphs of his letter, however, expressed the conviction that Britain, also, was counting on American help and that this would not be forthcoming.

WITNESS BULLITT
Candid camera photos of the former U. S. ambassador to France as he testified on the Lease-Lend bill.

Yet Bullitt was standing before the committee advocating a course of all-out aid to Britain, a course to which President Roosevelt was committed.

ITALY:
Germans Take Hold

Most sensational of the ever-recurring reports of serious unrest and disaffection inside Italy culminated in a dual report (emanating from a radio source in Belgrade, and confirmed by N. Y. Times) that three Italian generals had been shot by Nazi soldiers in rioting in northern Italy.

Guardedly, from the capital of Jugoslavia, came the report which tended to show that Italy, on the verge of internal collapse following the reverses in Greece and Albania, also on the African fronts, is now virtually under Nazi occupation and control.

That this long has been so was often previously hinted at, but that it was now a completed fact appeared reasonable and certain after the just-concluded conference between Mussolini and Hitler, so closely followed by the reports from Belgrade.

These showed that the civilians and soldiers of the army in northern Italy, in such centers as Milan and Turin, were practically in open revolt against continuance of the war. They were being subdued and fought in bloody street battles by Nazi troopers with the aid of Fascist blackshirts, who function in similar manner to the Nazi storm-troopers who quelled anti-Nazi fomentings in Germany some years ago.

A long-range view of the situation also compelled the belief, ever growing, that the flop of Italy as a war partner and agent in world conquest would leave Germany alone in the fight, but by no means less powerful, for German leaders, with Italian troops organized and led by Nazi-trained groups, could still conduct the Albanian and African campaigns, and certainly, it was held, not less successfully than the Italians had been doing under their own training and leadership.

PRECEDENTS:
Shatter Again

President Roosevelt, sensing a dramatic situation in the sudden and unheralded arrival of Lord and Lady Halifax on the King George V, Britain's newest battleship, right in his front yard (Annapolis), broke all precedents by auto-riding to greet him, and boarding the Potomac to make it a "water's edge" greeting.

The battlewagon was anchored off Annapolis by 3 p. m., but it was 7:10 p. m. before the lanky British ambassador, preceded by attractive Lady Halifax, descended the Potomac's gangplank and greeted newsmen with a prepared statement for their attention.

He read a good deal of this to them, while they took notes, then a voice said "The President is coming." Lord Halifax hastily stuffed his notes back into his pocket again, told the reporters carbon copies would be available to them on the dock, and joined the President.

RUMANIA:
Follows Suit

The Rumanian situation, similar to that in Italy, was quite as dramatic, and had the most unusual feature of showing the Germans as apparently sitting on the fence, prepared instantly to throw in their hand with either of the rebel factions which might get the upper hand.

Where in Italy the army leaders were apparently turning anti-Mussolini and anti-Hitler, in Rumania both factions, that led by Antonescu and that led by Sima, claimed that they bore the offical ukase of Hitler.

Sima, with his Iron Guard legionnaires, attacked Jews and looted Jewish homes in the approved Nazi fashion, but just as soon as the Antonescu forces gained the upper hand, the government leader asserted in his address to the people that he had "the favoring shadow of Der Fuehrer" hovering over him.

The Rumanian situation still bore many traces of anarchy and chaos, despite the fact that Antonescu seemed in the saddle, and one thing seemed certain, that before long Rumania, like so many other nations, would lose its identity and simply become another base for Germany to loot for supplies, another base for German troops and munitions, another link in the German chain of conquered peoples.

Sitting right in the center of the strategically important Balkans, and the only really productive territory in the whole 280,000 square miles, the importance of Rumania could not be overexaggerated in the Nazi scheme of things.

It was another important well of supplies of oil and wheat, two tremendous essentials needed by Germany in prosecution of the war.

INVASION:
Three Dates

Three sources, all of them for various reasons worth quoting, gave various versions of the Nazi plans to invade England, but all of them were agreed that a serious and desperate attempt is to be made, and probably soon:

Ronald Cross, British minister of shipping, said it would come in 60 to 90 days, and that while the British would be able, he thought, to beat it off, it would cost England about 250,000 men and maybe half of the fleet.

He stressed the need of American aid in building ships to meet the shortage that would result.

Lord Halifax also gave the 60 to 90 day time and set it as "probably in May," and also expressed the belief that England would be successful in beating back the invaders, and also urged full U. S. aid.

The third authority was a Nazi captured air pilot, who leaped from a prisoners' train into a Canadian snowbank head-first, ferried himself across the raging St. Lawrence rapids on a stolen boat, and was captured in Ogdensburg, N. Y.

The youthful pilot, Baron Von Werra, said he believed the invasion attempt would come in March, would last two weeks and would be successful. He said he was trying to escape back to Germany because he "wanted to be in on the fun."

Americana . . .

Detroit—Charles J. Kalish, 23, got a 20-week contract at $200 a week for a part in a radio show. The next day he boarded a train for Camp Custer—in an army uniform—a private.

Hollywood—The first film actor called in the draft was Paul Barrett. He was playing the part of a Nazi storm trooper in a war picture when he got his marching orders.

FARM TOPICS

ELECTRIC FENCE IS INEXPENSIVE

Low Amperage and High Voltage Advised.

By R. R. PARKS
(Extension Agricultural Engineer, University of Illinois College of Agriculture)

Electric fencing is becoming a definite part of good farm planning, but to be effective and safe, electric fences need high voltage and low amperage current.

The voltage, or "electric pressure," of the fence must be relatively high, 400 volts or more, to cause the current to discharge through the animal that makes contact with it; however, the fence charger unit must have some current limiting device or characteristic to keep the amperage low, less than 25 milli-amperes and not more than one charge per second. That charge should not be more than one-tenth second duration. A milli-ampere is a fraction of the current that goes through the ordinary small light bulb. Even 25 milli-amperes are dangerous for smaller animals or persons with heart ailments.

The reason the current should be intermittent rather than continuous is that animals coming in contact with an intermittent current will receive the shock and be able to step back before the next shock occurs. If they came in contact with continuous current they might fall on the wire and not be able to recover their footing.

Fence units are ordinarily inexpensive to operate. Most of the current which is actually used goes either through the animals or is lost through leakage owing to inadequate insulation of the live wire from the ground. Much of this loss can be eliminated and the fence made more effective by the use of properly designed porcelain or glass insulators. Many of the ordinary small spool insulators are inadequate for insulating the high-voltage fences.

There are two reasons why the electric fence may become ineffective. It may either be improperly insulated or a dry ground condition may prevent the animal from receiving enough current to be felt. In some instances a second wire has been run beneath the live wire, and "grounded" to the fence controller unit to give the animal a shock when touching the two wires. This works particularly well on hogs.

War Provides No Cure For Farmers' Problems

While the European war and the American defense program will stimulate business temporarily, decrease unemployment, and improve domestic demand for farm products, in the long run the war will only aggravate the farmer's problems, decares O. B. Jesness, chief of the division of agricultural economics at University Farm, St. Paul.

The loss of foreign markets for wheat, lard, tobacco, and some fruits cannot be offset by increased domestic demand, Dr. Jesness points out. Unless foreign markets recover, a serious agricultural surplus will remain until production can be shrunk to fit the smaller demand.

While a price boom is not in prospect at present, a long war and extensive war preparations may in time produce conditions favorable to inflation, Dr. Jesness declares. If a rise in prices occurs, it will be a good time for farmers to pay off some of the existing debts rather than to take on more obligations. An expansion of production would only make worse the depression which is sure to follow after war demands are cut off.

Electric Engine Can Handle Big Overload

Believe it or not, but a five-horsepower electric motor can develop three to four times the power of a five horsepower gas engine. However, when running at full load over a long period of time, they will both deliver the same amount of work.

The difference in the two engines arises from the fact that a gas engine has little overload capacity, while an electric engine will develop several times the rated power for short periods of time.

Machines often producing a temporary overload are ensilage cutters, wood saws, pump jacks, hay hoists and grain blowers.

America's Dairyland

Wisconsin again led the nation in cheese production last year. Preliminary reports indicate that dairy product production will be even larger than 1939 when 370,000,000 pounds of cheese were made, more than half of the nation's total production.

Factories in the state produced about 89 per cent of the brick and Munster cheese made in the nation, and 69 per cent of the limburger, 68 per cent of the Swiss, and 53 per cent of the American cheese.

Hospitality for Our Over-Night Guests

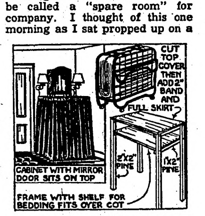
By RUTH WYETH SPEARS

SOME people have a talent for making guests comfortable and they are not always the people with big houses and what used to be called a "spare room" for company. I thought of this one morning as I sat propped up on a perfectly comfortable folding cot eating breakfast from a tray.



CUT TOP COVER THEN ADD 2" BAND AND FULL SKIRT
2"X2" PINE
1"X2" PINE
CABINET WITH MIRROR DOOR SITS ON TOP
FRAME WITH SHELF FOR BEDDING FITS OVER COT

When not in use my cot was stored in the hall under the ingenious frame sketched here. This frame had a full skirted cover of blue denim trimmed in red and blue flowered chintz. The medicine closet on top stood on feet made of spools glued in place; and was painted red inside and out. On the cabinet shelves were cleansing tissue and other useful things and the mirror door was well lighted with wall brackets connected with a floor outlet.

Every delay is too long to one who is in a hurry.—Seneca.

THE TRUTH SIMPLY TOLD

Today's popularity of Doan's Pills, after many years of worldwide use, surely must be accepted as evidence of satisfactory use. And favorable public opinion supports that of the able physicians who test the value of Doan's under exacting laboratory conditions.

These physicians, too, approve every word of advertising you read, the objective of which is only to recommend Doan's Pills as a good diuretic treatment for disorder of the kidney function and for relief of the pain and worry it causes.

If more people were aware of how the kidneys must constantly remove waste that cannot stay in the blood without injury to health, there would be better understanding of why the whole body suffers when kidneys lag, and diuretic medication would be more often employed.

Burning, scanty or too frequent urination sometimes warn of disturbed kidney function. You may suffer nagging backache, persistent headache, attacks of dizziness, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes—feel weak, nervous, all played out.

Use Doan's Pills. It is better to rely on a medicine that has won world-wide acclaim than on something less favorably known. Ask your neighbor!

We Can All Be EXPERT BUYERS

● In bringing us buying information, as to prices that are being asked for what we intend to buy, and as to the quality we can expect, the advertising columns of this newspaper perform a worth while service which saves us many dollars a year.

● It is a good habit to form, the habit of consulting the advertisements every time we make a purchase, though we have already decided just what we want and where we are going to buy it. It gives us the most priceless feeling in the world: the feeling of being adequately prepared.

● When we go into a store, prepared beforehand with knowledge of what is offered and at what price, we go as an expert buyer, filled with self-confidence. It is a pleasant feeling to have, the feeling of adequacy. Most of the unhappiness in the world can be traced to a lack of this feeling. Thus advertising shows another of its manifold facets—shows itself as an aid toward making all our business relationships more secure and pleasant.

Testify in 'Lease-Lend' Bill No. 1776

Earnestness, sincerity and patriotism are revealed in these candid camera "shots" of four national figures as they testified on the "lease-lend" bill. They are: upper left, J. P. Kennedy, retiring ambassador to Britain. Lower left: Hugh Johnson, columnist. Upper right, Norman Thomas, socialist leader, and William Knudsen, defense production chief.

Back to Texas

Former Vice President John Nance Garner packs his bags and leaves Washington for his home in Uvalde, Texas, a few hours after the inauguration of President Roosevelt and Vice President Wallace, winding up a 36-year political career in the nation's capital.

Rations for the Channel 'Watchdogs'

There is no let-down in Britain's preparations to meet invasion, if, and when, it comes. Every hour defense works about the coast of Britain are being more and more strengthened. This photo, taken somewhere in England, shows gun crews checking and storing a new supply of ammunition for the 9.2 "watchdog" in the background.

Wild West Rodeo

Expert cowpunchers will compete at Phoenix, Ariz., on February 13 to 16 in a "world's championship rodeo." Cowboys are shown matching their skills against untamed animals in bone-crushing events of last year's contest. Other rodeos will be held throughout the West and are expected to draw great crowds.

Dog Show

The Westminster dog show, largest of its kind, will be held February 11 in New York. Last year's "best dog," a cocker spaniel, is shown with its owner, H. E. Mellenthin. Above: his trophies, and Tanyah Sahib, champion afghan hound.

AAU Holds Bobsled Meet

America's foremost bobsled racers will be paced by Paul Dupree and Tuffield A. Latour, holders of the A. A. U. Junior and Senior and North American titles, (upper left) when they compete for the National A. A. U. Senior two-man one-mile championship February 9-10 at Lake Placid, N. Y. Miss Katharin Dewey (upper right) last year's victor.

Tests Coins

Under supervision of Miss Nellie Ross, director of the U. S. mint, sample coins struck during 1940 will be examined February 12 for accurate weight and fineness. Two of every 10,000 coins made are put aside for close inspection.

Neighbor Seemed to Find Memento Interesting Now!

There came a rap on the kitchen door, and Mrs. Brown opened it to admit her neighbor, in a state of great indignation.

"It's that mischievous boy of yours," cried the enraged woman, holding up a brick. "He's thrown this right through my window."

A delighted look came over Mrs. Brown's face.

"Really! How interesting!" she remarked. "I wonder if you will let me have the brick? We're keeping all the little mementoes of his youthful pranks—they'll be so interesting when Herbert grows up."

A VALENTINE BRIDGE TEA

ST. VALENTINE'S DAY refuses to be relegated to the era of lavender-and-old-lace. In spite of its heritage of lace-paper valentines packed away in scented boxes, the envelopes bearing handwriting in fine old script of another day, this day of romance and delightful surprises continues in favor with each generation.

Tea-and-Talk

Today, with the vogue for bridge teas, instead of the more elaborate bridge luncheon, Valentine's Day comes along as a particularly seasonable date for entertaining with a Valentine Bridge tea. Possibly one reason for the popularity of the bridge tea is the fact that it can include not only bridge fans of your acquaintance but also other friends who wish to come in late in the afternoon for tea-and-talk. This does not interfere with the game which can be started early in the afternoon, so that the real bridge enthusiasts have plenty of time to play, before the later arrivals.

It will give your tea a touch of days-gone-by if you make a point of sending invitations, instead of resorting to the telephone. If you can't find old-fashioned pink lacey valentines in your shops, make some by using a light cardboard stock, cutting it heart-shaped, [illegible] ing with a heart-shaped piece [illegible] ing two small pink hearts on top of the lace-paper, in the center of the valentine. Write two lines of the invitation on each heart, letting the lines read thus:

Be my Valentine guest.
Please arrive
For bridge at two,
Or tea at five.

If you would like a game for those who come a little early, but who don't play bridge, try "Sweet Scents," which is an appropriate Valentine contest to see whose nose knows. Get samples of perfume from the favorites of your various friends. Place a bit of cotton, previously dipped in the perfume or sachet in a small bottle tightly corked. Each bottle should be numbered. Let each one smell each kind and write down the fragrance which they detect, writing down also the number of the bottle. It is surprising how difficult it is to distinguish the odors after smelling a variety of them. Instead of perfumes, if you prefer, you can use spices from the pantry—clove, cinnamon, sassafras, almond extract, etc. The prize should be a small bottle of good perfume.

Here is a simple but delightful Valentine tea party menu with tested recipes:

Frozen Fruit Salad
Shrimp and Caper Sandwiches
Piquant Ham Sandwiches
Tea Candy Hearts [illegible]

The following recipes are simple to prepare and designed to serve eight persons:

Frozen Fruit Salad: Cream one package of cream cheese, add two-thirds cup mayonnaise and one cup of cream beaten, mixing until smooth. Soften one-half teaspoon gelatin in one tablespoon cold water. Add two tablespoons sugar to one cup of crushed canned pineapple, bring to boiling and pour over the gelatin mixture, stirring until dissolved. Cool. Add this to the mayonnaise and cream mixture. Then add one banana, cut in small cubes, and one-half cup of halved, canned, red pitted cherries. (Substitute maraschino cherries, if you prefer). Then add one-half cup of chopped nuts. Freeze in refrigerator trays. Serve on crisp lettuce hearts. This serves eight persons.

Shrimp and Caper Sandwiches: Drain one can of shrimp and mince finely. Add two tablespoons chopped capers, one-eighth teaspoon salt and five tablespoons Thousand Island Dressing. Spread between thinly sliced and buttered whole wheat bread.

Piquant Ham Sandwiches: Mix the contents of a small can of deviled ham, one teaspoon chopped mustard pickles, one table spoon chopped walnuts and one tablespoon mayonnaise. Spread between buttered slices of white bread.

Opportunity Knocking at Door

A Navy Recruting Party from Grand Forks, North Dakota, will visit Red Lake Falls, Minn. on Tuesday Feb. 18, 1941. and will interview all young men desiring to enlist in the United States Navy. The recruting party will be at the COMMUNITY HALL Building from 10 A. M. to 2 P.M. on the above date.

The Navy today offers young men between the ages of 17 and 31 many advantages, a few of these being a free educational system, steady employment, good pay, reenlistment bonus, opportunity to learn a trade, good wholesome food, athletics, free amusements, vacations with pay, free medical atteention, and last but not least, a pension after twenty years service.

All accepted appplicants will, within a few days, be furnished government transportation from Grand Forks to Minneapolis for their final examinations and enlistments, subsequent to their being sent to the Naval Training Station at Great Lakes, Illinois, for their six weeks miltary training defore being assigned to one of the various trade school maintained by the Navy or to one of the units of the U. S. Fleet.

Additional in Memoriam gifts have been received in memory of the late Mrs. John P. Augustine. These came in after the announcements at the funeral Tuesday of last week. They are as follows:

| | |
|---|---|
| Mrs. H. P. Benitt | $2.00 |
| Mrs. H. K. Benitt and Lillian | 1.00 |
| Mr. and Mrs. Fredrick Benitt | 1.00 |
| Mr. and Mrs. Henry Hadler | 2.00 |
| Agnes Nohre | 1.00 |
| Mr. and Mrs. Carl Olson | 1.00 |
| Mr. and Mrs. Tom Knutson | 1.00 |
| Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Benitt | 2.50 |
| Mr. and Mrs. John Augustine Sr. | 5.00 |

Besides a wealth of floral offerings, the total In Memoriam gifts amounted to $60.50.

Mr. and Mrs. Herb Johnson and Darold returned home Sunday after spending a few days at Effie, Minnesota visiting the Olaf Aakhus family.

Paul Saurdiffs place of business has been completely redecorted the last week. It makes the appearance much cleaner and brighter looking.

Shedding Needles

It is quite natural for deodar to shed its needles. Evergreens shed their needles or leaves like other plants, but they do not shed them all at one time each year. However, if tree is shedding too profusely, it would indicate that something is wrong. It may be too little water or lack of an acid fertilizer. One pound of commercial fertilizer to the inch of diameter of trunk of tree. Also add a good fistful of aluminum sulphate to each pound of fertilizer.

Attention To Rural Health

Marshall county farmers, businessmen, and others may think of national defense in local terms, according to Charley Ommodt, Farm Security Administration supervisor for these couties.

"We have a national defense problem right here in Marshall county. It is hooked up directly with adequate diets and with the general health of those who don't have enough money with which to buy sufficient proper food," Ommodt said.

He pointed that while people usually think of such problems on a national scale, perhaps because reports on such things usually come from Washington, yet the national report reflects an accumulation of conditions affecting smaller units such as counties and townships.

Milo G. Flaten, state director of Farm Security, has advised all county supevisors that the matter of rural health is to be given more attention than in the past. Mr. Flaten's information is that about one out of four army recruits is found physically unfit. This bad situation extends also to the civilian population and exists in rural as well as city areas; and in both places much of the trouble can be traced to faulty diets. Good health of civilians is nearly as important, from a national defense angle, as good health in the army, he indicated.

The "live at home" emphasis of Farm Security is bringing about correction of these poor health conditions of many rural families, Mr. Flaten reports. Mr. Ommodt said he is sure it is helping in Marshall county. Some families unable in recent years to produde of otherwise obtain for their own use the necessary fruits, vegetables, and meats, as well as adequate dairy and poultry foods are now doing so in accordance with FSA farm and home management plans. These plans are worked out in connection with rehabilitation loans, Mr. Ommodt said, and the beneficial effect on family health is easily apparent.

Card of Thanks

We desire to express our heart felt thanks to all who assisted us during the illness and death of our dear husband and father.

Especially do we thank Rev. Jacobson, Rev. Anderson and Rev. Berge, for their comforting words; to those who sang; and to those who gave the beautiful floral offerings and memorials. We also wish to thank the ladies who served lunch after the services.

Mrs. August Johnson and family
Mrs. Paul Hoffman
Mrs. Arthur Mitchell.

Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Fricker left Sunday for Chisholm where they were called because of the illness of Mrs. Fricker's father. Mr. Fricker expected to go from there to Minneapolis to attend the banker,s meeting.

Send us the news.

Burning Winds

At certain periods of the year on the hot plains and deserts of South America, South Africa and Asia Minor, the bitter and burning winds are so nerve-rending that persons who commit crimes, even murder, during these gales are seldom punished.

Cleaning Varnished Surfaces

A mixture of half each of kerosene and vinegar is good for cleaning varnished surfaces. Apply with cloth, over mop or broom, allow to stand 10 to 15 minutes, then polish with a soft cloth.

Notice of Annual Creamery Meeting

The Annual Stockholders Meeting of The Farmers' Cooperative Creamery Company, Holt, Minnesota, will be held Thursday, February 20, 1941, at 1 o'clock p. m. in the Community Hall.

The meeting is called for the purpose of electing two members of the Board of Directors, hearing reports, and transacting such other business as may properly come before said meeting.

The directors whose terms expire are Carl Johnson and and O. H. Nohre.

Local churches will serve lunch.

Skid Season Is Now At Height

The great skid season will be at its height in many parts of the country in February and March, warns the National Conservation Bureau, accident prevention division of the Assn. of Casualty and Surety Executives.

"This," say the safety men, "calls for extraordinary precautions by motorists to avoid getting into one of those uncontrollable spins which account for so many accidents on America's streets and highways."

Skids occur at all seasons of the year but they are paticulaly prealant when road surfaces are icy, accident prevention specialisti point out. Except in the southern warm belt, ice coated streets are especially frequent February and at least the first half of March. Snow or rain followed by sudden cold blows quickly turns highways and streets into veritable death traps.

Since few drivers knows how to keep a car out of a sudden skid, or to minimize the consequences of a skid once it has started, National Conservation Bureau specialists offer the following recommendations:

To prevet a skid before it starts:

1. When starting car on a slippery surface put gear in second; engage clutch very slowly and carefully.

2. When stopping on slippery surface, leave clutch engaged and apply brakes lightly and intermittently.

3. Approach curves slowly. If there is still a tendency to skid accelerate very slightly as you round the curve.

To come out of a skid:

1. Steer in the direction of the skid.

2. If the readway ahead is clear, accelerate slightly and steadily.

3. Do not apply brakes unless a collision is inevitable. Braking almost invariably increases the skid. However, there are times when braking may prevent a crash into a vehicle immediately ahead.

Card of Thanks

We hereby wish to express our heartfelt thanks to all that assisted us during the illness and death of our beloved wife and mother.

Also for the beautiful floral and memorial offering. Mrs. A. W. Carlson for her solo. Circle 4 for the fine lunch. Especially do we wish to thank Rev. Hanson for the words of comfort given us in our hour of sorrow.

May God Bless You All.

Owner of a Beverly Hills furniture store was tearfully sympathetic when a feminine customer purchased two bargain lamps and then explained she was forced to rush from England leaving all her belongings behind. The store owner decided to do something further. She offered the customer a 10 per cent discount "special for war refugees" and then asked her name. The customer was Barbara Hutton.

Pioneer Called To Rest

Funeral rites were held Saturday for August Johnson, who passed away at his home at Thief River Falls on Tuesday, Feb. 4 He was one of the pioneers of Marshall county, and knew well the hardships and joys of the early settlers, who did so much for the development of this country.

Rev. Jacobsen conducted the services at 11 A. M. from the Larson chapel, while Rev. S. T. Anderson read the sermon at the Moose River Church at Gatzke at 2:00. Interment was made in the church cemetery.

Mr. Johnson was born on April 4, 1870 in Smaaland, Sweden and lived there until the age of 22 when he moved to Norway. There he was married to Pauline Johnson. In 1910 they moved to America. In 1911 they settled on a homestead near Gatzke where they resided until moving to Thief River Falls in 1938.

Surviving him are his widow, five sons, Ed, John, Oscar, Johannes and Carl all of Thief River Falls; three daughters, Mrs. Paul Hoffman of Holt; Mrs. Arthur Mitchell of Duluth, and Mrs Fritz Systad of Brooklyn, N. Y.; five brothers, Carl, Otto, Gustav, Adolph and Axel of Sweden. One son, one daughter, one brother and one sister preceded him in death.

Several Holt people attended the funeral.

Honorary pallbearers were John Moberg, Ole Maakstad, John Henning, Ingvald Dahl, Delmar Hagen and Ernest Nelson. Active pall bearers were: C. Norbeck, J. S. Anderson, Knute Nelson, Hilmer Moberg, Anton Sagstuen, Ludvig Sagstuen.

Here's a Design for Rag Rug Enthusiasts

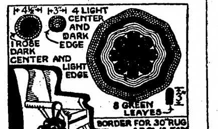
By RUTH WYETH SPEARS

MAKE one rag rug and you will find yourself a member of an enthusiastic clan that gloats over any soft piece of old woolen goods and who count the days until they fall heir to a dress of a particular color that they want. These enthusiasts bleach materials to tone them down; they brighten others with dye; they antique some with tea and they have a wonderful time.

The sketch gives all the directions you will need to copy this fascinating braided rag rug with a flower medallion in the center. Or you may make two of the medallions, sew them together and add a braided handle for a knitting bag. Braid the fabric strips tightly and keep the work flat while you sew the circles for the roses and the loops for leaves; then sew them together. Use carpet thread double for this and for sewing the braided rows around the edge of the rug.



* * *

NOTE: There are two other fascinating braided rug designs in Mrs. Spears' Book 3 and the new Book 6 contains directions for a hooked, a braided and a crocheted rag rug. "The Rug That Grew Up With the Family" is in Book 3. Each book has 32 pages of pictures and directions. Send order to:

In Pinch, Baggageman Was True to His Trade

Along the dark and lonely road plodded a solitary figure. Behind him lurked three shadows, which chose their moment and sprang upon the unwary one.

Three to one! The odds were heavily against the victim, but did he falter? Not on your life! One by one his assailants were sent flying, to lie bruised and stunned on the cold, wet ground.

Up dashed a policeman. He surveyed the wreckage, and then turned to the hero, who was coolly lighting a cigarette.

"Jujitsu?" he asked admiringly.

"No," was the reply. "Railway baggageman."

WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS By Edward C. Wayne

Threat of German Invasion of Britain And Congressional Lease-Lend Debate Present Grim Picture of War Situation; Italians Continue to Fall Back in Africa

(EDITOR'S NOTE—When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of the news analyst and not necessarily of this newspaper.)

(Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

CRISIS:
For Lease-Lend

The real crisis in the lease-lend legislation found a well-defined public response to the antagonistic efforts of the isolationists and the non-interventionists.

The result? The administration called big guns to the support of the measure, and predicted its passage during the week beginning March 3. The schedule called for unlimited debate in house and senate, but there were many indications that this limitation would bring forth tremendous opposition in Republican floor circles and in senate committees as well.

Generally speaking, the public attitude, as disclosed in numbers of polls of sentiment conducted by newspapers throughout the country, seemed to be that the all-out aid to Britain principle was favorably received.

The public, on the other hand, seemed to feel that there was at least a reasonable doubt whether the President should be given as much and as drastic power as the original lease-lend draft indicated.

This was reflected even in the sponsorship of the measure, because Representative Bloom (N. Y.) who was chairman of the house foreign relations committee, scarcely put up any opposition against three or four major amendments, limiting the time for which the presidential powers would be granted, declaring in principle against convoys and other items in which the opposition found fault with the bill.

This showed the administration forces to be in the unusual position of fostering legislation of which they do not approve themselves, at least in part.

Either that, or they were "shooting for the moon," and willing to give and take in order to reach their main objective—of the passage of a bill which would in effect repeal the Johnson act forbidding loans to belligerents who had not paid their World war debts.

REP. SOL BLOOM
Scarcely any opposition.

INVASION:
Threat Near

As the lease-lend argument reached its zenith, predictions that England was nearing the critical period in the Battle For Britain were legion. Lindbergh had set the most gloomy picture, figuring that Britain could never withstand the onslaught.

One could figure which side of the lease-lend battle the predictor was on by the darkness of the picture he painted. Knox and Stimson predicted a crisis, but gave few details and little soothsaying as to what would be the outcome.

But those opposed to t lease-lend proposal varied widely in what they saw in the future's crystal ball. Most gloomy of all was Von Wiegand, who in a dispatch date-lined Shanghai, purported to report what German and Japanese authorities believed was about to occur.

Six weeks would tell the tale, said Von Wiegand. He envisioned 247 divisions of trained men, 15,000 parachutists, a score of tank divisions, descending on England, and Hearst papers printed an "artist's conception" of the "Blitz on Britain," which would tear London into shreds—long before American aid could swing the balance.

Every authority who discussed blitzkrieg on London talked of poison gas—new forms, lethal gas for which "no gas mask" has yet been provided.

LABOR:
Raises Its Head

The domestic labor situation became steadily worse during the weeks that the lease-lend bill was "on the tapis" in Washington.

Perhaps the Allis-Chalmers strike was the most serious, affecting as it did not only that single industry, but as Allis-Chalmers was making parts, it meant a serious hold-up all along the line, particularly in planes and tanks.

But the most striking labor development of the week was the statement issued by Henry Ford through one of his industrial lieutenants. Ford authorized this man to say in his name that the Ford enterprises would never yield to the government demand that defense products be manufactured under union labor conditions.

SIDNEY HILLMAN
Mr. Ford refused to 'sit down' with him.

Ford's rejoinder was that he would never knuckle down to labor's demands, that instead he would lease his industries to the government at one dollar a year, and let the government run them.

Ford agreed in principle with the necessity of America arming in its own defense, and with the principle that in defense work patriotism was the primary urge, and profits had no part.

He therefore offered to give up his industries, and let the government operate them under a non-profit arrangement, producing whatever vital materials were wished for.

The only government answer to this was to refuse Ford a contract on which his organization had been low bidder.

Basis of the dispute had been Ford's refusal to sit down with Sidney Hillman, labor chief of the national defense, and to find some plan by which the Ford interests could operate in the defense scheme—settling the labor difficulty once and for all.

Labor, as personified by the C.I.O, had set as its major objective for 1941 the organization of the Ford plants.

This objective seemed to mean only one thing—abandonment of the Ford plants—of their complete divorcement from national defense contracts.

ITALY:
In Africa

The African campaign of the British forces against the troops of Mussolini continued to be a victorious one, despite the fact that it was reported that the Nazi air force had given considerable aid to the Fascist legions.

In succession one port on the Mediterranean after another had fallen to General Wavell's men—Salum, Bardia, Tobruk and Derna. In Libya, none but Bengasi remained to be conquered.

All the cities previously captured, some of them cities only by courtesy, for they were only a few huts huddled together and a small group of embryo wharfs, had been on flat land. In passing Derna the British were moving on the capital of Cyrenaica, and were stepping into a more mountainous territory, the so-called Green Mountains of Libya, where a force of 50,000 Italians were determined to hold out to the last.

The same combination of land attack, backed up by air force and navy shelling from naval craft at sea, was being used by General Wavell in the final phase of the Libyan campaign. There was every belief that with the capture of Bengasi the campaign would end.

WEYGAND:
Finally Unmasks

GEN. MAXIME WEYGAND
He'll 'track-along.'

Gen. Maxime Weygand went to Africa an enigma.

Much of this enigmatic quality was dispelled when he issued a statement in which he definitely refused to "throw in" his hand with DeGaulle, but said he would "track along" with the Petain regime in Vichy.

Yet it was not quite so clear as all that, although it was extremely important that Weygand should have finally unmasked himself.

For the Vichy situation was still, in its way, considerable of a mystery.

The Nazis were reportedly much disgusted with Vichy's failure to back up the Laval ideology, particularly in regard to the use of Tunisia for Nazi bases of operations in Africa.

So the stand, announced by Weygand, that he would continue to support the Vichy regime, could or could not be taken to mean that Weygand had fallen in with the Nazi party line.

Yet Great Britain had hoped that Weygand, in going to Africa, was "escaping" from Vichy, and would turn in the direction of DeGaulle.

That hope, at least, was completely dispelled by Weygand's statement, which unhesitatingly lined him up with the Vichy government. What that government would turn out to be, remained undecided.

G. O. P.:
On Two Sides

Oddest picture of the lease-lend bill fight in America was the sudden junket of Wendell L. Willkie, late G. O. P. standard-bearer, to England to take "his personal look" at the state of Britain.

Willkie's departure was speeded by a paternal pat on the head from his erstwhile opponent, President Roosevelt, and a note written by hand to Winston Churchill.

Willkie flew to Europe. He was greeted practically with presidential honor in the Azores, where the natives could not be convinced they were not greeting the President himself.

He landed at Lisbon, was ferried hastily to England, dined with Churchill, lunched with royalty, and hobnobbed with the plain and fancy in London.

He underwent air-raids, habitually roamed about the streets without helmet or gas-mask, (on three occasions he had to be handed both with a gentle reprimand from some higher-up), and generally inspected the state of Britain as he, Willkie, had intended to.

America was treated to the strange spectacle of the Democratic administration "needing" the testimony of the ex-Republican standard-bearer to help it over the hill on the lease-lend bill.

The whole situation was something of a shock to Republican leaders of the fight against the measure, especially when Hull let it be known that Willkie's sudden return had been demanded by Senator George, head of foreign relations in the senate, who wanted the Indianian to testify before the committee hearings on the bill.

In fact, the shock was so drastic in some quarters that Republican groups in various centers held meetings to "decide Willkie's status" in the party, with the evident intimation that if he should prove too good a friend to the administration, he might be "read out of the party."

JAPAN:
The 'Peacemaker'

With dramatic suddenness, peace came in the Indo-China war with the Siamese.

Japan, it developed, had been "invited" by the belligerents, when a strong Nipponese fleet had appeared in the offing, to sit down and settle the hostilities.

This settlement, as might have been expected, was that Thailand should keep what it had taken from Indo-China, together with some additional cessions of territory.

Keenest observers of the far-eastern scene foresaw in the Japanese intervention only one outcome.

They believed that Japan would become so dominant in southeastern Asia that Thailand and Indo-China would soon be mere puppet states similar to Manchukuo.

The state department in Washington viewed these events with a serious eye, seeing in them assured proof that sooner or later there would have to be a showdown of power in the Pacific between the United States and Japan.

HIGHLIGHTS . . in the week's news

SEWING CIRCLE

IF YOU'RE taking a midwinter vacation, you'll certainly want this tailored frock, in white sharkskin or luscious pastel flannel. And it's an excellent style to fit into town wardrobes, too—made up in bright flat crepe or a tailored print. Design No. 8814 is one of those slick, immaculately tailored styles that form the backbone of a busy woman's wardrobe the year-round. And the lines of stitching, the turned-down corners of the pockets, make this an unusually interesting version of your favorite button-front classic.

There's mighty little to the making, as you can see. Just a few long seams, a few simple darts, to create a tailored effect of faultless chic. And this is a style becoming alike to misses and to women. Sew chart included.

Density of Fogs

In 1921, the British weather bureau set up standards for describing fogs which fall into more or less definite categories. They range from "very dense," in which objects become invisible at 27 yards distance in the daytime, through "thick," "rather thick," "fog," "moderate," "mist or thick haze," and "slight mist or haze"—in which objects are visible at a distance of 7½ miles.

"WON'T YOU BE MY - - - - ?"

TWO hearts, one dart—they have come down the ages to say Won't-You-Be-My-Valentine and to remind us that in an age which bristles with dollar-signs and flaunts sophistication, romance is not dead.

Then why not give a Valentine party with all of the fol-de-rols which are supposed to be old-fashioned and which your guests will gloat over? Herald the event with a lacey valentine. If your shops are too modern to carry them, make the invitations by pasting paper lace on the edge of a red cardboard heart with two hearts and a dart drawn in the center. Place your initials in one heart and the initial of your guest in the other heart, and write underneath.

Guess Who Is Inviting You
To a Valentine Supper

For a contest game, give the guests bows and arrows to shoot at a heart target. The winner should be presented with a heart-shaped box filled with heart-shaped nut cookies, and each loser who failed to hit the target might be consoled by being allowed to kiss one person for each arrow that went astray.

A Supper That's a "Honey"

Set the Valentine supper table with a lace cloth, red candles and a red heart-shaped box of candy at each place. And here is the supper menu with tested recipes:

*Chicken and Ham Shortcake
Cranberry Jelly cut in Heart Shapes
Grapefruit Cream Sherbet with Cherry Garnish
Cocoanut Kisses Coffee
Fairy Gingerbread*

Chicken and Ham Shortcake: Make a white sauce of two tablespoons butter, two tablespoons flour, one and one-half cups milk and the contents of two 6-ounce cans of evaporated milk. Add one slightly-beaten egg yolk. Then add the contents of one 12-ounce can of chicken which has been diced, one cup of diced cold boiled ham and two tablespoons diced pimiento. Add two tablespoons cooking sherry and season to taste with salt and pepper. Serve between and on top of split, hot baking powder biscuits which have been buttered. This serves eight persons.

Grapefruit Cream Sherbet: Soften one tablespoon gelatin in two tablespoons of cold water. Dissolve in grapefruit juice from a No. 2 can which has been brought to boiling. Add one and one-third cups sugar. Dissolve and cool. Add three tablespoons lemon juice and one well-beaten egg. Pour the cold fruit juice mixture slowly into one cup cream and freeze at once in refrigerator trays or in an ice-cream freezer. Stir often if you use the refrigerator. Serve garnished with chopped cherries. This serves eight persons.

Hearts and Foods

Bleeding Hearts: Cut bread in one-fourth inch slices, and then cut in heart shapes. Season cream cheese well, and moisten with cream if necessary. Sauté bread cut in heart shapes in butter until golden brown. Spread with cheese. Pipe around the edge with finely minced pimiento, and diagonally through the center place a long narrow strip of pimiento to represent an arrow or dart. Serve as an appetizer.

Cupid Parfait: Boil one-half cup sugar and one-half cup water until it threads, or about five minutes. Pour slowly over the stiffly beaten whites of two eggs, beating constantly. Add one cup of heavy cream, beaten, and the contents of one No. 2 can of strawberries, well mashed, and one teaspoon almond extract. Pack in small heart-shaped molds with airtight covers, and then pack in ice and salt for three to four hours.

Pioneer School Notes

Sunnyside School News

We had our valentine party last week. We invited our mothers and the little children in the district. First we had a short program and played games. Before we went home we were served a very delicious lunch which our mothers had brought.

Our visitors were: Mesdames Art Conklin, Leonard Swan, John Behitt, Ben Garthus, Leonard Larson, Alfred Larson, Norman Peterson, Bertil Ness, Edgar Wegge. Also Joe Garthus, Wayne Wegge, Joan and Carol Ness and Hazel Lunke.

We are very sorry Margie and Eleanor Ueland have been sick. We hope they will be better soon.

We are now making art scrapbooks now. Only our best art work is put in them. Last week we tried potato printing silhouette of Washington. Ruggles has finished has reader and is getting a new one.

Interesting Meeting of Mens Club

Supt. K. L. Halvorson of Middle River was the main speaker at the Men's Club on Tuesday evening. He gave a very interesting talk on " Your Taxes and You " stressing the direct and indirect taxes paid by each one. Although the crowd was not large, the subject was discussed by many long after the address. Lunch was served by Sam Lorentson, Marvin Sandberg and Oscar Fosholm. The next meeting will be held on March 11th.

The Great Northern Railway has a crew of repairmen working here going over the local depot completely.

Miss Alice Ohlquist of Newfolden was a Holt visitor Saturday. She is operating a beauty parlor at Newfolden and stated that she had a number of customers from Holt and vicinity.

First in War and in Peace

GEORGE WASHINGTON

Has Had Many Dear Ones In Army

Sending sons and loved ones to war is an old story for Mrs. L. E. Bates of Marshall, Minn., who Saturday celebrated her 94th birthday at the home of a daughter in Fargo. Another daughter, Mrs. William Paskewitz, lives at Holt. Mrs. Bates' first husband was killed during the Civil War, and in 1869 she married Mr. Bates, also a veteran of the Civil War, as were three of her brothers.

A son, Charles, saw action in the Phillippines during the Spanish-American war. A grandson, Homer L. Paskewitz, of Thief River Falls, fought in France with the American expeditionary forces in the World War, and two great-grandsons, twin sons of Homer Paskewitz, are now in the aviation service.

Eleven of Mrs. Bates' 13 great granbsons are registered in the present selective service draft. She also has a great great granddaughter, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Knutson of Grygla.

Special Lenten Servics

Special mid-week services will be held during Lent in Nazareth Lutheran church again this year. This series will start with the first meeting on Thursday evening, Feb. 27th. at 8:00 p. m. The theme will center around the "Characters or Places in the Passion Story of Jesus Christ". These services have been well attended in the past years and it is expected that they will be well attended this year also. These services will be held every Thursday evening and will close with Holy Communion on Maunday Thursday. All are encouraged to attend.

Crop And Feed Loans Available

Mr. O. T Johnson, the local County Field Supervisor for the Emergency Crop and Feed Loan Office of the Farm Credit Administration, announces crop and feed loans are now available to all farmers in the State of Minnesota. Mr. Johnson has just returned to his territory after having spent a few days at his Regional Office in Saint Paul where he attended a joint meeting of all Field Supervisors in the States of North Dakoa, Minnesota, Wisconsin, and Michigan. According to Mr. Johnson, the Saint Paul Office of the Emergency Crop and Feed Loan Office of the Farm Credit Administration serves these four states and has made more than 390,000 loans farmers since crop and feed loans were authorized.

Mr. Johnson is quoted as saying that crop and feed loans for 1941 are now available to all eligible farmers in Marshall Co. and that applications for these loans can now be made at Co. Agent's Office in Warren. As in former years, funds appropriated for the Emergency Crop and Feed Loan Office of the Farm Credit Administration are available for crop production purposes, including the purchase of seed, gas and oil, feed for workstock, and minor repairs to machinery, to all farmers who cannot obtain a loan from other sources and who meet the requirements by giving a first lien on the 1941 crops financed. Loans are also available for the purchace or production of feed for livestock. As security for this type of loan, a first lien on the livestock to be fed is required

In order to speed up the taking of applications, Mr. Johnson requests that farmers go to Co. Agent's Office prepared to give the folloing information:

1. Description of land farmed.
2. Proposed 1941 planting program.

1941 crop and feed loans will bear interest at the rate of 4 % from the date of disbursement.

Pioneer School Notes

Those with perfect papers in spelling were Betty Harold and Earl Ness, Vernice Smith, Joyce Movick and Evelyn Sagstuen.

The pupils are studying "God Bless America" in music class.

The pupils gave a short program on Valentine's day. Visitors at our party were: Mrs. R. Smith, Mrs. M. Smith, Mrs. J. Ness, Mrs. H. Johnson, Mrs. A. Movick, Mrs. E. Hanson and Delores. McCullough.

Winners in our Valentine contest were Donald Skjerping and Gordon McCullough.

Our postmistress and her two helpers for our Valentines were Yvonne Johnson, Wilma Movick and Evelyn Sagstuen.

The third graders are learning multiplication tables. They have mastered them through the tables of sevens and are at present working with the eights.

Leaves For Alaska

Robert Sandberg, son of Mrs. C. L. Sandberg, left Sunday for Anchorage, Alaska where he will look for work. His brothers Walter and Clarence and sister Doris and families also live in Alaska. He boarded the Empire Builder train at Grand Forks which takes him to Seattle, where he begins the ocean trip to Alaska. The following accompanied him to Grand Forks: Mrs. C. L. Sandberg, Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Sandberg and daughters, and Duane Larson.

On Monday evening Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Sandberg gave a farewell party for Robert and the following were present: Orlin and Rubin Ness, Myron and Murnet Johnson, Myron Gunheim, Kenneth Larson, Russel Sanoden, Howard Lorentson, Raymond Sagstuen, Allen Linstad and Milton Hanson. Mrs. Sandberg served a delicious lunch and the honor guest received some gifts.

STAGE ☆ SCREEN ☆ RADIO

By VIRGINIA VALE
(Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

IN "BILLY THE KID," Robert Taylor's new starring vehicle for Metro, there is one scene in which all of the characters have to check their six shooters with the sheriff before attending a mass meeting. Each morning on the set, the assistant director takes up a collection from all the extras and bit players. He "frisks" them—not of their guns, but of their wrist watches.

Here's the reason. The other day Robert Taylor was playing a scene in the back room of a saloon. Also in the scene were Gene Lockhart, as the bad man, Lon Chaney Jr., Norman Willis, Grant Withers and several western type extras. With hand on the door about to exit, Taylor spoke his line—"What time is it?"

Lockhart was about to make the reply called for by the script when Director David Miller called "Cut!" One of the bearded extras had forgotten where he was and automatically pulled back his cuff to look at his very modern wrist watch.

—*—

Ona Munson

"Gone With the Wind" started Ona Munson on a career of what she's afraid will develop into type casting, the bugaboo of actors. She did "Belle Watling" in "Gone — etc." and then played another "shady lady" in the picture "Wagons Westward." Now she's set for the same sort of part in "Lady From New Orleans," a story laid in the period of the Louisiana Purchase. It's a relief to her to do those "Big Town" broadcasts with Edward G. Robinson.

—*—

Shirley Temple

Naturally, everything possible is going to be done to put Shirley Temple back at the top of the star list when she goes to work for Metro. The wealthy little miss (she has more than a million in the bank) will appear in the screen version of "Panama Hattie," a successful musical now running on the New York stage, with Ann Sothern, Eleanor Powell, Connie Russell and Red Skelton. Shirley starts her "comeback" at a salary of $2,500 a week.

—*—

"The Lady Eve" gives Henry Fonda an opportunity for which he's grateful—the chance to wear his own clothes on the screen for the first time in three years, and to have his hair cut. The only other time it's been trimmed during those three years was when he got that prison hair-cut for "The Grapes of Wrath." His roles have called for straight drama with a minimum of comedy, and the only time he kissed a heroine on the screen was in "Chad Hanna."

In "The Lady Eve" he wears 14 different outfits—everything from full dress to silk pajamas—and indulges in some bits of torrid love-making. As for Barbara Stanwyck, she wears the longest bob ever worn by a star—16 inches; she's been growing it for the last five years, ever since "Stella Dallas." She wears 25 stunning costumes, and indulges in slapstick comedy, in her role of a woman card-shark.

Horace Heidt has finally escaped his reputation as "the man with the trained dog." Before his orchestra hit the national networks and Heidt's name became a synonym for scintillating syncopation, Horace had a vaudeville act featuring Lobo, an amazing dog. Booking agents always thought of Lobo when Heidt's name was mentioned. But that's all in the past now, since the smashing success of his "Pot O'Gold" program.

Overcoming unfortunate breaks was nothing new to the band-leader. At the University of California he was well on his way to football fame as a tackle when he found himself on the bottom of a scrimmage pile-up, and was carried off the field with a broken back. Lying in the hospital, he decided to organize an undergraduate orchestra to help pay his way through college. The orchestra gave him conducting experience which helped him on his way to the top ranks of radio band-leading.

—*—

ODDS AND ENDS—Warner Bros. releases "Christmas Under Fire," another Quentin Reynolds commentary short; the first was "London Can Take It" . . . The proceeds go to British war relief; "London" raised $26,400 for the fund . . . "The Trial of Mary Dugan" has become "The Trial of Mary Andrews"—but it probably will be the same old trial . . . Rudy Vallee's sponsor bought the rights to Rudy's new theme song, "I'll Give You a Smile for a Smile" and presented them to Vallee as a gift . . . Gene Autry, of the movies and radio's "Melody Ranch," will appear in a rodeo act at the Fort Worth stock show in March.

Opposite Poles

The North and South poles not only vary in geology, temperature and plant and animal life, but also in the number of hours of daylight and darkness in every year. At the North pole, the sun is above the horizon 186 days and below it 179 days, thus making the "day" seven days longer than the "night." At the South pole, the opposite exists, "night" being seven days longer than "day."

Star Gazers

No one sees what is before his feet: we all gaze at the stars.—Cicero.

"MIDDLE-AGE" WOMEN [38-52 yrs. old] HEED THIS ADVICE!!
Thousands of women are helped to go smiling thru distress peculiar to women—caused by this period in life—with Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound—famous for over 60 years. Pinkham's Compound—made especially for women—has helped thousands to relieve such weak, nervous feelings due to this functional disturbance. Try it!

We Can All Be EXPERT BUYERS
● In bringing us buying information, as to prices that are being asked for what we intend to buy, and as to the quality we can expect, the advertising columns of this newspaper perform a worth while service which saves us many dollars a year.
● It is a good habit to form, the habit of consulting the advertisements every time we make a purchase, though we have already decided just what we want and where we are going to buy it. It gives us the most priceless feeling in the world: the feeling of being adequately prepared.
● When we go into a store, prepared beforehand with knowledge of what is offered and at what price, we go as an expert buyer, filled with self-confidence. It is a pleasant feeling to have, the feeling of adequacy. Most of the unhappiness in the world can be traced to a lack of this feeling. Thus advertising shows another of its manifold facets—shows itself as an aid toward making all our business relationships more secure and pleasant.

Delinquent Tax List

For Marshall County, Minnesota, for the Year 1939.

State of Minnesota,
County of Marshall—ss.

District Court,
14th Judicial District.

THE STATE OF MINNESOTA, to all persons, companies, or corporations who have or claim any estate, right, title, or interest in, claim to, or lien upon, any of the several parcels of land described in the list hereto attached:

The list of taxes and penalties on real property for the County of Marshall remaining delinquent on the first Monday in January, 1941, has been filed in the office of the Clerk of District Court of said County, of which that hereto attached is a copy.

THEREFORE, you, and each of you, are hereby required to file in the office of said Clerk, on or before the twentieth day after the publication of this notice and list, your answer in writing, setting forth any objection or defense you may have to the taxes, or any part thereof, upon any parcel of the land described in said list, in, to, or on which you have or claim any estate, right, title, interest, claim or lien, and, in default thereof, judgment will be entered against such parcel of land for the taxes of said list appearing against it, and for all penalties, interest, and costs.

Dated February 3rd, 1941.
A. C. SWANDBY,
Clerk of the District Court, of Marshall County, Minnesota.
(District Court Seal)

STATE OF MINNESOTA,
County of Marshall—ss.

Levi G. Johnson, being by me duly sworn deposes and says that he is the County Auditor of Marshall County, Minnesota, that he has examined the foregoing list and knows the contents thereof, and that the same is a correct list of taxes delinquent for the years 1938 and 1939 as appearing upon Real Estate in said County, except such parcels as have heretofore been bid in by the State and not assigned by it or redeemed.

LEVI G. JOHNSON,
County Auditor.

(Auditor's Seal)

Subscribed and sworn to before me this 27th day of January, 1941.

A. C. SWANDBY,
Clerk of District Court,
Marshall County, Minnesota.
(Clerk of Dist. Court Seal)

Filed January 27, 1941.

A. C. SWANDBY,
Clerk of District Court,
Marshall County, Minnesota.

NOTE: Parties remitting for the above taxes will please add 30 cents to each item to cover cost of printing and Clerk of Court's Fees.

OFFICIAL PROCEEDINGS OF THE COUNTY BOARD, MARSHALL COUNTY, MINNESOTA

Adjourned meeting held February 4th, 5th, and 6th, 1941.

Meeting was called to order by the Chairman at 10 o'clock A. M. All members were present.

Minutes of January 7th, 8th, and 9th, 1941, were read and approved.

Delegations from several Townships appeared before the County Board asking the County to maintain certain Township roads.

Petitions for County Aid Roads were presented by Marsh Grove and New Maine Townships. No action was taken and said petitions were placed on file.

A bill presented by Lyle Wood in the amount of $183.00 for balance on contract to draw new County atlas was audited and allowed in that amount.

Meeting was adjourned to Wednesday, February 5th, 1941 at 9 o'clock A. M.

Bond of Oliver M. Mattson and Edgar N. Mattson, publishers of the Warren Sheaf, was approved and placed on file.

The following applications were recommended to the Minnesota Department of Taxation: Adolph Gulbranson for reduction in the assessed valuation of personal property for the year 1940 in the Township of Oak Park thereby reducing the assessed value from $236.00 to $151.00; Myron C. Haroldson for reduction in the assessed valuation to correct error for the year 1940 in the Township of Moose River thereby reducing the assessed value from $133.00 to $43.00; and Francis Pagnac for refund of taxes in amount of $12.94 paid in excess of corrected amount for the years 1937, 1938 and 1939 on the SE¼ of Section 10-156-49. An application presented by Geo. E. Day was referred to the assessor.

Commissioner J. J. Pagnac offered the following resolution and moved its adoption:

BE IT RESOLVED, That Dr. H. M. Blegen, Dr. C. H. Holmstrom, and Dr. John D. Barker, heretofore appointed as physicians of the poor in Marshall County shall receive jointly the sum of Two Hundred Twenty-five Dollars ($225.00) for such services.

Commissioner Ole Bergman seconded the motion and the same being put, was duly carried.

Commissioner J. J. Pagnac offered the following resolution and moved its adoption:

WHEREAS, The Board of County Commissioners of Marshall County are of the opinion that the Surplus Marketing Administration, Food and Cotton Stamp Plan would be to the best interest of Marshall County.

BE IT RESOLVED, By the Board of County Commissioners of Marshall County, Minnesota, that we hereby petition Paul H. Jordan, Regional Director, Surplus Marketing Administration, Milwaukee, Wisconsin, to conduct an immediate survey of Marshall County for the purpose of establishing said County as a Stamp Plan area.

BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED, That the County Auditor be and hereby is authorized to establish the necessary revolving fund for that purpose in a sum not to exceed $12,000.00 and that money for the same be appropriated from the Welfare Fund.

Commissioner Ole Bergman seconded the motion and the same being put, was duly carried.

Commissioner Gunsten Skomedal offered the following resolution and moved its adoption:

WHEREAS, the sum of $448.50 has been expended in the construction of a bridge over County Ditch No. 2.

AND WHEREAS, Said amount has been paid from the County Road and Bridge Fund.

NOW, THEREFORE, Be it resolved that the amount of $448.50 be transferred from County Ditch No. 2 Fund to the Road and Bridge Fund.

Commissioner Arthur Anderson seconded the motion and the same being put, was duly carried.

Commissioner J. J. Pagnac offered the following resolution and moved its adoption:

Be it resolved that the Summary Statements, filing numbers, No. 429 and 430 for the expenditures of the County Highways be hereby approved and the Superintendent of Highways is hereby authorized to issue time checks in the following amounts: C. A. R. Maintenance $762.85 and S. A. R. Maintenance $1,595.00.

Commissioner Ole Bergman seconded the motion and the same being put, was duly carried.

Thrill Program Is Booked For '41 County Fair

Suicide Club, Jimmy Lynch Death Dodgers and Auto Polo Scheduled

The most outstanding afternoon program ever arranged for the Marshall County Fair was booked for the 1941 exposition in Crookston Thursday afternoon at a special meeting of the Red River Valley Better Fairs Circuit when contracts were signed with the Winkley Thrill Productions to present the afternoon programs in the circuit.

The Winkley organization will present the Suicide Club of Thrill drivers one afternoon, with a second afternoon being taken up by the National Auto Polo Championships. The closing afternoon will feature Jimmy Lynch's Death Dodgers. Automobiles and motorcycles will be used for the thrill days while specially constructed cars will be used for the Auto Polo games.

"The Marshall County Agricultural association is going to a great amount of expense in bringing this top notch organization of performers to the 1941 Fair which will be held on June 30, July 1 and 2," said R. B. Taralseth, president of the association, "but the association is always on the lookout to bring to the people of the Northwest, only the best entertainment possible to secure. We are confident that this attraction alone will bring record crowds to the 1941 exposition, as it is a state fair attraction and has been booked for 1941 at many of the major state fairs in the middle west."

Attending the Circuit meetings in Crookston from Marshall county were Mr. Taralseth, Clayton Olson, Argyle, William Forsberg, R. E. Melbo and O. M. Mattson.

16 Volunteers To Enter U. S. Service Feb. 19

Largest Group Will Leave County For One Year Militray Training

County Legion Council Arranges Farewell Dinner—Trost Is Speaker

Marshall county's largest group to enter U. S. Military Training under Selective Service numbering 16 volunteers, will report in Warren next Wednesday at 3:00 p. m. and will leave that night for Fort Snelling where they will be inducted into the service on Feb. 20, according to Geo. T. Sands, chief clerk.

The volunteers will attend a dinner at Hotel Warren Wednesday evening when the Marshall County Council of the American Legion will arrange a farewell party and program with J. W. Sands, county commander, in charge.

County Attorney A. A. Trost will be the speaker at the program following the dinner which will be served at 7:00 p. m. Several musical numbers will also be arranged for the event. Members of the Local Selective Service Board, Legionnaires, parents and numerous others are expected to attend the gathering.

Among the group of volunteers leaving Warren next Wednesday are three men from Warren, three from Stephen, two from Middle River, two from Newfolden, and one each from Goodridge, Holt, Grygla, Oslo, Alvarado, and Gatzke.

The list of volunteers follows:

Freeman Olson, Warren.
Raymond Przybylski, Warren.
Roy A. Olson, Warren.
Halvor M. Torgrimson, Goodridge.
Russel C. Holm, Middle River.
John E. Fowler, Stephen
Frederick G. Klema, Newfolden.
Lester T. Peterson, Stephen.
Lester Rodahl, Holt.
George E. Nelson, Newfolden.
Carl Holte, Grygla.
Orville H. Thibodo, Stephen.
Wallace Enge, Oslo.
Chester Pietrzak, Alvarado.
Alfred O. Knutson, Middle River.
Charles O. Lamb, Gatzke.

Because one or more of the men named above may not be inducted at the induction station by the armed forces, the following named men may be required as replacements:

Oscar Wettestad, Middle River.
John Ranum, Newfolden.

Violators of the Selective Training and Service Act who repent may be paroled from prison to serve their 12 months of training, Lt. Colonel J. E. Nelson, State Director of Selective Service for Minnesota, announced today.

An executive order recently signed by President Roosevelt provides that the Attorney General of the United States, on the recommendation of the Director of Selective Service, may parole men between the ages of 21 and 36 years who have been convicted of violating the act. They must agree to serve their 12 months of training and if they fail to fulfill that obligation their paroles will be automatically revoked. Similarly persons convicted of aiding or abetting violators of the Selective Service Act may be paroled under terms and conditions specified by the Attorney General.

Colonel Nelson said the initiative for paroles must be a request from the convicted person directed to the Department of Justice at Washington, D. C., through the regular channels and procedure prescribed by the Attorney General of the United States.

Parole recommendations by the Director of Selective Service, under the order, may concern only those men coming within the age limit specified in the act, which are 21 to 36 years. The order also specifies that the Director must specify the status in which the parolee is to be placed: (1) Induction into the armed forces; (2) Induction into the military forces but only for noncombatant service; (3) assignment to work of national importance under civilian direction; (4) Assignment to some special service of those special cases which do not come under any of the first three recommendations.

That Space Between The Built-In Closets

By RUTH WYETH SPEARS

WHAT could be a greater luxury than two extra closets in your bedroom! That is exactly what a young friend of mine thought. But, when they were built in, she was painfully conscious of their angles and the room seemed much narrower. This sketch shows you how the feeling of width was restored and the angles were made to melt away.

A wallpaper border all the way around the room helped to soften down the angles of the closets, also added an exciting color note to the plain painted walls. The chest of drawers in the upper sketch was moved to another part of the room, and the long spacious dressing table was built into the space between the closets. The top of the table and stool and the frame of the mirror were enameled porcelain blue which was one of the colors in the wallpaper border. Dotted swiss skirts were fastened on the inside of the finishing boards across the front of the table and around the stool with snap fastener tape—one side tacked to the wood and the other sewn to the skirt tops.

Help Them Cleanse the Blood of Harmful Body Waste

Your kidneys are constantly filtering waste matter from the blood stream. But kidneys sometimes lag in their work—do not act as Nature intended—fail to remove impurities that, if retained, may poison the system and upset the whole body machinery.

Symptoms may be nagging backache, persistent headache, attacks of dizziness, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes—a feeling of nervous anxiety and loss of pep and strength.

Other signs of kidney or bladder disorder are sometimes burning, scanty or too frequent urination.

WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS — By Edward C. Wayne

Churchill Asks U. S. for 'Tools, Not Men,' To Aid Britain in Defeating Dictators; Lease-Lend Measure Passed by House; England-Rumania Split Diplomatic Ties

(EDITOR'S NOTE—When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of the news analyst and not necessarily of this newspaper.)
(Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

WANTED:
Tools—Not Men

Great Britain can "finish the job" (of defeating the dictators) if the United States will maintain a supply of the necessary "tools," said Winston Churchill, British prime minister, in a world-wide radio broadcast. He expressed the opinion that American troops would not be needed to insure a victory over the Axis powers.

"But we do need most urgently an immense and continuous supply of war materials . . . and we need to bring them here," continued the British statesman. Then he warned of Hitler's effort to prey upon shipping and coupled this with another warning that the long-predicted German invasion of the British isles might be near.

He spoke of the war soon entering "upon a phase of greater violence," and stressed the possibility of a Nazi thrust in the Balkans.

The British victories in Africa and the shelling of the Italian port of Genoa by the British fleet came in for their share of praise in the prime minister's remarks.

RUMANIAN:
Break

Day after Churchill's address came word from Bucharest that the British minister there had informed Rumanian Premier Ion Antonescu that Great Britain was breaking diplomatic relations with that country. Britain has been threatening to do this ever since last fall, when Rumania allowed hundreds of thousands of German troops to enter the country. This is usually the last step before an outright declaration of war.

LEND:
Spend and Spend

The rhyming trio of words describing the British Aid bill, lend, spend, send, reached their first climax when the house passed the measure with a majority of 95 votes and after several amendments, most of them with administration approval, had been placed in the measure.

There was, after all, little curtailment of the President's "all-out" powers in the final form of the measure as the house passed it.

A ceiling of $1,300,000,000 was placed above the bill, but it was made plain that if this is not enough, all congress need do is raise the ceiling.

The time limit placed on the bill ostensibly was two years, but as a matter of fact, it carried on to 1946, through a provision that contracts made on or before July, 1943, could be carried on, but not after July, 1946.

The President is ordered to keep records of what is lent, spent and sent in the way of aid to warring democracies, particularly, Britain, and must report each 90 days, but there is a special provision that the President may withhold details provided he thinks it in the best public interest to do so.

The Gallup poll found 54 per cent of the people in favor of the bill, 15 per cent in favor with reservations largely covered by the amendments, 22 per cent only, positively against it.

Alf Landon, 1936 G. O. P. Presidential nominee, is pictured as he told members of the Senate Foreign Relations committee they should do nothing that would "trick" this nation into war. In general his testimony favored aid to Britain, but opposed the present Lease-Lend bill.

In general, the bill went to the senate little changed from its original ideas but with certain safeguards which the congress felt public clamor demanded. That these safeguards did not hamstring the measure seemed quite positive.

SENATE:
Warming Up

Many were the signs that the eventual action in the senate will be far more exciting than the brief passage-at-arms which took place in the lower house.

Just as Lindbergh had been the chief anti-administration testifier before the house committee, so he was before the senate foreign relations group.

Yet his statement before the latter seemed much better prepared, much more restrained, better thought out than his previous two expositions of his premise that "Britain can't win, therefore America shouldn't stick her neck out."

There was little doubt in administration circles that the bill would pass senate as well as house, and create in this nation a huge arsenal for Britain. But indications were that there would be a bitter fight before all was over.

FRANCE:
At Crossroads

Most sensational crisis of recent months confronted France, with Laval the big issue.

The crisis was brought to a head when Germany, after Laval's ouster from the Petain Vichy regime, demanded his return to power as a price for continued German-French collaboration.

PIERRE LAVAL
"The Big Issue.

What the German ultimatum was had not been published, but it obviously included a virtual abdication of Petain from power, with Laval to be given practically dictatorial powers, with Petain in a puppet position of authority.

To this Petain evidently had countered with a proposition which retained him as chief of state, with Laval in charge of domestic problems and Admiral Darlan in charge of the French navy and foreign affairs.

The issue, at least to most observers, was a renewal of Germany's anxiety to get hold of two things—the French fleet, and a base for naval and air operations in Africa from which to bolster Mussolini's beaten legions.

Darlan and Petain took a firm stand that neither of these German objectives would be granted, not in answer to German demands, but in press statements and in messages to Admiral Leahy, American ambassador who had just arrived on the Vichy scene.

The issue became critical when Laval summarily refused to accept the posts offered him, flatly throwing down the gauntlet, and as Laval was ostensibly backed up to the full by the German reich, it became a simple question of whether French-German collaboration would end, and that Free France would be on the spot, or whether the fleet and the African base would be surrendered as a sad aftermath of unsuccessful war with Germany.

None knew what the outcome would be, but it seemed certain that if France agreed to surrender the fleet, or made a move to do so, it would be the signal for further outbreaks of British naval action against the war vessels of her erstwhile war partner.

What would happen should Petain stand firm, not even the wildest speculation could reveal.

Moscow—Russians have branded as "hysteria" a story said to have emanated from Mexico that the Soviets are planning to invade Alaska. The story was that when Britain is knocked out of the war, Russia and the Axis will collaborate in attacks on North and South America, the Soviets going after Alaska and the Axis after South America and Central America.

Vichy—A broadcast report that Petain and Darlan had fled from Free France to Africa proved false. British and French sources traced the story to the German Transocean News Service.

Hollywood—Hedy Lamarr, a native of Vienna, wants her screen name made her legal name. She was christened Hedwige Eva Maria Kiesler, and was born Nov. 9, 1914.

Mary Was Looking for Another Way Out!

The housewife was showing her new maid through the upstairs rooms. Finally, they came to a staircase leading down.

"Now, Mary," said the housewife, stepping on to the landing, "when you wish to pass down to the garden, go down this way."

At that moment she slipped, and with a great bumping noise she was precipitated to the bottom.

"Good gracious, mum!" gasped the maid, "Are ye hurt?"

"No; it's nothing," replied the dishevelled mistress as she arose.

"Then ye've got down it fine, mum!" declared the girl. "But if that's the way I've got to go down, the job's too strenuous for me!"

THE CHERRY CLIMAX COMES IN FEBRUARY

CHERRIES are eaten all year round in this country, including February, but the peak of their consumption probably comes in this famous month not only because it is the month of George Washington's birthday and we are reminded of the story of his truthfulness about the cherry tree, but because "red" is a pretty color to put in party foods for St. Valentine's Day and Lincoln's birthday. A National Cherry Week is held annually, from February fifteenth to February twenty-second, this year, at a time when housewives are interested, too, in putting some fruit into the diet to offset the effects of the necessarily heavier winter foods.

A Thrift Opportunity

With the current sales of canned cherries it is a good time for the thrifty housewife to stock up on a variety of them. There are two principal types of canned cherries—sweet and sour. There are both black and white sweet cherries. Sour cherries are red. The most abundant black sweet cherries are the Bing and Windsor, and the most famous white ones are the Royal Annes. Sour cherries are usually either Richmond or Montmorency. Sweet cherries are canned unpitted. Sour cherries are always canned with the pits removed.

This is a good season, too, to check up on your cherry recipes, and make sure they include some of the best ways of serving these fruits. The sweet cherries are delicious and decorative for use in salads, and the sour are grand for making cherry puddings and also for serving with meats when their tart flavor is needed.

Here are two new cherry recipes which you will be glad to add to your repertoire:

Baked Cherry Pudding: Cream together four tablespoons butter and one cup sugar, add three-fourths cup of milk alternately with the following sifted dry ingredients: one and one-half cups flour, two teaspoons of baking powder and one-fourth teaspoon salt. Pour into a buttered baking dish. Meanwhile boil together for five minutes the contents of one No. 2 can of pitted red cherries, one-half cup sugar and two teaspoons grated orange rind. Pour this on top of the batter, and bake for about thirty minutes in a medium oven—350 degrees. The dough will rise to the top, the cherries and syrup sink to the bottom forming a sort of sauce. Turn out upside down and serve warm with plenty of cream. This serves eight persons.

Cherry Queen of Puddings: Pour two cups of hot milk over one cup of dry bread crumbs which are fairly fine. Add one-half cup of sugar and two tablespoons butter. Let soak for five minutes. Then add the lightly-beaten yolks of three eggs, and pour into a buttered pudding dish. Bake in a slow oven—275 to 300 degrees—for from forty to fifty minutes, or until a knife, inserted, comes out clean. Meanwhile cook the contents of one No. 2 can of pitted red cherries with three-fourths cup of sugar until the syrup is thick, then cool slightly. When the pudding is done, spread this cherry mixture on top, cover with a meringue made of three egg whites and six tablespoons of sugar. Return to the oven for about fifteen minutes or until the meringue is firm and a delicate brown. Serve cold. This serves eight persons.*

The DOCTOR

"Taken in moderation, beer not only is harmless but healthful," says Dr. William Gerry Morgan, Past President of the American Medical Association, and many other prominent physicians throughout the country. They regard beer as a food, wholesome and nutritious, as well as a healthful, stimulating beverage designed to promote true temperance through moderation."

The WORKER

"I and 35,000 other workers are employed in the Beer Industry here in Minnesota. Our pay envelopes help support nearly 100,000, including dependents, and make the cash register ring for the butcher, the baker, and home town merchants everywhere."

The FARMER

"We farmers sell $3,500,000 worth of our produce each year to Minnesota Brewers. It has helped to solve our farm surplus problem, by providing a steady market for our grain, and fair prices."

The TAXPAYER

"My individual taxes would be higher if the Minnesota Brewers did not pay a share of the cost of State government. Approximately $2,000,000 in taxes on beer alone goes to the State of Minnesota each year, plus county and municipal license fees, real estate property and income taxes."

Hoover Presents New Plans to Save Hungry in Europe

Asks British and Germans to Try Soup Kitchens in Belgium as Military Test

Chicago—(Special) New plans to save the inhabitants of the occupied democracies in Europe from starvation were presented by former President Hoover at a mass meeting, held in the Opera House Auditorium here last Sunday night.

In expressing his appreciation to the two thousand public bodies who have supported this movement to aid these unfortunates, and the sixty thousand who have written letters of approval, Mr. Hoover explained the purpose of the Committee was to expose to the world the facts of the food situation and to raise a voice in behalf of those tens of millions of innocent men, women, and children, now suffering from want of nourishment.

Speaking as Honorary Chairman of the Committee on Food for the Small Democracies, he made public the proposals submitted to the British and German governments a few weeks ago, to establish Soup Kitchens in Belgium as an initial experiment to test out whether these people can be saved without military advantage to either side.

There is nothing new in this war "March of Hunger," Mr. Hoover told his audience. The consequences of great wars are always famine and pestilence. The World War of twenty-five years ago brought hunger to three hundred million people. In the present conflict it is coming faster and with more violence. Today nearly three hundred million people are on rations more drastic, except in Germany and Great Britain, than at the end of the third year in the last war. In this creeping famine the most immediate danger and greatest suffering is among the seventy million people in the democracies which have been overrun by the German armies.

Two weeks ago the Committee's American experts in Belgium reported that within a month the city and town population consisting of over eight million people would be without food unless supplies were brought in somewhere, somehow. Reports from Holland, Norway, Central Poland and free France, indicate an extreme food shortage, and Finland and Spain present a serious problem.

NEW PROPOSALS

In presenting the new proposals, Mr. Hoover said, "You are aware that this Committee has made proposals to the belligerent governments that completely organized food control should be set up for the peoples on the lines of the last war. Those proposals would have given time to organize prevention. They are the ultimate necessity. But a distracted world is slow to believe, and we were reluctantly compelled to conclude that it must be confronted with ghastly reality before action could be hoped for. That ghastly reality has arrived in Belgium. Furthermore, while I do not agree to the grounds for the rejection of our previous proposals, yet if these people are to be saved, we must seek to meet those objections by proving our case in action.

"Therefore a few weeks ago, we laid before the British and German Governments the following suggestions:

"First: That we make an initial experiment in Belgium to test out whether these people can be saved without military advantage to either side.

"Second: That this test comprise feeding only through soup kitchens, where the people come to get their food and thus there can be no question of feeding Germans.

"Third: That at the beginning we provide for one million adults and two million children; the adults to receive half a pound of bread and an allowance of soup, the children to receive special food in addition, including preserved milk. This would require about 50,000 tons a month, of which about one-half would be breadstuffs and one-half meats, fats, and food for children.

"Fourth: That the German Governments agree there is to be no requisition of native food.

"Fifth: Both Governments to give Relief ships immunity from attack.

"Sixth: The whole to be under the supervision and checks of some neutral body.

"It is my belief that the Germans should cooperate to secure some breadstuffs from continental sources. But for meats, fats, and food for children there are no sources of supply on the Continent. That must come from overseas,—and that requires cooperation from the British to pass the blockade.

"If we can make this experiment work in Belgium then such a plan can be extended to the other democracies. It is primarily devoted to saving the unemployed destitute and the children.

"These Governments have this plan under consideration."

Mr. Hoover was of the opinion that the relief of these countries would not prejudice the British and would be of no gain to the Germans.

The countries benefited are not seeking charity, and would defray all expenses. The amount exported from America would simply use our surplus food.

"To those who say it cannot be done," said Mr. Hoover, "the reply is simple—at least let us try it and if we fail that ends our effort. To those who say, the Germans, even if they made such agreements, would yet violate them there is also a complete answer. If such a thing should occur, then we have failed and we quit."

Plan Your Windbreaks Now

Almost every neighborhood in Marshall county has one or more farms on which a vigorous young windbreak is now growing. These point the way, declares County Agent R. A. Rierson, for the many farmsteads totally without tree plantings of a protective nature and those where additional rows of tree are needed to make old groves or partially completed shelterbelts really successful.

Moisture conditions this spring are excellent for tree planting. Sturdy young trees set out early will get off to a good start and grow rapidly throughout the spring and summer, according to Clemens Kaufman, assistant extension forester at the University Farm.

Time and labor necessary for planting can be reduced by early soil preparation. Land in fallow should be worked down and packed. Stubble land should plowed deep and harrowed properly and packed in the same manner as land prepared for any grain crop. Planting on soddy land can be done most successfully if the ground is plowed and worked for one year. Sod can be prepared in one year, however, if it is disked three or four times, then plowed about eight inches deep and disked several more times.

Where stumps or rocks obstruct use of the, scalps can be made by removing the sod and roots from an area about two feet sq. The young trees may then be planted in these prepared plots.

Much of the planting stock seeded can be secured without cost. Cottowoods and willows can be grown successfully from cuttings of one to two year old wood 10 to 15 inches long and ½ to 1½ inches in diameter. Seedling ash and elm can often be found in old groves.

Early, careful planning and prompt spring action will be repaid by increased comfort and convenience in a few short years

Suggestion For Violations

There is one way in which traffic violations might be cut in two and Minnesota highways made twice as safe. Enact a law that would take up the auto license plate, at the time of arrest, on each traffic violation. If the arrest resulted in conviction, the driver would have to buy new license plates before he could again operate his car. If he were not convicted, the court would order the old plates restored. In case of conviction, the offender should be required to satisfactorily pass a quiz on highway traffic rules before the new plates were issued.

RULE PAPER IN 1" SQUARES THEN DRAW DESIGN OVER SQUARES CUT OUT AND TRACE ON BURLAP 8"
15"
25"X40"

HALF the fun of hooking rugs is in making your own designs. All you have to do is to mark the pattern on burlap with a wax crayon and then go over it with a warm iron to set it. Simple flowers are easy to draw and in the olden days real leaves were used for patterns. Scroll designs combined with flowers are popular now for use with Eighteenth century furniture. The scrolls of the handsome rug shown here were hooked in gold color outlined in brown. The edge medium blue; the center darker blue and the flowers in tones of red and deep rose with leaves in two tones of green.

This diagram shows you how to make a scroll pattern that you may use in different ways. Just rule a piece of paper in one-inch squares and then follow the diagram outlining the scroll so that its lines cross the squares exactly as they do here. Now, cut the scroll out and trace around it on the burlap repeating it at each corner; then fill in the flowers.

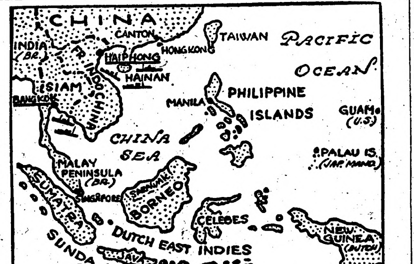
Britain Mines Singapore Sea Lanes As Tension Is Increased in Far East; Turkish-Bulgarian Nonaggression Pact Adds to Puzzling Line-Up in Balkans

(EDITOR'S NOTE—When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of the news analyst and not necessarily of this newspaper.)

(Released by Western Newspaper Union.)



This map shows where the lightning is expected to strike in the Far East. All indications point to an early attempt by Japan to extend her "New Order" in Asia to the south. Britain reports that she has mined approaches to her great naval base, Singapore, which is the main obstacle in the path of Japanese expansion. Biggest question marks now are: (1) Can Japan successfully attack Singapore? (2) Can the U. S. stand by while the Japanese spread south?

FAR EAST:

Pressure

Japan, under terrific pressure from the Axis, moved her fleet down toward the South Pacific and made strong demands for privileges of exploitation of territory on the Dutch East Indies.

Four powers, Australia, Britain, The Netherlands and the United States, simultaneously put the pressure on Japan, and there was little indication which way the "cat would jump" whether Japan would be propelled into open war on the Axis side or would back down precipitately.

Britain warned Japan that her moves against the Dutch East Indies would be considered in the light of a warlike act.

Australia echoed this, and held a special secret cabinet meeting to discuss defensive action against Japan.

The Netherlands government, in London, ordered all ships in East Indian waters or neighborhoods to put at once into neutral ports, a usual prelude to warfare.

The United States issued to all Americans in China and Japan a third and peremptory warning to leave immediately.

Quick was the response from Japan, but once again the response showed the nation is divided, and there were reports that there were so many Axis agents in positions of power in Tokyo that the Japanese government was in reality little more than a puppet.

The first evidence that the pressure from the four powers was taking effect came from official Japanese sources, in the form of a statement that the fleet movements had only been to keep order in Thailand-Indo-Chinese territory, and that no warlike measures against the South Pacific were intended.

But the very next day, after President Roosevelt had had a long, personal and serious talk with Ambassador Nomura, the only announcement from which was that he had stressed the necessity of friendly relations, one Japanese newspaper printed an editorial comment that Nomura was "confronted with an impossible task."

On this fire the Italian and German papers heaped oil, one Rome dispatch saying that American activities in the Pacific were definitely threatening to Japan and could only result in war.

The "activities" referred to were contracts awarded for the fortification of Pacific bases, more than $4,700,000 alone to be spent at Guam, a base at which the Japansese have been looking sideways for a long time.

But if these "activities" were threatening, the Axis powers had something new to get excited about when Great Britain announced that she had mined the sea lanes in the vicinity of Singapore, her important oriental naval base. While the brief government notice to mariners giving the boundaries of the mined areas gave no explanation as to why the move was made, it was generally believed that the British feared a Japanese thrust in Asia so timed as to create diversion while Italy and Germany harassed Great Britain with some new activity elsewhere.

HEADLINES

. . . in the news

Rome—All newspaper men representing foreign papers are now forbidden to leave Rome.

St. John's, N. F.—Old Glory now flies over the soil of Newfoundland for the first time in history. The flag has been raised at Argentia, on the defense base leased to the U. S. while the garrison stood at salute.

WAR:

Balkan Crisis

Moving of 400,000 to 600,000 Nazi troops into Rumania and according to uncomfirmable reports, many thousands into Bulgaria brought matters in the Balkans to a terrific pressure crisis.

Little Bulgaria was merely a pawn in the war game, not one authority believing for a moment that she could or would make any substantial effort to halt what looked like an obvious move on the part of Germany to send an overpowering blow against Greece.

That the British success in Africa and the Greek success in Albania was to receive an answer from Hitler seemed certain. That answer began not only to take form but to assume critical proportions.

Britons Move Out

First definite action-move was the removal of all British diplomats from Rumania. This was closely followed by a statement from official British quarters that Rumanian trade would be barred.

This seemed a last forerunner to a bombing of Rumanian oil fields and Germany's troops and communications, in other words, to the entry into the war terrain of Rumanian lands, although the country and government were technically out.

The next definite steps were taken by Russia and Turkey. The Soviet, which had been viewing askance the movements by the Nazi hordes into Rumania and toward the mouth of the Danube, moved its fleet into waters from which action in that quarter might be taken, either as an ally or an enemy of Turkey.

Turkey Takes Stand

Meanwhile the Turks took their stand, concentrating what military power they had as near the Bulgarian frontier as possible. In the same "movement" they announced their intention not to sit "passively by" and let Germany move troops into Bulgaria and thence against Salonika.

But then came an announcement that a Bulgarian-Turkish non-aggression pact had been signed which would indicate that the Turks were avoiding any chance of breaking the peace with the Axis powers.

The Greeks were holding the Italians either at a standstill or were moving them backward steadily as this series of startling and critical events took place.

The British at the same time were not idle, but boldly sailed their naval vessels into action in the Mediterranean and Adriatic seas, shelled northwestern Italian ports, and dropped parachutists (the first they had used in the war) into southern Italy for the purpose of cutting water supplies and communications.

With regard to the success or failure of this effort, only the conflicting reports coming from Italy could tell, as the British were silent. The first Italian report was that all the parachutists had been captured before they could do serious damage.

Later, however, an unexplained dispatch stated that Italy had halted all rail traffic to and from the affected area. This was taken in some quarters to mean that some of the British air soldiers had succeeded in cutting the railway lines.

Treated as Soldiers

Italian sources said that as the British parachute-men were clad in regular uniforms, they would be treated as prisoners of war and not as spies.

British sources, though they admitted the raid had been made, declined any details. Speculative dispatches from London, however, recalled that Germany and Soviet Russia had pioneered in this type of attack, and hinted that the British airmen sought to break the 152-mile long Apulian aqueduct.

'1776' in 1941

BATTLE OF BRITAIN:

West Front

Whether the British believed that Germany was "feinting" in the Middle East and the Balkans or not, no stone was being left unturned by the RAF to attempt to assume mastery of the air on the western front.

A long succession of raids was carried out on channel or "invasion" ports, growing in intensity, while the Nazi raids were becoming less and less intense, leading to a conviction in England that Hitler's men were resting for what might be the decisive attack by air of the war.

In one raid the British airmen dropped bombs and incendiaries from Ostend to Boulogne hour after hour, working in waves, until watchers on the Kentish coast reported miles and miles of the opposing coastline to be in flames.

The weather was clear and the thousands standing on the British cliff-tops had a fine view of the attack, which, though it took place at night, was brilliantly illuminated by German searchlights, by bomb-flares and by the resulting fires.

As the airmen went over the heads of the watchers and came back from the scene of action, ferrying their loads of death and destruction over the channel, enormous cheers rose from the watching throngs.

The anti-aircraft barrage all along the coast seemed to the witnesses more powerful than any seen before, giving rise to the belief that perhaps this would be the main center of Nazi activity in the spring, not in the Balkans.

AFRICA:

Record Drive

The history-making sweep of the British armies, together with what aid has been offered by African forces, guerrila bands of natives and the Free French under DeGaulle, continued apace and seemed about to make history as the greatest single advance of armed forces in the history of human warfare.

The British forces were moving rapidly into Tripolitania on the one hand, and down on the Indian ocean and the shores of the Red sea they were making advances into Eritrea in a pincers movement in which army, navy and air force were co-operating.

The breakup of the Italian armed force in northern Africa was apparently complete, and the populace of Cyrenaica in Libya was settling down under British rule and some semblance of orderly government was returning.

The British were shooting looters, and while there were some few murders of Italian settlers by native blacks, these were infrequent, as most of the Italians had either fled or had sought protection under the British rule.

The armies under Wavell, generally called the Middle East command, were in a most anomalous position, however, for while they were rapidly occupying the whole of Mussolini's African empire, their supremacy depended entirely on their command of the Mediterranean sea and airways.

MISCELLANY:

Vichy—Marshal Henri Phillippe Petain, head of the French government, got a taste of red tape when he ordered a pair of shoes. He was forced, as are other citizens, to exhibit the amount of wear on two other pairs he owns. Finally his application came back, stamped "approved."

Madrid—Spain has managed to muster 74 ships, which will be started off to the Argentine to attempt to carry wheat cargoes back to Spain. If nothing happens to delay the shipments, 120,000 tons a month can be carried.

Washington—Thomas G. Corcoran, called "Tommy the Cork" by capital columnists, and presidential adviser, failed to get the post as assistant secretary of the navy he was reported to have had his eye on. The job went to Ralph A. Bard of Chicago, on the recommendation of Secretary Knox.

That Nagging Backache
May Warn of Disordered Kidney Action
Modern life with its hurry and worry, irregular habits, improper eating and drinking—its risk of exposure and infection—throws heavy strain on the work of the kidneys. They are apt to become over-taxed and fail to filter excess acid and other impurities from the life-giving blood.
You may suffer nagging backache, headache, dizziness, getting up nights, leg pains, swelling—feel constantly tired, nervous, all worn out. Other signs of kidney or bladder disorder are sometimes burning, scanty or too frequent urination.

Never-Ending Stream of Italian Prisoners

A seemingly never-ending stream of Italian prisoners is here shown pouring over a bridge following the capture of an important base during the British sweep west through Libya, which was climaxed by the capture of Bengazi, an Italian stronghold. In all, the British captured 100,000 Italians, it was claimed.

Wearing of Khaki

It is believed that English soldiers in India started the vogue of wearing khaki uniforms about a century ago when they dipped their white uniforms into muddy pools to give them protective coloration, says Pathfinder. The name khaki, in fact, comes from the Urdu word, Khak, meaning dust. The practice led to the official adoption of khaki-colored uniforms by the British army in the Egyptian campaign of 1882.

Anything, Anywhere, Any Time

America's real super-roadways are its railroads—its main lines of national defense!

Railroads haul anything and everything. They are not "choosey" about their traffic.

Railroads haul anything anywhere—over long distances and short, over mountains and across plains.

Railroads haul anything anywhere any time—in winter as in summer, in storm and in flood, using their own resources to keep the steel roadways open.

Railroads haul anything, anywhere, any time for anybody—on terms alike and known to all.

Railroads do the essential, universal, low-cost job of mass transportation which no other form of transportation can even attempt to do.

No other form of transportation—nor all of them together—can even begin to meet the needs of American agriculture and industry, commerce and defense.

The ability of the railroads to furnish these essential services with ever-increasing efficiency and at the lowest possible charge to you, depends on volume of traffic and on the cost to the railroads of "manufacturing" railroad transportation.

Sound public policy obviously requires that no unnecessary costs, wasteful practices, nor inefficiency should be imposed upon the railroads through laws or regulations, and that traffic should not be diverted from the railroads to other forms of transportation through purely artificial devices, such as subsidies, unequal regulation and unequal taxation.

Palm of Victory
The palm is a symbol of victory and was adopted by the early Christians to represent the triumph of the faithful over the enemies of the soul. It is the special badge of martyrs, and the Congregation of Rites, 1688, regarded the representation of a palm on a catacomb tomb as proof that a martyr was interred there, but this was later declared untenable. The palm tree gives shade and fruit and hence is emblematic of God's protection and grace.

Birthday Party

The following were entertained at the Leonard Larson home Saturday afternoon in honor of Ruggle's seventh birthday: Milton Conklin, Raymond and Howard Peterson, Joann Benitt, Lois Larson, Betty Swan, Virgil and Rosemond Larson and Miss Doris Carlson. Games and music were enjoyed by all. Lunch was served by Mrs. Larson.

Mr. and Mrs. Bill Larson, Ruben and Clifford Larson were evening guests. Another large decorated birthday cake was brought by Mrs. Bill Larson.

Ruggles received many gifts and a large purse of money.

Mr. and Mrs. Alton Carlson spent this week in the Twin Cities on a buying trip for their store here.

Mrs. Kenneth Baker of Thief River Falls visited at the Hj Johnson home Monday night.

Mr. and Mrs. Carl Fredrickson and children visited at the Hartley Peterson home Sunday.

Rev. and Mrs. R. M. Fjelstad visited with Rev. and Mrs. Hanson on Monday evening.

The Great Northern repair crew, who have been here the past weeks fixing up the depot, moved to Red Lake Falls on Tuesday.

Health Progress To Be Stressed

One of the most unexpected of the statistical notes struck by officials of the Minnesota State Medical Association in the announcement issued today of their March monthly education campaign, concerns Minnesota widows.

According to new population figures announced by the doctors in connection with this campaign women are said to be living longer, here, than men and the number of widows in the population is increasing annually by many thousands.

"The fact that everybody is living longer these days has upset social relations, changed health problems and new demands on our schools," the doctors declare in this bulletin about the campaign which is to be carried on under the title, "Thirty Years of Health Progress in Minnesota".

The increase in widows is only a by-product of this great change in age levels, the doctors say, but it is very important especially to young women who take a serious interest in preparation for their future.

It is estimated that there are about 400,000 new widows each year thoughout the United States and that figure does not take into account feminine halves of legally dissolved marriages either, according to the bulletin.

The average woman arrives at her widowhood at about the age of 55, they say. Her normal life expectancy goes beyond the age of 60 and fully half the widows can be expected to live to the age of 75. Thus the economic difficulties of widows and fatherlees children become a matter for serious consideration.

In fact, a short course for co-eds has been suggested, as a good way to teach young girls how to be efficient, adequate and self-supporting widows, the doctors say.

With the greatest of ease, Alfred Orhn, former national ski champion, startles the queen's "court" at the great Winter Sports State Park at Grayling, Michigan, by leaping over a Chevrolet Sedan. Miss Yvonne Bradley (third from the right) has been elected Snow Queen and, with her court, welcomes the colorful crowds of winter sports fans who arrive by the thousand in automobiles and snow trains. Six steel toboggan slides and acres of skating rinks are now in operation, and three ski towers and 75 miles of marked ski trails are planned for this huge winter sports development under the supervision of the National Park Service and the Michigan State Park Department.

Lars Hellesylt, Pioneer, Called

March 13, 1859—Feb., 24, 1941

Lars Andreas Hellesylt was born on March 13, 1859 in Hellesylt parish, Sondmon, Norway, where he grew up to young manhood, and was united in marriage to Olava Ringdahl in June 1880.

In 1881 he, together with his wife, immigrated to America, coming to Wisconsin where they resided until the year 1883, when they moved to Grand Forks, N. Dak.

In 1885 he came to Holt where they settled on a homestead in Section 19 where he lived until a short time before his death when he moved to his daughter, Mrs. Carl Gustavson where he died, Monday Feb. 24th.

Mr. Hellesylt was one of Holt's earliest settlers knowing both the joys and sorrows of the early pioneers.

His wife and six children preceeded him in death more than 40 years ago. He leaves to mourn his passing five children, namely Lars and Ingvald, Knox, N. D. Clara, Fergus Falls, Minn.; Anna, Mrs. Peter Peterson, of Ogema, Sask. Canada; and Johanna, Mrs. Carl Gustavson of Newfolden.

Also twenty-four grand children and four great-grand children; and a sister and other relatives in Norway.

Mr. Hellesylt has been in good health until a few years ago when kidney trouble set in, and he became gradually weaker until he had to stay in bed where he suffered patiently without any complaint, trusting in God to come and relieve him of all suffering. He passed away at 5:30 p. m. Feb. 24th 1941, being at the time of his death 81 years, 11 months and 11 days.

The funeral services were held from Bethlehem Lutheran church at Newfolden, Saturday March 1st. Rev. Ronholm officiated assisted by Rev. Myhrer. Songs were sung by Mr. Gudim, Mrs. Kere Myhrer and Rev. Ronholm. Those who attended the funeral from out of town were Lars Larsen of Knox, N. D.; Ole Hanson of Moorhead; and many neighbors from Holt. Mr. Hellesylt was a charter member of Folden Lutheran Church. He was laid to rest in the Folden cemetery. Pall bearers were: George Moberg, Carl Johnson, Edwin Hanson, Oliver Nohre, Hilmer Moberg and A. Skjerping.

Peace be to his Memory.

Card of Thanks

We wish to express our sincere thanks to all who assisted during the illness, and for the sympathy shown during the death and burial of our dear father.

We especially wish to thank Rev. Ronholm and Rev. Myhrer for their comforting messages, those who sang and those who gave memory wreaths.

May God Bless you all.

Lives Are Precious

Automobile accidents, like the weather, attract wide comment but little has been done about them. A year ago the editors of Minnesota took a task upon them selves to "save 100 lives" during the year. A committee was formed and the result of that effort is widely known for its success.

However, we can't rest upon our laurels already won, for the grim reaper forever works -- death takes no holiday. We must forever be vigilant!

A thing which has been of glaring affront to the writer and others who are solicitious about safety on our highways, is the permission of road signs which read similiar to the following:
"Liquor May be Had by the Drink One Mile Ahead."
"The Only Bar in 100 Miles".
"Refresh yourself at our Bar, 10 Miles."

We, an enlightened people, who are clamoring for safety on our highways, permit this along our highways without a murmur and at the same time demand that something be done to cut down accidents.

We tolerate the advertising to our automobile drivers the very stuff which we admit to ourselves is dangerous and then condemn them for being careless in costing human life.

Ladies and gentlemen, we must look into our own actions and then maybe we can make greater headway in this movement to save lives.

CCC For National Defense

The Department of Conservation disclosed there is little hope of obtaining additional CCC camps for work in state parks since the army is taking over companies for national defense work.

Harold Latrop, director of the Division of State Parks, who has been attempting to get a camp at Lake Carlos State Park ten miles north of Alexandria, finds that completion of the project must await a change in the war situation.

WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS — By Edward C. Wayne

Nazi Troop Detachments Enter Spain; Hitler Threatens New Sub Warfare; U. S. Invokes Priorities on Aluminum And Tools, as New Defense Measure

(EDITOR'S NOTE—When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of the news analyst and not necessarily of this newspaper.)

(Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

TONE OF WAR:
Stepped Upward

Generally speaking, the advent of March saw the war news on all fronts stepped upward to new peaks of activity, rumor and expectation of a far more bitter and decisive year than 1940.

There were more than minimal signs that Hitler was preparing to launch vital moves on at least two fronts, with possibility that he might add a third theater of war to his effort and might include Japan to take over a fourth.

Most war observers returning to this country and able to speak freely expected the invasion attempt to be dated somewhere between March 15 and May 1.

Resumption of test daylight raids over England were viewed as a certain sign that the day was not far distant.

The move in the Balkans was apparently being made, with Bulgaria scheduled as the avenue through which Nazi hordes would be given an open road to the Greek northern frontier.

Signs were less definite that this might be accompanied by a move to aid Italy in Africa, or that Hitler would make a general Mediterranean offensive part of his spring plan.

A move which sent detachments of Nazi troops into Spain was explained by German sources as the sending of aid to Santander, badly wrecked by hurricane and fire. In many quarters, however, it was pointed out that Santander was 150 miles below the French border, and that this force might be the vanguard of a Spanish-Nazi army which would make an attack or a feint against Gibraltar.

IRUN, SPAIN. — German sentries are shown here "goose-stepping" on their posts at the point where Spanish territory meets that of "occupied" France. Detachments of Nazi troops have been reported to have entered Spain.

In a speech on the 21st birthday of the Nazi party Hitler told his people that a new phase of the war was coming in a short time and threatened a new and more terrible submarine campaign against British shipping. He said that new submarine crews had been trained and new U-boats would be launched in the coming stepped-up attack.

The general belief was that Hitler's master plan of strategy was unfolding itself gradually in a series of moves, some of them military, some of them diplomatic.

The plan, it was said, is based on the fact that in any invasion of Britain the Nazis would be under a disadvantage in not being able conceivably to put an equal force on the British Isles.

This being so, the main Hitler plan was said to be to strike in several different directions, i.e., Greece, Gibraltar, Africa, Malta, Suez, and in the South Pacific in order to screen the chief and central effort to land troops in Britain.

It is figured, so these authorities say, that this plan might conceivably mislead the British into moving considerable groups of war units from one territory to another, might keep the fleet busy at the wrong place, might cause the sending of many British air squadrons away from the isles themselves.

Should this turn out to be based on fact, then it would push the date of the invasion attempt back from earlier estimates, and make the May date seem more likely than one in March or April.

With the lease-lend bill close to a final vote stage, the curtain was about to rise on an increased tempo in the war, and opposition members of congress in both house and senate were loud in their claims that 30 days would see this country added to those actively in the war.

INDUSTRY:
Priorities

First real force of the current U. S. defense economy was felt by the aluminum and machine tool producers as mandatory priorities for these materials were announced. E. R. Stettinius Jr., priorities director of the Office of Production Management of the Defense Commission issued the orders requiring that producers fill all defense orders in preference to nondefense when necessary to meet defense order delivery dates.

In his statement Stettinius said that OPM had tried to keep allocation of aluminum and machine tools on a voluntary basis but it had become "necessary and desirable" to enforce priorities so that defense industries could get the supplies they need.

FAR EAST:
Crisis for U. S.

Most vital to this nation was the crisis on the Far Eastern front, perhaps part of the major Hitler plan to weaken England by embroiling the United States and Britain in a war with Japan.

In this great diplomatic poker game the stakes were the maximum. Steps in the struggle, much of which was being carried on behind closed doors and in diplomatic chambers, became gradually news items.

The British announced that the waters off the Malay states were being mined. The Chinese reported 150,000 Japanese troops were ready to move in the general direction of Singapore.

The Dutch East Indies called all ships into neutral ports. These were just outward manifestations that Japan, under Axis pressure, was staging a show in the South Pacific, a show that had repercussions from the White House when the President gently chided newsmen and members of congress for letting General Marshall's statement of the seriousness of the situation become public property.

In this game Germany was seen as a kibitzer, but one who had Japan handling her chips on a fifty-fifty basis.

In the midst of it all came the announcement from Japan that Nippon stood ready to act as mediator to conduct negotiations for peace by all nations anywhere who were involved in war.

This move received a cold reception in Washington, Sumner Welles saying that with conditions at their present pass, this nation was looking to deeds, not words, and that Japan, instead of being a peacemaker, was stirring up trouble by her actions and troop and naval moves.

AMBASSADOR NOMURA
"Talked peace, discounted war."

That Japan was either divided in her reactions in the game of diplomatic and military bluff was evident from what was made public. Ambassador Nomura talked peace, discounted war. Japanese papers, some of them, said Nomura's task (of preserving peace) was hopeless.

Two things appeared certain in the Far East. Hitler was moving warily and under cover, and Japan was moving under pressure from her Axis partners, apparently unwillingly.

U. S. DEFENSE . . . in the news

¶ OPM Associate Director Hillman said 37,200,000 persons are now employed in non-agricultural industry—an increase of 2,200,000 since last May, and the greatest increase in any similar period. Secretary of Labor Perkins said a survey of 11 key defense industries revealed "at least one-half of the plants covered were operating at least six days per week."

¶ FWA Administrator Carmody announced that the army and navy will select tenants and set rentals for defense homes occupied by their enlisted or civilian personnel and the other defense homes will be only for the use of families whose principal wage earners hold essential defense jobs. The defense worker's rental will be set according to his income and not the size of the home.

If You Read in Bed You'll Want This Bag

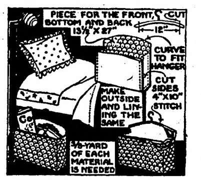
By RUTH WYETH SPEARS

THIS bag was planned as a hospital gift for someone who was finding days in bed difficult enough without having books, magazines, writing materials and spectacle case scattered about and forever getting lost. If you like to take an assortment of reading matter to bed, sick or well, you will enjoy a bag like this. Its hanger hook may be sewed to box springs and there you are with everything at hand.



PIECE FOR THE FRONT, BOTTOM AND BACK 13½" X 27" CUT
12"
CURVE TO FIT HANGER
CUT SIDES 4"X10"
STITCH
MAKE OUTSIDE AND LINING THE SAME
⅜-YARD OF EACH MATERIAL IS NEEDED

The bag shown here was made of a remnant of heavy cotton upholstery material in tones of green with a touch of red in the pattern. The red was repeated in the sateen lining. The sketch gives all the dimensions and shows how the lining and the outside part were made. A coat hanger was cut down to measure 12 inches from end to end and was placed between the lining and the outside; these being stitched together around the top, as illustrated.

WHO'S NEWS THIS WEEK

By LEMUEL F. PARTON
(Consolidated Features—WNU Service.)

NEW YORK.—In 1918, there was a tall, gangling young man in charge of a crew of men who were making lewisite gas, in a hide-out near Cleveland. A veteran officer advised him to give orders in a low tone of voice and speak slowly and cautiously. There were human and chemical tensions there, intermingling, and a sharp word might twitch a workman's nerve and cause trouble.

Chemical Expert Speaks Softly, So Nothing Blows Up

That might have been good training for a college president-to-be. At any rate, they made Dr. James Bryant Conant president of Harvard, in 1936. He has continued to speak softly and to get results without anything blowing up, and now President Roosevelt picks him to head a scientific mission to Britain.

He was a major in the newly organized chemical warfare service in the days when he was making lewisite gas. Within a few years of the day when he took his Harvard doctorate, in 1917, he was famed here and abroad as one of the world's leading research chemists. If our leasing and lending includes specialized brains, we could not have sent a scientist more competent to devise defenses against gas attack, or, perhaps to solve some new Nazi chemical ruthlessness, of which, it is reported, the British war office has evidence.

He is a pioneer and expert in gas warfare and defense, but he hates war and as an educator has worked diligently to outmode and banish forever his war gases. He hastened to enlist when we entered the World war. A friend persuaded him that he would be much more useful in gas research for the bureau of mines. From this bureau he later was transferred to the chemical warfare service.

He is an Alpinist, still climbing mountains at the age of 48. In 1937, he scaled North Palisade mountain in the California Sierra, a hazardous climb of 14,254 feet. During the previous winter, he had broken his collar-bone while skiing. He is blue-eyed, with rather severe pedagogical spectacles, which make him look scientific, and a warm, ready smile which makes him look human.

His father was a photo-engraver of Dorchester, Mass. There was some sniffing among the Brahmins when the professor of chemistry became president of Harvard. But Charles W. Eliot had been a professor of chemistry and had scored heavily in the humanities—as did Dr. Conant. So there was precedent for that appointment, but possibly not for his present appointment. The tradition of the absent-minded professor fades in an era of highly specialized knowledge.

◆

PERHAPS more than any other one man, Sir Robert Brooke-Popham saw the need for wings over the British empire and worked hard and long to provide them. As commander-in-chief in the Far East today, with tension mounting hourly on land and sea, he may take credit for strengthening air defenses to the farthest outpost of Britain's dominions.

British Far East Air Chief Took a Long View Ahead

He attended Sandhurst and entered the army. He was at the front in France from the first to the last gunshot.

Twenty years ago he began campaigning and agitating for an empire matrix of commercial and military airlines, predicting an hour of peril when only such unity and co-operation of scattered air forces could hold the empire together. He was one of the originators of the British commonwealth air training plan; established the Royal Air Force college in London and became commandant of the Imperial Defense college. He built Canada's $600,000,000 empire air force which just now is greatly strengthening Britain's hopes with its 40,000 students and its daily yield of skilled fliers for the defense of Britain.

A lean, hard man of clipped, astringent speech, comparable only to a blow-torch in his powers of concentration, he is in his general makeup a planned personality. He is 63 years old, hard as nails and as whippy as a pole-vaulter. He was born Robert Moore, the son of a country clergyman. For reasons of his own, he was not satisfied to be Robert Moore. Characteristically, he did something about it. He procured royal dispensation to become Robert Brooke-Popham. Then, possibly in some pattern of numerology, came a career to fit the name.

FARM TOPICS

FULL TRACTOR LOAD EFFICIENT

Use of the Rated Capacity Saves Time, Fuel.

By R. H. REED
(Associate in Agricultural Engineering, University of Illinois)

Up to one-half of all the time spent driving tractors in the field and 20 to 25 per cent of the fuel could be saved if tractors were loaded to their full rated capacity.

Pulling two or more light draft implements behind a tractor is one way of raising the load nearer to the rated capacity.

Among the machines which are particularly adaptable to being pulled in this manner are mowers, binders, rotary hoes, harrows, drills and culti-packers. All these implements have a low draft—pounds of pull—for each foot of width and thus are the units which contribute most to low average loading.

Mowers, for example, are wider than they used to be but still make a rather light load for most tractors. Some farmers have hitched one or two horse mowers behind the tractor to double, or even triple, the width of the cut and thus reduce the labor and fuel cost.

Two binders also may be pulled to advantage, especially in the northern half of Illinois. The combine has replaced most of the binders, but this fact frequently means that, where they are used, small horse binders are pulled behind a tractor operated at a very low per cent of its rated capacity.

The rotary hoe must be used in the wider widths if it is to load the tractor to capacity. Whenever possible, two, or even three, rotary hoes should be used to reduce labor, save fuel and enable the operator to obtain timeliness of operation.

Spike-tooth harrows must be very wide to develop a full tractor load. Fortunately, additional sections don't cost much, last a long time and are usable until worn out. They can be used regardless of their make or shape. Rollers and culti-packers have about the same characteristics.

Frequently the time and expense saved by using two implements will not justify the purchase of the second unit. Reed suggests that farmers may be able to exchange machines with their neighbors in order to use two units at the same time.

Losses From Crown Gall Reduced With Calomel

Losses from crown gall on seedling peach trees—a destructive nursery disease that has baffled control for half a century—may be greatly reduced by dipping peach pits in a strong solution of calomel before planting, report E. A. Siegler and J. J. Bowman of the Federal Bureau of Plant Industry. Nurserymen heretofore have had no effective means of controlling crown gall.

To test a method of protecting the injured peach seedlings from infection, Siegler and Bowman treated peach pits with calomel, using four ounces to a gallon of water. The treatment proved successful. In trials conducted at the U. S. Horticulture station, at Beltsville, Md., only 4 per cent of seedlings from calomel-treated pits became diseased, while 58 per cent of seedlings from untreated seed were infected. Similar tests last year showed about the same control of the disease.

Nurserymen can safely try the calomel treatment, as it apparently does not reduce the stand of the young seedlings. One pound of calomel is enough to treat about 10 bushels of pits.

Butter, Eggs Lead Food Stamp Sales

How participants in the Food Stamp plan have been spending their stamps was revealed recently by the U. S. department of agriculture.

Approximately 14 per cent of the blue stamps are being used for butter, 14 per cent for eggs, 17 per cent for flour, rice and other cereal products, 12 per cent for vegetables, 13 per cent for fruits and 30 per cent for lard and pork products.

The Food Stamp plan has been extended to 250 areas. About 2,500,000 persons are taking part in the plan, creating new buying power at the rate of more than $5,000,000 a month for officially listed surplus foods at local stores in these areas.

Rich in Protein

Contrary to common belief, rye contains more protein than corn. Feeding trials have revealed that rye is equal to, or even superior to oats, corn or barley when fed in a grain mixture.

Before feeding rye to cows, it should be ground, and because of its gummy nature, should not make up more than 40 per cent of the total grain mixture. For best results it should be mixed with other grains. This also increases its palatability.

PATTERNS SEWING CIRCLE

THERE'S something guileless and appealing about a yoke dress like this that will make you look as fresh and bright as a little girl all dressed up in a new starched frock! It's very becoming and youthifying to misses and women alike. Yet design No. 8876 offers you the makings of a very comfortable home style, with waistline that you can comfortably draw in to just the slimness you want, by means of the sash belt in the back.

The high-cut skirt is very slenderizing to the hips and waist. The gathered bodice gives you a nice round bosom-line. Make this of percale, calico or gingham and trim with bright ricrac and buttons. Untrimmed, it's a good style for runabout, if you make it up in flat crepe or spun rayon. Send for the pattern today, and be among the first to wear it!

* * *

Pattern No. 8876 is designed for sizes 12, 14, 16, 18, 20 and 40. Size 14 requires 3¾ yards of 36-inch material without nap; 1⅝ yards trimming. Detailed sew chart included. Send order to:

U. S.-Canada Boundary

This totally unfortified boundary line, 5,600 miles long, is marked by 8,060 monuments or markers of several different types. Some are merely cast-iron posts set in concrete. Others are aluminum-bronze posts that rise five feet above a three-foot concrete base. Where the line passes through the Great Lakes and other waterways the monuments range in size and type from large concrete range markers, set in pairs on shores and islands, to small manganese-bronze posts along the shores of the more narrow waterways. And in important fishing grounds in West coast waters the line is marked by lighted steel towers. Also, where the boundary line passes through timbered areas a 30-foot vista has been cleared.

Beginner Didn't Want Possibility to Be Wasted

The driving instructor was teaching the awkward fellow to drive a car.

"Put out your left hand to signal that you are about to move off. Then with your left foot step in the clutch. With your right hand put the gearshift into first. Gradually ease up on the clutch, the while stepping gently on the accelerator with your right foot.

"When the car has gathered speed, again step in the clutch, shifting with the right hand to second. Then with the left foot slowly let out the clutch, accelerating with the right foot. Then repeat to shift to high speed. Keep your eyes on the road ahead all of the time."

There was a long pause; the pupil appeared to be thinking.

"Well, what are you waiting for?" asked the instructor finally.

"There's nothing useful I could do with my nose, is there?" inquired the beginner.

NAGGING BACKACHE

[illegible]

Modern life with its ceaseless hurry and worry, irregular habits, improper eating and drinking, exposure, contagion whatnot, keeps doctors busy, hospitals crowded. The after effects are disturbing to the kidneys and oftentimes people suffer without knowing that disordered kidney action may cause the trouble.

After colds, fever and similar ills there is an increase of body impurities the kidneys must filter from the blood. If the kidneys are overtaxed and fail to remove excess acid and other harmful waste, there is poisoning of the whole system.

THE REASON DOAN'S ARE FAMOUS
All over the country grateful people tell others: "Doan's have helped me; I recommend them to you." That is why we say, Ask your neighbor!

Symptoms of disturbed kidney function may be nagging backache, persistent headache, dizziness, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes—a feeling of nervous anxiety and loss of strength and energy. Other signs of kidney or bladder disturbance sometimes are burning, scanty or too frequent urination.

In such cases it is better to rely on a medicine that has won world-wide approval than on something less favorably known. Use Doan's Pills. They have been winning new friends for more than forty years. Be sure to get Doan's. Sold at all drug stores.

Spring must be on its way. On Monday evening, after dark, an owl was seen. However, it may have been a publicity stunt on the part of the owl because it flew into the local editors home when the door was opened for a short time. After much maneuvering on the part of Dorothy, who tried to catch it to take to school, the owl finally escaped the way it had entered the house. It was of the smal screech owl type, that are here all winter.

Peas May Be Green, But —

PEAS may be green—in fact they should be, if they are fresh young things—but they have had sufficient social experience to appear at the most sophisticated parties and in the most sophisticated dishes.

If you are a modern hostess and believe in adding a few smart dishes to your culinary list, every month perhaps, so that your meals never get into a rut, you will want to keep plenty of canned peas on hand. Order them in the various sizes, both can sizes and pea sizes, so that they will be adapted to your various needs.

Party Peas

The following suggestion for a pea dish has been selected with an eye to both vogue and "good taste." It is yours for better parties.

Pea Puff with Pineapple: Drain the contents of one No. 2 can of peas, reserving the liquor, and press through a sieve. Make a thick white sauce of four tablespoons butter, four tablespoons flour, one cup of milk and then add the pea pulp. Season to taste with salt and pepper, add three well-beaten egg yolks and fold in the three stiffly-beaten egg whites. Pour into a buttered baking dish and set in a pan of hot water. Bake in a moderate oven—350 to 375 degrees—until set and a delicate brown. It will take about twenty-five to thirty minutes. While baking, cook two tablespoons butter and one cup of crushed canned pineapple together until thick and rich. Spread this over the baked puff and serve at once. This serves eight persons.

AGRICULTURAL STATIONS AID SOIL IMPROVEMENT

CHICAGO. — Benefits obtained from growing soil building crops such as alfalfa, clover and most legumes can be greatly increased by the intelligent use of the correct fertilizer, it is pointed out by the Middle West Soil Improvement Committee.

"The average practical farmer realizes that obtaining more humus is not just a matter of sowing seed," the report says. "Clover, alfalfa and most legumes which are able to get valuable nitrogen from the air are sensitive to their soil environment. The problem of getting a stand and a crop worth turning under is simplified if the farmer applies mixed fertilizer of the right analysis.

"Agricultural experiment stations under the direction of capable agronomists are continually carrying on experiments with the soils of their states and have very comprehensive general reports ready for county agents, active field workers and farmers. They are glad to send them out or to answer any questions sent to them."

Look Out For Bumps

One of the most certain -- even if less welcome -- signs of spring has arrived.

The unwelcome but inevitable harbinger came in the form of two warnings issued this week by the State Highway department: one warning to motorists to "Look out for the Bumps" and the other instructions to state highway maintenance crews to take every precaution to protect the travelling pulbic and at the same time make every possible preparation to hold frost boil damage to a minimum.

Both warnings mean just one thing -- Minnesota,s annual 'spring break-up" is at hand, with its resultant public inconvenience, its expensive road-surface repair bill, and its inevitable result of from 3,800 to 4,600 miles of state trunk highways under maximum load restrictions for several weeks.

Serious frost heaves have been reported from many maintenance districts, the Highway department reports. All maintenance engineers and section men were instructed some time ago to exercise great care to see that such hazards are marked with "Bump" signs or red flags as rapidly as they become serious. The driving public, however, is urged to be on the alert for warnings to vehicles travelling at high speed.

Departmental engineers also have been instructed to maintain constant vigilanse in an effort to do everything possible to lower the frost heaves, and to prevnt them from developing later on into frost boils.

Frost heaves are caused by a combination of soil and moisture conditions and freezing. With present-day high speeds a heave in the roadway is much more serious to traffic than was the case when traffic moved more slowly a few years ago. Where roads are not paved frost heaves may result later on in frost boils unless loads are restricted to prevent breaking down of surface crust.

Frost boil preventative measures include artificial thawing out of vertical drains through frost heaver by steam jetting. Modern construction, through intensive soil studies and planning, provides for correction or replacement of troublesome soils in subgrades, to reduce or eliminate heaving. But on older sections of highway the problem must be contended with from year to year until they can be rebuilt.

Six Cylinder Sentences

By DR. JOHN W. HOLLAND

- Life may now and then "soak" you, but don't throw up the sponge.
- No human being ever grows good enough to do exactly as he pleases.
- Few ever hit the "bull's-eye" who take aim in hit-and-miss fashion.
- It is easier to see the rough in the diamond than to see the diamond in the rough.
- Age will wrinkle up our faces, but only our loss of enthusiasm can wrinkle up our hearts.
- Courtship between married people can be kept up indefinitely through the practice of courtesies.

Mike Leiran Called

Funeral services were conducted in Silver Creek Lutheran Church, northeast of Thief River Falls, on Wednesday at 2:00 P. M. for the late Mike Leiran who passed away at his home on Thursday, March 6th, following an illness of nearly two years.

Mr. Leiran was born at Waukon, Iowa, on May 17th, 1880, and lived there until 1904 when he came to Fertile, Minnesota. He moved to Gatzke in 1907 and settled on a homestead near there. On July 8, 1908 he was united in marriage to Miss Helga Anderson. They made their home near Gatzke until 1932 when they moved to their farm northeast of Thief River Falls which was his home until death.

Surviving are his wife, Mrs. Helga Leiran; 3 sons and two daughters, namely Arthur, Edry, Cardiff, (Doris) Mrs. Wm. Kaushagen, all of this place, and (Eunice) Mrs. Casper Hegernes of Ada. Besides these, there are 5 brothers, Ole and Leonard of Fertile, Melvin and Selmer of Thief River Falls, and Martin of Waukon, Iowa. Also his half brother, 3 half-sisters and step mother of Waterville, Iowa.

Rev. T. C. L. Hanson officiated at the funeral services. The honorary pallbearers were: Henry Kaushagen, I. Isaacson, H. A. Lunsetter, Christ Norbeck, Ole Balstad and Knute Nelson. Active pallbearers were: Stanley Groshon, Dan Dowacter, Ole Ose Hilmer Moberg, Ludvig Sagstuen and Carl Johnson. He was laid to rest in the Silver Creek cemetery.

Hartley Peterson has been busy painting the interior of the Marshall County State Bank. The post offiie and barber shop will also be painted.

Mr. and Mrs. Julius Borchert of Mentor visited at the G. Sanoden home Sunday. Mrs. Borchert remained to visit this week.

Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Reierson and family spent Sunday afternoon at the Lawrence Reierson home.

One-Cylinder Farming

Do you remember those first crude automobiles in the long ago, that ran on one cylinder?

That is just the way farming used to run, when it was on a one-crop basis. But single crop farming does not pay, over a term of years. Diversification assures some income from different sources.

Diversification helps take the risk out of the farmer's life.

Watchful Waiting Off Dutch East Indies

The Dutch East Indies, eyed greedily by Japan, is the new danger-spot in the Far East. When Holland fell, Dutch warships went to protect these colonies. Upper picture shows the fleet and air fleet at Sourabaja, naval base in Java. Below, (left) two subs of the Netherlands navy on patrol, and, (right) the first group of American-built planes of the East Indies air force on guard.

PATTERNS SEWING CIRCLE

RIGHT now's the time to get into a gay new print, or a suave black frock in flat crepe or thin wool, or a bright-colored spun rayon. Something slick and young and decidedly new-looking, that will be as smart this spring, for coatless days, as it is right now under your coat. Here's a perfect love of an afternoon frock—not too dressy for general wear—that will accent the curves and belittle the waistline of practically any figure.

This design (8867) is one of those gracefully simple basics that you'll want to make up in more than one version. The deep V of the neckline is a perfect background for jewels or a cluster of flowers, so that you can vary it endlessly with different accessories. Detailed sew chart included.

TIPS to Gardeners

GARDENS FOR DEFENSE

THE home gardener has an important place in our program of national defense, a much more important role than he played during the first World war.

In the face of these facts, gardeners are advised to do two things: Plan to devote increased space to vegetable gardening; and perfect plans for the 1941 garden so as to get the greatest possible yield from the available space.

In stepping up yield from vegetable gardens of limited size, two major devices should be relied on, first, companion cropping — the planting of fast-growing crops like radishes, spinach, and lettuce between rows of slower-growing vegetables like tomatoes, and cabbage. The fast growers will be pulled and used before the other crops need the space.

Second, succession cropping—the repeated planting of major crops such as beans, sweet corn, radishes, carrots, beets, and lettuce. Moderate-size, new plantings made at regular intervals during the early part of the season will provide a steady supply of fresh vegetables until the season's end.

Pot Holders to Make For Spring Bazaar

By RUTH WYETH SPEARS

THESE moody young ladies with their sun-tanned faces, gay bandannas and sparkling button eyes will stand out among pot holders with less personality. Also, you can have fun making them. You won't need a stamping pattern. Just follow the directions in the sketch to change the faces from gloom to joy by easy stages.

Baste the tan piece for the face to a cotton flannel interlining with a line of basting exactly through the center up and down and another crosswise through the center. The two pieces for the bandanna lap one inch below the top of the up-and-down line. Their lower ends come one-half inch below the ends of the crosswise line. Stitch these in place. The one-inch buttons for the eyes are spaced two inches apart and the tops are one-fourth inch above the crosswise line of basting. The top of each mouth is 1½ inches below this crosswise line.

Queer Oaths

Three Indian women who were witnesses in a case at Port Arthur danced past the judge instead of taking the oath. This, according to their religion, bound them to speak the truth. If they then lied, they would incur the wrath of their ancestors. In British courts Moslems swear on the Koran, and Sikhs on the Bhagvad Gita, their equivalent of the Bible.

When a Chinese takes the oath he raises a saucer above his head and smashes it to the floor, saying as the fragments fly: "If I tell a lie, may my soul be shattered, like that saucer, into a thousand fragments."

WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS By Edward C. Wayne

Bulgarians Are Rebuked by Russia For 'Allowing' Nazi Troops to Enter; Turkey Closes Strategic Dardanelles As Crisis Looms in Mediterranean

(EDITOR'S NOTE—When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of the news analyst and not necessarily of this newspaper.)

(Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

ENGLAND:
At Crossroads

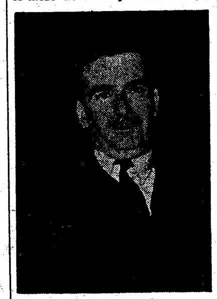
The sending of Anthony Eden into Turkey was no empty gesture on the part of England, but a vital move in the war as the nation approached what appeared to be its most dangerous parting of the ways.

The Nazi move in the Balkans, plus the infiltration into Italy, plus the move into Spain, plus the appearance of German troops in Africa, plus the removal of French citizens from the invasion coast, all pointed in different directions and tended to place English war directors on the horns of a dilemma.

It appeared that the British must decide (1) whether to extend and continue their successful drive in Africa; (2) whether to concentrate on defense of the channel and fighting the submarine menace; (3) whether to lighten the African force by sending troops to strengthen the defense of Greece and to the aid of Turkey.

Most British leaders did not believe that all of these varied objectives could be accomplished at the same time. They viewed with dread the possibility that one or another of these German spearheads might just be a feinting move with the very purpose of causing the British to put their chief attraction at the wrong spot.



ANTHONY EDEN
The "prime fixer" went to Turkey.

There was little chance that the British would do anything that would jeopardize their defense of the Island Kingdom itself. Robert G. Nixon, returning correspondent, described in detail the defense of the entire English coastal territory, north, south, east and west, giving a picture of a nation rather anxiously hoping for invasion than fearing it.

But Britain's Mediterranean and Middle East situation was causing tremendous concern, with the two vulnerable points at each end of the inland sea, Gibraltar and Suez, and with Greece to be aided, Turkey to be strengthened, and African gains to be held and consolidated.

The crucial move in this whole dilemma was the sending of Eden, the prime "fixer" to Turkey. The conference with Turkish leaders lasted only 2½ hours, and ended in a complete accord, it was reported.

First definite action resulting from Turkey's concern over the situation became known when it was announced that the Dardanelles had been closed. Those strategic straits, which separate the Mediterranean from the Black sea, are of vital concern to the axis powers for they form the outlet of German occupied territory to the Mediterranean.

BALKANS:
Lose a Piece

Bulgaria lost its autonomy to all practical purposes when Bogdan Philoff and Von Ribbentrop signed a dramatic treaty through which the Bulgars officially joined the Rome-Berlin Axis "for the duration."

This was widely viewed as an unwilling surrender, but a move which could hardly be criticized by fair-minded persons, as it was a surrender to a pistol held firmly to a nation's heart.

Russia, however, felt otherwise. Shortly after the pact was signed and the Nazi troops had entered Bulgaria, that nation was handed a message from the soviet foreign commissariat which in effect expressed displeasure with the Bulgar's attitude. According to the Russians, they disapproved of the Bulgarian action because it "does not lead to consolidation of peace."

Whether this meant Russia would take any action to prevent Nazi troops from penetrating too close to soviet borders was not immediately learned. London at first did not believe that Russia had any action in mind but looked upon the statement merely as "a mere verbal protest." One thing was sure: The signing of the Axis-Bulgar pact was to have far-reaching effect in the progress of war in the Balkans.

The signing had been prefaced by the infiltration of uncounted thousands of Nazi troops in civilian clothing, and two days before it all happened, Nazi generals, also in plain-clothes, practically took over the leading hotel in Sofia as their headquarters.

The day before the signatures were placed on the historic document Britain issued a warning that she would withdraw her embassy if the treaty were signed.

The next step was the cutting off of all telephonic communication between Bulgaria and the outside world. In all this, the blotting out of another autonomous country was carried out in the true Nazi method, the blueprint being followed in every detail with mathematical precision.

The following day the city of Sofia was in German hands, completely under German control, the British ambassador had asked for and demanded his passports, and Bulgaria's home rule was ended.

MISCELLANY:

Washington.—The CAA, examining into a plane crash at Fort Morgan, Colo., found that the pilot, Charles G. Pierce, deliberately flew his plane head-on into the hangar. The report quoted Pierce, who was badly hurt, as saying: "I intended to wreck ship, hangar and myself. I'm sorry I didn't do a better job."

MARTIN DIES:
Steps Out Again

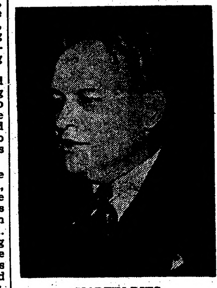
The Dies committee, quiescent for several weeks, stepped back onto Page One when Representative Dies charged that American Peace Mobilization, Inc., which in Washington is largely made up of government employees active in opposition to the lease-lend bill, receives its chief support from Communistic "front" organizations.

Public meetings against the lease-lend bill were being run by the "Keep America Out of War Committee," but the sponsors of the meetings, when asked what other groups were involved, would only answer "and other peace and labor groups."

Mr. Dies said chief among these was the Mobilization body, and he cited that one of its vice presidents is Vito Marcantonio of New York, the only American Labor party member in congress who has been voting against national defense and appropriations measures ever since the congress convened.



MARTIN DIES
He stepped back to Page One.

The Dies committee, during previous investigations, pronounced to be a Communist Front organization the American League for Peace and Democracy. Mr. Dies said that from what he had learned so far, the Mobilization chapter in Washington appeared to be the successor of the League for Peace, which became defunct after getting the Red label from the Dies body.

Executive secretary of the Washington chapter of Mobilization, Inc., was Mrs. Sarah A. Montgomery, wife of the consumers' counsel for the AAA. Dies served a subpoena on Mrs. Montgomery to bring her records before the committee.

Subpoenas were served for several weeks on the chapter, Dies said, without avail in getting the records before him. He continued to demand them, and would continue to do so, he said.

COTTON:
For Shelters

Members of congress from the southern states were jubilant when a New York engineer, E. C. Wallace, declared that cotton was better than reinforced concrete as roofing material for air-raid shelters.

Wallace said that a seven-foot thickness of cotton would resist the penetration of a 6,000-pound bomb falling from 30,000 feet.

He said the cotton could easily be fireproofed, so that incendiary bombs would have little effect

A KING:
Takes a Trip

SOMEWHERE IN ENGLAND—This radiophoto shows King George of Britain (right) as he greeted John G. Winant, new U. S. ambassador to the court of St. James, upon the latter's arrival in Britain.

When Ambassador Lord Halifax arrived at Annapolis, President Roosevelt journeyed to Annapolis to greet him. Not to be outdone, King George went halfway across England to welcome American Ambassador John G. Winant with a hearty handshake at a railway station between London and Bristol.

Winant, ex-governor of New Hampshire, had made the trip to Lisbon by plane, and from Lisbon to Bristol by another plane. He was accompanied by President Conant of Harvard and by Benjamin Cohen, who is Winant's personal assistant.

London newspapers said they considered the King's gesture in breaking all precedent to go to a railway station to greet an ambassador was caused by the Roosevelt action in going to the shores of the Chesapeake to meet Lord Halifax.

King George kept up the parallel by taking Winant and his companions in his own automobile to tea with Queen Elizabeth. The place of the meeting was carefully guarded by the censors.

Winant was nervous at all this attention. He said, simply, biting his lip and shifting from foot to foot:

"I'm glad to be here. There's no place I'd rather be than in England."

ITALY:
Taken Over

There is little doubt that Italy actually has been taken over by Germany. This is a significant step which several observers have reported bit by bit from time to time, but it has scarcely received the attention it deserves.

This movement started with the sending of diverse commissions into Italy from the Reich, then it was followed by the sending of units of the Gestapo and the storm-troopers; more lately by large forces of armed and uniformed troops, planes, tanks and the like.

These moves have been "covered up" in press dispatches from time to time, and the latest step, the sending of huge numbers of troops, was diagnosed by such subterfuges as these:

(a) The Germans announced that Italy had given valuable aid in the bombing of England, and therefore Germany would send help to Italy in Africa and Greece.

(b) The Germans said that they would start operations in the Mediterranean to harass British bases there, and that they would have the consent of Italy to do this.

The actual case, according to competent observers, is that Italy, badly whipped in Greece and Africa, was bogging down in the sending of supplies to Germany, supplies that had come willingly enough before Italy entered the war, but which, since Italy's series of defeats, had been falling off appreciably.

Italy was in sad need of raw materials for her factories, particularly those producing munitions and materials for war.

Also, severe rioting against the war and the government was going on in several vital industrial areas of Italy, and Germany realized that she was in danger of losing an ally—not one that was helping much, but one which, if she lost, would make Germany "lose face" at home.

LEASE-LEND:
Filibuster

Senators opposing the lease-lend bill, H.R. 1776, refused to call it a filibuster, but the length and virulence of opposition speeches sounded very like one, and charges that filibuster methods were being used came freely from desks on the administration side.

Leaders in the fight against the bill were Senators Wheeler, Hiram Johnson and Gerald P. Nye, with considerable unexpected help from various others, including Senator Reynolds of North Carolina.

Many of these senators were taking radio time to carry their fight to the people, and there were indications that the bill was getting much more bitter opposition on the senate floor than had been expected.

Much of this battling took place on a very high plane, with little personal mud throwing and calling of names. Both opponents and proponents of the measure were setting themselves up as patriots, the opponents vigorously denying that they were pro-German, and all of them were very much anti-Hitler and anti-oppression.

"THE BETTER WAY"

- There are two ways of life, the "restricted prohibited way" and the "liberty, self-controlled way."
- In central Minnesota are two cities about the same size (1,500 population) and only a few miles apart, that illustrate these two different ways of life.
- "C———", the first city, (this study was made in 1939) is typical—main street, newspaper, general store, bank, yes, and four beer taverns, but the local authorities insist on strict observance of the laws. No miner ever buys a glass of beer; no booths are permitted; the taverns observe the closing hours. Result: there are no drinking problems in this city.
- "D———", the neighboring city, discontinued the sale of beer in January, 1939. When investigators visited this city in August of 1939, every law-abiding citizen interviewed was disgusted with existing conditions. The day the beer taverns closed their doors six bootleggers started plying their nefarious trade; fights and drunkenness became common sights.
- A year of this was a sufficient lesson. At the 1940 city election "D———" voted for licensing the return of 3.2 beer and the return of the "liberty, self-controlled way" of living.

Food Map of Europe as of Today

The starvation areas of Europe can be seen at a glance, above. This map will now darken from month to month as, in many countries, the last remaining food stocks reach exhaustion.

New York (Special) — All Europe is on short rations. Only tiny Portugal still commands a normal food supply. Before the first of the next harvests can be reaped, five months must elapse. In some countries, remaining food stocks will have been exhausted long before, when conditions of slow starvation which already exist will become actual famine. Moreover, in several European countries the harvest covers only a few months consumption.

The above map has been drawn to bring the threatened areas into relief. As may be seen at a glance, the British Isles, Germany, Italy and the Balkans, although all on rations, are not in danger. But the little, western democracies, always dependent on overseas supplies and now cut off by the blockade, are already on a semi-starvation basis.

Darkest, immediate spots in the picture are Belgium and Poland (the latter because of war devastation and partitioning). Here, actual famine already prevails. People are dying of sheer hunger. But Spain, France, Holland, Norway and Finland are not far behind. The above map will now darken quickly from month to month. The terrible food emergency in Europe, so long forecast by food experts, is now but a step away.

Spain may be able to get some help from the Argentine. In the case of the other countries, however, their main hope seems to be the United States. Like the Argentine, the United States not only holds large surplus carryovers of foodstuffs of which it would be glad to get rid but each one of these starving countries holds in this country frozen dollar balances ample to pay for the food they need. Belgium, alone, has several hundred million dollars in assets here. It is then primarily a question whether it can be arranged to pass this food through the blockade if, at the European end, it can be taken in control by a tight, neutral agency which will supervise its distribution to non-belligerent, civilian populations only—and a guarantee that it will not fall into other hands.

Check Birth Records Now

Maybe you think you know all that matters about when and where you were born and who were your parents; but if these facts about you are not down on the records of the state where you were born, then you are likely to be up against it, someday, trying to prove them to skeptical authorities.

For that reason and also for purposes of accurate vital statistics as a measure of health progress in Minnesota, members of the Minnesota State Medical Association's Committee on Public Health Education today urges cooperation with the State Board of Health of everybody in Minnesota to see that all births and deaths are accurately and completely reported. They also recommend that all adults check up on their birth records, now, so that they may have time enough to get affidavits and other evidence together in case the need for an official record pops up unexpectedly and no time is allowed to repair omissions and errors in the record.

In support of their plea, the doctors cite the cases of two men, one picked suddenly to take a job on the Lock in Panama, the other an admistrator in the National Defense program from whom a birth certificate and other identifying material was demanded. The workman was able to produce a faultless birth record by four o'clock the same day he was called and he was off to Panama. The administrator found, to his utter dismay, that his birth record contained so many errors it was impossible to identify it as his without a long drawn out procedure. As a result, he lost his job.

Not only as proof of citizenship for jobs, but in innumerable other circumstances, an accurate record of birth is essential, the doctors point out. Physicians are also especially interested in complete and accurate records, as an essential measure of the health and welfare of the population.

Good Men Are Scarce

An old friend had a custom of leaving a group with the advice: "Take care of yourself. Good men are scarce."

As parting words to those who travel this warning has practical value -- not to overlook the flattery.

It would make a good slogan to be painted on those hail-and-farewell signs that cities put beside highways. Or printed on driver's license cards. Or mounted on ornate instrument panels of the marvelous new automobiles.

Maybe the touch of flattery makes this an effective safety slogan. Everyone of us likes to think he is in that select group of persons who can hardly be spared. "Good men are scarce." So take care of yourself on the highway.

Coming down to cases, every one of us is important to someone else. Important at home or in places where men and women have opportunity to grow friendships. Automobiles and modern highways make it easier for us all to increase these contacts to have more frienks. It is a tragic blunder to turn this builder of friendships into something that breaks them up. Avoid accidents on the highways. Help save your life and that of others.

Perhaps Minnesota newspapers can submit such a safety slogan because they do believe in the individual. They report his public activities. They like to give ~~him a build up. They know his~~ value as a community man, and they help him. Naturally they are interested in saving his life - and yours. And so the newspapers of your state are working to save 100 lives a year on Minnesota highways.

"Take care of yourself. Good men are scarce."

Many Lives Lost In Storm

One of the worst blizzards in the history of this part of the country hit here at about 9:30 on Saturday evening. The storm was of the freak type and struck like a bolt of lightning with the temperature dropping 15 degrees in 12 minutes. The wind reached a velocity of 84 miles an hour and whipped up a solid flury of snow that engulfed everything.

The storm took a toll of 76 lives in the Red River Valley in northeastern North Dakota and in the Crookston and Ada areas in Minnesota and Canada. The count stands as 37 dead in North Dakota. 29 in Minnesota and 8 in Canada. The storm struck with such force that all cars on the highways were stalled by snow driven into their motors or they were blown into the ditches.

A carnival was in progress in Grygla and a Farmer's free show in Newfolden and those attending there had to stay where they were at for the night and part of Sunday. About 30 people from the vicinity of Holt spent the night at the Holt Cafe. Many of the young folks from Holt had to spend all night at Thief River Falls and some at Strathcona.

Some of the narrow escapes reported to the News Office were Rev. Hanson, who was returning from the hospital at Thief River Falls, was a few miles out of that city and managed to turn around and in company with another car, he walked in front of the cars to find the road. He was completely exhausted when he got to the home of Rev. Fjelstad. He had a frozen ear and cheek.

Marian and Eileen Larson was about a mile from home, and when their car stalled, they set out on foot and made it to their home.

Mr. and Mrs. Hilmer Moberg coming from Benitt's had to walk a half a mile to get to the Knute Nelson farm. Mrs. Moberg was real tired.

The local lady teachers were visiting at Sabe's and had to spend the night there. Augustines visiting Benitt's had to stay over night. Mr. and Mrs. Henry Nohre also stayed there. Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Johnson of Newfolden spent the night at Karvonen's. Mr. and Mrs. John Berget spent the night with relatives east of Greenbush, and Mr. and Mrs. Alton Carlson had to stay at Middle River.

Mr. and Mrs. Hartley Peterson local telephone operators, whose closing hour is at 8:00, relieved much anxiety by staying at the switchboard. They sent and received long distance calls steady from the time the storm began until 12:30 that night. They also delivered messenger calls to those who have no phones.

It is reported that a young couple near Gatzke spent all night and part of Sunday in a car after it stalled in a snowdrift. The young man is in a critical condition at a hospital.

People of the immediate vicinity of Holt can be thankful that everyone got to shelter of some kind.

The cold wind continued through Sunday.

H. O. Hanson returned home Tuesday evening from Portland Oregon.

Mrs. A. Bennes spent Tuesday at the Al Fredsickson home at Thief River Falls.

Mrs. Hartley Peterson and Donny visited Mrs. H. O. Hanson Monday evening.

Start War On Weeds

Farmers, township and county boards, rural organizations, and the county extension office are getting ready for the most complete war on weeds in the history of Marshall County. Preparations for the coming campaign are being made earlier than usnal. This is in keeping with the growing conviction that weed control should be spread over 12 months of the year and should be made an important phase of farm management.

Members of the county board have conferred with County Agent R. A. Reierson on the 1941 campaign and offered their assistance in setting up an effieient organization in this county. A number of townships are also contemplating special action this year in order to helb the regular inspectors and farmers with the work of weed eradication.

Townships in a number of cases are furnishing chemical for the eradication of small areas of infestations, while the county board will furnish a spraying machine and operator to apply the chemical without cost to the township or the individual. The county board also ships in the chemical which is sold to townships ot farmers at absolute cost.

With this fine arrangement farmers should not be hesitant in cooperating with the township weed commissioner and extension office in condusting a strong weed program in Marshrll County in 1941.

To Speak Here Sunday

Miss May Ronglie, member of the faculty of the Middle River high school will speak at the Nazareth Luther League on Sunday evening. Miss Rognlie is acquainted with many of the young people in this congregation in that she has served as Dean of Women at Bible Camp a number of times. She is a graduate of Concordia College and has also worked in Lake Park Children's home.

How about a Ladies Chorus in Holt? Let's get one started.

CCC Enrollemnt April 1

Another CCC enrollment will be open to Minnesota young men beginning April 1 and continuing 20 days, according to an announcement made in St. Paul this week by Walter W. Finke, Director of the Division of Social Welfare.

During the 20 day period, selectees will be sent to camps to replace those who have left to take private employment, as a result of training received in the camps.

Training facilities are being extended and include on-the-job instruction, supplemented by class work in camp schools and, in many cases, vocational coures at nearby schools. Practical training is to be had in auto mechanics, blacksmithing, blasting, blue print reading, concrete construction, electrical repair, metal work, radio, telephone construction and maintenance, and welding. Vocational training includes operation of heavy automotive equipment, cooking, baking, commercial training, agriculture, and conservation work.

The enrollment is open to any young man between 17 and 23 years of age who is unemployed and in need of employment. Detailed information cah be obtained from the County Welfare Office.

The boys earn $30 a month plus food, clothing and medical care. In addition to spending money paid each month, at least $7 per month will be placed on deposit to be paid at the time the enrollee leaves the CCC.

Do you remember those first crude automobiles in the long ago, that ran on one cylinder?

That is just the way farming used to run, when it was on a one-crop basis. But single crop farming does not pay, over a term of years. Diversification assures some income from different sources.

SEWING CIRCLE

THIS is the kind of dress in which large women look best, because it is skillfully designed to accentuate height, place emphasis at the top, and make curves look attractive, not heavy. It's very simple—just the type you like best and wear most—a basic style appropriate for general wear and afternoon. The skirt is slim and paneled. The bodice is made with smooth shoulder yokes and just enough gathers to ensure correct bust fit. And the neckline of this dress (design No. 8877) is unusually good.

When you see how beautifully it fits and how good it feels, you'll repeat this pattern time after time, in flat crepe, spun rayon, silk print and sheers.

Pattern No. 8877 is designed for sizes 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46, 48, 50 and 52. Size 38 requires, with three-quarter sleeves, 4⅗ yards of 39-inch material; short sleeves, 4⅙ yards; 2½ yards trimming. Send order to:

Help Them Cleanse the Blood of Harmful Body Waste

Your kidneys are constantly filtering waste matter from the blood stream. But kidneys sometimes lag in their work—do not act as Nature intended—fail to remove impurities that, if retained, may poison the system and upset the whole body machinery.

Symptoms may be nagging backache, persistent headache, attacks of dizziness, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes—a feeling of nervous anxiety and loss of pep and strength.

Other signs of kidney or bladder disorder are sometimes burning, scanty or too frequent urination.

STAGE SCREEN RADIO

By VIRGINIA VALE
(Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

PARAMOUNT'S "The Lady Eve" is certainly one of the best pictures that has come out of Hollywood in years and years; it's the third excellent picture in a row for Preston Sturges, who wrote and directed it. Henry Fonda acquires new laurels as a comedian, Barbara Stanwyck is completely delightful, the rest of the cast (which includes Charles Coburn, Eric Blore and William Demarest) couldn't be improved on.

The company launched the picture in New York with something different in the way of a cocktail party. A night club was turned—more or less—into a Garden of Eden, and five pretty girls were engaged to act as Eves. Since there's a snake that plays a prominent part in the picture, one was provided. Dr. Raymond L. Ditmars, curator of reptiles at the Bronx zoo, was present; he felt that the party would do much to dissipate the popular phobia against snakes. A consultant psychologist theorized on perfect women in general and the five Eves in particular. Then Emma, the snake, departed for the zoo, and the women guests breathed easier.

Eighteen months ago, when she sang at a Los Angeles musical, she attracted the attention of Metro executives. Before the afternoon was over she had an appointment with Louis B. There's no telling how many of our future radio stars will succeed because Fritz Blocki, producer of "Your Dream Has Come True," gave them a start. Auditioning for the program is no ordinary affair. The entire week preceding a broadcast is spent in listening to the many people who want to appear on the program; when it's difficult to make a choice between actors, a recording of the voice in question is made and the radio department makes a decision.

As big name actors and actresses have no meaning on this program, the unknowns have a wonderful opportunity—and under Blocki's skillful tutelage they are sure of getting excellent training.

Banana Oil

Banana oil is not made from the banana fruit or the banana tree. Strangely enough, this transparent, colorless liquid has no connection with bananas other than the fact it has a banana-like odor. It is isoamyl acetate, produced by the union of certain acetic acids with amyl alcohol.

WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS By Edward C. Wayne

U. S. Maps New Ways to Aid British As Senate Passes Lease-Lend Bill; Nazi Spring Offensive Gains Speed With Balkans as Center of Activity

(EDITOR'S NOTE—When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of the news analyst and not necessarily of this newspaper.)
(Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

Following Senate passage of the Lease-Lend bill, providing a method of extensive aid to Britain, these senators get together for a united handclasp. They are (Left to right) Senator Barkley of Kentucky, majority leader; Senator Wheeler of Montana, opposition leader and bitter foe of the bill, and Senator George of Georgia, foreign affairs committee chairman. The vote was 60 to 31.
(See Below: Lease-Lend, Finally.)

LEASE-LEND:
Finally

The passage of the lease-lend bill, called many names by its opponents, including the lend-spend bill and the lend-give bill, suddenly was passed by the U. S. senate by 60-31.

The action seemed sudden after the long and vituperative debate which found Democrats leading the opposition and many Republicans finally in the favoring fold.

As the vote neared on the final day, almost exactly two months to a day from the time when it was jointly introduced in both houses, leading opponent Wheeler (Mont.) declared angrily:

"I have been told by New Dealers who get their information direct from the feed-trough that the United States will be at war by April 1."

Within the hour, however, the bill had passed, and the same Senator Wheeler grinningly was posing for pictures amicably patting the joined hands of Democratic Leader Barkley of Kentucky and George of Georgia, the bill's leading proponents.

Many amendments were added in the senate, but those which were passed did not arouse as much comment as those which went down to defeat.

Chief among these were three, the Ellender amendment which would have kept the President's hands tied on the movement of U. S. troops, the anti-convoy measure, and the Taft substitute for the entire bill, which would have made two billions available immediately for Britain, but which would have nullified most of the general intent of the British aid measure as originally framed.

The seven amendments added in the house, which limit the size of the aid to $1,300,000,000 without further authorization by congress, and which limit the life of contractual obligations, and which make it mandatory for the President to advise congress of steps taken, and which make it possible for congress to terminate the arrangement under certain circumstances, seemed generally acceptable to the senate, at least to the majority of senators, and materially shortened the fight against it in the upper house.

The solid Democratic South was strongly in favor of the bill and chief opposition generally was more marked from the Middle and Far West. The eastern senators were generally in favor, and of the 10 Republicans who voted "Aye," six were from New England and New Jersey, while only Aiken of Vermont, Danaher of Connecticut and Tobey of New Hampshire made the three out of seventeen Republicans who voted "Nay." Of the thirteen Democrats who voted against the bill, only one, Reynolds (N. C.) was from the South, and only one, Walsh (Mass.) was from the East.

The issue was clear-cut, the opposition saying in effect two things:

(a) the measure was frankly a war measure;

(b) it would give the President dictatorial powers.

The proponents took two positions:

(a) the bill was our best protection against active entry into the war because it would aid Britain in holding the Nazi menace away from our shores;

(b) amendments adopted in both houses provided sufficient safeguards against dictatorial powers, and strong single and central power in the President's hands was needed in order to make the aid swift, certain and considerable.

What Next?

Aside from Senator Wheeler's daring prediction of "War by April 1," Washington observers began to ask themselves what would be the natural aftermath of the passage of the bill.

The bill frankly created one huge arsenal out of this country, and it was anticipated that the first act of our government would be to begin the transfer of huge stocks of war material already on hand across the Atlantic to England.

Much of it, too, could be expected to be transferred to Mediterranean ports, where many of the American-built airplanes are now in service.

Another step certain to be taken, it was said, would be the awarding of certain proportions of American defense contracts now being executed to Britain, and making arrangements for delivery. Some more American freighters, it was felt, would be given to Britain, and probably some more destroyers, of which Willkie stressed the British need.

SPRING:
Offensive

The Nazi spring offensive was gaining momentum, and the chief early activity was in the Balkans where, on the face of reports, if they could be believed, Germany was making a determined bid to pull Italy's Albanian chestnuts out of the Greek fire.

The reports of activity were voluble and confusing, as might be expected from activities that were at least 50 per cent diplomatic and the other 50 per cent actual motion of troops and materials.

First step was the German infiltration into Rumania, with its terrific and chaotic aftermath; then came the "mufti-invasion" of Bulgaria, closely followed by an actual taking over of that country and the massing of troops and munitions in force on the Greek-Bulgar frontier.

The number of these troops was variously estimated, the highest figure being about 600,000.

The throwing of 600,000 men of German blitz caliber against Greece, most military men agreed, would be fatal to the Hellenes if they had at the same time to continue to defend against a counter-attack of Italians bolstered by Nazi officers in Albania.

That is, it would be fatal unless Greece had substantial help. This, on the other hand, if reports again could be believed, England was about to send. On the face of things, Britain had already given Greece considerable and substantial aid in the Albanian battle, had vigorously engaged and whipped the Italians in Africa, and was strong in her promises to aid Greece on the northern front when, as and if the German attack materialized.

This aid was going to come, it seemed obvious that it would have to involve Turkey, which would have to get in the war on the side of England and Greece.

Visits by Eden and General Sir John Dill were followed by their moving over to Athens; the landing of British troops at Salonika, reputedly a full motorized division, and the formal request, a few days later, by the Greek authorities, for a formal assurance by Turkey that her treaty commitments would be met.

The stand of Russia at the moment was dubious enough, but most observers believed she would act in the same manner she did in the case of the invasion of Poland, namely, hold off until German success was sure.

QUOTES . . .

MEXICO CITY—Foreign Minister Padilla: "Let us go forward proudly to our defense, convinced that we are defending a great cause."

* * *

WASHINGTON—Miss Harriet Elliott (National Defense Council): "It seems unlikely that American women will be able to have a field day by sacrificing their aluminum pots and pans to the nation's defense as did the women of England."

At Home

CAMP UPTON, LONG ISLAND, N. Y.—This striking warlike scene brings battle picture close to home as a corporal of the 198th Coast Artillery waits his turn to insert a shell into a 3-inch anti-aircraft gun during artillery drill.

TIT FOR TAT:
Italy-U. S.

Washington was mildly inflamed, if such a term can be used, when Mussolini, without any diplomatic interchange, ordered U. S. consulates at Naples and Palmero closed.

Also all of the American embassy and consular officials in Italy were ordered practically to be "confined to quarters"—that is, their diplomatic rights to move about the country were denied, and they were given categorical orders to stay within the areas to which they were assigned.

Cordell Hull acted promptly in reprisal. The Italian consulates at Detroit and Newark were ordered closed and Mr. Hull added to these actions the same type of restrictive order regarding the movements of Italian diplomatic officers and members of the consular service here.

Mostly Americans were amused by this interchange, particularly in the comparison of Detroit and Newark with Naples and Palermo.

However, Mr. Hull's orders carried with them one additional item which carried a somewhat sinister note, and that was that he especially restricted the Italian military and naval attaches.

NIGHT CLUB:
And Death

There were many who believed that Hitler was merely putting on a sideshow in the Balkans, attempting to lure England away from Africa and the Suez, thus permitting two things—a drastic attack on the canal and Gibraltar at the same time; and, second, a strong invasion attempt on the British isles with England's head turned the other way.

That this might be so was seen in the fact that the Nazi Luftwaffe launched almost its bitterest air night attack on London that the war has seen.

Many civilians walking along a road were killed and wounded; a direct hit was scored on a night club with many casualties; and two bombs hit streets on each side of a cafe, collapsing the building and burying many who were dining there after dark.

Cables carried pathetic stories of the night-club bombing, telling how the bomb landed in the midst of the band-stand, killing the band-leader and many of his musicians; scattering death and desperate injury among a gay group of dancing men and women, the latter expensively gowned.

Though with customary British censorship the location or name of the club was not cabled, it must from the description have been an exclusive recreation spot, for the well-to-do, showing that the East-Enders have not been the only sufferers from the air blitz.

ODDITIES
. . . in the news

BARCELONA. — A hitch-hiking farmer got a ride from a truck which was carrying an empty coffin. He got inside. Two other farmers were picked up and rode sitting alongside the coffin, unaware a third passenger was within. Suddenly the lid was raised and the farmer said: "Why, it's stopped raining." The two other passengers leaped in terror. One was instantly killed.

* * *

WASHINGTON. — New Federal regulations have been issued that hot-dog sausages must have listed on their outsides what is inside, in the order of predominance.

* * *

FRANKFORT, KY.—The Employment commission in Kentucky has ruled as to the status of two important members of the working classes. A pin-boy in a bowling alley is an employee. But a caddy is his own boss—he being listed as a contractor, and hence exempt from the wage and hour law minimums.

USE 52 SMALL SPOOLS AND 24 LARGE ONES
USE 4 BRASS CURTAIN RODS RUN THROUGH SPOOLS AND BOARDS

GLUE

"DEAR MRS. SPEARS: I have made a pair of spool shelves like those you give directions for in your Sewing Book No. 3. They are painted watermelon pink to match the flowers in my bedroom curtains; and they are very pretty hung at each side of the windows. I would like to make some end tables of spools for the living room, but I can't think of a way to make them rigid. Have you any suggestions as to how this may be done? B. P."

Curtain rods are used through the spools to make the legs. Better take along a spool to try when you shop for the rods; and get the type that has one piece fitting inside the other. If the spools are a little loose on the rod, it won't make any difference for they must be glued between each spool, and also between the spools and the table shelves.

Leather From the Sea

Today there is a source of leather supply formerly unknown. It is the sea. The casing or lining of a whale's stomach provides a thousand square feet or more of strong leather which tans well. The skins of young sharks make a leather excellent for women's shoes because it takes dye perfectly. The hide of the manatee, or sea cow, is another source of leather suitable for footwear, while porpoise hide (which is actually the skin of the beluga or white whale) is naturally waterproof.

Rays of different kinds, very common in tropical seas, provide a fine and flexible leather and many other fish are being experimented upon. The difficulty is that in the case of most fish the skin is very thin and hard to remove without damage, while the tanning is also a matter requiring much care.

TIPS to Gardeners

NEW SWEET PEAS

A NEW, more vigorous, longer-blooming, heat-resistant sweet pea family has been introduced to the gardening world. It is the spring flowering sweet pea.

Because of their newness, spring flowering sweet peas are as yet available in only seven colors. Three All-American prize-winners were introduced last year: Rose pink, blue, and lavender. The new ones this year are white, clear pink, light lavender, and mauve.

The new sweet peas are grown just like other types now in general use. They may be planted outdoors as soon as the soil can be worked. For best results the soil should be spaded to a depth of 18 inches, and the lower 12 inches mixed with fertilizer, preferably well-rotted manure. The trench should then be filled with the soil-fertilizer mixture to within six inches of the top, and the seed planted one inch deep in this shallow trench.

After vines are well established they should be watered thoroughly once every five to seven days, and the flowers picked regularly.

"THE BETTER WAY"

- There are two ways of life, the "restricted prohibited way" and the "liberty, self-controlled way."
- In central Minnesota are two cities about the same size (1,500 population) and only a few miles apart, that illustrate these two different ways of life.
- "C———", the first city, (this study was made in 1939) is typical—main street, newspaper, general store, bank, yes, and four beer taverns, but the local authorities insist on strict observance of the laws. No minor ever buys a glass of beer; no booths are permitted; the taverns observe the closing hours. Result: there are no drinking problems in this city.
- "D———", the neighboring city, discontinued the sale of beer in January, 1939. When investigators visited this city in August of 1939, every law-abiding citizen interviewed was disgusted with existing conditions. The day the beer taverns closed their doors six bootleggers started plying their nefarious trade; fights and drunkenness became common sights.
- A year of this was a sufficient lesson. At the 19[illegible] city election "D———" voted for licensing the return of 3.2 beer and the return of the "liberty, self-controlled way." of living.

Food Map of Europe as of Today

The starvation areas of Europe can be seen at a glance, above. This map will now darken from month to month as, in many countries, the last remaining food stocks reach exhaustion.

New York (Special) — All Europe is on short rations. Only tiny Portugal still commands a normal food supply. Before the first of the next harvests can be reaped, five months must elapse. In some countries, remaining food stocks will have been exhausted long before, when conditions of slow starvation which already exist will become actual famine. Moreover, in several European countries the harvest covers only a few months consumption.

The above map has been drawn to bring the threatened areas into relief. As may be seen at a glance, the British Isles, Germany, Italy and the Balkans, although all on rations, are not in danger. But the little, western democracies, always dependent on overseas supplies and now cut off by the blockade, are already on a semi-starvation basis.

Darkest, immediate spots in the picture are Belgium and Poland (the latter because of war devastation and partitioning). Here, actual famine already prevails. People are dying of sheer hunger. But Spain, France, Holland, Norway and Finland are not far behind. The above map will now darken quickly from month to month. The terrible food emergency in Europe, so long forecast by food experts, is now but a step away.

Spain may be able to get some help from the Argentine. In the case of the other countries, however, their main hope seems to be the United States. Like the Argentine, the United States not only holds large, surplus carryovers of foodstuffs of which it would be glad to get rid but each one of these starving countries holds in this country frozen dollar balances ample to pay for the food they need. Belgium, alone, has several hundred million dollars in assets here. It is then primarily a question whether it can be arranged to pass this food through the blockade if, at the European end, it can be taken in control by a tight, neutral agency which will supervise its distribution to non-belligerent, civilian populations only—and a guarantee that it will not fall into other hands.

They have found, also, a variety of smart ways of serving this healthful and long-favored food. Your family will like them—so will your guests.

In Fashionable Frocks

Calf's Liver with Fried Sauerkraut: Cut one and one-half pounds of calf's liver in pieces for serving. Dip in boiling water for a few moments, drain and remove the skin along the edges and veins. Season well with salt and pepper, and dip in flour. Fry in hot fat in a skillet until done and a nice brown. Remove, and use the drippings for making a brown milk gravy. Meanwhile drain three cups of canned sauerkraut and fry in a skillet with three tablespoons of fat until slightly brown. Serve with the liver and gravy. This serves six persons.

Creamed Sauerkraut: Sauté three tablespoons of sliced onion and four tablespoons of shredded green pepper in three tablespoons of fat until the onions become pale yellow. Add three tablespoons of flour and stir until smooth. Add two cups of milk slowly, stirring until thick and creamy. Season to taste with salt and pepper. Add two cups of canned sauerkraut and heat thoroughly. This serves six persons.

Furr-Risberg Wedding

Miss Hazel E. Furr and Mr. Orville H. Risberg were quitely married at the Lutheran Parsonage in Holt at noon on Saturday, March 22. Rev. T. C. L. Hanson officiated using the single ring ceremony. Their only attendants were Mr. and Mrs. Alner Risberg of Thief River Falls, brother and sister-in-law of the groom. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ed Furr of northeast of Holt. The groom is son of Mrs. Anna Risberg of Middle River. They will make their home in Middle River where the groom is employed by the Co-op Oil Company.

The Weather

Last Friday afternoon and evening we had another quite heavy snowfall here. Since then it has not thawed much but yesterday it turned real mild and cut a heavy swath in reducsng our big snow crop.

Cheer up folks--Spring is just around the corner. So is prosperity and it is only a question now of which one has the right of way and will make a showing here first. Some people seem to think it would not be a bad idea if we had a double-header for once.

Bernard Larson, former Mud Lake farmer was in town on Monday and stated that he was going to take a vacation by going out to the west coast to visit relatives. He expects to leave Monday.

Ladies Aid To Have Parish Day

Something unique in the annals of Nazareth Ladies Aid will be held on Friday, April 4, when this organization is the host to the other Ladies Aids of this parish. Silver Creek Ladies Aid, Lanstad Ladies Aid and East Landstad Ladies Aid will be the guests of the local Aid. Much enthusiasm in this day had been shown by the other Aids and a fine representation from these groups is expected. A special program will be given. Mrs. Alma Lind of Badger, president of the Thief River Falls Circuit of the Women's Missionary Federation will speak. Other officers of the Circuit is also expected to partake in the program. Due to the large groups of women expected to be present from this congregations of the parish, the church will be used for this occasion. The total membership in these four organizations is about 135. Visitors are welcome and needles to say, the members of the local organization are urged to be present.

The following members of Circle No. 2 will serve: Mrs. Edgar Wegge, Mrs. A. C. Conklin, Mrs. Ole Larson, Mrs. Ole Lunke Mrs. Bertil Ness, Mrs. Ed Furr, Martha Helst, Mrs. Johnnie Nelson, Mrs. Julian Rodahl.

Vacancies Exist In C C C

There is plenty of room for additional men to be selected into CCC from Marshall County early in April, according to information sent out by Paul T. Steen, Executive Secretary of the Marshall County Welfare Board.

Ambitious young men between the ages of 17 and 23 of sound health are desired. They need not be from relief families as the requirement states they are to be both "unemployed and in need of employment." $30.00 per month is paid the men and they are given free board, room and clothing. One-half of their earnings are sent to their dependents, $8.00 of the balance is paid to the man in cash and $7.00 is deposited as a savings for the man. There is a splendid program of job training which includes both book work and actual experience. Interested men are urged to contact the Welfare Office in Warren immediately.

Two Men Leave For Army

Two more local men, who have been drafted for service in the U. S. Army, left here on Sunday for Fort Snelling at Minneapolis. They were George Jarshaw, son of Mr. and Mrs. Martin Jarshaw, and Arthur Knutson, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Knutson, former Holt residents. Mr. Knutson was here Sunday and said good-by to his many friends. The people of Holt wish both men luck in their new venture.

Visitors at the Ole Lunke home Sunday were Mr. and Mrs. Hilmer Lunke and children of Thief River Falls, Mr. and Mrs. Bertil Ness and family, Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Lunke and Maxine, Gerald and Bertha Moberg, Ludvig Larson, Harold and Ruben Ness and Elsie Carlson.

The American Album Pageant

The American Album, an pageant depicting the American character in the costumes and activities of the past and present will be presented Monday, March 31, in the Lincoln High School Auditorium at 8:15 P. M. A cast of over sixty local people will take part in the various scenes; extensive costuming, music and activity will be used to show the public a panoramic view of American life. Humor and color will be contributed by special numbers including folk dances, a floradora sextet, and the—jazz age flapper—.

Beginning with the earliest American, the Indian, the various periods of American life will be depicted on the stage. Colonial America, the period of western expansion, the Civil War era, and the Gay Nineties will appear. The turn of the century, the flapper period; and the modern age will be shown. A dialogue between three special characters will serve to give sequente to the scenes and to add comment and humor to the presentation. The American Album traces the "personality" of our country as seen in the manners and appearance of each period in the growth of our nation.

The pageant is being sponsored by the Thief River Falls Parent-Teachers Association to raise funds for the purchase of choir robes. The public is invited for the performance and for a reception afterward where the costumes will be shown. These cosumes are of interest in that some are authentic period styles of great beauty and rarity and others are careful reproductions of historicrl fashions. Under the direction of Mrs. E. F. Wright and Mr. James Carlson, the pageant's cast of over sixty will be made up of local people known to the entire community. The admission charge is 20 cents. Lincoln High School Auditorium, Thief River Falls.

Card fo Thanks

I wish to thank all those who visited me while at the hospital. Also for the many beautiful cards, flowers and gifts, and to the Nazareth Ladies Aid for the book. God Bless you all!

Mrs. T. C. L. Hanson.

Mr. Henley and Mr. Star of the Minnesota Electric Dist. Co., was here trying to induce the Village Council to bond the village for $12,000 to give the company for building a high-line in here. They also wanted the local people to buy $5,000 of preferred stock. The deal fell dead.

Storm Warning Was Inadequate

Governor Harold E. Stassen still is not satisfied that the U. S. Weather Bureau gave adequate warning of the disastrous storm which took some seventy lives in the Northwest March 15th and 16th and is insisting upon further investigation of the matter.

"The only general weather news prior to the actual striking of the storm was the announcement at 9:35 A. M. on Saturday March 15th," he said, "of the following forecast: 'Occasional light snow tonight and Sunday—cold wave with strong Northwest winds Snuday, beginning in thg northwest and central portions tonight.'

"It seemed to me that clearly this was not an adeqnate warning or forecast to the people, and I therfore wired the Honorable Jesse Jones, Secretary of Commerce at Washington, whose department has jurisdiction over these matters, as follows: 'We feel that the tragic loss of life in the March 15th blizzard, duplicating the November 11th experience, was seriously contributed to by inadequate weather bureau service of warnings for this Northwest Area. The tragedies of farm people, including children, trapped in a whole gale blizzard without warning, calls for decisive action to prevent repetition. An investigation by you would reveal a startling lack of warnings.'

"He has replied that he felt that the weather forecast was accurate and prompt, referring also to additional statements about the weather, which were made on just one of the Twin City radio stations and which were not released generally to all radio stations and newspapers.

"He also admitted that they had a report from Edmonton, Canada, at 7:30 A. M. on Saturday, March 15th, of this approaching storm.

"I have replied to him insisting that our protection has not been adequate and asking that he investigate thoroughly this matter so that we might not have a repetition of this tragic loss."

Flexible Farm Leases

Landlords want to get a good tenant and keep him on their farm as long as he will stay, was the comment of Charley Ommodt Farm Security supervisor, in explaining the "Flexible Lease" of FSA. Although most rental agreements have now been made, lease forms are still available for the benefit of those who may have made verbal arrangements and wish to put them in writing.

"This lease does not necessarily provide for a long term lease, but it sets up conditions under which the tenant and landlord will be helped to work out arrangements which will benefit both of them and will cause them to want to continue such arrangement," said the supervisor. The lease usually is made with the "automatic renewal" clause, which provides that it is renewed at the end of every year unless written notice is given within a certain time, preferably within six months and not less than three months.

"Our experience has been that the best way to create mutual understanding and trust between landlord and tenant is for them to enter into a definite, written agreement which covers all the important aspects of their relationship," Mr. Ommodt said.

To encourage such agreements the FSA and the U. S Department of Agriculture have worked out flexible lease forms which are available not only to FSA cooperators, but to other tenants as well. These forms are written in clear, understandable language and, as the names suggest, are flexible and can be completed to meet the needs of a large variety of rental agreements. Free copies of either "flexible lease" may be had from the county office of the Farm Security Administration, 116 North LaBree in Thief River Falls.

Word was received from Mrs. C. O. Saastad, who is visiting her sister Mrs. Christine Dunning at Seattle, Washington, that she arrived safely and the climate is very favorably thus far.

One-Cylinder Farming

Do you remember those first crude automobiles in the long ago, that ran on one cylinder?

That is just the way farming used to run, when it was on a one-crop basis. But single crop farming does not pay, over a term of years. Diversification assures some income from different sources.

Diversification helps take the risk out of the farmer's life.

NEW IDEAS
for Home-makers

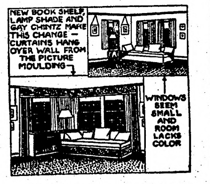
By RUTH WYETH SPEARS

HOUSES of glass are realities today and, if you want to give any house a modern air, try to make the windows seem important. One way is to frame them in a group by covering the wall and leaving the glass exposed. A comparison of these two sketches shows that this may be done even though the windows are unevenly spaced. The cream colored walls, glass curtains and window shades are the same in both and the same two-toned green rug and the same lamp and pictures are used. The couch and cushions are also the same but the covers are new.



NEW BOOK SHELF, LAMP SHADE AND GAY CHINTZ MAKE THIS CHANGE—CURTAINS HANG OVER WALL FROM THE PICTURE MOULDING
WINDOWS SEEM SMALL AND ROOM LACKS COLOR

An inexpensive chintz with gray-green ground and a flower pattern is used for draperies and to trim the couch cover of heavier gray-green cotton material which is also used for the cushions. The glass curtains are hung on rods suspended from the picture moulding with picture wire and hooks. The side drapes are unlined but the valance is made over buckram. Both are tacked to pine strips and are hung with picture hooks. One end of the book shelves is closed in to make a head for the couch. The outside is painted gray-green and the inside dark green. The parchment lamp shade has green bindings.

NOTE: All types of curtains and draperies are clearly explained with cutting and making directions in Mrs. Spears' SEWING Book 1—draw curtains, lined draperies, pinch pleated curtains, cornice boards, valance boards, as well as standard and period type curtains. Directions for modernizing a couch, various types of chairs, and a fascinating assortment of other useful homemaking projects are contained in Book 5. Copies are 10 cents each. Send order to:

WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS By Edward C. Wayne

U. S. Would Speed 'All Out' British Aid With Appropriation of Seven Billions; Landing of British Troops in Greece Adds Confusion to Balkan Situation

(EDITOR'S NOTE—When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of the news analyst and not necessarily of this newspaper.)
(Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

With the labor situation in the defense industries much in the news these prominent labor leaders called at the White House to discuss with the President the formation of a national mediation board for settling all disputes in defense production. Photo shows: (Left to right) H. C. Bates, president Brickmasons and Plasterers union; O. W. Tracy, assistant secretary of labor; Sidney Hillman, defense commission; Allen S. Haywood, C. I. O. official, and A. Johnson, locomotive engineers official, as the group left the White House.

SPEECHES:
Two Leaders

In an address that was carried by radio to all parts of the world, President Roosevelt called for an American "total effort" to provide nations resisting aggression with the war implements they need. Speaking before a gathering of the White House newspaper correspondents, the President declared in effect that the aim of the United States is "total victory" over the dictators. He said that this cannot be achieved without some very definite sacrifices on the part of the American people.

He called for a maximum output of war materials by the United States and stressed the high importance of national unity. He expressed the thought that the British people and their Grecian allies needed ships, planes, food, tanks, guns, ammunition and supplies of all kinds. He followed this with the statement that America would provide them with all these things.

Day later Adolf Hitler spoke to his countrymen and told them that no amount of outside help would permit the British to defeat the Axis powers. He did not refer directly to President Roosevelt's speech.

Germany, according to Hitler, has been preparing throughout the past winter for a final drive to victory in 1941. He predicted that this final victory would come "on land, sea, or air or in any part of the earth."

BRITISH:
First Again

The British, who have been trying their utmost to get the jump on their Nazi and Fascist opponents since Germany made hash out of French and British armies on the West Wall, apparently had beaten the Germans to the punch on the northern Greek front.

The story came, not from British sources, but from the Nazi officials in Belgrade, Yugoslavia. The move had two important objects, apparently, one to attempt the hopeless task of keeping Yugoslavia in line as a possible Nazi opponent in a drive on Greece, the other to put troops into position for a swift and powerful defense against a Nazi invasion from Bulgaria.

The story was that 100,000 soldiers, including shiploads of munitions, tanks and other mechanized equipment, sufficient for five full divisions, had been landed and were taking up positions on Greek soil opposite to the estimated 500,000 Nazis in Bulgaria.

The original informant said that official denials could be expected both from the Greeks and the British.

However, entirely unofficially, British authorities told correspondents in London that the reports of the landing of the British forces in Greece "probably were well founded."

Germany immediately denied any knowledge of the movement, and as the Greeks were not letting newspaper men into that territory, but indeed were evacuating everyone in expectation that it would be a battleground, the entire story was impossible of positive confirmation.

The same report said that Germany was wheeling her mechanized forces and her planes into position for immediate attack.

CHINESE:
For Britain

One of the most unusual dispatches, never confirmed, but never denied, emanated from Tokyo, and told how the Chinese nationalist government was sending a million Chinese men to Britain's Malay possessions to serve as soldiers.

The men, according to this story, will be armed and outfitted for the Far East defense by American shipments of arms and ammunition.

According to reports brought to Belgrade by neutral diplomats, five ships a day have been coming into southern ports in Greece, and have moved forward to take positions in the central part of the country, readily accessible to the northern frontier.

Die Is Cast

The move by the British meant that they had cast the die, that they were going to move in full force to the aid of Greece, and hence that if Germany wants to force a separate peace with Greece it will have to be a real military victory, and not merely diplomatic pressure.

This move, together with the landing at Salonika, was not without a powerful effect on Turkey, which, unlike Yugoslavia, seemed to have some ability to stand out against the Nazi inroads, and to hold herself in alliance with Greece and Britain, in accordance with the wishes of the government majority.

While Berlin refused to confirm the reports, and refused to comment on them in any way, it was considered ominous that the statement should be made in a Nazi communique that "the moment had now come for a decisive act in German-Greek relations."

ENVOY:
'Means Business'

W. A. Harriman marched up to newspaper men on the Bristol, England, airport as a special representative of President Roosevelt and said these words:

"Believe me, the United States means business in this war."

They were cheering words to the English, and at the same time in this country President Roosevelt's lease-lend plan went zooming ahead, with congressional approval of the $7,000,000,000 implementation of the law a certainty.

It was within the same week of the passage of the British aid act that the house subcommittee swept into instant action and approved the amount.

President Roosevelt already had "sold" senate and house leaders that the amount was no figment of the imagination, thought up hurriedly, but was, rather, the carefully considered amount which would take care of a sizeable aid to Britain program for the life of the bill—July, 1943.

The newspapers printed careful breakdowns of the 7 billion amount, showed how this and that had been divided out, and how safeguards had been thought out as to the question of moving funds from one category to another.

It was all placed before the public succinctly and with his usual compelling power of oratory by President Roosevelt himself in an address to the nation. Without telling any secrets, or tipping off adverse powers, the President took the people into his confidence, and just on the eve of the consideration of the measure, too.

That clinched the situation, in view of congressional leaders, who figured that in three days, at most, it would be all over, and the administration would have, practically intact except for some dozen amendments, his fully implemented aid-to-Britain plan.

Industrial Lag Seen

So confident was the President of the outcome, based on the advices of those close to him and watching congress, that he issued an announcement even before his radio address, that he was planning to spend the whole huge sum within 16 months.

William S. Knudsen, however, the head of Production Management, hinted at an industrial lag, and said that it would probably be two to three months before the whole British aid program would really get going.

THE CASE:
Of Hottelet

RICHARD C. HOTTELET
"Suspicion of espionage."

It was something more than mere coincidence that close upon the passage of the lease-lend bill the Nazis arrested Richard C. Hottelet, a United Press correspondent in Berlin, on "strong suspicions" of espionage.

The D. N. B. announcement said that Hottelet was suspected of having conducted espionage in the interests of an enemy country. This, of course, ruled out the United States, and the Germans themselves said: "Naturally the United States is not an enemy power."

It was added that the espionage of which Hottelet is suspected had nothing to do with his journalistic work.

As the case went forward into the preliminary hearing stage, Americans began to wonder two things:

1. Did the arrest of Hottelet have anything to do with the arrest in the United States of Zapp and Tonn, the agents of the Transocean News Service, a Nazi outfit?

2. Did the arrest have anything to do with the passage of the lease-lend bill, and was this to be interpreted as the start of a series of Nazi reprisals which could end only in the entry of America into the European war?

The very day that the special grand jury in Washington returned the Zapp and Tonn indictments, the Nazis arrested Hottelet.

It also might be remembered by some that Mussolini closed the American consulates at Naples and Palermo, and the United States followed suit with the Italian consulates at Newark and Detroit.

TRAGEDY:
On the Prairie

Windstorm, snow and severe cold combined to take at least 66 lives in eastern North Dakota and western Minnesota as one of the most severe storms in the memory of pioneers swept across the prairie country.

When their cars stalled or were blown off the highway most of the persons who lost their lives tried to walk to the safety of nearby farmhouses but were either frozen to death before they could reach shelter or else died of sheer exhaustion in battling the terrific wind. The gale at times reached a velocity of 85 miles per hour.

SCORNFUL:
Are the Greeks

The "Greeks have a word" for Mussolini, following the episode in which Il Duce took personal charge of the Fascist troops on the Albanian front.

They called him "bogus Caesar." The story is that Mussolini took charge about the first week in March, and that after a short time at the front he told his generals they'd have to produce something in the way of a victory at the "Ides of March."

The generals, so they said in Athens, did their best. Fresh troops were rushed into the Tepelini battle, troops well equipped with all the arms of war, and each attack they launched, the Greeks said, was beaten back with heavy losses.

Among those killed were two members of Il Duce's cabinet. The defenders of Greece claimed that Mussolini had failed as had his armies, for Benito had hoped to build up their morale, but the men in the front lines still showed, it was claimed, the "spirit of despair" and the "criminal indifference" to fighting that had marked the long series of defeats in Albania.

In the final five days of the fierce Italian drive, the Greeks claimed, they killed 15,000 of the Fascist soldiers, decimating entire battalions, and reducing the strength of five divisions to about one-half.

MISCELLANY?

LANCASTER, PA: A member of the Dunkard sect, whose religious convictions against killing people in war were so strong that he was a conscientious objector to the draft for religious reasons, was given a life term for slaying his rival in love.

LONDON: That Britain is leaving no stone unturned in preparation for a Nazi invasion attempt was seen in the announcement that leaflets were being distributed among the populace telling them not to flee and clog the roads if the invader comes to their very doors. "Stand firm and help the troops," the message read.

ISTANBUL: Former British Minister to Bulgaria George W. Rendel, on whom an assassination attempt was made when he arrived here, insisted on a search for bombs being made in his luggage before setting out for Ankara.

Star Dust
STAGE SCREEN RADIO

By VIRGINIA VALE
(Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

ERNEST LUBITSCH recently signed a contract with 20th-Century Fox that promises us something special in the way of movies. He will choose and direct his own stories. So we'll have the celebrated Lubitsch touch applied to tales that he feels are particularly suitable. He has one more picture to do for United Artists before he starts out on his new contract.

Merle Oberon says that she knows it's silly, but she can't help being affected by the roles she plays. For instance, after a day of "Wuthering Heights" she'd go home and cry herself to sleep, because she was so depressed.

"In 'The Cowboy and the Lady' I was somewhat of a spoiled brat and I had to watch myself to keep from being as demanding off the screen as I was on," Miss Oberon continued.

With a good many innocent bystanders the effect was just the reverse. After they saw "Wuthering Heights" they rushed out and demanded more pictures as good as that one, but "The Cowboy and the Lady" sent them weeping to their corners because it was so bad.

MERLE OBERON

Anyway, Miss Oberon jumped at the chance to play a modern, witty young wife in "That Uncertain Feeling," opposite Melvyn Douglas, because she felt that it had something very special for her—a chance to be just herself. It's a Lubitsch picture.

Martha Scott won a horse in a raffle the other day—it cost her all of a dollar, and it's called Red Ember. Then the producer of "They Dare Not Love," in which she is co-starred with George Brent, saw the horse and announced that it was exactly what he needed for William Holden to ride in "Texas," which he is also producing. So Red Ember was signed up, and will earn $25 a day when he works.

If, when you see Margaret Hayes' face on the screen, it looks familiar, it will be because you've seen it before. She was a model for New York artists and photographers, and a well known one, before she went to Hollywood, and her name in those days was Dana Dale. She has the second leading feminine role in "The Night of January 16th," supporting Ellen Drew and Robert Preston, and look for her in "Skylark," with Claudette Colbert.

Rio Rita has had quite a career during the last two years as a band leader, singer and dancer; she's appeared on Broadway and at theaters throughout the United States. Paramount signed her up to appear as the tropical rival of Dorothy Lamour in "Aloma of the South Seas"—and promptly changed her name to Rita Shaw! It was a case of necessity, though. Metro's just bought the screen rights to the musical, "Rio Rita," from RKO and will give us a new version of it.

It's simple enough to make a fortune these days. First, you write a play that's a success on Broadway; second, you sell it to the movies. Recently Paramount paid $285,000 for "Lady in the Dark," in which Gertrude Lawrence gives a superb performance—Irene Dunne is probably the only motion picture actress who could handle it. Columbia liked "My Sister Eileen," an amusing play, well enough to buy it for $225,000.

William Holden's dispute with Paramount was settled very satisfactorily; he got a new, seven-year optional contract, at double his former salary. You'll see him before long starring in Columbia's "Texas."

ODDS AND ENDS—George Tobias sets a new record by playing in four Warner Bros.' films at the same time . . . Abbott and Costello have signed up to make four more comedies for Universal . . . Metro's acquired quite a menagerie—200 deer and 12 bears—for "The Yearling" . . . Basil Rathbone, star of "The Mad Doctor," is collecting discarded surgical instruments from doctors and surgical supply houses—sends them to England, where theres' a shortage . . . Somebody's started a rumor that Metro will co-star Greta Garbo and Mickey Rooney, which seems too fantastic even for Hollywood, where practically anything can happen.

PATTERNS SEWING CIRCLE

ONE little, two little, three little fashions—all in one easy pattern (No. 1313-B) that even inexperienced-at-sewing mothers can make with more fun than effort. This design includes a sleeveless pinafore, a brief trifle of bolero and a sunbonnet, all as cute as a baby in a bathtub! In the flaring pinafore alone, your tot can be as carefree and hoydenish as she could wish, playing on the sands or the greensward or her own backyard. When she adds the bolero, she's as demurely dressed for a visit to grandma as you could wish. The eye-protecting bonnet, of course, goes beautifully with either or both. Thus, by repeating this one pattern time and again, you can outfit your small daughter for spring and summer fun.

This little outfit looks adorable in red-checked gingham, flowered percale, plain or striped seersucker and buttercup yellow chambray, outlined with bright ricrac braid to match or contrast.

* * *

Pattern No. 1313-B is designed for sizes 2, 3, 4, 5 and 6 years. Size 3 requires 2⅞ yards of 35-inch material without nap and 8 yards of ricrac. Send order to:

TIPS to Gardeners

GARDENING AS HOBBY

GARDENING as a hobby can be made to pay excellent dividends. As an example, a Missouri woman reports she made a net profit of $300 from her two-thirds-acre garden in a single season. Figured at market prices, food used fresh was $230; food canned, $80; and food stored, $71. Seed and sets cost her only $20.

There are two major requisites to obtaining garden profits of this kind. They are, willingness to work and the use of quality seed. It is important also to devote considerable space to multiple purpose crops like beets, onions, and tomatoes—crops that can be used in a variety of ways.

Here, briefly, are the uses of principal multi-purpose crops; Onions — green, as relish; mature bulbs fried, stewed, or as seasoning; bulbs for pickle, and relish making; tops for seasoning; bulbs for storage. Tomatoes — fresh fruits for slicing or stewing, for immediate table use; for canning, or for making tomato juice, or tomato catsup; green tomatoes for frying, or for use in pickle relishes, or in pie filler (like mince meat); yellow fruits for preserves, juice, or immediate table use.

Cabbage—fresh in slaw, or salad; cooked for table use; canned as kraut, or stored. Beets—tops for greens; roots cooked fresh, canned, pickled, or stored.

A BETTER PRICE FOR CULL COWS

St. Louis, Mo.—Cull dairy cows that are in better flesh and condition command a higher price than the average run of cull cows. And it really takes no great investment in time or feeding to add the extra finish that gets the better prices. A mixture of 1,700 lbs. of ground ear corn and 300 lbs. of Purina Steer Fatena is a widely used ration to put flesh on thin stuff. Such a mixture is reasonable in cost, especially where a feeder grows his own grain, for then he has to buy but 300 lbs. of this balancing concentrate to make a ton of fattening feed.

In feeding this ration, a week should be taken to gradually place the cull cows on full feed. After that, the ration should be kept before them in self feeders or troughs until they carry enough flesh to get the better price.

"THE BETTER WAY"

- There are two ways of life, the "restricted prohibited way" and the "liberty, self-controlled way."
- In central Minnesota are two cities about the same size (1,500 population) and only a few miles apart, that illustrate these two different ways of life.
- "C———", the first city, (this study was made in 1939) is typical—main street, newspaper, general store, bank, yes, and four beer taverns, but the local authorities insist on strict observance of the laws. No minor ever buys a glass of beer; no booths are permitted; the taverns observe the closing hours. Result: there are no drinking problems in this city.
- "D———", the neighboring city, discontinued the sale of beer in January, 1939. When investigators visited this city in August of 1939, every law-abiding citizen interviewed was disgusted with existing conditions. The day the beer taverns closed their doors six bootleggers started plying their nefarious trade; fights and drunkenness became common sights.
- A year of this was a sufficient lesson. At the 1940 city election "D———" voted for licensing the return of 3.2 beer and the return of the "liberty, self-controlled way" of living.

HEALTH HINTS for LIVESTOCK

PREPARED BY AMERICAN FOUNDATION FOR ANIMAL HEALTH

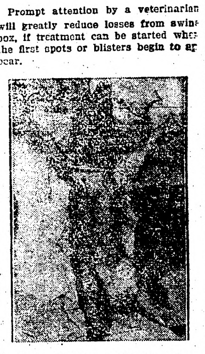
HUMAN SMALLPOX HAS COUNTERPART IN SWINE DISEASE

Swine raisers have had increasing trouble during the last few years from a hog disease which very closely resembles the human ailment, smallpox.

Swine pox, as it is called, chiefly affects young pigs and growing shoats. The pox appears on the hair-free portions of the body, especially on the belly, snout and armpits. At first the spots are the size of a pea, then they blister, and finally form a crater-like scabbed sore, the typical pox lesion. Swine pox also appears sometimes on brood sows, pox sores developing on their udders and teats. In these cases, suckling pigs develop sore mouths, and starve.

Farmers should be cautious about introducing new pigs, into a herd, and should always isolate them for a few weeks. The buyer should demand a certificate of veterinary inspection when new pigs are purchased. Poxy pigs should never be sold to neighbors, as the disease is very contagious.

Prompt attention by a veterinarian will greatly reduce losses from swine pox, if treatment can be started when the first spots or blisters begin to appear.



Swine pox is generally characterized by a breaking out on the under surface of the body.

The field of barley at the right—almost waist high—demonstrates how yields are being increased on many farms along the Great Northern Railway. The knee-high barley at the left was planted at the same time. The application of phosphate fertilizer resulted in ten days earlier maturity and 26 bushels more barley to the acre. The phosphated field yielded 56.6 bushels of 44-pound grain to the acre; the other field, 30.7 bushels of 40.5-pound grain. The picture was taken on a farm near Pipestone, Minnesota.

"The Well is Dry"

That wouldn't be good news to any farmer. But at the worst it probably would mean no more than digging a new one.

Far worse if the farm itself should wear out!

A half century has passed since the Great Northern was built through the unsettled Northwest and immigrants were unloading their tools of husbandry from box cars to begin the taming of plains and forests.

Through all these years thousands upon thousands of tons of crops have been removed from the farm lands along the railroad—crops that have built your cities and towns—crops that have provided the principal traffic of the railroad.

Hand in hand with the building of the Great Northern, efforts were begun to enrich and conserve the fertility of the land.

The experimental farms which James J. Hill established near St. Paul and in the Red River valley, the experiments he encouraged and supported wherever he laid his rails, and his employment of soil and livestock experts—these were the forerunners of the county agents and the state and federal experimental stations of today.

A half century ago, in talks at State Fairs and at meetings of farmers and livestock growers, Mr. Hill was pointing out the danger of taking fertility too much for granted.

Today the Great Northern and its corps of agricultural experts are co-operating with progressive farmers and state and federal agencies in programs to restore fertility where there are signs of approaching depletion and to enrich and conserve it elsewhere.

Different lands and different areas, of course, call for different methods—in many places, the application of phosphate; in others, crop rotation and increased use of natural fertilizers; in dryland areas, strip farming which by alternating fallow and crop strips holds fertile top soil on the farm; improved types of soil tillage to minimize drifting and retain moisture; the seeding of crested wheatgrass and other cover crops to tie down fertile top soils; and contour furrowing to decrease erosion.

And so "railroading" and farming in the territory opened up by the Great Northern have come down a half-century-old road together. They are still traveling together because both are "landed" interests. Their future is bound to the soil. And they are resolved to keep that future ahead of them and not behind them!

MINNESOTA LIVESTOCK REPORT JAN. 1, 1941

While the number of horses, mules, all cattle, sheep and hogs on Minnesota farms January 1, 1941 are about 1 per cent less than were on farms January 1, 1940, the farm value as of January 1, this year, of $256,369,000 compared with $247,136,000 January 1, 1940 shows an increase of nearly 4 per cent.

The number of chickens and turkeys on farms January 1, this year, of 19,691,000 head, compared with 19,511,000 head January 1, last year, shows a slight increase as does the combined farm value of $11,035,000 January 1, this year, compared with $10,070,000 last year.

The number of horses and colts on farms January 1, this year, were 616,000 head, average value per head $69.00 and farm value $42,280,000, compared with 635,000 head January 1, 1940, average value per head $77.00 and the total farm value $48,840,000. The number of mules and colts on Minnesota farms January 1, this year, were 11,000 head, the average value per head $88.00 and the total farm value $880,000. On January 1, 1940, there were 12,000 mules on farms with an average value per head of $84.00 and a total farm value of $1,008,000.

The number of cattle and calves on Minnesota farms January 1, this year were 3,577,000 head, which includes 1,756,000 head of cows and heifers 2 years old and over kept mainly for milk. The average value per head of all cattle was $47.00 and the total farm value was $168,165,000. The average value of milk cows per head was $64.00 and the farm value was $112,384,000, which is included in the value of all cattle. On January 1, last year, the number of all cattle was 3,-47,000 head of which 1,722,000 were milk cows. The average value per head of all cattle was $45.10 or a total farm value of $153,709,000. Of this value the 1,722,000 head had an average value per head of $61.00 and a total farm value of $105,042,000.

The number of all sheep and lambs, including sheep on feed, January 1, this year, were 1,488,000 head with an average value per head of $6.90 or a total farm value of $9,970,000. On January 1, last year, there were 1,295,000 sheep and lambs on farms with an average value per head of $6.20 and a total farm value of $8,021,000.

There were 19,343,000 chickens on farms January 1, this year, with an average farm price of 53 cents each or a total farm value of $10,252,000. On January 1, last year, there were 19,101,000 chickens on farms; the average value per bird was 48 cents and the total farm value $9,168,000. Turkeys on farms, mostly hens, January 1, this year, numbered 348,000 head with an average value per bird of $2.25 and a total farm value of $783,000. On January 1, last year, there were 410,000 mature birds, mostly hens, on farms with an average value per bird of $2.20 and a total farm value of $902,000.

This report more aptly should be termed an inventorial report of numbers and values of livestock and poultry on farms January 1, to which should be added the value of animals sold during the calendar year; in case of milk cows, sheep and poultry—their products—as milk, cream, wool, and eggs.

QUARTETS TRAINED FOR STATE CHORUS

Visitors at the State Fair next August will be greeted by a new 4-H organization which will stress the 4-H interest in music. A state chorus will be formed by boys and girls who will have had their preliminary training as county mixed quartets, says A. J. Kittleson, state 4-H leader.

The new activity is being supervised by J. Clark Rhodes, extension music instructor, who will also conduct the chorus when it forms at State Fair time. Each county will select a mixed quartet and train the boys and girls in six songs to be presented by the combined chorus.

Seed treatment is your best insurance against certain destructive diseases that cut heavily into grain yields. The process of treating is not as expensive or bothersome as one may believe. Write the Bulletin Room, University Farm, St. Paul, for Circular 58, which gives full directions for making the Minnesota seed treater. Your county agent has extra copies.

AIM FOR $1,000,000 FOR NORWAY RELIEF

One million dollars by June 1 is the immediate national goal set for Norwegian Relief, it was announced today by Dr. Orlando Ingvoldstad, Chicago, newly appointed executive secretary of the organization which is raising funds for the benefit of the people of Norway.

The campaign for funds will hit a high point on April 9, the anniversary of the Nazi invasion of Norway. On that day Norwegian churches throughout the nation will hold special prayer services for the safety of the Norwegian people, Dr. Ingvoldstad announced.

Of the fund which is nearing the half million mark, more than $70,000 is already being used to ship ready-built homes from Sweden to Norwegian communities hardest hit by the blitzkrieg. A committee of American citizens in Sweden is aiding the organization. More funds are urgently needed as the food situation becomes more acute. A shipment of medical supplies is being made up for shipment direct to Norway. Every precaution is being taken to guarantee that the funds be used only for civilian needs among the Norwegian people.

"On April 9th, the anniversary of the violation of Norwegian neutrality, we should pray that Norway be spared from the evils of want and starvation. We should then do all in our power to provide funds that the Norwegians can maintain their standards of living and Christian decency," the executive secretary said.

Dr. Ingvoldstad urged that all funds raised for Norwegian Relief, Inc., be immediately forwarded to the state treasurer of the organization. Minnesota state treasurer for Norwegian Relief is N. A. Kirkeberg, 425 South Fourth Street, Minneapolis.

CUTTING OUT FUEL WOOD IMPROVES FARM WOODLOT

The well managed woodlot should supply all the fuel needs of the farm home without curtailment of future productivity, says Parker Anderson, extension forester at University Farm, St. Paul. In a statement on winter wood cutting, he advised selecting for fuel only trees that have little value for other uses. The farm operator may be able to improve his woodlot by careful cutting, rather than deplete the stand of good trees.

Selective cutting will result in faster growth of the more valuable trees in the woodland, Anderson says. Fuel wood can come from windfalls and dead trees, as well as trees that are inferior or diseased. Trees injured by insects are likely to die anyway, and their presence may spread infestation. Crooked and deformed trees can have little commercial value. They should be cut out to make room for straight trees. The same is true of trees with stubby trunks and large crowns. Large trees which are shading out several promising young ones may be better removed. Inferior trees of smaller, less valuable species may be cut out to give other growth a better chance.

The aim in improvement cutting should be to keep the land growing the best quality timber at the fastest rate possible. Sound, straight and commercial mature trees are too valuable for fuel. Favoring such growth hastens the day when the farm woodlot will produce a cash income of considerable importance. Growing a salable timber crop is the best possible use for much land.

The farm operator who has a surplus of fuel wood can still do well marketing it in the form of cordwood, Anderson declares. Utilizing slack winter time for getting out fuel wood and improving the woodlot for commercial production is good management.

Bill Repealing Dunn Road Tax Law Advanced

With the tax burden upon real estate arousing growing concern, steps were taken at the state capital this past week, with indications of increased support, looking toward a repeal of the Dunn one-mill road tax law.

Coupled with the proposal, sponsored by a group of legislators from rural sections of the state, is a plan to increase the state gasoline tax from three to four cents and earmark $1,200,000 of the gasoline tax distributed to counties for use on state aid roads, replacing the one-mill tax allotment. Steps taken during the week looking toward repeal of the one-mill tax included:

1. Declaration of Governor Harold E. Stassen that the one-mill tax should be repealed if the gasoline tax is increased to four cents.

2. Action of the house tax committee in recommending for passage the bill repealing the one-mill Dunn road tax law. The house previously had passed a bill raising the gas tax to four cents, but at that time took no action on the companion proposal to eliminate the one-mill tax.

3. Decision of the senate motor vehicles committee in voting to defer action on the bill to increase the gasoline tax until the house passes the bill to eliminate the one-mill road tax.

Authors of the bill repealing the one-mill road tax are Senator C. I. Oliver, chairman of the senate highways committee, and Senators Oscar A. Swenson and Ancher Nelson, farmer members of the senate, and Representatives Andrew Finstuen, Walter Burdick and L. C. Dorweiler, all from rural sections of the state. All are authors on a companion bill to increase the gasoline tax to four cents.

Senator Swenson told members of the senate motor vehicles committee that the repeal of the one-mill tax law would give some relief to property owners and that the people generally will approve the change. Authors of the repeal plan contend that the one-cent increase in the gasoline tax will give rural communities of the state more money for their local roads than the retention of the one-mill tax alone would give them, with less burden on farmers and other property owners.

Governor Stassen in a radio broadcast said that the people cannot afford both an increase in the gasoline tax and retention of the one-mill road tax.

"After a careful study of the financial problems of the state, including the advisability of beginning to pay up the rural credit loss," he said, "of taking some action to meet the heavy financial burden of the twin cities for relief and of looking toward some relief for real estate taxpayers, and considering further the fact that during this next year six and one-half million dollars worth of relief bonds issued by the state back in 1935 and 1937 will come due, and after weighing these problems over against the 80 million dollars in highway revenues that will come in from motor vehicle taxes and a four cent gas tax, there has been a growing support among both the Senators and Representatives for the proposal sponsored by a number of leading men in both houses that the gas tax be raised to four cents, but that the one mill real estate road tax be repealed. They further provide that $1,200,000 of the gas tax money be used to take the place of the one mill tax money and divided up accordingly between the counties of the state.

"We now have over one million dollars in reserve in the county gas tax allotment fund because we have been collecting more gas tax than was estimated. Furthermore the use of gasoline has been increasing each year and the more gasoline used the more taxes collected. In addition to this the one mill tax will still be on this year, so that the revenue will be coming in for 1941 from this levy.

"Putting all of these facts together it is my judgment that if the four cent gas tax is passed and the one mill road and bridge tax is repealed, the counties of the state will, for each of the next two years, get as much or more state aids for roads as they received in 1940."

Commencement Activities Started At N. W. S. A.

Commencement season activities for the Senior and Advanced classes at the Northwest School at Crookston, which began with the Junior-Senior banquet and Prom on March 8, will be concluded with the Commencement exercises on Thursday, March 27. Dr. Guy Stanton Ford, president of the University of Minnesota, will deliver the Commencement address at the exercises which will be held at two o'clock on the afternoon of that date. The Reverend Waldo Brown, pastor of the First Church of Christ of Crookston, will give the baccalaureate address on Sunday evening, March 23. The reception to the seniors will be held at the home of Superintendent and Mrs. T. M. McCall on the afternoon of March 23.

Advanced Day will be observed on Tuesday, March 18. Senior Day will be observed on Thursday, March 20, at which time the 1941 "Aggie," the class annual, will be distributed.

A total of 170 students will graduate from the regular, advanced, and business training courses at the Northwest School this year.

KNOW YOUR MONEY

And Avoid Loss Due to Counterfeits

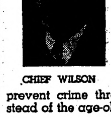
TO THE AMERICAN PUBLIC:

The United States Secret Service and your police wish you to KNOW YOUR MONEY, and through this nation-wide educational program aim to suppress the major crime of counterfeiting.



CHIEF WILSON

Observance of these few simple rules will safeguard the pocketbooks of the Nation. Therefore, I urge every person to carefully study the rules and to follow them.

The United States Secret Service is grateful for the whole-hearted cooperation which it has always enjoyed from your police officers, and we now solicit the assistance of every American citizen in this effort to prevent crime through this modern method of education, instead of the age-old method of prosecutions and imprisonment.

Frank J. Wilson

Chief, U. S. Secret Service.

HOW TO DETECT COUNTERFEIT BILLS

1. KNOW YOUR MONEY!
2. COMPARE the suspected bill with a genuine of the same type and denomination. Observe carefully the following features:

    (a) PORTRAIT: Genuine is lifelike; stands out from oval background which is a fine screen of regular lines; notice particularly the eyes. The counterfeit is dull, smudgy, or unnaturally white; scratchy; background is dark with irregular and broken lines.

    (b) SEAL: On genuine, sawtooth points around rim are identical and sharp. On counterfeit, sawtooth points are usually different; uneven; broken off.

    (c) SERIAL NUMBERS: Genuine have distinctive style; firmly and evenly printed; same color as seal. Counterfeit, style different; poorly printed; badly spaced; uneven in appearance.

    (d) PAPER: Genuine bills are printed on distinctive paper containing very small red and blue silk threads.

3. RUBBING a bill will NOT prove whether it is genuine or counterfeit; ink will rub off of either.
4. REMEMBER—NOT ALL STRANGERS ARE COUNTERFEITERS, BUT ALL COUNTERFEITERS ARE LIKELY TO BE STRANGERS.

TYPES OF CURRENCY

The only three types of currency printed by the United States Government for circulation are:

1. FEDERAL RESERVE NOTES, which bear GREEN serial numbers and seal.
2. UNITED STATES NOTES, which bear RED numbers and seal.
3. SILVER CERTIFICATES, which bear BLUE numbers and seal.

PORTRAITS

Denominations of bills may be identified by portraits, as follows:

| | | |
|---|---|---|
| WASHINGTON | on all | $1.00 bills |
| JEFFERSON | on all | $2.00 bills |
| LINCOLN | on all | $5.00 bills |
| HAMILTON | on all | $10.00 bills |
| JACKSON | on all | $20.00 bills |
| GRANT | on all | $50.00 bills |
| FRANKLIN | on all | $100.00 bills |

HOW TO DETECT COUNTERFEIT COINS

1. KNOW YOUR MONEY!
2. RING all coins on a hard surface. Genuine coins sound clear and bell-like. Counterfeits sound dull.
3. FEEL all coins. Most counterfeit coins feel greasy.
4. COMPARE the reeding (the corrugated outer edge) of a suspected coin with one known to be genuine. The ridges on genuine coins are distinct and evenly spaced. On counterfeit coins they are poorly spaced and irregular.

HOW TO CASH GOVERNMENT CHECKS

1. KNOW YOUR ENDORSERS!
2. DEMAND definite identification of the payee.
3. COMPARE endorsement on check with signature on identification.
4. WPA workers carry cards with identification number, signature and physical description. If you cash WPA checks, compare these three things and make sure the description fits that of the person presenting the check.
5. BE CAUTIOUS about cashing a check on which the payee's address is far removed from your place of business.
6. REMEMBER—You may lose the amount of any Government check which has not been endorsed by the rightful payee.
7. MAKE A CHECK BEFORE YOU TAKE A CHECK!!

Registration Of Defense Workers Urged By Stassen

State Officials Join National Authorities in Fostering Use of Employment-Security Division

Under the leadership of Governor Stassen, the public employment service in Minnesota, this week was being coordinated with a nation-wide effort to register defense workers during a thirty day period, starting March 15. Details were announced in Washington Friday, by Paul V. McNutt, Federal Security Administrator.

Offices of the Division of Employment and Security, of which Victor Christgau is director, are now receiving the registrations of unemployed workers who are available for work or training in defense jobs, and of every person with an urgently needed skill that is not being used in his present job.

The full time office of the Division in this area is located at Thief River Falls in charge of C. J. Sjolander.

The Governor's action supplements a recent letter by William S. Knudsen, Director of OPM, which urged all holders of defense contracts to use the state's employment offices to meet their labor needs. Contractors were also urged to refrain from recruiting workers outside their localities without first checking with the employment offices.

"Mr. Knudsen's letter", the Governor said, "imposes on the Minnesota Division, an obligation to obtain a complete registration of all available workers, especially those who are skilled or semi-skilled in defense job categories. It is requested, therefore, that all such Minnesota workers register their qualifications at the nearest office of the Division, so they may be notified when and if they are needed in an important defense industry."

Each month, the Governor pointed out, the Division takes an inventory of its applicant file. This, showing the number of workers in all job categories, is sent to Washington so defense officials can have a complete picture of the worker resources of this area.

"Minnesota is fortunate," he said, "that the Division is ready to meet this extraordinary situation. If workers register promptly, we will quickly acquire a complete catalogue of the state's available man power. This service will enable workers to avoid unnecessary migration, disturbances of labor standards, and other wasteful practices that can only slow down the Nation's defense effort."

LACK VARIETY IN MINN.? HIGHWAY CREWS FIGHT SNOW IN NORTH, MUD IN SOUTH

There comes a news-note from the Minnesota Highway department that goes to show there's little of monotony or boredom for problem solvers of the department's maintenance division.

One of the reasons is the fact that Minnesota's northermost and southernmost boundaries are 405 miles apart. And that, coupled with the 354 miles that lie between east and west extremities, means that at certain seasons of the year you can get in your car and just about choose your own climate.

One day last week, up in the still-frozen northern part of the state, snow-fighting crews were out on secondary roads, plowing drifts from the most recent snowstorm. The same day, down in southern Minnesota counties, maintenance crews were battling with mudholes which had developed so rapidly on some new grades as to make them virtually impassable.

State Provides One-Third Cost Of University

The University of Minnesota was a $13,880,588 business during the past year, of which sum almost exactly one-third was provided by the taxpayers of the state of Minnesota and two-thirds was derived from all other sources. This was shown in the annual report of William T. Middlebrook, comptroller, published in condensed form under the title, "Brief summary of financial operations." The fiscal year in question ended June 30, 1940.

All categories of University of Minnesota support from the state totalled $4,726,378.30, and support from the federal government came to $1,776,409.93. This included Public Works Administration grants for new buildings in the amount of $1,012,829.89. The University of Minnesota's two funds derived from ownership of lands yielded income of $370,549.35, of which that from the so-called Permanent Fund was $294,616.94, and that from the Swamp Land fund $75,932.41.

Largest among all categories of university income was that provided by fees and receipts and by the income from self-supporting service enterprises and the like, which, together, came to $4,973,977.35. Fees and receipts are a major source of new income, whereas service enterprises, while operated on a narrow profit margin, require outlays approaching the size of the receipts.

From trust funds, largely endowments by gift of definite prizes, scholarships, loans and the like, the university derived income of $909,672.10 and income from intercollegiate athletics, the remaining major source, was $390,821.57.

All of the above categories of income came in total to $13,147,808.60, to which was added to make the total first given, $400,350 derived from sale of certificates of indebtedness in the Coffman Memorial Union financing; a decrease of $326,964.69 in outstanding obligations and allotted balances, and a free balance from July 1, 1939, of $5,414.79.

Contributions by the state to the income of the University of Minnesota are listed in Mr. Middlebrook's report under five heads as follows: Legislative maintenance appropriation, $3,500,000; proceeds from the millage tax of 23-100 mills, $248,176.38; state's contribution to cost of indigent patients in University Hospitals, $200,000; appropriations for special projects approved by the Legislature, $308,701.92, and extensions of physical plant at state expense, $429,500.

On the side of outgo, instruction and research claimed the largest amount, namely $6,283,091, with physical plant extensions second at $2,534,864.55. The latter item was the largest on record because of the several PWA grants that covered such structures as Coffman Memorial Union, William J. Murphy Hall, the Museum of Natural History, Ada Comstock Hall, the new health service building at University Farm, Thatcher Hall, the dormitory for graduate students and the like.

Intercollegiate athletics cost the university $265,656.57, which includes that part of the expense of physical education defrayed by receipts from athletics. General university expense came to $637,767.15 covering such ventures as the library, publication of bulletins, storehouses, truck service, the employment bureau, inter-campus trolley line, and the like. Administrative expense of $198,888.28 fell to a ratio of only one and five-tenths percent from a normal of about two percent, inasmuch as it did not vary materially while the gross turn-over increased.

During the year a reserve for redemption of certificates of indebtedness was established at $103,882.50 and $10,000 in these certificates was redeemed. The increase in University of Minnesota endowments during the year was set at $110,505.54. At the close of the year the free, unencumbered balance was $1,285.38.

Copies of Comptroller Middlebrook's detailed report, soon to be off the press, may be obtained by writing to his office in the Administration building.

TRY OUT NEW METHOD OF PERCH FISHING

Chaska—When Herb Eder and John Dienslake of Chaska started out on a fishing expedition at Lake Minnetonka recently, the catching of a few fish was included in the plans, but not the manner in which they were caught. Driving out onto the lake, Mr. Eder felt the car start sinking in four feet of water and jumped out. His companion remained in the car and was pulled out a few minutes later. Still later the car was dragged out of the lake. The catch for the day was a couple of perch—"dry-docked" on the back seat of the car.

EWES AND LAMBS RESPOND TO EXTRA CARE IN SPRING

Care of ewes and new-crop lambs during the next few weeks will have an important bearing on profit or loss in this year's sheep raising operations, says W. E. Morris, extension animal husbandman at University Farm. Losses can frequently be headed off by proper care of the flock prior to lambing time.

Ewes should be gaining in weight as lambing nears. Thrifty animals with plenty of good legume hay during the winter months will not require grain until a few weeks before lambs are born. However, the ewes will be stronger and they will milk better if fed a pound of grain per day for about a month before lambing and immediately after until they can be placed on grass. Plenty of clean water is also important.

Adequate exercise is necessary during the pregnancy period. Hay fed in racks or corn bundles fed some distance from the barn provide the necessary incentive to make sheep move around.

One of the most serious diseases which affect ewes, pregnancy paralysis, is best prevented by exercise and proper feeding. If this trouble has appeared before in the flock, extra precaution can be taken by keeping a mineral mixture of steamed bonemeal, ground limestone and common table salt before the ewes. Sprinkling a little molasses on feed may also be a good precaution if ewes begin to show signs of sluggishness.

Newborn lambs will profit by extra attention. Sore eyes, a pus infection which sometimes develops shortly after birth, can be treated by washing twice a day with a solution of boric acid (two teaspoonfuls to a pint of water). Navel infection, which occasionally appears in the form of lameness and swollen joints, is headed off by dipping the navel cord in iodine. Trimming the wool away from the udder of the ewe just before lambing will help lambs to get a start nursing and prevent sucking on wool tags.

Lambs are set back least by docking and castrating if these operations are carried out a week or ten days after birth. Under no circumstances should they be permitted to go into the summer season without this necessary trimming. Lambs will start eating grain early if creeps are provided so that ewes can't get at the feed.

An important part of the early season program of the sheepman is to plan supplemental pastures for feed during the summer months when permanent pastures are unproductive.

Useful information on sheep management may be found in Extension Bulletin 141, "Sheep on Minnesota Farms," and Folder 35, "Trimmed Lambs Pay." These may be had by calling at the office of the county agent or writing Bulletin Room, University Farm, St. Paul.

CHICKEN AND GIRL ARE SAME AGE

Milaca—Bonna Johnson, daughter of C. F. Johnson of Foreston, believes she owns the oldest chicken in Mille Lacs county and possibly in the state. She was presented with the Rhode Island chick on her birthday 13 years ago, July 25, 1927. The chicken now lays only about one egg a year and her feathers have turned gray.

Milaca—John Santema of Milaca was faced with a real problem recently when he discovered after the last snow storm that his granary in which all of the feed for the stock was stored, was completely buried under a drift of snow 10 feet high, 100 feet long, and 50 feet wide. His son, Sidney, solved the problem by tunneling over 30 feet to get to the door of the granary.

Flax Growers Are Urged To Consider All Seed Claims

Minnesota Varieties Developed For Seed Production, Not For Fiber

Minnesota farmers, who lead the country in the production of superior seed flax, are not likely to neglect a good crop to look for a pot of gold at the end of the rainbow, in the opinion of County Agent R. A. Reierson. He urged flax growers to investigate carefully before joining any promotion scheme which promises double or triple income from flax raised primarily to supply fiber for spinning.

The varieties of flax grown in Minnesota and neighboring states have been developed primarily for seed production. Furthermore, agronomists say it is impossible to change a seed flax plant into a fiber flax plant by simple seed treatment. Any promotion scheme based on such an assumption is misleading.

County Agent R. A. Reierson points out that important strides have been made in the last year or two in developing a fiber market for the straw from seed flax, but this practice should not be confused with growing fiber flax as a special crop. The cigarette paper industry is now taking a great deal of flax straw at approximately $1.00 to $1.50 a ton, and fiber from this straw is also being utilized for upholstering and packing. This provides no startling addition to the flax income, but it does help the seed flax grower make the most of his crop and gives him new incentive to harvest clean straw as well as clean seed.

Farmers' Bulletin 1728 of the U. S. Department of Agriculture reports that flax-fiber quality suitable for spinning can be had only from varieties of flax bred for fiber production. These varieties feature a tall plant with few side branches, and a seed yield much lower than that of seed varieties.

While it may be possible to grow good fiber flax in some parts of Minnesota, climatic conditions here are likely to offer handicaps. Cool weather during a fairly long growing season, with an abundance of rainfall well spread out, are important requirements. For that reason, the most intensive fiber flax operations on this continent are now being carried out in Oregon, and Ontario, Canada.

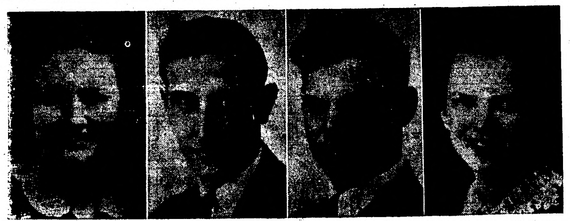
In the past, nearly all of the fiber flax used in this country has been imported from the low countries of Europe and from the Soviet Union. The production of fiber flax in the United States has been slow in starting largely because of the great amount of laborious handwork needed to harvest the fiber and process it for market. Importation difficulties as a result of the war have increased the price to the point where domestic production will increase, but the change is likely to be slow, and there should be no expectation of fabulous profits.

Reliable information on fiber flax may be had by writing the U. S. Department of Agriculture for Farmers' Bulletin 1728.

GIRL 3, UNHURT AFTER FALL FROM MOVING CAR

Austin—M. O. Roseth of Austin is a very grateful person today when he considers what might have happened to his three year old daughter when she fell recently from the back seat of his car while the car was traveling at the speed of 40 miles an hour on the highway. The girl spun around like a top as she fell, landing on the shoulder of the highway, but when Roseth stopped his car and ran back to get her, she picked herself up and ran to meet him with only a skinned ankle.

Angus Girl Wins Washington 4-H Club Trip



The highest honor that comes to a 4-H club member in recognition of outstanding achievements in project work will be conferred on four youthful Minnesotans in June. A. J. Kittleson, state club leader, announces that Martha DeLanghe of Ghent, Lyon county; Harley R. Cedarstrom of Watertown, Carver county; Ione Oberg of Angus, West Polk county; and Earle G. Meschke of Welcome, Martin county, have been selected to represent Minnesota at the National 4-H Club Camp, Washington, D. C., June 18-25. They will receive an all-expense trip for their 4-H accomplishments.

Harley Cedarstrom, 21 years old, has packed a great deal of club work into 11 years of participation. For ten of those years he was enrolled in the health project. Winnings, both in championship titles and in financial profits, have mounted each year. In 1936 he was chosen a member of the State Farm Boys Camp; in 1937 he was the 4-H State Holstein champion; in 1938 he was awarded a state fair trip; and in 1940 he was winner of the county REA contest. This year he bests all previous records by earning the National Camp trip.

Nineteen-year-old Martha DeLanghe is a student at the School of Agriculture, University Farm. During her nine years of club work she has completed 95 projects, but canning is her real interest. At the state fair in 1940 she was grand champion canning demonstrator, grand champion judge of canning, and she had the blue ribbon canning exhibit. To prove that she has an interest in other things than canning, Martha won state champion honors as room furnishing judge at the 1940 state fair and placed eighth in this project at the National Club Congress in Chicago. She participated in eight different dress revues and placed among the top five contestants in 1938, 1939 and 1940. She counts among her club assets, 540 quarts of canned products, 36 articles of clothing, a lovely lawn, shrubs and flowers, and a flock of approximately 225 hens.

Six head of purebred Angus cattle, six purebred Chester White gilts, and the money to pay his way through four quarters at the School of Agriculture at University Farm have resulted from Earle Meschke's 4-H work. He has won three championships and two reserve championships in showing various kinds of livestock. In 1939 Earle was chosen an alternate for the Washington trip. In 1938 he tied for state championship in general livestock judging. Earle lists as a result of 4-H club work, trips to the Junior Livestock Show in South St. Paul, the State Fair, 4-H club week at University Farm, the Dairy Congress at Waterloo, Iowa, and to the American Royal at Kansas City, Missouri.

Both sides of the farm and home business have been studied by Ione Oberg, who lives on an 865-acre Minnesota farm. She not only carried livestock projects but also was a member of dairy and poultry consumption teams. She has participated in dress revues, 4-H team demonstrations, and won trips to the State Fair, to the conservation camp at Itasca Park, and to state 4-H Club Week.

All four delegates have been assistant club leaders, have held numerous offices in their home clubs, and still found time to take active part in other community organizations and activities.

Letter From Rep. Morberg

Last week Representatives Geo. Hagen and Hutala made a valient attempt to get action by the House on the matter of a yet undetermined amount of back taxes owed the state by the mining companies. They introduced a resolution asking Tax Commissioner Spaeth, Attorney General Burnquist and the county auditors in counties where mines are located to investigate the reason for the failure of the iron mining companies to properly disclose and correct their true tonnage and pay their back taxes. It is claimed that 267 million tons have escaped taxation. Rep. Hutala pointed out that these back taxes would all go to the state and would more than take care of the relief needs of the Cities of the First Class, so we could have an end to the ever-recuring talk of a sales tax.

The appropriation bill for 42 state departments was introduced last week and it calls for an appropriation of $197,000 more than that of two years ago, so it seems that the streamlining is not working out as we have been led to believe.

A resolution calling for an investigation of the Game and Fish department was introduced last week by Representative Clark who showed where over $225,000 more was spent for salaries and travel in this division during the last two years than in a previous two year period.

I have always been an enemy of the homestead lien law, and still am, I can also see a reason why it would be wise to not throw it out through the door entirely at this time. I vored for the repeal of this law and will make no bones about it. We lost by one vote.

The young folks of the community who are planning on attending the Lake of the Woods Bible Camp at Baudette will meet at the Nazareth Lutheran Church Parlors on Friday evening at 8:15 to make plans for a special program to be given on April 20th. Whether or not these young people are certain of attending this summer or not, they should still come to this important meeting.

Alfred Larson arrived home Thursday after several weeks stay at a Veterans hospital at Minneapolis.

Mrs. Robert Forder underwent a major operation at Mercy hospital at Thief River Falls last Friday.

Food Stamp Plan Passed

Telegrams have been received this week from Congressman R. T. Buckler, Washington, and Dr. E. G. Booth, Fargo, announcing that Marshall County has been approved in the Food Stamp Plan sponsored by the Surplus Marketing Administration. Congressman Buckler has been working in close cooperation with local authorities to bring Marshall County under this plan. It is expected that operation of the plan will actually begin May 1.

The movement to put Marshall County on the Stamp Plan has been fostered by the Marshall County Food Merchant's Association. This association was organized after the Warren Commercial Club had considered the merit of the Food Stamp Plan and recommended the food dealers in the county organize to secure the plan and named Ed. Aamot as its representative.

Mr. Aamot has also been chairman of the County Merchant's Association and the early acceptance of Marshall County as a unit in the new plan is evidence of the splendid work done by Mr. Aamot and his associates.

The machinery for the county organization is now being perfected. Chairman Aamot announces the appointment of the special committees as follows:

Executive Committee

Ed Aamot, Warren; Roy Erickson, Warren; A. L. Carlson Argyle; Arnold Johnson, Stephen.

Publicity Committee

Arnold Johnson, Stephen; Cy. Mattson, Warren; R. B. Taralseth.

Finance Committee

Roy Erickson, Warren; Thommas Anderson, Warren; O. S. Green, Newfolden.

Redemption and Registration Committee

A. L. Carlson, Argyle; Wm. Larson, Oslo; C. B. Engelstad, Gatzke.

Educational Committee

H. C. Hanson, Viking; H. Hedquist, Argyle; Wm. Larson, Oslo R. B. Taralseth; Warren; James Porten, Alvarado; R. P. Carlson, Stephen; A. W. Carlson, Holt; Lloyd Spray, Middle River; Martin, Myszkowshi, Strandquist, J. O. Severson, Newfolden; C. E. Englestad, Gatzke; Carl Holbrook, Grygla.

The Food Stamp Plan is expected to mean a great deal to the people of Marshall County. It is anticipated that additional business to the retailers of food estimated at $50,000.00 per year will result from this plan. The local welfare authorities state that approximately 550 families will be benefited through the new plan. In general, families receiving public assistance or WPA wages are eligible to participate as well as other groups who may be considered upon application at the Welfare Office.

The Stamp Plan provides that, through the use of stamps furnished free by the Surplus Marketing Administration, these families may secure 50 per cent more purchasing power for the money they spend on food. It succeeds the bulk distribution plan that has been in effect in the county for several years Public schools that have been receiving commodities will continue to do so as in the past.

Farm Tractor Fuel Measure

Rushing their action in anticipation of the early approach of the spring planting season, the members of the Minnesota legislature pushed through both houses this past week the much debated crude petroleum tractor fuel bill to allow farmers to purchase an improved farm tractor fuel without the necessity of paying the state gasoline tax and obtaining refunds.

The bill sets up specifications for a fuel of a higher grade than that admitted tax-free under the 1939 law and would allow all companies to bring in such a fuel, whether refined or in the natural state, and sell it to the farmers tax-free. Demand for such a fuel has been widespread among the farmers and some was brought into the state by one company but the state tax department concluded that it could not be admitted under the present laws withouth being subject to tax.

Sponsors of the bill, made up of rural members, contended that farmers should be entitled to have this high-grade tractor fuel and obtain it tax-free, without having to pay the state gasoline tax on it and wait for the refunds. It was imperative that the legislature extend this relief and pass the bill without further delay, they said, so that supplies of the new fuel may be available for the rapidly approaching spring planting season. Both houses agreed, and the bill quickly wts dispatched to Governor Stassen for approval.

Authors of the bill in the senate were Senators J. V. Weber, Frank Sell and Ancher Nelsen. Sponsors in the house were Representatives John A. Hartle, P. J. E. Petersen, Walter Burdick, Helmer Myre and L. F. Haeg.

Debate over the proposal was concerned largely with the question of possible tax evasion. To meet this threat, the two houses adopted an amendment which would require dealers to report monthly under oath receipts of the fuel and the sales made. Farmers obtaining the fuel will be required to sign a statement that it is to be used for agricultural purposes. Violations of the provisions of the act would be made a misdemeanor.

Members of the two houses worked over-time the past week to clear their calendars of pending bills.

Two measures were passed in the senate which will deliver a heavy blow to slot machinrs. One bill, sponsored by Sanator Harold Harrison, would make the possession or operation of a slot machine illegal and impose both jail sentences and fines for violation, allowing prison sentences up to one year and fines up $1,000 on second offenses.

The other bill, sponsored by Senators Finstad and Dougherty, would give the state liquor control commissioner power to revoke operating permits for liquor and beer establishments in which machines are found.

School Ground Beautification

Tree planting and school ground beautification will be discussed by R. A. Reierson, county agent, at a series of three meetings in Marshall county on Saturday at which school board members and teachers are urged to attend, Miss Thora Skomedal, county superintendent of schools announced today.

The first meeting will be held at Gatzke at 10 a. m. followed by a second meeting at Newfolden in the high school at 2:00 p. m., with the final meeting at Argyle at 8:00 p. m.

The meetings were arranged following the successful meeting held in Grygla some time ago when Mr. Nylund, horticulturist at the Northwest School of Agriculture, spoke concerning the subject. Much interest was displayed among the teachers and it was decided to hold additional meetings in an effort to promote a tree planting and school ground beautification progrrm, Miss Skomedal stated.

Wardens Get New Uniforms

Minnesota game wardens were uniformed and armed with .38 calibre revolvees this week by the Department of Conservation.

It marked the first time in the history of Minnesota conservation that officers in charge of enforcing wildlife protection laws had uniforms and sidearms in keeping with the status of their offices.

Provided at Department expense, the uniforms are forest green with gold buttons on which is emblazoned the Great Seal of the State.

Black leather Sam Brown belts and holsters to match, caps, shirts, trousers, and a mackinaw make up each outfit. The guns are of the latest repeating .38 calibre type.

Numerous delays beset the Department since the clothing was ordered last December. U. S. Army priority on cloth markets made it impossible to purchase the uniform material on the original schedule.

Uniforms and sidearms were provided for each of the 135 wardens on the force.

MARCEL HENRI REBIERE, a Frenchman and a cameraman for the March of Time, has recently come to this country, to focus his cameras on interesting subjects in the Western Hemisphere. Although he speaks no English, he has an uncanny sense of what the American public likes—he has filmed many outstanding March of Time subjects during the past few years, including "The Vatican," "The Maginot Line," and Finland.

Born in Paris 45 years ago, Rebiere took up photography before he enlisted in the French army in 1914. After being wounded in battle he was shifted to the Army Cinematographic service; after the war he made documentary films for the French government in Siberia, French West Africa and the Near East; in 1925 he became chief cameraman for the Compagnie Universelle Cinematographique of Paris, for whom he made instructional, sociological and experimental films until 1934, when he went to work for the March of Time, becoming their chief European cameraman. His tact and experience in working with diplomats and important government leaders and his amazing news sense make him a notable figure in his line of work.

Almost every set at Metro at present has a dog of its own who's a member of the cast. The ritziest is Buttons, a member of the "Lady Be Good" troupe; half beagle, half fox terrier, he's very important—he does a tap dance with Eleanor Powell. So he rates a portable dressing room.

On the "Billy the Kid" set there's an old farm collie who is supposed to follow Ian Hunter around; he just gets a rug to lie on between shots. The two little terriers in "Blossoms in the Dust" have to be taken while walking when they're not working—they're true camera hounds; want to be playing on the set whether they're scheduled to or not.

Scientists believe the tarpon may be undergoing a strange evolution. WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS — By Edward C. Wayne

Soviet Russia Pledges Its 'Neutrality' In Case of Nazi Attack on Turkey; British Lose Tons of Vital Supplies As German Raiders Roam Sea Lanes

(EDITOR'S NOTE—When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of the news analyst and not necessarily of this newspaper.)
(Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

The above photo was taken in Ottawa, Canada, at the signing of the agreement between the United States and Canada making possible the start of work on the St. Lawrence-Great Lakes waterway project. This agreement must be approved by Congress and then by the Dominion parliament. Above: MacKenzie King, Canadian prime minister, hands over a signed copy of the pact to J. P. Moffat, U. S. minister to Canada.

RUSSIA:
Another Pledge

In World War II Turkey's national interests seem to logically lie on the side of Britain and in opposition to Adolf Hitler. But Turkey has usually been forced from speaking too loudly against Germany. Reason: Josef Stalin and his Soviet Union. For Turkey knows well that she cannot risk armed conflict unless Russia approves.

This condition exists because once the Turkish army is occupied elsewhere the Soviet legions could easily move in and take over the national government. And Russia is interested in Turkey because Turkey controls the Dardanelles, those strategic straits which form Russia's only year-round, warm-water route to the outside world.

With the Dardanelles threatened by German activity in the Balkans and with the Nazis poised in Bulgaria for a thrust at Greece, Russia began to worry. That worry reached the point where Russia decided to sign a pledge of benevolent and helpful neutrality in case Turkey is attacked by Germany. Following the signing of this agreement Soviet troops were reported to have moved up closer to the massed Nazi forces in southeast Europe.

UNITED STATES:
An Axis 'Foe'

It made hardly a ripple in the United States that Italian and Nazi papers were openly listing this country as among the Axis "foes."

Said one Fascist organ:

"The democratic powers wanted the war and now must undergo defeats and ruin. The Italian revolution, begun 22 years ago, is today a world revolution."

A Milan paper said: "The new Europe will not forget at the opportune moment President Roosevelt's action and from now on assign such powerful arms to the duty of liquidating with its victory over the London democracies, also the spurious democratic remnants across the ocean."

These were typical of the other thinly veiled threats that American democracy was to be included with that of England and Greece and China in the general overthrow by the Axis powers, assuming victory to be certain.

Yet little Jugoslavia, even while apparently ready much against its will to sign up with the Axis, was making such a spectacle of the signing that Germany and Italy could have no slightest doubt that it was being done under the strongest duress.

In fact, Jugoslavia held back so long and so obdurately that it was evident she was hoping against hope that Germany would move over the Bulgarian border and that British forces, by engaging the Nazi hordes, would enable the Serbs to do a bit of fighting on their own, along with their friends, the non-Axis neighbors.

There was some talk that Russia was friendly to such an idea and that this was giving the Yugoslavs additional courage to hold out. But hold out they did, even in the vital meeting of the cabinet when the vote for signing up was to be taken.

Jugoslavia might give in, the word went plainly out to the Axis, but she would give in unwillingly.

AIR:
Blitz Serious

The sudden and continued heavy air attacks, not only on London, but on smaller cities and towns, particularly on the eastern coast of Britain proved not only to be spectacular but heavily damaging.

The Germans heralded each of the first raids as "another Coventry," but toward the last they ceased the Coventry references and apparently were content to let the damage and the magnitude of the attacks speak for themselves.

FLEET:
On the Loose

In World War I, the German fleet steamed out of Kiel and was promptly defeated and sunk by the Allied naval forces. In World War II, the German fleet has sailed out of its harbors piecemeal, and has wreaked devastating destruction on the British merchant shipping.

It was with disquieted ear that the United States heard Britain, through Prime Minister Churchill, announce that two of Germany's strongest battleships, the Scharnhorst and the Gneisenau, had escaped cordons of British vessels set to intercept them, and were "on the loose" in Atlantic waters.

According to some reports, within a week these two vessels, possibly with the aid of others, had sunk around 244,000 tons of British and neutral shipping, particularly some vessels reportedly loaded with lend-lease aid to Britain.

The warning of Churchill that some German war vessels might be expected to act within American neutrality zone waters was followed dramatically by the announcement that two of the Nazi navy's capital ships were roving the high seas, obviously looking for easy prey in unprotected convoys.

For, under the British convoy system 40 to 50 vessels meet at Halifax or some similar port as far out as possible into the eastern Atlantic, and from there are convoyed some distance from land, after which the pitifully small convoying force returns to port after which the convoy is "on its own" until some point where it is picked up, say, 500 to 700 miles off the Irish coast, by another, also pitifully small convoy.

It has been somewhere between these points, according to Churchill, that the Scharnhorst and the Gneisenau, first-line battleships, with which destroyers and cruisers would be unable to cope, that the heavy current sinkings had been done.

SEVEN BILLION:
In the Bag

Approval of the seven billion dollar British aid bill came as both House and Senate passed the measure with top heavy votes. Only the President's signature was needed to start the speed of U. S. supplies to Britain. President Roosevelt was vacationing off the Florida coast and arrangements were therefore made to dispatch the measure to him by airplane.

The President could afford to leave Washington, he felt, and he saw by the house action and by the senate reaction that his $7,000,000,000 plan would become a fact. Long before the house and senate acted on the lease-lend bill, administration advisers, working with the President and British representatives in this country, had formulated a general budget plan, somewhat flexible, but complete and separated into its various items.

In fact, that was one reason, it was generally believed, why the house passed the request by such a strong majority. It could not, in the face of the President's message, be said that the figure was just a "dream amount" hatched in a general way out of the administration's conviction that our aid to Britain and other democracies should be of the greatest possible amount.

Quite to the contrary, the exact division of the amounts and the purposes had been set forth, and even the allowance for shifting from one account to another had been set, showing that the whole plan had been carefully thought out.

It was openly declared by Secretary Knox of the Navy that the first aid to be sent under the bill would be considerable numbers of naval vessels, particularly the smaller ones, including destroyers (over-age in all probability) mosquito boats, trawlers and converted private yachts.

SAME BED WITH FOOT CUT DOWN-THE DOTTED SWISS VALANCE IS STITCHED TO MUSLIN BETWEEN THE SPRINGS AND MATTRESS
HAND-MADE QUILT IS NOT WELL DISPLAYED ON A BED WITH HIGH FOOT BOARD AND NO VALANCE

Most of the quilts of today are planned as bedspreads and have a color scheme to harmonize with other decorations. If a variety of figured scraps are used in the piecing, one dominant plain color is generally repeated in each block to give the design unity. Again, one color is combined with white throughout the entire quilt. Some quilts have elaborate pieced borders; others are finished with a band of white with the dominant color used as an edge binding. A bias striped material makes the binding of the quilt in the Whirl Wind pattern shown here.

The beauty of any quilt is enhanced if it is set off with a valance around the bed. They knew that in the days of the four-poster and the rule applies still. The bed in the sketch had no particular tradition and the footboard was much too high to display the quilt spread to advantage. What a difference in the effect when the board was cut down and the crisp frills of dotted Swiss were added! Surely, any quilt that is worth piecing is worth this extra touch.

NOTE: If you have an old iron bed that you would like to cut down, SEWING Book 3 tells how; 10 cents postpaid. You may also want Mrs. Spears' three Favorite Quilt Patterns. One, called the Ann Rutledge, was sketched from an original in the reconstructed Rutledge Tavern at New Salem, Illinois, and it is possible that Ann may have been making these quilt blocks when Abe Lincoln came courting. The other two patterns are the Whirl Wind and the Kaleidoscope. Set of three patterns with directions mailed for 10 cents. Send order to:

A Quiz With Answers Offering Information on Various Subjects

The Questions

1. Was Capt. Miles Standish one of the Pilgrim Fathers?
2. Who was killed by Aaron Burr in the famous duel?
3. What is the exact length of time taken by the earth in making its revolution around the sun?
4. Next to oxygen, what is the chief elementary constituent of the earth's crust?
5. The word guerrilla is derived from a Spanish word meaning what?
6. What President of the United States was born on July fourth?
7. What place is known as the Gibraltar of the East?
8. Is there more sunlight at the equator than at the poles?
9. What is the smallest of all flowering plants?
10. In what direction does a cyclone whirl?

The Answers

1. Capt. Miles Standish was not a Pilgrim, he was brought along for protection.
2. Alexander Hamilton.
3. The trip takes 365 days, 5 hours, 48 minutes and 46 seconds.
4. Silicon.
5. War (guerra).
6. Calvin Coolidge.
7. Singapore.
8. No. A recent study showed that each pole has 65 more hours of sunlight per year than the equator.
9. The smallest of all flowering plants belong to the genus Wolffia. They are aquatic, have no roots and produce flowers about the size and shape of the head of a pin.
10. Because of the rotation of the earth, a cyclone whirls clockwise in the Southern hemisphere and counterclockwise in the Northern hemisphere. For the same reason, cyclonic storms travel westward in the tropics and eastward in the middle latitudes.

TIPS to Gardeners

QUICK FLOWER GARDENS

MANY people want quick results in the flower garden, and for them the lists of annual flowers offer effective aid.

A highly satisfactory, and economical hedge, for instance, can be grown in six or eight weeks from seed. Kochia is the plant. A single packet of Kochia seed will provide a full, bushy hedge along the front or side of the yard. For a flowering hedge, Four o'Clock will produce attractively within two months after seed is planted.

Glowing borders of flowers that beautify the yard, and at the same time provide ample cut flowers for the housewife, may be enjoyed the first summer. The fastest-growing and most dependable annuals for cutting include the Zinnias, Marigolds, Bachelor Buttons and Petunias. There are tall, medium, and dwarf varieties of each.

Most widely used of fast-growing annual vines is Heavenly Blue Morning Glory, whose giant, soft-blue flowers are in a class by themselves. It is well to scratch the coat of Heavenly Blue seeds before planting them to speed their otherwise slow germination.

Potent Events

There are certain events which to each man's life are as comets to the earth, seemingly strange and erratic portents; distinct from the ordinary lights which guide our course and mark our seasons, yet true to their own laws, potent in their own influences.—Bulwer-Lytton.

CATTLE'S GRAZING HABITS ARE KEY TO VALUE OF SOIL

Animals Show Unerring Knowledge in Picking Forage.

COLUMBIA, MO.—Farm animals are performing tests on soil fertility that rival the scientific technique of soil chemists, according to Dr. William A. Albrecht, Chairman of the Department of Soils of the University of Missouri.

The magic of these animals lies in being able to detect forage that has been produced from fertilized fields while rejecting herbage from untreated fields, Dr. Albrecht pointed out.

"Cattle can pick out limed and fertilized corn in a field surrounded by unfertilized grain," said Dr. Albrecht.

Know Their Grass.

"They can tell the difference between grass grown on soil which has had phosphate added and grass grown on untreated soil. They can select soil treated lespedeza and prairie hay from among stacks that have not been treated.

"Domestic animals, however, cannot roam at will to find their preferred forage. If they are confined by fences to fields deficient in lime and fertilizer elements such as nitrogen, phosphorus and potash, then they must suffer the consequences of malnutrition."

Lesson for Humans.

If dumb animals can show the way toward better agricultural practices, then it is time human beings, themselves, admitted the values of such a program.

"A program of pasture improvement through the use of fertilizers," a statement says, "not only produces grasses richer in essential minerals but promotes more rapid growth on depleted land. It provides a diet essential to the healthy growth of livestock, helps conserve the soil and adds to the long range value of a farm.

"Tests on Midwestern farms have revealed that a dollar invested in fertilizer to improve rundown pasture land may be expected to return from $3 to $6 in the form of more meat and milk, depending upon management and the kind of livestock. The amount and analysis of fertilizer to use will depend on a number of factors. County agents or agronomists at the state college will cooperate in providing recommendations covering the use of fertilizers."

An Ancient Custom

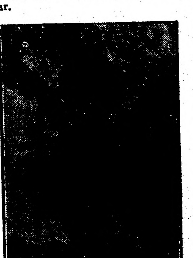
HUMAN SMALLPOX HAS COUNTERPART IN SWINE DISEASE

Swine raisers have had increasing trouble during the last few years from a hog disease which very closely resembles the human ailment, smallpox.

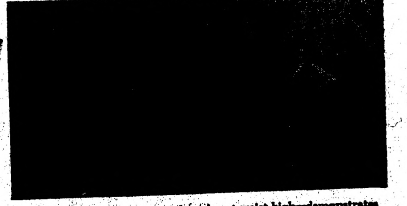
Swine pox, as it is called, chiefly affects young pigs and growing shoats. The pox appears on the hair-free portions of the body, especially on the belly, snout and armpits. At first the spots are the size of a pea, then they blister, and finally form a crater-like scabbed sore, the typical pox lesion. Swine pox also appears sometimes on brood sows, pox sores developing on their udders and teats. In these cases, suckling pigs develop sore mouths, and starve.

Farmers should be cautious about introducing new pigs into a herd, and should always isolate them for a few weeks. The buyer should demand a certificate of veterinary inspection when new pigs are purchased. Poxy pigs should never be sold to neighbors, as the disease is very contagious.

Prompt attention by a veterinarian will greatly reduce losses from swine pox, if treatment can be started when the first spots or blisters begin to appear.



Swine pox is generally characterized by a breaking out on the under surface of the body.



The field of barley at the right—almost waist high—demonstrates how yields are being increased on many farms along the Great Northern Railway. The knee-high barley at the left was planted at the same time. The application of phosphate fertilizer resulted in ten days earlier maturity and 26 bushels more barley to the acre. The phosphated field yielded 56.6 bushels of 44-pound grain to the acre; the other field, 30.7 bushels of 40.5-pound grain. The picture was taken on a farm near Pipestone, Minnesota.

"The Well is Dry"

That wouldn't be good news to any farmer. But at the worst it probably would mean no more than digging a new one.

Far worse if the farm itself should wear out!

A half century has passed since the Great Northern was built through the unsettled Northwest and immigrants were unloading their tools of husbandry from box cars to begin the taming of plains and forests.

Through all these years thousands upon thousands of tons of crops have been removed from the farm lands along the railroad—crops that have built your cities and towns—crops that have provided the principal traffic of the railroad.

Hand in hand with the building of the Great Northern, efforts were begun to enrich and conserve the fertility of the land.

The experimental farms which James J. Hill established near St. Paul and in the Red River valley, the experiments he encouraged and supported wherever he laid his rails, and his employment of soil and livestock experts—these were the forerunners of the county agents and the state and federal experimental stations of today.

A half century ago, in talks at State Fairs and at meetings of farmers and livestock growers, Mr. Hill was pointing out the danger of taking fertility too much for granted.

Today the Great Northern and its corps of agricultural experts are co-operating with progressive farmers and state and federal agencies in programs to restore fertility where there are signs of approaching depletion and to enrich and conserve it elsewhere.

Different lands and different areas, of course, call for different methods—in many places, the application of phosphate; in others, crop rotation and increased use of natural fertilizers; in dryland areas, strip farming which by alternating fallow and crop strips holds fertile top soil on the farm; improved types of soil tillage to minimize drifting and retain moisture; the seeding of crested wheatgrass and other cover crops to tie down fertile top soils; and contour furrowing to decrease erosion.

And so "railroading" and farming in the territory opened up by the Great Northern have come down a half-century-old road together. They are still traveling together because both are "landed" interests. Their future is bound to the soil. And they are resolved to keep that future ahead of them and not behind them!

Refuge Celebrating Wildlife Week

Some 2,300 regular and 2,300 seasonal employees of the Fish and Wildlife Service, United States Department of the Interior, are joining 50,000,000 or more Americans in celebrating National Wildlife Restoration Week, which begins April 14 sponsored by the National Wildlife Federation. National, State, and local organizations throughout the country will hold meetings to call the Nation's attention to the necessity of conserving the wildlife population in North America, according to Vogen, Refuge Manager, stationed on the Mud Lake National Wildlife Refuge in Marshall County.

"Incidentally, this is the first year that the Fish and Wildlife Service, as such, has participated in Wildlife Restoration Week," he said. He recalled that the Service was formed last July when the Bureau of Fisheries and the Bureau of Biological Survey were consolided by President Roosevelt.

"The consolidation, effected under Secretary of the Interior Harold L. Ickes, has resulted in coordinating the conservation efforts of the two organizations," Vogen continued. The lines of work conducted by both former bureaus still continue he, added.

Many of the 263 national wildlife refuges will hold open house for the public. Visitors who wish to see the sanctuaries may do so by calling at refuge headquarters and making arrangements with the manager. In Minnesota, six refuges will hold open house.

"Only a few years ago", the Service official said, "the American wildlife situation was extremely alarming, but we are now optimistic about the effect conservation practices are having on our wild animal and fish populations."

He pointed with pride to the "excellent comeback" made by most of the migratory waterfowl. In 1935, he explained, the wild ducks and geese had fallen to an all-time low of less than 30,000,000. "But since carefnl management and planning have been underway, the population has incrrased in 6 years to more than 65,000,000," he asserted.

Plant Your Garden Early

The urge that comes this time of the year to dig up soil for garden ought to be encouraged, says Inez Hobart, nutrition specialist at University Farm, St. Paul. An early garden can contribute a great deal to the health of the rural family. This year the garden is being given extra emphasis as a means to national health, which is an important partof the national defense effort.

County agent R. A. Reierson points out that the many vegetables which can be grown successfully in Marshall County are excellent sources of food elements that bring normal growth to youngsters and energetic health to adults. According to Miss Hobart, the typical American winter diet of bread, meat, potato and sweets is deficient in calcium, iron and the vitamins so necessary for all-round good health. The result shows up in health records of school children, a large proportion of whom are troubled with bad teeth, frequent colds, and anemia.

This condition makes it all the more desirable to get home grown vegetables such as asparagus, green onions, chard, new peas, spinach, beet greens and leaf lettuce on the table as soon as possible. These greens abound in vitamin A, the food substance which restores pep, quickens the appetite and gives the protection against infections.

One-half cup of chard, spinach or beet greens is equal in vitamin content to 1½ cups of butter or 10½ cups of orange juice.

Green vegetables score again as a source of iron. One cup of spinach is equivalent in iron to 6 tablespoons of molasses, to 3 ounces of beef liver, 7 cups of oatmeal or 27 slices of white bread.

University Farm experts recommend Blomsdale spinach, chives, lettuce and green peas for early greens. For later plantings, they suggest chard, beets, New Zealand spinach, parsley, green beans and cabbage.

There is much to be gained and little to be lost by rushing the season a bit in planting the family garden, says County Agent R. A. Reierson. As soon as the soil is in shape to work well it is frequently a good idea to plant many of the common vegetables, even though the danger of frost is not past.

There are several good reasons for getting in the garden early. In the first place, garden greens are most welcome in the spring months after a winter diet which is usually deficient in many essential food elements. Most garden plants will be more tender and tasty if grown to eating stage before the drought and heat of summer. These also escape the insect pests and diseases which have a way of multiplying as the season progresses.

MINNESOTA CORN PRODUCERS TURN MORE TO HYBRID

ST. PAUL.—Hybrid corn's surge to front rank popularity among Minnesota farmers is indicated by the fact that nearly 60 per cent of the current year's corn acreage will be devoted to this variety.

In 12 corn belt states of the Middle West, hybrid will be planted on more than 25,000,000 acres this year, compared with only 12,000,000 three years ago, it is estimated. This represents slightly more than 50 per cent of the corn acreage of these states.

"Crop correspondents reporting to the Department of Agriculture last year indicated that hybrid corn outyielded other varieties by margins of from 10 to 30 per cent," says a statement by the Middle West Soil Improvement Committee.

"The popularization of hybrid has inaugurated a new era in the corn belt in which more abundant crops can be produced on a smaller acreage. Corn growers realize, however, that in the high-yielding hybrid they have a variety that draws heavily on the soil's resources of nitrogen, phosphorus and potash in order to produce sturdier stocks, more extensive root systems and fully developed ears. They realize, also, that the best way to produce a good corn crop is to make certain that the demands of high producing hybrid strains are taken care of through adequate fertilization of the soil.

"Truer than ever today is the axiom that 'fertilized corn is better corn'. To make certain that the supply of nitrogen, phosphoric acid and potash is sufficient for his crop needs, the corn grower can consult with his county agent or the agronomists at the state agricultural college. By applying the right amount of the correct fertilizer analysis he is assured of an increased yield."

MAN BEHIND PLOW IN MINNESOTA VITAL TO U. S. DEFENSE

MINNEAPOLIS, MINN.—Minnesota farmers realize that soil fertility is as vital to the defense of America as fighter planes, anti-aircraft batteries and naval strength, an agricultural bulletin points out.

"The man behind the plow is as important as the man behind the gun," the bulletin declares. "The farmer's importance lies just as much in defending his soil against the forces of depletion and exploitation as it does in producing foods.

Good Wheat a Defense Bulwark.

"Minnesota soils have been tilled continuously for more than a century. The reserve of virgin fertility stored in them by nature during the thousands of years before the advent of farming is being rapidly exhausted. Only by replacing these plant foods with commercial fertilizers can the soil's supply of nitrogen, phosphorus and potash be restored."

NEW IDEAS for Home-makers

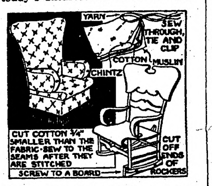
By RUTH WYETH SPEARS

DO YOU remember how old-fashioned comforters used to be tufted? They were made of two layers of fabric with cotton between and every four inches or so in rows the three layers of material were caught together with a stitch of wool yarn double which was then tied twice and clipped to make a fluffy tuft. Well, that is exactly the way many of today's smartest chair covers are made. A cover of this sort redeemed this old rocker and revealed its hidden charms.



YARN
SEW THROUGH, TIE AND CLIP
COTTON
MUSLIN
CHINTZ
CUT COTTON ¾" SMALLER THAN THE FABRIC-SEW TO THE SEAMS AFTER THEY ARE STITCHED CUT OFF ENDS OF ROCKERS
SCREW TO A BOARD

The cover is plain, medium green glazed chintz tufted with dark green yarn and three inch dark green fringe is used around the bottom. A long zipper makes a center back closing. Each section of the cover was fitted on the chair in the muslin lining first and these pieces were used as patterns for cutting the chintz, also the cotton which was trimmed to be ¾-inch smaller all around. After the pieces were tufted, as shown at the upper right, the seams were stitched up. Long stitches were then made on the inside to catch the edges of the cotton in place.

NOTE: Are you planning to make slip covers this Spring? Mrs. Spears' Books 1 and 3 tell you exactly how. Book 1 gives directions for fitting and finishing slip covers for chairs and davenports. Book 3 shows you how to make a pattern first; also how to arrange openings in covers for chairs of unusual types, and how to anchor slip covers so they will stay neatly in place. Books are 10 cents each. Send order to:

Laziness Grows

Laziness grows on people; it begins in cobwebs, and ends in iron chains. The more business a man has to do, the more he is able to accomplish; for he learns to economize his time.—Judge Hale.

TRUTH

Today's popularity of Doan's Pills, after many years of world-wide use, surely must be accepted as evidence of satisfactory use. And favorable public opinion supports that of the able physicians who test the value of Doan's under exacting laboratory conditions.

These physicians, too, approve every word of advertising you read, the objective of which is only to recommend Doan's Pills as a good diuretic treatment for disorder of the kidney function and for relief of the pain and worry it causes.

If more people were aware of how the kidneys must constantly remove waste that cannot stay in the blood without injury to health, there would be better understanding of why the whole body suffers when kidneys lag, and diuretic medication would be more often employed.

Burning, scanty or too frequent urination sometimes warn of disturbed kidney function. You may suffer nagging backache, persistent headache, attacks of dizziness, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes—feel weak, nervous, all played out.

Use Doan's Pills. It is better to rely on a medicine that has won world-wide acclaim than on something less favorably known. Ask your neighbor!

Flying Cadets Witness Aerial Review

Flashing overhead in wave after wave, 250 low wing monoplanes of the Gulf Coast Air Corps Training center at Randolph field, Texas, demonstrate the might of Uncle Sam's expanding air force to 25,000 spectators and the 900 future pilots now in training at the "West Point of the Air." A cheer went up from the Flying Cadets, formed in ranks along the field's edge, as veteran flying instructors flashed across the airdrome, wing tip to wing tip.

In Law's Grip

One of the 125 Pennsylvania state troopers who smashed the picket blockade established by striking C.I.O. workers outside the Bethlehem Steel company plant in Bethlehem, Pa., making an arrest shortly after arrival on scene.

Willkie Gets Big Ovation in Canada

As great an ovation as any which he received when running for the presidency was tendered Wendell L. Willkie when he visited Montreal, Canada. St. James street forgot to be staid when he and Mrs. Willkie drove down its length to a civic welcome at the city hall. They are shown waving as they passed the Canadian Bank of Commerce.

For Training

Maj. Gen. Brett, acting air corps chief, (seated) told a house military affairs committee he believes every young man should consider a military education. Shown with him is Representative Harter of Ohio.

SEASON of '41

The 1941 major league baseball season will open April 15. This year teams face changing personnels, as players are called into the army. Among leading players subject to call are Bob Feller, Cleveland Indians; Henry Greenberg, Detroit Tigers; John Rigney, Chicago White Sox; and Ted Williams of the Boston Red Sox.

D. A. R. Convenes

Concluding a three-year term as president of the Daughters of the American Revolution, Mrs. Henry M. Robert Jr. (above) will preside at the organization's fiftieth congress in Washington, April 14-19. The D.A.R. has 143,000 members.

Strengthen Pan-American Solidarity

Pan-American day, first observed 10 years ago, will be celebrated April 14 in every independent country in the Western hemisphere. Map shows shortest distances between points in the Americas and the Old World. With the airplane reducing these distances to hours, co-operation between the Americas becomes increasingly important.

Writers' Meet

Writers from both Americas will attend the Inter-American writers' meet at Rio Pierdras, Puerto Rico, April 14-24. A. MacLeish (above) will head U. S. group.

(Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

VERONICA LAKE, the beautiful blonde who's expected to zoom to stardom as a result of her appearance in Paramount's "I Wanted Wings," doesn't want wings right now—all she wants is a chance to stay put right in Hollywood for a while.

After finishing work in the picture—in which she plays a heartless vixen and provides tragic love interest—she flew to Montreal with her mother; she spent three days there, during which she made three personal appearances and four radio broadcasts. Her name was given to three babies, a new fox trot, a park and a military aerial maneuver. Canadian fliers named it the "Veronica roll" in her honor. Then she headed for New York, where she spent a day, and then flew home—where it had been planned that she'd be a feature attraction at the military aerial review at Randolph Field, Texas, staged as a prelude to the first showing of "I Wanted Wings."

"Broadway Limited," which is being made at the Hal Roach studios for release through United Artists, promises to be one of the year's most hilarious comedies. It's a tale of a film star en route from the West coast to New York with her director and her publicity man; the cast includes Victor McLaglen, (as a locomotive engineer), Zasu Pitts, Patsy Kelly and George Stone.

Bette Davis received unexpected assistance the other day. For a scene in "The Bride Came C. O. D." she was to walk down a flight of stairs, pause at the bottom, then rush into James Cagney's arms. Just as she reached the bottom a lamp above her head sizzled loudly and shot out sparks; without looking, she gave a surprised leap, and landed in Cagney's arms. "Print it!" shouted Director William Keighley. "It's perfect!"

Incidentally, Miss Davis will have, in "The Little Foxes," a role which might have been created for her. Tallulah Bankhead played it when the play had a long and successful run in New York, then took it on tour throughout the country. This will be the first time that Miss Davis has worked for Samuel Goldwyn, and the picture marks his resumption of picture-making after a year of inactivity. William Wyler, who directed "The Letter," will direct, and the play is being adapted for the screen by its author, Lillian Hellman.

Melville Ruick, a radio theater announcer, has been one of radio's top announcers since 1935, but motion picture casting directors persist in seeing him as a typical orchestra leader. He appeared in one in "Kitty Foyle," the picture that brought Academy honors to Ginger Rogers, and has been cast as one in "Miami"—his third such assignment in a year.

Bonita Granville has her most dramatic role in "The People vs. Dr. Kildare," the latest of the Kildare series; she'll have to be on her toes, with Lionel Barrymore, Lew Ayres, Laraine Day and Red Skelton also present.

There's a new style in the air, thanks to Janet Logan and Barbara Fuller, the mythical stepmother-stepdaughter team on the CBS daytime serial, "Stepmother." They used to check up on each other's plans for a week ahead, to make sure of not wearing similar costumes. Then the stress laid on "mother - daughter" outfits gave them an idea; they wear clothes of similar design in contrasting shades—and fashion promoters are interested.

ODDS AND ENDS—Warner Bros. will film "Miniature Melodramas" based on popular short stories, employing top stars and writers . . . Bob Hope appears in Hollywood's first battle of World War II in "Caught in the Draft" . . . Peter Lorre, who's added a sinister touch to many a movie, will play a rascally and fearsome sea captain in "The Uniform," which stars Rosalind Russell and Clark Gable . . . Deanna Durbin has moved that wedding date up to April 18th, her parents' anniversary . . . Paramount's to film "Government Girl," dealing with the life of a small-town girl who goes to Washington as a cog in the governmental machine.
